CIRCULAR 756.

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL,
LONDON, S.W.1.
January, 1927.

HOUSING (RURAL WORKERS) ACT, 1926.

I.—GENERAL SCOPE AND OBJECTS OF ACT.

The object of the Act (a) is to secure a contribution to the improvement of housing conditions for agricultural labourers and other country workers by facilitating the reconditioning of old houses in such a way as to bring them up to modern standards of comfort and sanitation and by the conversion into dwellings of buildings not previously used for that purpose.

To this end the Act provides for assistance both by grants (towards which Exchequer contributions will be available) and by loans, to be made available by Local Authorities to owners who are willing to undertake the carrying out of approved works.

The Act attaches conditions to the grant of public money which are designed to secure that the benefits shall go practically entirely to the tenants and not to the landlords. The Act directs attention to the necessity for preserving any historic, architectural or artistic interests in buildings dealt with under the Act, and to the importance of securing that the dwellings when completed will be in all respects satisfactory.

The Act is temporary, assistance only being available in respect of applications received by the Local Authority before October 1st, 1931. (b)

(b) The period of operation of the Act of 1926 has been extended as follows :
to October 1st, 1936, by the Housing (Rural Workers) Amendment Act, 1931, ante, p. 1859 ; to June 24th, 1938, by s. 37 (1) of the Housing Act, 1935, ante, p. 1863 ; to September 30th, 1942, by s. 1 of the Housing (Rural Workers) Amendment Act, 1938, ante, p. 1875.

II.—SCHEMES OF LOCAL AUTHORITIES.

It is contemplated that the Act should be administered by Local Authorities in accordance with schemes to be approved by the Minister.

The first step therefore to be taken by the Local Authority is the formulation of this scheme for submission to the Minister. The scheme, which should indicate the method in which the Local Authority propose to apply the Act to their area, should form the basis of information to be given to possible applicants for assistance, and it is suggested that when a scheme has been approved by the Minister the Local Authority should take steps to publish as widely as possible, by leaflets or otherwise, information as to the assistance available and the way in which it may be obtained.

The essential points to be covered by the scheme are as follows:—

(1) The information which will be required from applicants, including some indication of the extent to which drawings and specifications will be required, together with the proposed requirements as to forms of estimate and particulars as regards the occupation of the dwellings.

(2) The proposals for the investigation of individual applications and the administration of the scheme, particularly in regard to—

(a) valuation of dwellings:

(c) in the case of loans, payments during progress of works:

(3) Kind of buildings to be assisted and maximum value of dwellings: (The valuation to be made will be that of the dwelling after the completion of the proposed works and section 2 of the Act stipulates that the maximum value must not exceed four hundred pounds.)

(4) Form and amount of assistance proposed: the maximum and minimum amounts of grants and loans should be given.

(5) The nature of the works in respect of which the Local Authority propose to entertain applications.

Certain specified works are mentioned in section 1 (2) (b) of the Act (b) and more detailed suggestions on this point are set out in Part III of this Circular.

(6) The period within which any works approved by the Local Authority must be completed.

It is of course desirable that where promises of assistance are made by a Local Authority the work should be carried out as expeditiously as possible and that the Local Authority should not remain under liability to make grants for an indefinite period. The period to be fixed in relation to any particular work is the period from the date of the approval of the proposal by the Local Authority. In fixing the period the Local Authority will no doubt have regard to the availability of suitable labour and materials in the area and the extent of the work to be done in individual cases: it will not be necessary to prescribe the same period in each individual case and for the purposes of the Minister's approval it will be sufficient to prescribe that "the period allowed will not exceed (say) six months, unless the special consent of the Local Authority to an extension of this period is obtained in view of the character of the works or conditions arising during their execution."

(7) Number of cases in respect of which approval is desired.

The Minister proposes to give his approval in respect of a specified number of dwellings (which it is suggested should be approximately the number the Local Authority estimate they will be likely to deal with in the next six months) and applications for extensions of this number will be dealt with in the light of the experience gained, when the number is approaching exhaustion. It is appreciated that the number included in the first application must be somewhat conjectural.

(8) If application for sanction to a loan is made at this stage a copy of the Council's resolution applying for sanction should be forwarded.

(a) Ante, p. 1844.
(b) Ante, p. 1840.

HOUSING

The Minister desires to emphasize the importance of the Local Authority taking immediate steps to formulate and submit their general scheme.

It must be understood that it is essential that the approval of the Minister to the general scheme must be obtained before the Local Authority make any promises of assistance under the Act, and that individual applicants must obtain the approval of the Local Authority specifically for the purpose of assistance under the Act before commencing any of the work in respect of which they desire to obtain assistance. It will not be possible to admit to assistance under the Act any case which does not comply with these conditions and the particular attention of Local Authorities and of individual applicants is directed to these points.

III.—PURPOSES FOR WHICH ASSISTANCE CAN BE GIVEN.

Assistance under the Act is available—

(1) for the conversion into dwellings of buildings not previously used for that purpose:

(2) for the improvement of existing dwelling accommodation.

As to the former class care should be taken to avoid the acceptance of any proposals for the utilisation of buildings which on account of their structure or for any other reason would not be suitable for conversion into dwellings.

Section 1 of the Act (a) mentions certain items which will commonly be included as part of the expenditure in proposals under the Act. Section 1 (2) (b) lays down definitely the condition that the works which will rank for assistance under the Act must not include works of ordinary repair or upkeep except so far as they may be incidental to or in connection with more substantial works of reconstruction.

The particular items mentioned in the section as eligible for assistance and others which will be specifically referred to below are not intended to be exhaustive and there is no need to exclude from consideration any work which would in the opinion of the Local Authority come within the general terms of the section and assist in securing the general objects of the Act.

The following may be regarded as typical examples of the kind of works that would be covered by section 1 of the Act (a):—

(a) Structural alteration or repair.

Under this head would be included the rebuilding of walls, chimneys or other parts: the pointing or rough-casting or other substantial repairs to walls: the raising of roofs: the renewing of roof timbers: the provision of rainwater gutters or pipes: the provision of damp courses or of cement plinth or surface channelling: the enlargement of windows or the provision of extra ones.

Under this head would be included the provision of such extra accommodation as may be necessary to bring the dwelling up to modern standards, as for example, the improvement of existing accommodation to provide more adequate air space or head room, the addition of further bedroom accommodation, a scullery or washhouse, food larder and a fuel store or barn if other structural works are included.

(c) Water Supply and Drainage.

Under this head would be included such items as wells, pumps, cesspools or simple surface irrigation works for overflow with the drains, gulleys, ventilators, etc.

(d) Sanitary Conveniences and other like works.

Under this head would be included the introduction of more up-to-date conveniences (e.g., a water closet in place of a privy) the provision of a bath, bath-room, copper or sink or the introduction of gas or electricity.

Works may be either works affecting solely an individual dwelling or works which will be of joint benefit to two or more dwellings.

In the former case assistance can only be given if the estimated cost of the works is not less than £50 a dwelling. Where the works proposed are solely works of joint benefit the minimum is £100 for two or more dwellings. Where the works proposed consist partly of works affecting individual dwellings and partly of works of joint benefit to two or more dwellings the cost of the works of sole benefit may be added to a proportionate part of the cost of works of joint benefit to make up a minimum of £50 a dwelling.

Joint works may include such works as the provision of a common water supply or of an improved system of drainage or of a common washhouse.

The figure of £100 may include the cost of any works to be executed in a particular dwelling in connection with the joint works; for example, in the case of a joint rain water storage tank, the pumps and pipes for each dwelling could be included to make up a minimum of £100.

The Act does not prescribe any maximum or minimum limit of size for the dwellings to be eligible for assistance. It does require that the dwelling shall be in all respects fit for habitation, but subject to this requirement questions of area and accommodation are a matter for the Local Authority. It may be that in some areas material relief to the housing problem could be secured by the provision of accommodation of a type specially adapted for old couples or for single men or women, of a somewhat smaller size than is regarded as appropriate for a family house. Some small cottages may be found more easily capable of conversion for this class of tenant than for family use, and some buildings at present disused may be most advantageously used for this purpose. If old couples or single men or women at present occupying houses too large for them could in this way be provided with alternative accommodation more suitable to their requirements some additional family houses would be made available for those in need of this type of accommodation.

IV.—CASES IN WHICH ASSISTANCE WILL NOT BE AVAILABLE.

The Act specifies the following types of cases in which it will not be open to the Local Authority to grant assistance under the Act:—

(1) Where the value of the dwelling after the completion of the proposed works, as estimated by the Local Authority exceeds four hundred pounds.

Where a house or other building is converted into two or more dwellings, a maximum of £400 is allowable for each of the dwellings resulting from the conversion.

(2) Where the estimated cost of the works to be executed in respect of the dwelling is less than fifty pounds, or in the case of works for the joint benefit of two or more dwellings is less than £100.

(3) Unless the application for assistance is received by the Local Authority before the first day of October, 1931. (a)

(4) Where the interest of the applicant is a leasehold interest with not more than 30 years unexpired.

(5) Unless the Local Authority are satisfied that the dwelling will after the completion of the works be in all respects fit for habitation as a dwelling by persons of the working classes.

The Local Authority are specially directed to reject applications where it appears to them that—

(a) the house or building in respect of which the works are to be executed cannot by reason of the narrowness, closeness or bad arrangement or condition of the streets or buildings in the immediate neighbourhood thereof be converted into a dwelling or dwellings which is or are in all respects satisfactory.

(b) in the case of a house or building to which any historic, architectural or artistic interest attaches, the proposed works would destroy or seriously diminish that interest.

In this connection the Minister relies on Local Authorities to make such suitable arrangements in carrying out schemes under the Act as will prevent the disfigurement of buildings and will secure that so far as possible the special character, beauty and fitness of these buildings for their surroundings will be maintained.

It will be realised that the beauty of the English countryside depends very largely on the general appropriateness of local materials and character of building generally found in the older buildings. The types of cottage vary very much in different localities and go far to give a special character to each district. Consequently, the preservation or destruction of the amenity of the countryside depends not merely on the smaller number of cottages which have an exceptionally high degree of architectural merit or special antiquarian interest but on the larger number of country cottages of the average local type.

If the work of reconditioning contemplated by the Act is carried out with reasonable skill and care very much may be done to preserve and perpetuate the styles of cottage architecture which have come down to us from former times; while, on the contrary, if repairs and conditions are carried out without regard to the suitability of the material and treatment or so as to involve the destruction of the proportion and beauty of the design, much damage might result.

Local Authorities will realise that much may be accomplished by timely and tactful suggestion in such matters, and, bearing this in mind should consider what method will be most convenient under their local conditions for securing this end; whether it will be best to co-operate with some voluntary advisory committee or panel, or whether to appoint for the different districts an architect who has such knowledge of the locality and has had such experience of the kind of work contemplated as will enable him to advise the Local Authority in each case whether contemplated works are or are not appropriate.

V.—GRANTS AND LOANS.

The powers of Local Authorities in regard to the granting of assistance under the Act are contained in section 2 of the Act (a).

Assistance may be given by Local Authorities by both grants and loans or in either of these ways. It will be for the Local Authority to consider in which manner assistance can most appropriately be given in the circumstances of their district and to frame their scheme under the Act accordingly.

I. Grants.

(a) Form of Grants.

Where assistance is given by way of grants the grant may take the form of either—

(i) a lump sum payment to be made after the completion of the works or

(ii) the provision, during a period not exceeding twenty years, of any part of any periodical sums which may be payable to any persons by way of interest on or repayment of advances made by these persons for the purpose of the works.

(b) Amount of Grant.

The grant is not to exceed either—

(i) two-thirds of the estimated cost of the works in respect of which the grant be made or

(ii) the sum of one hundred pounds in respect of each dwelling.

Where the grant is to be made by the provision of periodical sums the amount will be taken to be an amount equal to the capital value of the sums to be so provided, calculated as on the date of the completion of the works.

Grants under the Act will be calculated and paid on the basis of an estimate of cost submitted by the applicant and approved by the Local Authority, and the amount of the grant promised at the time of the original application will not be varied by reason of a variation in the actual cost as compared with the approved estimate.

It will not be necessary for the Local Authority to undertake, after the completion of the work, an investigation of what the cost has actually been. Consequently the Local Authority should be satisfied by close scrutiny that the estimate is not excessive.

The Act prescribes certain conditions (including conditions as to rent and occupancy of the dwellings) the continued observance of which is essential to the grant, and a breach of which will involve repayments of grants received.

(a) Ante, p. 1841.

(c) Conditions attaching to Grants.

The Act provides that the following conditions shall attach to every dwelling which is the subject of a grant—

(1) The dwelling shall not be occupied except by a person, whether as owner or tenant, whose income is, in the opinion of the Local Authority, such that he would not ordinarily pay a rent in excess of that paid by agricultural workers in the district, or by an agricultural worker or employee of substantially the same economic condition employed by the person who is rated in respect of the dwelling. The Local Authority may, however, consent to the continued occupation of the dwelling by a person who, through a change of his circumstances after the grant has been made in respect of the dwelling, ceases to be of the appropriate economic condition.

(2) The rent payable by the occupier shall not exceed the amount of the normal agricultural rent, with an additional amount equivalent to 3 per cent. (a) of the applicant's own expenditure (i.e., cost of the works not covered by grant).

The normal agricultural rent is defined as being—

(a) in the case of a dwelling which had not during the past five years been let as a separate dwelling the rent which the Local Authority determine to be that paid by agricultural workers in the district.

(b) in the case of a dwelling which has been separately let as such at any time within the last five years the average amount per week which the Local Authority determine to have been payable during the period of letting.

If, by reason of a general increase of rents in the district the rent determined as in (b) above is less than the rent normally paid by agricultural workers in the district the rent so normally paid is to be taken as the normal agricultural rent.

(3) The owner of the dwelling shall when required by the Local Authority give them a certificate that the two foregoing conditions have been complied with.

(4) In the event of the tenant assigning or otherwise parting with the possession of the dwelling, it shall not be lawful for any persons in consideration thereof to make any payment other than rent or for the tenant to receive, directly or indirectly, any such payment.

These conditions remain applicable for a period of twenty years, and being attached to the dwelling itself, will remain applicable whether or not the dwelling changes hands in the meantime. So long as the conditions continue to have effect they are deemed to be part of the terms of any lease, agreement for a lease, or tenancy of the dwelling, and will be enforceable accordingly.

The conditions are enforceable by action in the County Court. Section 3 (5) of the Act (b) provides that on the application of the Local Authority the county court of the district in which a dwelling is situate may—

(a) grant an injunction restraining the breach or apprehended breach of any condition applying to the dwelling (other than the requirement that the owner shall certify the conditions have been complied with);

(b) make an order directing payment to the authority of any sum to it as a result of the breach of conditions under the Act.

II. Loans.

The conditions applicable where assistance is given by way of loan are, broadly speaking, similar to those which obtain when loans are granted under section 92 of the Housing Act, 1925. (c)

(1) The loan, with interest at the prescribed rate, must be secured by a mortgage of the dwelling.

Provision is made which enables more than one dwelling to be included in the same mortgage, and the security to be offered for the purposes of the mortgage may include lands other than those forming the side of the dwelling.

(a) Now 4 per cent.: see s. 37 (4) of the Housing Act, 1935, ante, p. 1863.
(c) 13 Halsbury's Statutes 1001, now s. 91 of the Housing Act, 1936, ante, p. 1699.

(2) The amount of the principal of the loan must not exceed 90 per cent. of the value of the dwelling after the completion of the works.

(It is, perhaps, needless to add that neither must it exceed the estimated cost of the works.)

(3) The mortgage deed may provide for repayment being made either by instalments of principal or by an annuity of principal and interest combined.

(4) The loan may be made by instalments during the progress of the works but the total to be advanced before completion of the works must not at any time exceed 50 per cent. of the value of the mortgaged security.

It should not, moreover, exceed the estimated cost of the work done up to the particular time.

(5) The loan must not be made except after a valuation duly made on behalf of the Local Authority.

VI.—EXCHEQUER ASSISTANCE.

The contribution of the Exchequer towards the expenses incurred by Local Authorities will be made by way of annual payments for a period of 20 years, and will be an amount equal to one-half of the estimated average annual charges which would be payable by the Local Authority over a period of 20 years in interest and loan redemption on a loan equal to the capital value of the grant made by them in respect of each dwelling.

The Act also provides for the cessation and repayment of the Exchequer contribution in certain circumstances—

(i) Where any condition applicable to a dwelling is not complied with the Local Authority will be liable to repay to the Minister a sum equal to the amount of the contributions already made by him in respect of the dwelling, together with compound interest at the prescribed rate on those contributions;

(ii) Where the Minister approves of the repayment by the recipient of a grant made by the Local Authority, the Minister will not be liable to make any further contribution to the Local Authority in respect of that dwelling, and the Local Authority will be liable to repay to the Minister a sum equal to the amount of the contributions already made by him, together with compound interest at the prescribed rate on those contributions.

In both the above cases any sums so repayable will be recoverable as debts due to the Crown. But the Local Authority will not be liable to make repayment where with the consent of the Minister they have agreed to waive repayment by the owner or have suspended his liability to make repayment.

Where the Local Authority show to the satisfaction of the Minister that they have taken all practicable steps to recover a sum due by reason of a breach of conditions, but have failed to recover, the Minister is authorised to remit a sum not exceeding one-half of the sum not recovered by the Local Authority.

VII.—PROCEDURE OF LOCAL AUTHORITIES.

(a) General Scheme.

Attention has already been drawn in Part II of this Circular to the necessity of obtaining approval to a general scheme. When such approval has been obtained the Local Authority will be in a position to deal with individual applications and the following points will required consideration.

(b) Form of Application.

The Schedule to the Act provides that applicants for assistance shall furnish to the Local Authority full particulars of the houses and buildings concerned. For convenience in dealing with applications the Local Authority may find it desirable to adopt a form of application showing the information they will require applicants to furnish.

(c) Plans and Specifications.

It is a matter for consideration in what detail the Local Authority should require particulars of the works to be submitted. Generally the particulars should be such as would enable the Local Authority to judge whether the application comes within the terms of the Act and of their scheme, subject to any checking by visit or otherwise. The requirements as to plans and specifications should be kept as simple as possible but the particulars submitted must enable the Local Authority to judge—

(i) whether the estimate for the works is a reasonable one;

(ii) whether the dwelling when completed will exceed £400 in value;

(iii) whether when the works are completed the dwelling will be in all respects fit for habitation;

(iv) whether the position and surroundings of the building are such as to require the Local Authority to refuse assistance under section 2 (3) of the Act (a);

The Local Authority might consider whether the drawings required could be simplified when photographs of the existing buildings are supplied.

The schedule of works and the certificate of their estimated cost as approved by the authorised officer of the Local Authority should be filed, and a reference to them inserted in the Register referred to below.

The information submitted by the applicant should be sufficient to enable the Local Authority to satisfy themselves that the value of the dwelling after the completion of the proposed works will not exceed £400. The valuation of the dwelling is entirely a matter for the Local Authority, but it will be understood that valuations under this Act are to be made on the basis that the completed dwelling will for a period of 20 years be subject to the restrictions of the Act: on this point particular attention may be directed to the restrictions as to occupancy and rent contained in section 3 of the Act.

The certificate of value by the authorised officer of the Council should be filed and a reference to it inserted in the Register.

(c) Nature and Extent of Works.

The Local Authority will satisfy themselves that the works to be included in the approved estimates are such as come within the scope of the Act and their approved scheme under the Act. In particular they will satisfy themselves that any works of ordinary repair or upkeep are only such as are incidental to or connected with major works of reconstruction, and that the estimated cost is not less than the minimum contemplated by the Act.

(f) Conditions.

For the purpose of satisfying the conditions prescribed in section 3 of the Act (b), it will be necessary for the Local Authority to determine the maximum rent chargeable for the completed dwelling, in accordance with (2) of the Conditions of Grant referred to on page [2883] (c) above.

(g) Approval.

On approving the Local Authority should issue a certificate indicating that when the approved works have been completed to their satisfaction they will be prepared to make a grant of the amount decided upon.

The certificate should clearly indicate the conditions upon which the grant is to be made, including the conditions which will be attached to the dwelling for 20 years from the completion of the works. A model form of certificate will be found in the Appendix.

(h) Payment of Grant, etc.

When the applicant has completed the work covered by the approval, he will notify the Local Authority and apply for the grant due to him. It will be necessary for the Local Authority at this stage to arrange for the inspection of the dwelling with a view to satisfying themselves that the whole of the work included in the application has been done and that it has been carried out in a proper and workmanlike manner. The certificate of completion by the authorised officer of the Local Authority should be filed and a reference to it inserted in the Register. It is a matter for consideration whether some arrangements should not be made for inspection of the work while it is in progress. This may not be practicable in every case, but no doubt the officers of the Local Authority will in the course of their ordinary duties be able to inspect a proportion of the cases at this stage.

(b) Ante, p. 1844.
(c) Page reference in this work substituted for that in the original.

The steps to be taken to ensure that these conditions are in fact being observed will require careful consideration by the Local Authority. It will clearly be necessary that they should obtain annually a signed statement from the recipient of the grant certifying that the conditions have been observed during the year in question. As the main conditions relate to the rent and occupancy of the dwellings, these statements will be readily capable of verification, and without any undue elaboration it seems desirable that a test check should be undertaken from time to time.

It will be appreciated that in making their periodical claims for Exchequer Subsidy it will be necessary for the Local Authority to certify that the prescribed conditions have been duly observed, and in order that they may properly so certify, some continued scrutiny will be necessary.

VIII.—ADMINISTRATION AND FINANCE.

(1) Local Authorities for the purposes of the Act.

Section 5 of the Act provides that the Local Authority for the purposes of the Act shall be in counties the council of the county and in county boroughs the council of the county borough.

There is a limited provision for making the council of a county district the authority for the purposes of the Act in place of the County Council. This provision can only be exercised by the Minister where he thinks fit to do so owing to special circumstances or as a result of an application made to him by the council of a county district before the 31st of March, 1927. Before exercising such power the Minister is required to consult with the County Council for the area in question.

There are, however, provisions which will enable the councils of county districts to co-operate with County Councils in the administration of their schemes under the Act. Where the County Council are of opinion that the administration of their scheme would thereby be facilitated they are authorised to enter into arrangements under which the council of the county district may undertake on behalf of the County Council any duties connected with the administration of the scheme other than the approval or disapproval of applications for assistance, the payment of any grant or loan or instalment of a loan, or the institution of legal proceedings in the event of a breach of any of the conditions subject to which a grant or loan is made.

It is thought that, particularly in cases where the council of the county district have a staff which is able to undertake the investigation of applications under the Act and the examination of work in progress, they will be able to relieve the County Council of detailed work under the scheme and that their local knowledge should enable them to be of very material assistance in promoting the success of the scheme.

Subject to the statutory limitations mentioned above the precise extent to which the authority for the county district should undertake duties on behalf of the County Council is a matter for agreement between the two authorities.

(2) Finance.

Expenses incurred by a County Council under the Act will be defrayed as expenses for general county purposes. Where the council of a county district are the Local Authority under the Act, the expenses of that council under the Act will be defrayed as part of the expenses of the council in the execution of the Public Health Act, and in such a case the district will not be liable to contribute to the expenses of the County Council under the Act, the expenses of the latter Authority being treated as special county expenses. In a county borough the expenses will be treated as part of the expenses of the council in the execution of the Public Health Act.

(3) Borrowing Powers.

The Act provides that a County Council may borrow any sums required for the purpose of making grants or loans under the Act under section 69 of the Local Government Act, 1888 (a); other Local Authorities similarly are authorised to borrow under Part IV of the Housing Act, 1925 (b). The Public Works Loan Commissioners are authorised to lend to Local Authorities for such purposes. It will be understood that the Public Works Loan Commissioners do not lend to Local Authorities whose rateable value is in excess of £200,000, except to the extent of half the amount of savings certificates raised by the Authority.

IX.—RECORDS, ETC.

(1) Register of Grants.

The Local Authority will keep a register of all dwellings in respect of which grants are made under this Act, showing:—

Name of applicant.

Name and address of person in receipt of rent.

Address or situation of dwelling.

Estimated cost of work as approved by Local Authority, and references to the schedule of works and certificate of estimated cost.

Value of premises after execution of work, as estimated by Local Authority and reference to the certificate of estimated value.

Amount of grant, and whether by lump sum or by periodical payment, and, if the latter, for what period.

Reference to certificate of completion.

Dates of—

(1) Issue of certificate of approval of grant by Local Authority.

(2) Inspection of dwelling on completion and any other inspections.

(3) Completion of works.

Normal rent of dwelling.

Maximum rent chargeable under Section 3 of the Act (c).

Reference to certificates that conditions as to occupation and rent have been complied with.

This register, together with schedules of works and the certificates of estimated cost of the works, value of dwellings and completion of works must be submitted to the District Auditor with the application for Exchequer Subsidy.

(2) Progress Returns.

It will be of importance for the Minister to be kept fully acquainted with the actual progress of work done in schemes approved under the Act. A form of return has been prepared and will be sent to Local Authorities at an early date, and further copies will be sent at the beginning of each quarter. The Minister requests that these may be returned without delay in order that he may himself learn and may be in a position to give Parliament accurate information as to the working of the scheme. The statistical information asked for has been limited to the minimum: it is such as the Local Authority will readily be able to supply from the records which it will be necessary for them to keep, and the Minister has no doubt that he can rely on the co-operation of Local Authorities in furnishing this information at the stated times without delay.

X.—PAYMENT OF GOVERNMENT CONTRIBUTION.

Forms of application for Exchequer Subsidy for each year will be supplied to the Local Authority. In making application for subsidy the Local Authority will be required to certify that the conditions of the Act have been complied with and that the works for which grant has been given have been completed in a proper and workmanlike manner.

The application will be examined and reported on by the District Auditor.

It must be borne in mind that whether the scheme is administered direct by the County Council or whether the administration has been delegated under (a) Section 5 (2) to a Rural District Council, the County Council will be held to be responsible to the Ministry for securing that adequate steps are taken to ensure that compliance with the conditions has been made and that recovery of grants is made in cases where failure to comply with the conditions has taken place.

The first payment of the Exchequer Subsidy will be made for the year in which loan charges in respect of the grants are due for payment. Where grants are paid from loans raised for the full period of twenty years, the Exchequer Subsidy will take the form of an annuity based on the rate of interest actually payable. Where such grants are paid from loans raised for shorter periods or where no loan has been raised the Subsidy will be based on the charges which would have been incurred if the amount had been borrowed by the annuity method for twenty years. Normally the rate of interest current for loans from the Public Works Loan Board on advances to Local Authorities for housing schemes at the date when payment of the grant is made will be found to be an appropriate and convenient basis for the purpose.

Where grants are made by way of a periodical payment under (b) Section 2 (4) (a) (ii), the Exchequer Subsidy will be based on the amount of such grants falling due for payment in the year of the claim.

Where the amount involved is substantial, payments will be made, if desired, on account of subsidy pending certification of the annual claims by the District Auditor.

In respect of any dwellings the Minister may, if he thinks fit, cause an inspection of the dwellings to be made by one of his Officers.

The formal conditions as to records, certificates, audit or otherwise under Section 4 of the Housing (Rural Workers) Act, 1926 (c), approved by the Treasury, are as follows:—

(a) Registers in the form set out in Part IX of Circular 756 (d) must be kept by the Authority;

(b) Certificates by an authorised officer of the Authority in the form set out in Appendix II of Circular 756 must be obtained before payment of the grant.

(c) The registers, certificates, schedules of works, estimates of the cost of the works and the value of the property, and all relevant records and vouchers must be submitted to the District Auditor for examination.

(d) The dwellings must be open to inspection when required by an Officer of the Ministry of Health.

Local Authorities
(England and Wales).

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
LONDON, S.W.1.
29th November, 1928.

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to refer to the Circular (a) of January, 1927, No. 756, and to say that he wishes to bring to the notice of Local Authorities arrangements which have been made, with his approval, by the Council for the Preservation of Rural England acting in co-operation with the Royal Institute of British Architects for giving expert advice, free of charge, on the carrying out of works of repair and reconditioning under the Housing (Rural Workers) Act, 1926 (b).

As you will be aware, under this Act assistance cannot be given in the case of a house or building to which any historical, architectural or artistic interest attaches if the proposed works would destroy or seriously diminish that interest, and special attention was drawn in Circular No. 756 to the importance of seeing that works should be so carried out as not to impair the appearance of cottages or to detract from the amenities of the district.

To secure this end it is clearly desirable that advice and guidance should be available from those who have expert knowledge and experience in this class of building. Architects and others interested in the matter have been anxious to give their help in this work, and the Council for the Preservation of Rural England, in conjunction with the Royal Institute of British Architects, have now set up panels covering all parts of England and Wales which will be available for giving advice—

(1) to owners who want the best technical assistance in improving their cottages without spoiling their appearance, and

(2) to Local Authorities who want some assurance that the proposed reconditioning works will not spoil the picturesque appearance or destroy the historical character of the cottages.

As stated above, no charge will be made for such advice, but applicants will be expected to defray any travelling expenses which may be incurred.

The panels which have been constituted for the purpose described above have expressed a willingness to assist Local Authorities and others in the general preservation of the amenities of rural areas, not only in connection with the Housing (Rural Workers) Act, but also in connection with town planning schemes; and Local Authorities and developing owners can advantageously avail themselves of this assistance. As the Minister has emphasised from time to time, the best results are likely to be obtained in friendly co-operation between Local Authorities and landowners and developers. Many of the difficulties which occur would be obviated if there were consultation at the earliest stage of proposals, a better understanding of each other's points of view, and more knowledge of how much can be done, with due regard to finance and private interests, to avoid development which may be a disfigurement.

A list of Associations and Societies affiliated to the Royal Institute of British Architects is appended (c). Those wishing to make use of the help offered by the panels should communicate with the Convener of the panel for the area concerned or, where no Convener is indicated in the list, with the Secretary of the nearest affiliated Association or Society, who will at once put them in touch with the appropriate panel.

THE HOUSING ACTS (REVISION OF CONTRIBUTIONS) ORDER, 1928, DATED DECEMBER 19, 1928, MADE BY THE MINISTER OF HEALTH AND THE SCOTTISH BOARD OF HEALTH WITH THE APPROVAL OF THE TREASURY UNDER SECTION 5 OF THE HOUSING (FINANCIAL PROVISIONS) ACT, 1924 (a).

Whereas it is provided by section 5 of the Housing (Financial Provisions) Act, 1924 (hereinafter referred to as "the Act of 1924"), that in the year 1926, and in each second succeeding year, after the first day of October in that year, the Minister of Health (hereinafter referred to as "the Minister") and the Scottish Board of Health (hereinafter referred to as "the Board") shall take into consideration the expenses which are likely to be incurred in the period of two years from that date in connection with the provision of houses in respect of which contributions would be payable by the Minister or Board, due regard being had to the expenses actually incurred during the period of two years ending on that date for the like purposes, and after consultation with such bodies as are therein mentioned, may, if they think it expedient so to do, jointly make an order altering the amount of the contributions payable or the period for which such contributions are to be payable, so far as respects houses which have not been completed before the date specified in the Order, but so, nevertheless, that the amounts and periods fixed by the Order shall be such as may be approved by the Treasury and shall not exceed the respective amounts and periods specified in the said section unless Parliament otherwise determines;

And whereas it is further provided that an Order made under that section shall make such consequential alterations of any sums or periods mentioned in the financial provisions of the Housing, etc., Act, 1923 (hereinafter referred to as "the Act of 1923"), or in the Act of 1924, including the sum of four pounds ten shillings mentioned in sub-section (1) of section 3 of the Act of 1924 as appear to the Minister and Board to be necessary for the purpose of adjusting the same to any alteration made by the Order in the amount or duration of the contributions;

And whereas by the Housing Acts (Revision of Contributions) Order, 1926 (hereinafter referred to as "the Order of 1926"), made by the Minister of Health and the Scottish Board of Health with the approval of the Treasury under section 5 of the Act of 1924, which Order did not apply to Scotland, it was provided, so far as respects houses which had not been completed before the 1st day of October, 1927, that the contributions provided by the Minister of Health under sections 1 and 3 of the Act of 1923, as amended by section 1 of the Act of 1924, or under section 2 of the Act of 1924 in the case of houses which are subject to special conditions, should in lieu of the contributions specified in the Act of 1923 and the Act of 1924 be the contributions specified in the Order of 1926; and by the Order of 1926 consequential alterations were made of the sums mentioned in the financial provisions of the Act of 1923 and the Act of 1924 for the purpose of adjusting the same to the alterations made by the Order of 1926 in the amount of the contributions;

And whereas the Minister and the Board having subsequently to the 1st day of October, 1928, taken into consideration the matters referred to in section 5 of the Act of 1924, and having consulted with such bodies as aforesaid, think it expedient to make the following Order:

The Minister and the Board, with the approval of the Treasury under the powers conferred on them by section 5 of the Act of 1924, and of all other powers enabling them in that behalf, hereby make the following Order:—

1. This Order may be cited as the Housing Acts (Revision of Contributions) Order, 1928.

2. The Order of 1926 is hereby revoked so far as respects houses in England and Wales which have not been completed before the 1st day of October, 1929.

Minister under sections 1 and 3 of the Act of 1923, as amended by section 1 of the Act of 1924.

(2) So far as respects houses in Scotland which have not been completed before the said 1st day of October, 1929, the contribution provided by the Board under sections 1 and 3 of the Act of 1923 as amended by section 1 of the Act of 1924 shall instead of being a contribution of £6 payable annually for a period of 20 years be a contribution of £4 payable annually for a period of 20 years and the Acts of 1923 and 1924 shall have effect accordingly.

4. So far as respects houses in England and Wales which have not been completed before the first day of October, nineteen hundred and twenty-nine, the contributions provided by the Minister under section two of the Act of 1924 in the case of houses which are subject to special conditions shall be the same as in the case of houses completed between the thirtieth day of September, nineteen hundred and twenty-seven, and the first day of October, nineteen hundred and twenty-nine, that is to say, a contribution of seven pounds ten shillings, or, if the house is situated in an agricultural parish, eleven pounds, payable annually for a period of forty years.

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL, S.W.1.
19th August, 1930.

HOUSING ACT, 1930.

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to draw your attention to the provisions of the Housing Act, 1930 (a), which came into operation on August 16th 1930.

1. The principal objects of the Act are to simplify the procedure and facilitate the task of clearing away existing slums (Clearance Areas), and to prevent the creation of new slums by stopping the deterioration of other areas (Improvement Areas).

In the case of clearance areas, the Act dispenses with the necessity for a formal scheme, and distinguishes between the procedure under which an area is declared to be insanitary and the subsequent procedure under which the area is dealt with when cleared. In regard to the first procedure, every opportunity for stating their case is afforded by the Act to owners of property.

In the case of improvement areas, the Act provides wholly new machinery.

To meet the economic difficulty of rehousing the poorest inhabitants of the slums at rents which they can afford, increased financial assistance on a new basis has been provided (b). This will be available in aid of the expenses of the local authority in rehousing persons displaced not only from clearance and improvement areas but also from individual houses which are demolished.

The Act, further, simplifies and improves the procedure under which individual houses may be repaired or demolished.

The opportunity has also been taken to make a number of amendments to the existing law, and in this connection it may be well to add that the Minister has it in mind to introduce a fresh consolidating Act into Parliament as soon as possible.

2. The Minister desires to urge on local authorities the importance of working to a definite plan which will co-ordinate the needs of clearance and rehousing under the Act of 1930 with the ordinary building of new houses with assistance under the Housing (Financial Provisions) Act, 1924 (c). The two Acts are parts of one single policy and are intended to be worked in combination. Under section 25 of the Act of 1930 (d) it is the duty of every local authority to consider the housing needs of their area (including the need arising from slum conditions and unsatisfactory dwellings) and as often as occasion arises, or within three months after notice has been given to them by the Minister, to submit proposals to the Minister for the provision of new houses. In addition, with a view to securing continuity of action and an adequate volume of new construction, the local authority of every area having a population of more than 20,000 is required during the present year to submit to the Minister a programme of the steps they propose to take during the ensuing five years for dealing with housing conditions in their area and for providing new accommodation. A similar programme is to be furnished every fifth year.

It is contemplated that local authorities will take full advantage of the financial assistance under the Act of 1924 to meet their ordinary housing needs, while the assistance which the new Act provides will enable them to meet the economic difficulty which at present prevents a proportion of the dwellers in unhealthy areas and in insanitary houses from moving to better homes.

(b) The basis of assistance was later amended by the Housing (Financial Provisions) Act, 1938, ante, p. 1866.
(c) Subsidy under the Act of 1924 has since ceased to be available : see the general note to that Act, ante, p. 1826.

HOUSING

3. It is within the knowledge of local authorities that many of the working classes of this country live in sordid and degrading housing conditions, the continuance of which is nothing less than a social menace. These conditions are due to many causes, poverty, indifference, lack of better accommodation. The new Act is an earnest of the determination of the Government and the Legislature to do everything possible to put an end to conditions of this kind. For its successful operation, it demands the full and hearty co-operation of all local agencies, in the acquisition and spreading of knowledge as to bad conditions, and in forming a sound public opinion to assist the Government and Parliament in putting an end to them. In this work the local authorities must themselves take the leading part, and the Minister is confident that they will rise to the full measure of their responsibility.

4. The Minister desires to draw the special attention of County Councils and Rural District Councils to the provisions contained in Part IV of the Act (a) regarding housing in rural districts. The proper housing of the agricultural workers must form an essential element in any progressive agricultural policy, and in this matter also the responsible local authorities must play their part. The Act provides for the co-operation of the county councils and rural district councils in attacking this serious and important problem, and the Minister trusts that in every county the authorities will without delay meet together to formulate plans for dealing comprehensively with the rural needs.

The annexed Memorandum explains the general scope of the Act, and of the financial arrangements made by it.

Additional copies of this Circular are forwarded for the use of the Authority's Medical Officer of Health and financial officer.

MEMORANDUM ON HOUSING ACT, 1930 (b).

PART I.

1. This Memorandum is divided into three Parts :—

Part I (paragraphs 1–11) gives a general picture of the Act under certain main headings.

Part II (paragraphs 12–27) (c) explains the financial arrangements of the Act.

Part III (paragraphs 28–38) describes the administrative procedure which will be necessary.

2. The Act contemplates that local authorities in making their ordered attack on bad housing conditions will direct their attention to three broad categories (d) :—

(a) Clearance Areas,

(b) Improvement Areas,

(c) Individual defective houses.

Part I of the Act, which is to be read with, and largely supersedes, Part II of the Act of 1925, deals with categories (a) and (b). Part II, which is to be read with Part I of the Act of 1925, deals with (c).

3. Clearance Areas. Section 1 of the Act (e) defines a clearance area and the definition is substantially the same as that of an unhealthy area under the old law. The area is to be cleared by requiring the owners to demolish the buildings or by the local authority purchasing the area and then arranging for the demolition.

The first method of requiring the owners to demolish is new, and is designed to enable the local authority to secure the removal of a bad slum without being obliged to incur the heavy capital expense of purchase and clearance. It is a method which may often be convenient if the site is not required for rehousing. If the authority proceeds by this method they will make a Clearance Order which must be confirmed by the Minister. The cleared site will remain with the owners. It may, however, not be used for building purposes or otherwise developed except subject to such restrictions and conditions, if any, as the local authority may impose. Under Section 6 of the Act (a) the right is reserved to the local authority to purchase any land to which a Clearance Order relates, if after 18 months from the date on which the Order becomes operative the owners have not proceeded with development in accordance with plans approved by the authority.

The second method of dealing with a clearance area (Sections 3 and 5) (b) is not new but the procedure is made simpler and quicker. The Act does away with the necessity for a formal scheme. It enables the local authority to buy the area, either by agreement or by compulsion. Where they are unable to buy by agreement, they may make a compulsory purchase order which must be submitted to the Minister for confirmation. When the local authority have bought the land they must proceed to demolish or arrange for the demolition of the buildings. They are empowered to dispose of the site as cleared, or subject to a requirement that it shall be cleared forthwith, or they may, subject to the approval of the Minister, appropriate the cleared area for some purpose for which they have statutory powers. In a few cases it may be necessary to rehouse on the land or part of it.

It should be understood that a clearance area is one in which all the buildings require to be demolished, either (a) because they are unfit for human habitation on account of disrepair or sanitary defects or (b) because they are dangerous or injurious to the health of the inhabitants of the area by reason of their bad arrangement or the narrowness or bad arrangement of the streets. Properties which do not fall under either of these categories cannot be included in an area, but a clearance area may surround properties which in effect form "islands" within the area. A clearance area is not necessarily a solid block of territory bounded by continuous lines; it will frequently be an area of irregular shape surrounding, but not in law containing, such islands.

These "islands" may either be left undisturbed or may be bought by the local authority if their acquisition is reasonably necessary to secure a cleared area of convenient shape and size. Similarly, land adjoining a clearance area may be bought by the local authority if it is reasonably necessary for the development or user of the cleared area. Property included in a clearance area will be purchased at site value subject, where the site is to be used for rehousing, to a reduction, whereas for property surrounded by or adjoining a clearance area, the basis of compensation will not be site value but market value as modified by Part II of the Third Schedule to the Act (c).

4. Improvement Areas. Sections 7 and 8 of the Act (d) contain a new and important addition to the methods available to local authorities for combating unsatisfactory housing conditions. In nearly every town (and in some rural areas) there are aggregations of houses in varying degrees of bad condition, more or less badly arranged and generally seriously overcrowded. These aggregations may form patches of considerable size. The houses are not all so far gone and the general conditions are not so bad as to justify wholesale clearance; and a great improvement in any such area can be secured if the worst houses are removed, if steps are taken to remove obstructive buildings and otherwise to let in light and air, if necessary repairs are carried out, and if surplus population is taken from the area and provided for elsewhere. It is of course necessary that steps should be taken to secure that when once the area has been dealt with it is not allowed to relapse. The aim is to secure that local authorities, instead of dealing with bad housing conditions in a haphazard or sporadic manner, will attack badly deteriorating areas in a systematic and orderly way, determining the areas which need treatment, settling the priority in which they are to be dealt with, clearing them up section by section and thereafter bringing them under such control as will prevent their slipping back.

The object of the Act would clearly be defeated if areas of unmanageable size were undertaken, and while the intention is that fairly large areas should be selected the Act expressly requires the local authority to satisfy the Minister that the area is such that the housing conditions in it can be effectively remedied within a reasonable time (Section 7 (1)). The extent of the improvement areas with which a local authority can deal effectively in a reasonable period will be largely conditioned by the capacity of the local authority to secure the erection of new houses for the purpose.

Section 7 enables local authorities to define such areas and Section 8 lays down the action which they must take when an area has been defined. An improvement area, unlike a clearance area, may contain fit as well as unfit houses, and may, therefore, be the whole area comprised within a ring fence. Local authorities are to use their powers of compelling the demolition of houses which are beyond repair and of requiring owners to put other houses into satisfactory condition, they may purchase property either by agreement or compulsorily for the purpose of letting in light and air, and they must make byelaws applicable to the area for preventing and abating overcrowding and securing the improvement of housing conditions and the subsequent maintenance of a proper standard of housing conditions in the area.

It is suggested that the objects of the Act may best be secured by allocating the supervision of the area and the enforcement of the special byelaws to a particular section of the sanitary staff.

A model which may be of assistance to local authorities in framing the special byelaws is under consideration and will be forwarded later.

It will be observed that subsection (4) of Section 8 provides that the Rent Restriction Acts shall not cease to apply to a house or part of a house in an improvement area merely because, as a result of action taken by the local authority under the section, a tenant is removed from the house or part of it.

5. Individual Unfit Houses. Part II of the Act replaces a number of sections in Part I of the Act of 1925 (a) dealing with the repair, closing and demolition of unfit houses. In the past local authorities have frequently been hindered from dealing with houses which are so unsatisfactory that they ought to be removed by reason of the difficulty of finding alternative accommodation for the occupants. The Act provides that a grant based on the number of inmates of the demolished house shall be available to assist the local authority in providing such accommodation, and local authorities should therefore be able to make much more rapid progress in removing unsatisfactory conditions.

The method provided by the new Act distinguishes sharply between houses which can, and those which cannot, be rendered fit at a reasonable expense. In future, on any report that a house is unfit, the house will have to be classified by the local authority as being repairable at a reasonable cost, or as being not so repairable. In the former case (Section 17) (b) the person having control of the house (as defined in Section 17 (2)) is to be required to repair the house (and the local authority may in his default do the work and recover the cost from him); in the latter (Section 19 (c)) the house is to be demolished unless the local authority accept an undertaking from the owner either that the house shall cease to be used for human habitation or that he will within a specified time carry out such works as will in the authority's opinion render it fit.

Provision is made in Section 22 (d) for the submission and determination of appeals against a decision of the local authority; these appeals will be decided by the County Court and not, as in the past, by the Minister.

Where the local authority have already acted on the view that a house is repairable at a reasonable cost, but that view has not been accepted by the Court, the local authority are empowered to acquire the house by agreement or compulsorily. In the latter case the local authority will be under an obligation to carry out the works, which they have themselves considered to be not unduly costly. (See Section 23 (a).)

Section 62 (b) of the Act provides that, in determining whether a house is fit for habitation, regard is to be had to the extent, if any, to which, by reason of disrepair or sanitary defects, it falls short of the standard required by the local byelaws or of the general standard of housing accommodation for the working classes in the district. "Sanitary defects" are defined in the same section.

Under Section 47 (c) of the Act local authorities may make advances to persons carrying out repairs on the same conditions as advances may be made for the alteration of houses under Section 92 of the Act of 1925 (d).

6. Rehousing. An essential part of any action taken by local authorities in regard to either clearance areas or improvement areas or individual unfit houses must be the provision of new houses, available for the accommodation of persons displaced, and Section 9 (e) of the Act requires that, before taking any steps which will necessitate the displacement of population from a clearance or improvement area, the local authority must undertake to provide or secure the provision of new dwellings to the satisfaction of the Minister. The actual persons displaced will not necessarily move into the new houses. There will be many cases in which the new houses will be occupied by persons who have vacated other accommodation to which displaced persons will have moved, and there may be many links in this chain of replacement.

Rehousing may be undertaken by Public Utility Societies. (See paragraph 11 (ii).)

The Act provides a standard of accommodation which is to be observed in normal cases, and which will determine the number of new houses required. The size of the new houses, in the absence of special approval by the Minister, must be within the limits prescribed by the Act of 1923. (See paragraph 14.)

Ordinarily a local authority will desire and be able to provide the rehousing accommodation on suitable new sites. This is normally the most satisfactory and economical method. But where, in exceptional cases, it is shown to be necessary to rehouse on the cleared site or on other expensive sites in new buildings exceeding three storeys in height, special terms of Exchequer assistance are available. (See paragraph 18 (b).)

7. Compensation. As regards compensation for property in a clearance area, the Act makes no substantial change in what has been the law since the Act of 1919, and property compulsorily acquired in such an area will be purchased at site value, with a reduction where the proposals necessitate the use of the cleared area for rehousing. (See Section 12.) (f) It will be observed that the reduction factor no longer applies where the land is required for an open space (g).

8. Allowances for expenses of removal and trade disturbance. Local authorities are empowered by Section 41 (h) to make a reasonable allowance to a displaced person for removal expenses and towards any loss which, in the opinion of the local authority, such a person may sustain by reason of the disturbance of his trade or business because he has to quit his premises. The allowance for trade disturbance is new, and is designed to meet hard cases among small shop-keepers.

HOUSING

10. Rural Housing. Housing in rural districts presents peculiar problems and previous Housing Acts have contained special provisions and have made available exceptional Exchequer assistance for rural areas. Part IV of the present Act (a) supplements these provisions and aims in particular at securing the co-operation of county councils and rural district councils in overcoming the shortage of houses and the removal of unsatisfactory housing conditions in rural districts. In future the county council will have a definite responsibility for housing conditions in all the rural districts in the county. The Act contemplates that every county council will at once take steps to inform itself of the housing situation in each rural district in the county and of the action which has been taken or is proposed to be taken to remedy unsatisfactory conditions and to provide further housing accommodation; and there is a continuing duty on the county council to keep itself informed on these matters. Every rural district council is placed under the obligation to furnish to the county council during the present year, and at reasonable intervals thereafter, such information as the county council may reasonably require to enable it to carry out its duty. The Act provides wide powers of agreement between county councils and rural district councils under which the superior resources of the county councils may be brought to the aid of the rural district councils in the provision of houses under Part III of the Act of 1925 (a). Such agreements may take many forms, they may for example provide for giving a rural district council the advantage of the use of the experienced and skilled staff of the county council in the preparation and execution of schemes, they may provide for the linking up of various building proposals within a county or they may extend to the undertaking by the county council of the whole or a definite part of rehousing work in the whole or a defined part of a rural district on such terms as may be arranged between the county council and the rural district council. The county council, if it undertook the work of rehousing, would be entitled to receive the grants to be made under the new Act. Work under Part I of the new Act (the clearance and improvement of areas) is the duty of the rural district council.

So far as the provision of new houses is concerned, the county council will be required to bear a charge of a least £1 per annum per house towards the cost of the houses provided by the rural district council for the agricultural population, and are empowered to undertake a larger contribution for these houses, and also to make such contribution as they think fit towards the cost of other houses provided by the rural district council. (See Section 34.) (b)

The Minister would suggest that every county council should at an early date convene a conference between representatives of the council and of rural district councils within the county, with a view to taking concerted measures for securing satisfactory housing conditions throughout the rural areas of the county.

11. Attention is also drawn to the provisions of the Act in regard to—

(ii) Public Utility Societies, Housing Trusts, etc.

Local authorities may find that they have in their districts public utility or other societies or philanthropic persons who are willing and able materially to assist the authorities in the work of rehousing. Provision is made in the Act enabling such societies or bodies of persons to receive an annual grant from the local authority in respect of the provision of rehousing accommodation. Where arrangements of this kind are made, the local authority will not be obliged to make the normal rate contribution of £3 15*s.* 0*d.* per house for 40 years. In these circumstances the local authority will probably therefore be willing to contribute something more to the society or company than the equivalent of the Exchequer contribution. (See Section 29.) (c)

Section 70 of the Act of 1925 (d) remains in force. Under this Section local authorities may promote the formation of, and give financial assistance to, public utility societies whose objects include the erection, improvement or management of dwelling houses for the working classes.

(iii) Validity and date of operation of Clearance Orders and Compulsory Purchase Orders.

Section 11 of the Act (a) is designed to secure two main objects, namely:—

(1) That any person affected by a Clearance or Compulsory Purchase Order who considers that either the local authority or the Minister have gone beyond their powers or otherwise acted irregularly shall have a reasonable opportunity of invoking the assistance of the High Court in order to have the matter put right; and

(2) that a definite limit should be placed on the period during which a confirmed Order shall be challengeable.

The section provides that as soon as an Order has been confirmed the authority are to publish notice in a local newspaper stating that the Order has been confirmed and naming a place where it may be inspected. A similar notice must be served on the objectors who appeared at the local Inquiry. Any person aggrieved may apply to the High Court on the ground either that the Order is not within the powers of the Act or that there has been some irregularity of procedure. This right must be exercised within six weeks after the publication of the notice.

The new procedure may involve some slight delay in certain cases, but that is unavoidable if any opportunity is to be given of taking legal proceedings.

PART II.

19. Conditions of grant approved by the Treasury. The Act provides that the Exchequer contributions towards the expenses incurred by local authorities in providing accommodation available for displaced persons shall be subject to such conditions as to records, certificates, audit or otherwise as, with the approval of the Treasury, the Minister may determine. The formal conditions as approved by the Treasury appear in Appendix I, Part I.

* * * * * *

22. Exchequer grant to Local Authority arranging with Public Utility Societies, etc., for the provision of houses. The Act enables a local authority to enter into arrangements with a society, body of trustees, or company engaged in housing work (who do not trade for profit or whose constitution limits the amount of their dividends) under which the authority may make an annual grant to the society, body of trustees, or company, in consideration of their providing new houses for the accommodation of persons displaced from a clearance or improvement area, or from insanitary houses demolished by order of the authority.

Houses provided under these arrangements are generally subject to the same special conditions as are applicable to houses provided by the local authority. The total amount of the rents to be charged for the houses must not exceed the total amount which might have been charged by the local authority if they had themselves provided the houses under this Act, and were contributing the normal rate charge.

Where the annual grant made by the local authority is equal to or exceeds the Exchequer contribution which would have been made to the authority by the Minister if the houses had been provided by the authority, the Minister may undertake to make a contribution to the authority as provided by the Act in respect of the persons displaced.

* * * * * *

24. Default of Local Authority. If in any case it is shown to the satisfaction of the Minister that an authority have failed to perform any of their duties under the Act, the Minister is empowered to withhold the whole or any part of any Exchequer contribution payable to the local authority under the Act.

HOUSING

26. Registers, Records, etc. The local authority will keep registers relating to :—

(a) houses in clearance areas, (b) houses in improvement areas, (c) individual unfit houses not forming part of a clearance or improvement area and (d) new houses.

The registers will have to include sufficient particulars to enable local authorities to carry on their work on systematic lines under the Act, and at the same time form a convenient basis of claims for Exchequer subsidy. The subdivision in each register should be sufficient to show how and when each old house is dealt with and each new house built and occupied.

In order to obtain Exchequer grant a local authority will have to be in a position to certify that the requirements of the Act have been satisfied, including observance of the special conditions described in paragraph 13 and to place before the District Auditor in convenient form evidence of this. Particulars to be included in the registers and certain forms of certificates which local authorities will be required to give are shown in Appendix I.

PART III.

Procedure.

28. Regulations are in course of preparation dealing with the various matters which are, under the Act, to be prescribed and will shortly be circulated.

29. As has been indicated in the earlier parts of this Memorandum, the pivot of the local authority's work under the Act must be the provision of the new houses required to meet the displacements to be effected under the powers now conferred. The following notes on procedure in the exercise of those powers must not be regarded as displacing the rehousing programme from its position of central importance.

30. Clearance Area.

Conditions of Action. The local authority must be satisfied that :—

(1) an area is one in which the conditions are unhealthy (see Note) and can most satisfactorily be dealt with by the demolition of all the buildings ;

(2) they can provide or secure the provision by means of other agencies of such rehousing accommodation as may be required in advance of displacements of persons of the working classes from the area ; and

(3) their resources are sufficient.

1. Define area on a map.

2. Pass resolution declaring the area to be a clearance area.

3. Forward to the Minister copy of this resolution, statement of the number of persons of the working classes occupying the buildings in the area, and

4. An undertaking to carry out or secure the carrying out of such rehousing as the Minister considers necessary within a period specified by him.

5. As soon as it is clear that rehousing accommodation will be available as required, then make clearance order or acquire land in the area by agreement or make compulsory purchase order, as may be requisite.

6. On clearance order becoming operative secure vacation of buildings through owners or under Section 39 (a) in accordance with dates specified in order.

Owner is to demolish buildings within 6 weeks of vacation (or within such longer period as local authority deem reasonable).

7. On acquisition of land by agreement, or on possession being obtained under compulsory purchase order

(a) Now s. 155 of the Housing Act, 1936, ante, p. 1747.

(i) secure vacation of buildings, and

(ii) (a) demolish buildings within 6 weeks of vacation (or within such longer period as local authority deem reasonable) and

(b) appropriate (carrying out requirements of compulsory purchase order as to appropriation for rehousing if any), or sell or lease land, as the case may be, or

(iii) sell or lease land (except land required by a compulsory purchase order to be appropriated for rehousing) on condition of immediate demolition.

NOTES.

Dwelling houses can only be included in a clearance area if :—

(a) unfit for human habitation by reason of " disrepair or sanitary defects " (see Section 62) (a) or,

(b) dangerous or injurious to the health of the inhabitants of the area owing to their bad arrangement or the narrowness or bad arrangement of the streets.

Other buildings (if any) must be in the latter category.

The map should be on the scale of 1/500 or approximate scale and should show the clearance area coloured pink.

The date on which the count was taken is to be specified in the statement and should be as near as convenient to the date on which the clearance resolution is to be considered by the local authority. (See Appendix I, Part III.)

Purchase may be by compulsory purchase order (see paragraph 32) or by agreement. The order must be submitted to the Minister within 6 months after the date of the clearance resolution, unless the Minister extends the period in a special case.

Land already purchased by a local authority under Sections 54 or 63 of the Act of 1925 (b) may, if satisfying the required conditions, be included in a clearance area.

Land adjoining or surrounded by the area, required for dealing satisfactorily with the area (Section 3), may also be purchased by compulsory purchase order or by agreement. The order must be submitted to the Minister within 12 months after the date of the clearance resolution, unless he extends this period in a special case. Land included in the clearance area and land adjoining or surrounded by it may be included in the same compulsory purchase order where that course is convenient ; but the two kinds of land must be distinguished (see Second Schedule, Part I, paragraph 3).

Where compulsory purchase order becomes operative local authority can obtain possession by entry under the provisions of Section 106 of the Act of 1925 (c).

Buildings (if any) on land purchased are to be vacated as soon as may be and to be demolished within six weeks of vacation or such longer period as may be deemed reasonable. Land purchased may be sold or let on the best terms obtainable or, with the Minister's approval, appropriated for any statutory purpose. Alternatively, the land may be sold or leased subject to immediate demolition of buildings (Section 5) (d).

31. Clearance Order.

1. The Order is to

(1) be in the prescribed form ;

(2) describe the area to which it applies by reference to a map which should be on 1/500 or approximate scale and should show the area coloured pink. Each house, building or other property is to be numbered consecutively on the map, notwithstanding that several may belong to one owner, the outside boundaries of each being defined by hard lines so that it may be seen to what properties each number applies ;

(3) fix a date or dates (articulated to the local authority's programme of construction) by which the several buildings are to be vacated ;

(4) be advertised :—

(a) by publication of notice in the prescribed form in one or more newspapers circulating in the district and

(b) by service of notice in the prescribed form on owners, lessees, and occupiers (except tenants for a month or less), and, so far as it is reasonably practicable to ascertain them, on mortgagees ;

(5) be submitted to the Minister with :—

(a) copy of the official representation or other information on which the resolution was passed ;

(b) certified copy of map above mentioned ;

(c) copies of newspapers containing advertisements, and of notices ;

(d) certificate of service of notices ;

(e) formal resolution of the Council applying for confirmation of the order.

2. The order may be modified by the Minister. Notice of its confirmation has to be given by the local authority by public advertisement and to individual objectors. Six weeks after confirmation the order becomes operative (except in cases in which Section 11 (3) applies (a)) and copies have then to be served on persons named in (4) (b) above.

3. The use or development of land cleared under a clearance order is subject to such restrictions and conditions (if any) as the local authority may impose. If the building or other development does not take place within 18 months, the local authority may purchase compulsorily or by agreement. (Section 6.) (b)

32. Compulsory Purchase Order.

1. The Order is to—

(1) be in the prescribed form ;

(2) describe the land to which it applies by reference to a map, which should be on 1/500 or approximate scale ;

(3) be advertised—

(a) by publication of notice in the prescribed form in one or more newspapers circulating in the district ;

(b) by service of notice in the prescribed form on owners, lessees and occupiers, except tenants for a month or less, and, except in the case of land to be purchased under Part III of the Act of 1925 (c) on mortgagees so far as it is reasonably practicable to ascertain them ;

(4) be submitted to the Minister with—

(a) copies of newspapers containing advertisements and of notices ;

(b) certificate of service of notices ;

(c) certified copy of map above mentioned ;

(d) formal resolution of the Council applying for confirmation of the order.

2. If the order is made in connection with a clearance area, it should further be accompanied by a copy of the official representation or other information on which the local authority is acting and should show in the prescribed manner—

(a) what parts of the land to which it applies are—

(i) part of the clearance area ;

(ii) land surrounded by the clearance area ;

(iii) land adjoining the clearance area.

(b) what parts of the land within the clearance area are to be appropriated for rehousing.

3. The order becomes operative in the same way as a clearance order (see paragraph 31).

33. Improvement Area.

Conditions of Action. The local authority must be satisfied that the area is one in which the housing conditions are unhealthy and can be effectively remedied without the demolition of all the buildings by the demolition or repair of dwelling-houses, the abatement of overcrowding and the purchase of land for the purpose of opening out of the area.

Action.

(a) Now s. 16 of the Housing Act, 1936, ante, p. 1619.
(b) Now s. 32 of the Housing Act, 1936, ante, p. 1639.
(c) See note (d), ante, p. 2894.

1. Define area on a map.

2. Show to the satisfaction of the Minister—

(a) that the area is not too large to be dealt with within a reasonable time:

(b) that the local authority will provide or secure the provision through other agencies of such rehousing accommodation as may be required in advance of displacements of persons of the working classes from the area.

3. Pass resolution declaring the area to be an improvement area.

4. Publish notices of the resolution forthwith in one or more newspapers circulating in the district, stating its terms and the date on which it was passed and naming a place where a copy of the resolution and of the map referred to therein can be seen at all reasonable hours.

5. Forward to the Minister copy of the resolution, an estimate of the number of persons of the working classes who will be displaced, distinguishing those to be displaced (a) by demolition and (b) by abatement of overcrowding, and

6. An undertaking to carry out, or to secure the carrying out of, such rehousing as the Minister considers necessary within a period specified by him.

7. (i) Serve notices under Part II of the Act (a) requiring repair or demolition of individual houses;

(ii) Purchase by agreement or compulsorily land required for opening out the area, unless the local authority are satisfied that opening out will be effected by owners;

(iii) Make and enforce byelaws to abate and prevent recurrence of overcrowding and generally for securing the improvement of housing condition and the subsequent maintenance of a proper standard of housing conditions therein.

NOTES.

The housing conditions in the area must be dangerous or injurious to the health of the inhabitants by reason of (a) the disrepair or sanitary defects (see Section 62) (b) of the dwelling-houses and (b) either (i) overcrowding or (ii) bad arrangement of the houses, or narrowness or bad arrangement of the streets.

The map should be on 1/500 or approximate scale.

The Minister should be furnished with a copy of the map, and the other information referred to in Paragraph 35.

The estimate should be made on a day as near as convenient to the date on which the question of declaring the area to be an improvement area will be considered by the local authority.

Land purchased in an improvement area may, subject to the carrying out of such demolition as may be necessary for opening out the area, be sold or leased on the best terms obtainable or, with the Minister's approval, appropriated for any statutory purpose. Sections 8 (2) and (5) (c).

An order authorising the compulsory purchase of land required for opening out an improvement area must be submitted to the Minister within 12 months after the date of the resolution declaring the area to be an improvement area or within such longer period as the Minister may in the circumstances of a particular case allow. (Section 10 (2).) (d)

34. Individual Houses. (i) Houses regarded as capable of repair. The local authority are required to take the following action where they are satisfied that a working class house is in any respect unfit for human habitation unless they are satisfied that it is incapable of being rendered fit at reasonable expense.

Action. 1. (a) Notice must be served on "the person having control of the house" (defined in Section 17 (2) (e)) and copies may be served on any other persons having an interest in the house, e.g., as freeholder, mortgagee or lessee.

(e) Now s. 9 of the Housing Act, 1936, ante, p. 1602.

The notice is to specify :—

(i) The works required.

(ii) The time, not less than 21 days, within which the works are to be executed.

(iii) The view of the local authority that those works will render the house fit for human habitation.

2. Subject to the conditions laid down in Section 92 of the Act of 1925 (a), the local authority may make advances to persons carrying out works. (Section 47). (b)

3. In case of default, the local authority may execute the works and recover expenses incurred.

NOTE.—If the person having the control of the house proves that he is merely an agent or trustee and that the money which he has in his hands (or has had since the demand was served on him) on behalf of the person for whom he is acting is not sufficient to discharge the whole demand, his liability is limited to the amount he has (or has had) in his hands.

This limitation of liability does not affect the provisions of (c) subsection (5) of section 18 under which the expenses due to the authority are made a charge on the premises.

4. Where, on appeal against a notice, the judge has found that a house cannot be made fit at reasonable expense, the local authority may purchase the house by agreement or by compulsory purchase order. If an owner or mortgagee undertakes to carry out the works specified in the notice the Minister is required not to confirm a compulsory purchase order unless the undertaking is broken. If a compulsory purchase order is confirmed the local authority must carry out the works specified in the notice.

(ii) Houses not regarded as capable of repair.

The local authority are required to take the following action where they are satisfied that a working class house is unfit for human habitation and not capable of being rendered fit at reasonable expense, having regard to the estimated cost of rendering it fit and the estimated value of the house thereafter.

Action. 1. Notice is to be served on the "person having control of the house," and on all other owners and, so far as practicable, mortgagees, to attend a meeting, not less than 21 days after service of notice, to consider the condition of the house, and proposals for the execution of works or for the future user of the building. Every person on whom notice has been served is entitled to be heard.

2. The local authority may accept an undertaking from an owner or mortgagee (a) to do such works as will render the house fit within a specified period, or (b) that the house will not be used for human habitation until they are satisfied that it has been rendered fit.

3. If an undertaking is not accepted or is broken, a demolition order is forthwith to be made requiring (a) vacation in not less than 28 days from the date when the order becomes operative, and (b) demolition within 6 weeks of vacation. The order is to be served as in 1 above.

4. In the case of default the local authority must demolish and sell the materials and may recover expenses. (Sections 21 (1) and 2 (4).) (d)

5. In the case of a part of a building which is let as a separate tenement or an underground room habitually used as a sleeping place deemed to be unfit for human habitation (Section 18 (1) of the Act of 1925) (e), a closing order will be made in lieu of a demolition order.

Penalties are provided in case of use of premises contrary to the terms of a closing order or undertaking as to user (Section 21) (f), and against persons who knowing that a demolition order has become operative, enter into occupation or permit other persons to enter into occupation of a building after the date by which the order requires that building to be vacated. 35. Rehousing.

1. Specific proposals for the provision of working class houses which are to be subject to the special conditions of the Act of 1930 are to be submitted as often as occasion arises, and in pursuance of any general housing programme adopted by the Authority under Section 25 of the Act (a). All specific proposals should be accompanied by an undertaking as indicated in Appendix I, Part I, and by an estimate of the displacements to be met. (See also paragraph 15.)

2. Clearance Areas.

When passing the resolution declaring an area to be a clearance area, the local authority should have before them a provisional statement showing:—

(a) the total number of new dwellings required;

(b) the various sizes and types of the dwellings;

(c) the site or sites on which they will be erected;

(d) a time table of

(i) the provision of rehousing.

(ii) displacements.

A copy of this statement should be submitted to the Minister with the clearance resolution: and as soon as may be thereafter, specific proposals should be submitted for the provision of the houses within a limited time so far as they are not covered by specific proposals previously submitted. If it is intended that clearance of the area should be effected as a single operation, these proposals should cover the full number of displacements which will be necessary; if clearance will take place gradually, or successively for different portions of the area, the specific proposals should be submitted in instalments. The statement should be revised and re-submitted when (a) a clearance order or (b) a compulsory purchase order becomes operative.

3. Improvement Areas.

Before a resolution declaring an improvement area is passed, a provisional statement giving the same particulars as above should be submitted to the Minister.

Specific proposals for the provision of instalments of the houses should be submitted as soon as may be after the resolution declaring an improvement area has been forwarded to the Minister.

4. Individual Unfit Houses.

The local authority should also consider and submit from time to time proposals for providing rehousing accommodation in respect of displacements under demolition orders from individual unfit houses not in an improvement area.

36. Objections and Appeals.

Clearance Orders. 1. A person on whom notice of a clearance order is required to be served may within the time stated in the notice make an objection to the Minister.

2. If the objection is not withdrawn a public local inquiry is to be held at which the objector may attend or be represented, and the Minister is thereafter to consider the objection before confirming the order, with or without modification.

3. The Minister may not so modify the order as to extend it to buildings not included in the original order.

Compulsory Purchase Orders. 1. A person on whom notice of a compulsory purchase order is required to be served may within the time stated in the notice make objection to the Minister.

2. The Minister may require the objector to state in writing the grounds of his objection and if the objection relates only to matters which can be dealt with by the arbitrator assessing compensation may proceed to confirm the order with or without modification.

3. In any other case a public local inquiry is to be held at which the objector may attend or be represented and the Minister is thereafter to consider the objection before confirming the order, with or without modification.

(a) Now ss. 1 and 71 of the Housing Act, 1936, ante, pp. 1584 and 1682.

4. The Minister may not so modify an order as to include additional land.

5. In the case of an order made in connection with a clearance area :—

(a) the Minister may not so modify the order as to require the appropriation of additional land for rehousing.

(b) the Minister may authorise the purchase, for the purpose of dealing satisfactorily with the area, of land which he has by modification excluded from the area.

Restriction or condition imposed by a local authority on the user of land in a clearance area.

An aggrieved owner may appeal to the Minister, whose decision is to be final.

Works Notices and Demolition Orders.

A person aggrieved by :—

(a) notice to execute works ;

(b) demand for recovery of expenses of local authority in carrying out works specified in notice ;

(c) order made by local authority with respect to such expenses ;

(d) demolition order ;

(e) closing order or refusal to determine closing order ;

may appeal to the County Court within 21 days of the service of notice, demand, or order, or after the refusal.

An appeal lies to the Court of Appeal on any point of law, but otherwise the decision of the County Court is final. No appeal lies from the decision of the Court of Appeal.

No proceedings to enforce notice, demand or order may be taken before the final determination of the appeal.

Validity of Orders. A person aggrieved who wishes to question the validity of a confirmed clearance order or compulsory purchase order may make an application to the High Court within six weeks of the date of publication of notice of confirmation.

3. The Court may quash the order either generally or in so far as it affects property of applicant.

4. No appeal lies to the House of Lords except by leave of Court of Appeal.

37. Exclusion of Operation of Rent Restrictions Acts.—The Rent Restrictions Acts do not prevent the obtaining possession of a house with respect to which a clearance order or demolition order has been made, or a house the possession of which is required for the exercise of powers under any enactment relating to the housing of the working classes or for the purpose of securing compliance with byelaws to prevent overcrowding.

38. Compensation on Compulsory Purchase.

1. Land comprised in a clearance area. Compensation is to be the value of the land as a site cleared of buildings and available for development in accordance with the requirements of the building byelaws for the time being in force in the district.

* * * * * *

2. (a) Land surrounded by a clearance area.

(b) Land adjoining a clearance area.

(c) Land acquired in an improvement area for the purpose of opening out the area.

Compensation is to be the amount which the land, if sold in the open market by a willing seller, might be expected to realise, subject to the modifications made by Part II of the Third Schedule (a), as follows :—

(i) If the arbitrator is satisfied that the rental of any premises was enhanced by reason of their being used for illegal purposes, or being so overcrowded as to be dangerous or injurious to the health of the inmates, the compensation is, so far as it is based on rental, to be based on the rental which would have been obtainable if the premises were occupied for legal purposes and only by the number of persons whom the premises were, under all the circumstances of the case, fitted to accommodate without such overcrowding ;

(a) Now Sched. I of the Housing Act, 1936, ante, p. 1773.

(ii) If the arbitrator is satisfied that any premises are in a state of defective sanitation, or are not in reasonably good repair, the compensation is to be the estimated value of the premises if put into a sanitary condition, or reasonably good repair, less the estimated expense of putting them into such condition or repair.

(iii) The arbitrator is to have regard to and make an allowance in respect of any increased value which, in his opinion, will be given to other premises of the same owner by the demolition by the local authority of any buildings.

3. Land which has been cleared by the owners but not developed by them within eighteen months.

The compensation is to be the amount which the land, if sold in the open market by a willing seller, might be expected to realise.

4. Land occupied by a dwelling-house which the local authority considers repairable at a reasonable cost, but which the Court on appeal has held not to be so repairable.

The compensation is to be the value, at the time of valuation, as a cleared site available for development in accordance with the requirements of the building bye-laws in force and of any town planning scheme in operation.

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL,
LONDON, S.W.1.

HOUSING OF THE WORKING CLASSES.

HOUSING (FINANCIAL PROVISIONS) ACT, 1924.

INTRODUCTION.

With a view to setting out, for the information and guidance of Local Authorities, the current position as to the scope of and procedure under the Housing (Financial Provisions) Act, 1924 (a), as amended by subsequent legislation, a revision of Circular 520 (b), which dealt with these matters as they existed at the date of the passing of that Act, has become necessary.

This revision is embodied in the present Circular, which should accordingly now be read as superseding the earlier Circular.

* Inserted for reference: see the second paragraph of the general note to the Housing (Financial Provisions) Act, 1924, ante, p. 1826. But, for the position created by later legislation, see the remainder of that note, ibid.

HOUSING

I.—EXCHEQUER ASSISTANCE PROVIDED FOR UNDER THE HOUSING (FINANCIAL PROVISIONS) ACT, 1924.

1.—Exchequer contribution to Housing Authorities for houses subject to special conditions.

(a) The Housing (Financial Provisions) Act, 1924, provides primarily that houses which are subject to special conditions as to their letting and the amount of rent to be charged for them, and which are completed before October 1st, 1939, shall be eligible for Exchequer contributions which at the present time are £7 10*s*. a year for 40 years, or in the case of houses situated in an agricultural parish £11 a year for 40 years.

These contributions are payable towards the expenses incurred by Local Authorities in themselves providing houses subject to the special conditions, or in assisting private building enterprise to provide houses subject to special conditions which, with some necessary modifications, are similar to those applicable to houses provided by Local Authorities. Where assistance is given to private building enterprise the contribution will not exceed the assistance given by the Local Authority.

(b) Agricultural Parish.—For the purposes of the Act, the expression " an agricultural parish " means a civil parish, whether situated within the area of a rural district council or not, in which :—

(i) the net annual value of the agricultural land in the parish in which the house is situated, as appearing in the valuation list in force on April 1st, 1929, exceeded twenty-five per cent. of the total net annual value of that parish as appearing in the said list ; and

(ii) the population of the parish according to the latest census return of the Registrar-General published before the beginning of the financial year in which the proposal for the provision of the house is approved by the Minister is less than fifty persons per hundred acres.

2.—Contributions to County Councils, etc.

Exchequer contributions of £7 10*s*. a year for 40 years are available for houses which are subject to the special conditions and have been built in any parish whether an " agricultural parish " or not, for persons in their employment or paid by them, by County Councils and the boards or bodies referred to in Section 1 (5) of the Housing, &c., Act, 1923 (a).

3.—Periodical revision of Exchequer contribution.

The rates of contribution in force at the date of this Circular will be reviewed after October 1st, 1933, in consultation with representatives of Local Authorities and, if the cost of building and other conditions warrant a reduction, the contribution for houses built during the next period of three years will be reduced. A similar review will be made every third year during the continuance of the provisions for such contributions.

4.—Exceptional cases in which the flat-rate contribution may be reduced.

If by the use of new materials or new methods of construction, houses are erected with the Minister's approval at a substantially reduced cost, the Exchequer contribution may be reduced, but the reduction may not be so great as to leave any part of the estimated annual loss to be borne by the Local Authority or other builders.

If, on the other hand, at any time it is shown to the satisfaction of the Minister that a Local Authority have, without reasonable cause, refused to adopt a new material or method of construction which in his opinion would reduce the cost of houses without unduly affecting their durability, suitability, or appearance, the Minister is to require the adoption of the material or method to be considered by the Authority, and in the event of their failure without reasonable cause to adopt the same is to make such deduction from the amount of the Exchequer Contribution payable by him as in his opinion is reasonable having regard to the expenses incurred by the Authority.

II.—HOUSES PROVIDED BY LOCAL AUTHORITIES.

5.—Administration by Local Authority: plans, tenders and contracts.

Local Authorities will appreciate that proper control of the number of houses put out to contract from time to time, no less than wise administration in the preparation of their schemes and the acceptance of tenders, is of the utmost importance in preventing inflation of cost, and the Minister relies on Local Authorities to co-operate with him to this end. In this connection it will be appreciated that it will be necessary for the Local Authority to have careful regard to the availability of labour and materials in connection with every kind of building work which they may undertake.

The Minister will be pleased to arrange for his officers to confer with representatives of the Local Authorities at any time, and he specially desires that in all cases where tenders received are regarded by the Local Authority as too high particulars should be furnished to his Department.

All contracts for houses subject to special conditions must contain a fair wages clause. The fair wages clause must comply with the requirements of any resolution of the House of Commons applicable to contracts of Government Departments and for the time being in force. A copy of the resolution at present in force is set out in Appendix IV.

6.—Purchase of houses by Local Authority.

The Local Authority may, with the approval of the Minister, purchase houses already constructed, and an Exchequer Contribution will be payable in respect of them if (a) they have been completed after the passing of the Act and have not been occupied previously to their purchase by the Local Authority, and (b) the conditions as to type and size and the special conditions set out below are satisfied.

The Act provides that in order to qualify for the Exchequer Contribution Local Authorities shall undertake to comply with the following conditions:—

(a) That the houses will be let by the Local Authority to tenants who intend to reside in them.

(b) That it shall be a term of every such letting that the tenant shall not assign, sublet or part with the possession of the house or any part of it except with the written consent of the Local Authority, and that such consent shall not be given unless it is shown that no payment other than rent has been or is to be received by the tenant in consideration of the assignment, subletting or other transaction.

(c) That if the Local Authority desire to sell or dispose of houses such sale or disposal shall not be effected except upon such stipulations, if any, as the Minister thinks proper.

(d) That a fair wages clause which complies with the requirements of any resolution of the House of Commons applicable to contracts of Government Departments and for the time being in force will be inserted in all contracts for the construction of the houses. (See Appendix IV.)

(e) That the total of the rents of all the houses provided by the Local Authority under the Act will not in the aggregate exceed the rents payable if the houses were let at the appropriate normal rents charged in respect of pre-war working class houses, except in so far as the rate expenses incurred by the Local Authority in connection with the provision of the houses would exceed the equivalent of £3 15*s.* 0*d.* a year per house for 40 years (£4 10*s.* 0*d.* for houses completed before October 1st, 1927), and that no fine, premium or other like sum shall be taken in addition to the rent.

(f) That reasonable preference shall be given to large families in letting the houses.

HOUSING

Rules prescribed by the Minister for determining the appropriate normal rent are set out in Appendix II and the methods of determining rents are dealt with more fully in the following paragraph.

8.—Rents of houses subject to special conditions.

As already indicated, the object to be aimed at is the letting of houses at the rents commonly paid from time to time for ordinary working class houses which were erected before the war. The first thing to be done, therefore, is to determine what are to be regarded as the rents of such ordinary working class houses. These rents are described in the Act as appropriate normal rents and will be determined (exclusive of rates) by the Local Authority themselves in accordance with the rules set out in Appendix II. The Local Authority will be required to deal with the houses in two classes, parlour and non-parlour, and to obtain particulars of all the types in each class, taking care to satisfy themselves that the types taken are representative of all working class houses in the district, and that the number of each type taken is in rough proportion to the total numbers of each type in the district. They should not confine the survey to types comparable with the houses which they are erecting, and should make no addition to the actual average rent of the pre-war houses in respect of differences in amenities, accommodation, etc. If there is a marked difference in in the rent levels in different parts of the area the Local Authority should ascertain the appropriate normal rents for each such part instead of for the district as a whole.

If any material charge takes place in the level of rents in the district the Local Authority should make a new ascertainment of appropriate normal rents.

The rents charged for individual houses by the Local Authority will not necessarily be the appropriate normal rents determined in accordance with the rules. It will be open to the Local Authority to fix different rents for any of the houses, but, except in the circumstances referred to on page 8, the total rents charged by the Local Authority for all the houses must not exceed the total rent which would have been obtained if each house had been let at the appropriate normal rent of its class.

An example will explain the working more clearly (the figures used are, of course, for illustration only).

Local Authority's building proposal :—

450 non-parlour houses of which	50 parlour houses of which
50 are of type X.	20 are of type C.

Total rents should not exceed :—

Total of both classes, £183 15*s.* 0*d.*

If, however, by fixing rents in the manner explained above the estimated annual loss falling on the Local Authority in respect of all the houses erected by them under the Act would after crediting the appropriate Exchequer contribution exceed the aggregate sum equivalent to £4 10*s*. 0*d*. a year for 40 years for each house completed by September 30th, 1927, plus £3 15*s*. 0*d*. a year for 40 years for each house completed after that date such addition can be made to the rents as will reduce the estimated annual loss to the said aggregate sum.

The Local Authority will carry out their building programme by instalments, but will require to fix rents as soon as houses in the first instalment are becoming completed and in estimating the annual loss for this purpose they should base their calculation on the best estimate of capital cost possible at the time. As building proceeds, new calculations should be made from time to time as actual costs become known or further houses are put in hand. In the calculation the Local Authority should make such deductions from the gross exclusive rents for repairs, management, empties, etc., as appear to them reasonable having regard to their experience in administering houses already erected by them.

A simple way of ascertaining the aggregate rent which would involve the Local Authority in a loss equivalent to £4 10*s*. 0*d*. or £3 15*s*. 0*d*. a year for 40 years is as follows:—

(a) estimate the total cost of all the houses of the various types;

(b) determine what capital sum would be liquidated over 40 years by an annual payment (representing the Exchequer and rate contributions) of £13 10*s*. 0*d*. or £11 5*s*. 0*d*. whichever may be applicable per house (£17 0*s*. 0*d*. or £14 15*s*. 0*d*. in agricultural parishes);

(c) calculate the annual loan charges on the difference between (a) and (b) based on a period representing the estimated rent-producing life of the houses (which would normally be not less than 60 years);

(d) add to the amount obtained at (c) an appropriate allowance for repairs, management, etc.;

(e) the amount at (d) is the maximum rent which may be charged unless it is exceeded by the aggregate appropriate normal rent.

The following example, in continuation of the building proposal and appropriate normal rent calculation on page 7, will make the method clear. It is assumed that 200 houses were completed by September 30th, 1927:—

(a) Estimated all-in cost of 500 houses (including land, roads and sewers)		240,000
(b) Capital value of:—
£13 10*s*. 0*d*. for 40 years = £232 11*s*. 0*d*. × 200 =	46,510
£11 5*s*. 0*d*. for 40 years = £193 15*s*. 10*d*. × 300 =	58,137
		104,647
Difference .		£135,353
(c) Annual Loan Charges on £135,353 (60 years basis) . . .		£7,136 6*s*.
(d) Allowance for repairs, management, etc., at 30 per cent. of rents .		£3,058 8*s*.
		£10,194 14*s*.

(e) £10,194 14*s*. 0*d*. per annum represents £196 1*s*. 0*d*. per week. As this is in excess of the aggregate appropriate normal rent of £183 15*s*. 0*d*., it is the maximum rent which may be charged.

(Calculation on basis of a 5 per cent. half yearly annuity.)

It will be understood that the condition in the Act applies to rents in the aggregate. Subject thereto, it is open to the Local Authority to vary the individual rents or to make separate calculations in respect of houses on different sites, or at different periods. Generally speaking the houses built up to the present have been dealt with as one group and it may be said that they have met the needs of the better paid members of the working class community. To meet the needs of the less well paid members, Local Authorities should consider whether, where they are charging a rent based on the cost of the houses, it would not now be desirable to charge tenants of the houses built in future from some convenient date (e.g., the commencement of a new housing estate), only the rent appropriate to the cost of those houses.

Rural District Councils.—In areas administered by Rural District Councils the appropriate normal rents will be fixed either for the whole area or for groups of parishes or for parishes or parts of parishes in the area as the Local Authority may determine, and in fixing the actual rents the Local Authority should give special consideration to the needs of agricultural workers, whether living in agricultural parishes or not.

The Council will receive £11 a year for 40 years in respect of all houses in agricultural parishes and £7 10*s.* 0*d.* a year for 40 years for all houses in other parishes. Reference should be made to para. 10 of Circular 1138 with regard to the relations between Rural District Councils and County Councils and the assistance which may be given by the latter. The total expenses of the Rural District Council will be dealt with as general expenses of the whole Rural District.

9.—Undertaking to comply with special conditions.

It is necessary under the Act for the Local Authority to give an undertaking to comply with the special conditions in respect of houses included in their approved proposals and the form of this undertaking is set out in Appendix III.

It will be appreciated that compliance with the special conditions is essential if the Exchequer contribution is to be paid.

10.—Sale of houses erected by Local Authority.

The Exchequer contribution under this Act is intended to enable houses to be built for letting and will be available only for houses intended to be let.

If a house is sold subject to all the prescribed special conditions the appropriate Exchequer contribution will continue to be paid.

If, however, a house is sold and will not thereafter be subject to special conditions, the Exchequer contribution will cease if the house was completed after September 30th, 1929, or, if the house was completed by that date, will be suitably reduced. In the case of every proposed sale, the prior consent of the Minister will be required. In accordance with the provisions of Section 59 (3) of the Housing Act, 1925 (a), the sale must be on the basis of the best price that can reasonably be obtained having regard to any conditions imposed.

11.—Houses not subject to special conditions.

If a Local Authority elect to build houses not subject to special conditions, the conditions set out in paragraphs 7 to 10 will not apply, but the Minister considers that a fair wages clause in the usual form should be included in contracts for their erection.

The ordinary provisions of Section 59 of the Housing Act, 1925 (a), will apply to the sale of such houses.

III.—HOUSES PROVIDED BY PRIVATE ENTERPRISE WITH ASSISTANCE FROM THE LOCAL AUTHORITY.

12.—General.

The object of granting assistance is to ensure the provision of working class houses with the minimum assistance necessary, and the Local Authority should satisfy themselves that the amount of the assistance proposed by them is the minimum required to secure the erection of the houses.

(a) 13 Halsbury's Statutes 1036, repealed by the Housing Act, 1936, and replaced by ss. 79 and 127, thereof, ante, pp. 1687 and 1729.

In addition to granting assistance to private individuals the Local Authority have power to assist public utility societies and similar bodies.

The procedure to be followed in assisting private enterprise is set out in paragraph 28.

13.—Special conditions.

The Local Authority must undertake that the special conditions will be complied with, and it will be for them to frame the grant of assistance so as to secure this result. The special conditions are :—

(i) That the houses shall be let for occupation to tenants who intend to reside in them.

(ii) That it shall be a term of every such letting that the tenant shall not assign, sub-let or part with the possession of the house or any part of it except with the written consent of the Local Authority, and that such consent shall not be given unless it is shown that no payment other than rent has been or is to be received by the tenant in consideration of the assignment, sub-letting or other transaction.

(iii) That no house shall be sold or otherwise disposed of (save by such lettings as aforesaid) without the consent of the Minister of Health, and such consent will be subject to such reasonable stipulations as the Minister may think proper.

(iv) That a fair wages clause, which complies with the requirements of any resolution of the House of Commons applicable to contracts of Government Departments and for the time being in force, shall be inserted in all contracts for the construction of the houses (see Appendix IV).

(v) That the rent charged in respect of any house shall not exceed the appropriate normal rent, together with a sum equivalent to the average excess, if any, above the appropriate normal rent which can be charged by the Local Authority in accordance with Section 3 of the Act (a) in the case of houses provided by the Local Authority themselves, and that no fine, premium, or other like sum shall be taken in addition to the rent.

It should be noted that the rent to be charged in respect of each house erected by private enterprise is to be determined having regard to (a) the appropriate normal rent of the class of house and (b) the average excess above the appropriate normal rents which can be charged by the Local Authority, in view of the total cost of all their own houses under the Act. If the Local Authority have not themselves built houses under the Act, they should prepare an estimate of the cost of erection and maintenance by themselves of a house of the class in question (parlour or non-parlour) and calculate therefrom the rent which would be required to limit their contribution to the equivalent of £3 15*s.* 0*d.* a year for 40 years, after allowing for the Exchequer subsidy. The rent to be charged should not exceed this figure or the appropriate normal rent of the same class of house whichever is the greater.

14.—Amount of Assistance.

The assistance in respect of houses subject to special conditions will take the form of an annual payment of an amount to be specified for a period not exceeding 40 years to the person for the time being in receipt of the rent payable by a tenant to whom the house is let. The Local Authority will not be able to give assistance by way of lump sums. The amount of assistance to be given by the Local Authority (which may exceed the amount of the Exchequer contribution to the Local Authority) is a matter for the determination of that authority subject to the approval of the Minister. The contribution which can be made by the Minister to the Local Authority towards the expenses incurred by them in affording such assistance will be a maximum of £7 10*s.* a year (or in an agricultural parish £11 a year) for a period of 40 years, and will not in any case exceed the amount of assistance actually given by the Local Authority.

15.—Sale of Houses erected by Private Enterprise.

Conditions as to continuance or cessation of Exchequer contribution similar to those described in paragraph 10 in respect of Local Authorities' houses, will apply to the sale of houses provided by private enterprise.

IV.—DESCRIPTION OF HOUSES WHICH WILL QUALIFY FOR ASSISTANCE.

The houses may be :—

(a) Two-storied cottages * ; or

(b) One-storied cottages or bungalows ; or

(c) Houses built in flats, each flat being treated as one house.

17.—Area and measurement.

The superficial area of the houses must generally fall within the following limits :—

For a two-storied cottage . .	Minimum 620	superficial feet.
	Maximum 950	,, ,,
For a one-storied cottage or bungalow,
or for a flat	Minimum 550	,, ,,
	Maximum 880	,, ,,

The Minister, is, however, empowered to permit smaller houses to rank for Exchequer assistance where a Local Authority satisfy him that, having regard to special circumstances existing in their area, there is a need for houses of smaller dimensions. The minimum sizes of houses or flats which are to rank for full Exchequer contribution are 570 superficial feet for two-storied houses and 500 superficial feet for flats or one-storied houses. (A reduced Exchequer contribution is available for houses which fall below those sizes and are provided for aged persons, under Section 46 of the Housing Act, 1930 (a), to which reference is made in paragraph 11 of Circular 1138.)

The measurement of superficial area is to be carried out in strict accordance with the rules set out in the following paragraph, namely :—

(a) The area will be measured within the external or containing walls of the house (so as to include the area of chimney breasts, bay windows and similar space), and, in the case of two-storey cottages, will be the combined areas, as so measured, of the two storeys.

(b) In the case of houses built in flats the space occupied by a staircase will not be included in measuring the area of a flat.

(c) Habitable accommodation provided in an attic or storey formed in the roof will be included without regard to the use to which it may be intended to be put. In determining whether accommodation is habitable regard should be had not only to its condition as shown in the plans, but also to the possibility of its conversion into habitable accommodation. The area of so much of the attic as is less than 5 feet in height will be excluded in measuring the habitable accommodation.

(d) Cellars will not be included.

(e) Outbuildings will be excluded if they are not an essential part of the house, but will be included if they provide accommodation which is necessary to the occupation of the house or is usually included within the containing walls of the house. Outbuildings are buildings not communicating with the house which are outside the containing walls of the house, whether attached thereto or not. Examples of an outbuilding to be included are a W.C., coal-house or scullery. A tool shed, wood shed or bicycle shed would not be included. The area of an outbuilding to be included will be measured within the containing walls of that area.

* An attic would be permitted in addition, subject to limits of area.

(a) Ante, p. 1857.

(f) With regard to covered areas, such as the area of a verandah or porch, the general principle is that where such small areas are covered by light structures which though attached to are outside the containing walls of the house, and consequently do not add to the bulk of the main building, the measurement of these areas should not be included. But the area of porches or other open air spaces included within the lines of the main containing walls of the house which do increase the bulk of the buildings should be included in the measurement of the house.

18.—Planning and construction.

The Minister attaches importance to the maintenance of a good standard in the planning and lay out of the schemes to be carried out under the Act, and he has no doubt that he can rely on the co-operation of Local Authorities in doing all within their power to ensure that these features will be creditable to the country and to the Local Authority.

Local Authorities, on submitting proposals, are required to satisfy the Minister—

(a) that they have taken into account the requirements of any town planning scheme likely to be made in respect of, or in the neighbourhood of, the area in which the houses are to be provided; and

(b) that the rate of density of the houses will not, except with the consent of the Minister, exceed eight per acre in an agricultural parish and twelve per acre elsewhere.

Development work should not be begun by Local Authorities and certificates should not be issued to intending builders until the Minister's approval has been obtained.

The houses must be constructed in a proper and workmanlike manner and must, unless the special approval of the Minister is obtained, be of a type of construction for which a period of not less than 60 years would be allowed by the Ministry for the repayment of a loan. In this connection it should be understood that it is desired to give every encouragement to any new methods of construction which promise economy or speed of erection, and the Minister will consider sympathetically any proposals from Local Authorities which seem likely to attain these objects.

In every case the materials used must be of good quality such as is ordinarily specified by a Local Authority in a contract for working class houses.

Under section 99 of the Housing Act, 1925 (a), where housing operations have been carried out in accordance with plans and specifications approved by the Minister, the local byelaws do not apply to such operations in so far as they are inconsistent with the plans, etc. In other respects the local byelaws must be complied with.

Section 100 of the Act of 1925 (a) provides for the revocation of existing byelaws and the making of new byelaws where, in consequence of the existing byelaws, the erection of buildings is, or is likely to be, unreasonably impeded.

The following sizes of rooms have been regarded as affording a desirable standard and can be obtained within the limits permitted :—

Living room	about 180 sq. feet.
First bedroom	„ 150 „ „
Second bedroom	„ 100 „ „

Third bedroom not less than 65 sq. feet.

Where a parlour is also provided some reduction in the size of the living room may reasonably be made.

Except where otherwise approved by the Minister on the recommendation of the Local Authority, every house or flat to be eligible for assistance must be provided with a fixed bath in a bathroom.

19.—Houses which are not eligible.

Contributions will not be payable in respect of the conversion of an Army hut or similar building, or in respect of any house :—

(a) which is constructed by the conversion, adaptation, or extension of an existing building, or includes any part of an existing building, other than the party wall of a habitable dwelling house ;

(b) which contains or is constructed for occupation with an office, shop, business premises, garage, stable or similar building ; or

(c) which is built to replace loss by fire.

With regard to (a) attention is drawn to the powers of Local Authorities under the Housing (Rural Workers) Act, 1926 (a), as explained in Circulars 756 (b) and 839 (c).

V.—LAND.

20.—Transfer of land already acquired under 1919 scheme.

Any land acquired under the assisted scheme authorised by the Housing, Town Planning, etc., Act, 1919 (d), should, wherever possible, be utilised for the erection of houses under the present scheme, either by the Local Authority or by private builders. The account of the former scheme will, in effect, be credited in respect of the transference with a capital sum equal to the present market value of the land in question, including the value of any development works which have been carried out on the site. Arrangements have been made with the Valuation Office under which the District Valuer will be prepared, on application and receipt of a plan showing the land which it is proposed to take over, to certify the amount to be credited to the 1919 Act scheme on this basis. The transfer should ordinarily take place on the date on which work is started on the land, or at the expiration of two months from the date when the Local Authority are notified by the Minister of his agreement with the proposals of the authority, whichever is the earlier. Where the transfer extends to a large area of land beyond what can be utilised for an immediate building programme, the Minister will be prepared to consider proposals for transferring the land in instalments over a period.

VI.—ASSISTANCE TO PRIVATE ENTERPRISE BY WAY OF LOANS, GUARANTEES, ETC.

21.—Loans to builders.

Under Section 92 of the Housing Act, 1925 (e), a Local Authority, including a County Council, have power to advance loans to builders and others for the construction of houses or flats of an estimated value not exceeding £1,500 (f).

Such loans may be advanced to persons desiring to build houses for their own occupation or to build one or more houses for sale or letting, or to Public Utility Societies or other societies or bodies undertaking to build houses.

Before granting assistance a Local Authority or County Council must satisfy themselves that the houses or flats in respect of which assistance is to be given will, when the works have been completed, be in all respects fit for human habitation, and, in particular, that the superficial area of any such house or flat will not be less than the minimum permissible under section 1 of the Act of 1923 (g).

The loans will be secured by mortgage. The amount of the advance may not exceed 90 per cent. of the value of the interest of the mortgagor in the property but will otherwise be within the discretion of the Local Authority, subject to the approval of the Minister.

During construction the Local Authority is empowered to make advances up to 50 per cent. of the value of the work done, including the value of the builder's interest in the site. Loans to persons having a leasehold interest are permissible, but in such cases the unexpired period of the lease at the date of the advance of the loan must be at least 10 years in excess of the period fixed for the repayment of the loan.

Advances may only be made after a valuation duly made on behalf of the Local Authority. The services of the District Valuer are not available to the Local Authority for this purpose. The rate of interest to be charged will be within the discretion of the Local Authority subject to the approval of the Minister. In proposing a rate or rates of interest for approval, the Local Authority should make such addition to the rate at which they may expect to be able to borrow over the period of the loan as they estimate will suffice to cover them against loss, having regard to the proportion of value to be advanced and to the period for which it is proposed to lend.

It is suggested that loans should ordinarily be repayable in 20 years, and that the mortgage should be transferable to the purchaser of a house as required.

Repayments may be made by monthly instalments.

It will be desirable that a Local Authority should prepare a scale showing all legal costs and surveyor's fees.

22.—Loans to owner-occupiers.

The Small Dwellings Acquisition Acts 1899 to 1923, (a) enable loans to be made to persons who desire to purchase a house of market value not exceeding £1,200 (b) for their own occupation. The percentage which may be advanced is within the discretion of the Local Authority, subject to a maximum of 90 per cent. of value. Advances may be made during construction up to 50 per cent. of the value of the work done, including the value of the interest of the borrower in the site. The condition that the purchaser shall be required to reside in the house has effect for a period of three years only from the date when the advance is made or from the date on which the house is completed, whichever is the later, and it is within the discretion of the Local Authority to dispense with this condition at any time.

23.—Guarantees to building societies.

Under section 92 (1) (b) of the Act of 1925 (c) Local Authorities have power to guarantee the repayment to a Building Society of any advance with interest thereon made to any of its members desiring to build or acquire a house of an estimated value not exceeding £1,500, whether the house is within or without the Local Authority's own area.

The object of this provision is to enable a Building Society to advance a larger proportion of the cost of a house than its rules would normally allow.

It is recognised that there must be some elasticity in the negotiations between individual Local Authorities and individual Building Societies. Circular 555 deals with the substantive provisions to be included in any scheme. The precise form of guarantee is a matter for the legal adviser of the Local Authority to determine, and does not require the approval of the Minister.

The third section of paragraph 21 on page [2918] with regard to loans applies also to guarantees.

24.—Conversion of houses into separate tenements.

In order to facilitate the conversion of houses into separate tenements, section 92 (1) (c) of the Act of 1925 (c) empowers the Local Authority to refund during a specified period, not exceeding twenty years, the whole or part of the excess rates on each tenement over and above the rates which would have been payable if the tenement had been rated proportionately with the other tenements in the house on the basis of the rateable value of the house before conversion. There is no restriction on the value of the house to which this provision relates.

THE LOCAL AUTHORITIES (ASSISTED HOUSING SCHEMES) AMENDMENT REGULATIONS, 1931, DATED OCTOBER 7TH, 1931, MADE BY THE MINISTER OF HEALTH.

Whereas by subsection (1) of section 7 of the Housing, Town Planning, &c. Act, 1919, (a) it is enacted that if it appears to the Local Government Board that the carrying out by a local authority, or by a county council to whom the powers of a local authority have been transferred under that Act, of any scheme approved under section 1 of that Act or the carrying out of a rehousing scheme in connection with a scheme made under Part I or Part II of the Housing of the Working Classes Act, 1890, including the acquisition, clearance and development of land included in the last-mentioned scheme, and whether the rehousing will be effected on the area included in that scheme or elsewhere, has resulted or is likely to result in a loss, the Board shall, if the scheme is carried out within such period after the passing of that Act as may be specified by the Board with the consent of the Treasury, pay or undertake to pay to the local authority or county council, out of moneys provided by Parliament, such part of the loss as may be determined to be so payable under regulations made by the Board with the approval of the Treasury, subject to such conditions as may be prescribed by those regulations:

And whereas by subsection (2) of the said section 7 it is enacted that such regulations shall provide that the amount of any annual payment to be made under the section shall, in the case of a scheme carried out by a local authority, be determined on the basis of the estimated annual loss resulting from the carrying out of any scheme or schemes to which the section applies, subject to the deduction therefrom of a sum not exceeding the estimated annual produce of a rate of one penny in the pound levied in the area chargeable with the expenses of such scheme or schemes:

(a) 13 Halsbury's Statutes 956, since repealed, but see the note to s. 6 of the Housing &c. Act, 1923, ante, pp. 1819 et seq.

And whereas by section 6 of the Housing &c. Act, 1923, section 7 of the Housing, Town Planning &c. Act, 1919 and any enactment amending that section was repealed; but it was enacted that save as in that section provided this repeal should not affect the validity of any regulations made under the said section or the power to amend such regulations:

And whereas by subsection (2) of section 45 of the Housing Act, 1930 (a), it is enacted that notwithstanding anything contained in the aforementioned enactments or in the regulations made thereunder, it shall not be necessary that the amount of any annual payment to which section 45 of the Housing Act, 1930 (a) relates shall be determined on the basis of the estimated annual loss resulting from the carrying out of the scheme in respect of which the payment is to be made, and, accordingly, amending regulations made under the said enactments by the Minister, with the consent of the Treasury, may provide that, for the purposes of the financial year commencing on the first day of April, 1930, and of every subsequent financial year, the amount of any such annual payment may be determined either—

(a) on the basis of the actual loss resulting during the year from the carrying out of the scheme; or

(b) if it is so agreed between the Minister and the local authority, on the basis of the estimated annual loss resulting from the carrying out of the scheme; or

(c) if it is so agreed as aforesaid, on the basis of actual income or expenditure as respects some items required to be brought into account, and on the basis of estimated income or expenditure as respects other such items.

Now therefore the Minister of Health, in pursuance of his powers under the recited enactments and under any other Statutes in that behalf, hereby makes the following Regulations:—

1.—(1) These Regulations may be cited as the Local Authorities (Assisted Housing Schemes) Amendment Regulations, 1931.

(2) The Local Authorities (Assisted Housing Schemes) Regulations, 1919, as amended by—the Local Authorities (Assisted Housing Schemes) Amendment Regulations 1921,

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies to the interpretation of these Regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament.

3. For the purposes of these Regulations—(1) Schemes towards the losses on which the Minister is liable to contribute under section 7 of the Act of 1919, in so far as they are carried out at the expense of any one local authority, shall be regarded together as one scheme, and, if a payment may be made as herein provided in respect thereof, are hereinafter together referred to as an "assisted scheme."

(2) No such payment shall continue to be made in the case of any scheme or part of a scheme under Part I or Part II of the Act of 1890 unless such scheme or part of a scheme is carried out within such period as the Minister may allow, regard being had to the supplies of labour or material available from time to time and all other local or general circumstances affecting the carrying into effect of the scheme.

(3) No such payment shall be made in respect of the cost of acquiring or clearing a site under Part I or Part II of the Act of 1890 where the site was acquired or cleared (as the case may be) before the 6th day of February, 1919.

4.—(1) The local authority shall for the purposes of an assisted scheme, keep separate accounts, to be called "The Housing (Assisted Scheme) Accounts", including a separate revenue account, to be called "The Housing (Assisted Scheme) Revenue Account", and distinguishing between items relating to schemes under Parts I and II and under Part III of the Act of 1890 respectively.

(2) They shall cause to be credited to the Housing (Assisted Scheme) Revenue Account in each financial year:—

(a) the produce of a rate of one penny in the pound levied in the area chargeable with the expenses of the assisted scheme, or such less amount as may be necessary to meet the deficit for the financial year;

(b) the total income from rents exclusive of rates and water charges in respect of the houses provided or acquired by them under the assisted scheme; and

(c) any other income which in the opinion of the Minister may properly be credited to the said account.

(3) They shall cause to be debited to the Housing (Assisted Scheme) Revenue Account in each financial year:—

(a) the sums required for interest and repayment of principal in respect of all moneys borrowed by them for the purposes of the assisted scheme (including moneys borrowed for the purchase of land which is approved by the Minister as part of the assisted scheme) which in the opinion of the Minister may properly be debited to the said account;

(b) the taxes, rents or other charges (but excluding the rates and water charges) payable by them in respect of any land or houses acquired, leased or provided by them under the assisted scheme, including any sums payable by way of rent, with the approval of the Minister, to any other account of the Local Authority, in respect of land acquired by them for some other purpose and appropriated for purposes of the assisted scheme;

shall apply, so far as necessary, in lieu of the provisions of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882 (a), relating to accounts and audit.

(b) As soon as practicable after the conclusion of each financial year the local authority shall forward to the Minister a copy of the Housing (Assisted Scheme) Revenue Account certified by the District Auditor.

(5)—(a) Where an estimate has been agreed under paragraph (b) of sub-division (1) of Article 6 of these Regulations the foregoing provisions of this Article shall not apply.

(b) Where an estimate has been agreed under paragraph (c) of sub-division (1) of Article 6 of these Regulations the provisions of sub-division (1) of this Article shall apply except that where any item of charge or credit has been agreed it shall not be necessary to include in the Housing (Assisted Scheme) Accounts accounts recording the actual income or expenditure in regard to which an agreed figure has been determined and such agreed figure shall be substituted for the figures which would otherwise have been included in accordance with sub-divisions (2) and (3) of this Article.

5. Unless an estimate of loan charges has been agreed under the provisions of paragraphs (b) or (c) of sub-division (1) of Article 6 the local authority shall not, except with the approval of the Minister, borrow moneys for the purposes of an assisted scheme at a higher rate of interest than that fixed for the time being in the case of loans by the Public Works Loan Commissioners to local authorities for the purposes of the Housing Acts, 1925–1930.

6.—(1) Subject to the provisions of these Regulations and provided that these Regulations are complied with, the annual payment to be made by the Minister to the local authority out of moneys provided by Parliament (in these regulations referred to as " the Exchequer subsidy ") shall be determined in one of the following ways :—

(a) the Exchequer subsidy shall be an amount equivalent to the deficit in the Housing (Assisted Scheme) Revenue Account made up at the conclusion of each financial year in accordance with the provisions of Article 4 of these regulations ; or

(b) if it is so agreed between the Minister and the local authority, the Exchequer subsidy shall be calculated on the basis of an agreed estimate of the annual loss resulting from the carrying out of the scheme ; or

(c) if it is so agreed as aforesaid, the Exchequer subsidy shall be calculated on the basis of actual income or expenditure as respects some items required to be brought into account and on the basis of an agreed estimate of income or expenditure as respects other such items.

(2) The estimates referred to in paragraphs (b) and (c) of sub-division (1) of this Article shall be in a form approved by the Minister.

(3)—(a) An estimate under paragraph (b) of sub-division (1) of this Article shall be an estimate of the income and expenditure of the local authority under the assisted scheme in each financial year during the remainder of the period or periods allowed for the repayment of the loans raised by them for the purposes of the scheme.

(b) The Exchequer subsidy payable in respect of any financial year, when based upon such an estimate, shall be equivalent to the deficit relating to that financial year as shown by the estimate, subject to the deduction therefrom of the produce in that year of a rate of one penny in the pound.

(4)—(a) An estimate under paragraph (c) of sub-division (1) of this Article shall be an estimate of the income and expenditure of the local authority under the assisted scheme in each financial year during the remainder of the period or periods allowed for the repayment of the loans raised by them for the purposes of the scheme in respect of such items required to be brought into account as shall be agreed in each case between the local authority and the Minister.

(b) Where such an estimate is agreed between the local authority and the Minister the Exchequer subsidy payable in respect of any financial year shall be an amount equivalent to the deficit in the Housing (Assisted Scheme) Revenue Account made up at the conclusion of that financial year in accordance with the provisions of

HOUSING

Article 4 of these Regulations, varied as may be necessary by the substitution of the agreed estimates of income and expenditure relating to the same financial year in respect of those of the items required to be brought into account as are included in such estimate.

7.—(1) In the determination of the amount of the Exchequer subsidy such deductions may be made from the amount of the deficit upon which the Exchequer subsidy is calculated as will in the opinion of the Minister represent—

(a) an item of expenditure or estimated expenditure which is excessive or not properly chargeable to the debit of the assisted scheme; or

(b) the omission from the account or estimate of any item of income which should be included therein; or

(c) any deficiency of income or estimated income which is due to the insufficiency of the rents charged or proposed to be charged by the local authority; or

(d) any deficiency of income or estimated income which is due to the failure of the local authority to secure due economy in the carrying out or administration of the scheme.

(2) For the purposes of paragraph (a) of sub-division (1) of this Article the following items of expenditure or estimated expenditure in respect of any one financial year, shall not be regarded as excessive :—

(a) A charge, in respect of unoccupied houses and irrecoverable rents, not exceeding five per centum of the gross estimated rent;

(b) A contribution to a repairs fund not exceeding fifteen per centum of the gross estimated rent;

(c) A charge, in respect of the cost of supervision and management, not exceeding five per centum of the gross estimated rent; and

(d) Any item of expenditure referred to in this sub-division of this article which exceeds the percentages thereby prescribed, but which the Minister, having regard to the special circumstances of the case, considers to be reasonable.

(3).—(a) In the event of any difference of opinion arising between the Minister and the local authority with regard to any of the matters referred to in paragraphs (c) or (d) of sub-division (1) of this Article the question at issue shall be referred for decision to a tribunal appointed as hereinafter provided, and the decision of such tribunal shall be final and conclusive, and the amount of the Exchequer subsidy shall (if necessary) be altered accordingly.

(b) Such tribunal shall consist of two members nominated by the Minister, one member nominated by the Association of Municipal Corporations and two members (of whom one only shall be entitled to act in any particular case) nominated by the Urban District Councils Association and the Rural District Councils Association jointly and of a chairman to be appointed by the members so nominated:

Provided that if at a meeting of the tribunal four members nominated as aforesaid shall not be present, the tribunal shall be entitled to act through a committee consisting of the chairman and two members, one of whom shall be a member nominated by the Minister and the other shall be a member nominated either by the Association of Municipal Corporations or by the Urban District Councils Association and the Rural District Councils Association jointly, and any decision of such committee shall be deemed to be a decision by the tribunal.

[(a) (4) For the purposes of paragraph (c) of sub-division (1) of this Article any rents charged or proposed to be charged by the local authority shall not be regarded as insufficient if they are the best rents which can reasonably be obtained from the classes of tenant in the district for whom the houses were provided, regard being had to any superiority of such houses in accommodation construction or amenities as compared with houses previously built in the district.]

(5) For the purposes of sub-division (2) of this Article the gross estimated rent shall be deemed to be the total amount of the rents, exclusive of rates and water charges, which would be receivable during the financial year in respect of houses included in the assisted scheme if all the houses were occupied.

(a) Sub-paragraph substituted by Amending Regulations of 1934 (S. R. & O., 1934, No. 723).

8.—(1) The amount of the Exchequer subsidy, when determined under these Regulations, shall not be varied by the Minister during the period for which the Exchequer subsidy was fixed except as hereinafter provided or except with the concurrence of the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury and of the local authority.

(2) When any land or buildings included in an assisted scheme are leased or sold by the local authority, the Minister may notwithstanding that an estimate has been agreed under paragraphs (b) or (c) of sub-division (1) of Article 6 of these Regulations make such adjustment of the amount of the Exchequer subsidy as may be necessary in consequence of the lease or sale and of the appropriation of the rents or proceeds of the sale :

Provided that the adjustment shall in no case be such as to increase the contribution to be made by the local authority from the rates towards the annual cost of the assisted scheme, and that if, as the result of the appropriation of the rents or proceeds of the sale, the annual deficit to be incurred by the local authority under the assisted scheme is reduced, a proportion of the amount by which the deficit is reduced shall, subject to such conditions as the Minister may determine, be applied under any such adjustment in reduction of the said contribution, as well as of the Exchequer subsidy.

9.—(1) The Exchequer subsidy shall be payable in such instalments (including payments on account) as the Minister may think fit, and in determining the amount of the payments in any year the Minister shall have regard to an estimate of the produce of a rate of one penny in the pound for that year based upon the actual produce in previous years and taking into account any probable increase or decrease in the rateable value of the district of the local authority during that year.

(2) The Minister may withhold payment of the final instalment of Exchequer subsidy in any year until the provisions of paragraph (b) of sub-division (4) of Article 4 of these Regulations have been complied with, and in paying the final instalments shall make such adjustment as may be necessary in consequence of any difference between the estimated annual produce and the actual produce of the said rate of one penny in the pound.

10. In any case where one area is affected by two or more assisted schemes the Minister may make such adjustments as may be necessary for securing that in the calculation of the total amount of the Exchequer subsidies in any one financial year, under both or all the assisted schemes affecting the said area, there shall not be taken into account, in respect of that area, the produce of a rate of more than one penny in the pound.

SCHEDULE A.

Rules to be observed in the Determination of the Amount produced by a Rate of One Penny in the Pound.

1. The produce of a rate during any financial year shall be the amount actually realised during that year by the collection of that rate, in accordance with a return made by the duly authorised financial officer of the local authority and certified by the District Auditor.

2. For the purposes of the foregoing rule, the amount of the rate or rates collected during the financial year shall be regarded as having been collected in respect of the rate or rates made for that year.

3. The produce of a rate of one penny in the pound shall be that proportion of the produce of a rate which one penny bears to the total amount in the pound of the said rate.

4. Where it is desired to ascertain the amount of the produce of a rate of one penny in the pound levied in any area comprising two or more parts which are differentially rated, the said amount shall be separately ascertained in respect of each of these parts in accordance with the foregoing rules, and the sum of the amounts so ascertained shall be the produce of a rate of one penny in the pound levied in the said area.

CIRCULAR 1334.

To Housing Authorities
and County Councils
(England and Wales).

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL, S.W. 1.
22nd May, 1933.

HOUSING (FINANCIAL PROVISIONS) ACT, 1933.

SIR,—1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to invite the attention of local authorities to the Housing (Financial Provisions) Act, 1933 (a), which received the Royal Assent on the 18th May.

2. Termination of subsidy under the Housing (Financial Provisions) Act, 1924 (b).

5. Future Supply of Working Class Houses.

For the supply of houses for letting to the working classes, it is anticipated that, with the present re-establishment of more normal conditions, economic forces, operating in a free field, will secure a large volume and variety of production at competitive rents, and that a great number and diversity of persons and organisations will play their part; private builders, housing companies, public utility societies, finance societies and private investors will, it is hoped, all take a share in the ownership of working class houses.

6. There are two matters in which local authorities may be able to facilitate the erection of working class houses by private enterprise. (1) In many instances the local authority have in their possession land originally acquired for housing or other purposes which can be put at the disposal of private enterprise on reasonable terms. (2) In considering the standard of the roads to be provided on working class estates, the local authority can, without sacrificing any of the space between opposed frontages, reduce to the minimum permissible by the traffic needs the width of road to be fully surfaced. In some instances also it may be reasonable to be satisfied with a lower standard of road construction.

7. *Guarantees to Building Societies.

Many of the agencies of private enterprise will have available the resources necessary to provide new houses. Section 2 of the Act, which relates to guarantees by

(a) Ante, p. 1862.
(b) Ante, p. 1826.
* The term "Building Societies" is used throughout this Circular as including Societies incorporated under the Building Societies Acts, 1874 to 1894, or the Industrial and Provident Societies Acts, 1893 to 1913.

HOUSING

local authorities and county councils of advances made by building societies in regard to the provision of new houses is designed to provide an additional supply of finance on easy terms for those builders and investors who require it. The proposals originate in an offer made by the building societies to make their large financial resources available on favourable terms to private builders and investors willing to undertake the provision of houses for letting to the working classes and will, it is hoped, prove one important means of facilitating the return of private enterprise on a large scale to the provision of such houses.

The new enactment takes the form of an extension of Section 92 (1) (b) of the Housing Act, 1925 (a). That section enables local authorities or county councils to guarantee advances made by a building society for the provision of houses.

The new provision enables the Minister, where houses are provided to let to persons of the working classes, to share equally with the local authority and the building society the risk involved by making advances up to 90 per cent. of the valuation in lieu of the limited advances (70 per cent. of the valuation) which would, apart from this special arrangement, be made by the building society. The liability of the authority is thus in effect limited to one-third of any excess advance.

Under the scheme embodied in Section 2 of the Act (b), the bulk of the risk of making advances is taken by the building societies, and in these circumstances the Minister would think it reasonable that local authorities should, ordinarily, accept and act on the valuation of the houses made for the society concerned, thus avoiding the expense and delay of a double valuation.

County councils have the same power as other local authorities under the Act, and references to the local authority throughout this Circular are intended to include references to the county council unless the context otherwise requires.

8. Societies belonging to the National Association of Building Societies have undertaken to make advances under the new scheme for a period of 30 years (which is at least ten years longer than the usual period) at rates of interest which are 1 per cent. below their prevailing rates, subject to a minimum rate of 3 per cent. For the present, therefore, the rates applicable to such advances will be 4½ per cent. in London and the southern counties and 4 per cent. elsewhere.

It should be emphasised that the new provisions are limited to the building, or acquisition before occupation, of new houses intended to be let to persons of the working classes. The Government's object is to secure the provision of small houses at reasonable rents, and local authorities therefore should satisfy themselves that the cost of any houses to which it is intended to apply the new provisions will be low enough to allow of rents within the capacity of members of the working classes.

9. The Minister will have no power to approve proposals for the erection of houses or flats of less than the minimum dimensions prescribed by Section 92 (2) of the Act of 1925 (a), and in view of the Government's object as stated in the preceding paragraph he will not normally be prepared to approve proposals for the provision of houses of a larger superficial area than 800 feet (700 feet in the case of two-bedroomed houses). The proviso to Section 2 of the Act (b) requires that unless the Minister's special dispensation has been obtained the number of the houses to be provided on any particular site shall not exceed the rate of 12 to the acre.

10. Attention is drawn to the terms of the Circular issued by the Local Government Board on September 2nd, 1911, in regard to the insertion of the fair wages clause in contracts in which local authorities are interested. The Minister is confident that in considering proposals submitted under the Act local authorities will endeavour to secure that effect is given to the principles of that Circular.

11. It is requested that the local authority, in submitting proposals under Section 2 of the Act to the Minister, will follow as closely as possible the form contained in Part I of the Appendix to this Circular. That form embodies the conditions prescribed by the Statute and certain other conditions which experience of the operation of Section 92 (1) (b) of the Act of 1925 (a) has shown to be desirable.

(b) Ante, p. 1862.

12. A model form of guarantee has been prepared in consultation with the building societies and is printed in Part II of the Appendix. It is requested that in the absence of special circumstances the model should be used, and that no substantial departure from the form should be made without prior consultation with the Department. It will be observed from the model that the council's liability under the guarantee will cease when the amount of the advance has been reduced by repayments to 45 per cent. of the valuation.

If there should be default and the Building Society exercise their power of sale, the amount to be deducted from the principal and interest owing in order to arrive at the "deficiency" will be the net proceeds of sale, that is, the proceeds of sale less the costs involved.

13. The Minister, when approving the local authority's general proposals, will undertake to reimburse the authority to the extent of one-half of any loss necessarily sustained by them arising out of guarantees given under the section in accordance with the terms of the approved proposals, and, provided that those terms are observed, it will not be necessary for the authority to submit further specific proposals for approval. The Minister, however, will require to be furnished at March 31st, June 30th September and December 31st of each year with a progress return in the form contained in Part III of the Appendix to this Circular showing the action taken by the authority under the approved proposals.

Before meeting any claim for reimbursement in accordance with his undertaking, the Minister would require to be satisfied that the local authority had taken all reasonable steps to restrict their liability under the guarantee to the minimum.

14. It is important that the local authority should endeavour to secure, so far as possible, that the houses to be provided are well laid out and of good design, and attention is drawn to the duty which is laid on local authorities by Section 38 of the Housing Act, 1930 (a), to have regard to the beauty of the landscape or countryside and the other amenities of the locality. Local authorities who do not themselves employ an architect should bear in mind that it is open to them to seek the advice of the advisory panels which have been set up by the Council for the Preservation of Rural England with the help of the Royal Institute of British Architects and its allied societies; and all local authorities are advised to draw the attention of builders and investors to the advantages to be derived from the employment of qualified architects to design the houses.

15. The Minister considers that local authorities will find it useful to call as soon as possible a conference of local builders, representatives of building societies and other persons interested (including any local public utility societies) in order to explain to them the provisions of the Act. (In a few instances it may be desirable that the conference should be called by the county council, but normally it will, no doubt, be more convenient that it should be called by the local authority.) The local authority should take the opportunity to make it clear that, if houses in sufficient numbers and of suitable types are provided by private enterprise for letting to the working classes, the local authority will confine their own efforts to slum clearance and the rehousing of persons displaced from slums. At the same time it should be pointed out that the local authority will remain responsible for the provision of necessary houses in their district if private enterprise does not provide them. It is suggested also that the authority should place before the local builders or public utility societies the information at their disposal as to the need for houses in the district.

16. The representatives of the building societies and the National Federation of House Builders have assured the Minister of their desire to act in close co-operation with the Minister and with the local authorities, and the Minister is confident that he can rely on the whole-hearted support of the county councils and the local authorities in the administration of the new proposals.

NOW THIS DEED WITNESSETH and it is hereby covenanted and agreed as follows :—

1. If the Mortgagor shall at any time make default in payment in accordance with the terms of the Mortgage and the Society after duly exercising all or any of the powers vested in them as Mortgagees for recovering the principal and interest secured thereby shall have failed to recover the full amount of such principal and interest for the time being outstanding then the Authority shall within one month after demand duly made in that behalf pay to the Society a sum equal to two-thirds of the difference between the actual deficiency which has arisen and the deficiency that would have arisen if the principal sum secured by the Mortgage had been 70 per cent. of the assessed value and the amount of the periodic payments specified in the mortgage had been proportionately less :

PROVIDED always that no liability shall attach to the Authority under the foregoing covenant, unless :—

(i) the Society within one month after the happening of any event giving rise to the exercise of the power of sale of the property comprised in the Mortgage shall have given notice thereof to the Authority by registered letter ; and

(ii) the Society shall have demanded payment of the principal and interest owing on the security of the Mortgage and in default of payment have taken all measures which may be open to them as mortgagees for the recovery of the full amount due to them under the Mortgage and which the Authority may have required them to take.

Provided also that in no case shall the Authority be liable for such deficiency or any part thereof which is caused by or arises from any defect in the title of the mortgagor to the property comprised in the mortgage.

2. The guarantee hereby given shall determine at the date on which the principal sum remaining outstanding under the Mortgage shall have been reduced to forty-five per cent. of the assessed value.

IN WITNESS whereof the Authority and the Society have hereunto affixed their common seals the day and year first written above.

CIRCULAR 1335.

To County Councils and Rural District Councils.

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL, S.W.1.
22nd May, 1933.

RURAL HOUSING.

SIR,—1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to invite the attention of your Council to the application of the Circular (1334) (a) which he has caused to be addressed to all local authorities in regard to the provisions of the Housing (Financial Provisions) Act, 1933, to rural conditions.

2. The Minister recognises that the provision of housing accommodation in rural districts, especially for agricultural workers and other workers of low rent-paying capacity, presents special difficulties. The immediate need in most rural districts is for improving the existing housing conditions; and the object of this Circular is to remind the council of the two principal sets of powers and subsidies which are available for this purpose and should be used to the utmost possible extent.

3. The Housing (Rural Workers) Acts, 1926 and 1931 (b), under which financial assistance is available for the reconstruction and improvement of rural cottages, afford a most satisfactory and economical method of providing improved accommodation for agricultural workers, and the Committee on Local Expenditure recommended in their recent Report that in the interests of true economy their more widespread operation should be encouraged. It will be recalled that in Circular 1207 of July 23rd, 1931, particular attention was drawn to the need for co-operation between county and district councils, to the comparative economy of improving existing houses as against building new ones and to the fact that improvements, where they have been effected, have not involved any material increase in the rents. The Committee on Local Expenditure recommended that further consideration should be given to the question of placing the administration of the Acts in the hands of rural district councils. The Minister recognises that some of the county councils (in whom the administration is mainly vested at present) have administered the Acts with energy and success. In some counties, however, for various reasons little has been done. The Minister is prepared, in suitable cases, to give sympathetic consideration to applications from rural district councils that the administration of the Acts should be transferred to them.

4. In the case of houses which, in the council's opinion, cannot be repaired at reasonable cost or are not suitable for treatment under the Act of 1926, the council should not hesitate to use their powers under the Housing Act, 1930 (c). The provisions of the Act and the details of the procedure are fully explained in Circular 1138 (d), which was issued in August, 1930, but it is perhaps not realised by all rural district councils that this Act applies equally to rural as to urban districts and indeed provides a specially increased rate of subsidy in regard to displacements effected in agricultural parishes (e). The Exchequer subsidy, combined with the contribution from the rates which the Act requires, is equivalent to about 5*s*. per week (and an even higher amount in agricultural parishes) in the rent of each three bedroomed house provided in replacement of houses demolished by action under the Act. It will be appreciated that the maintenance of the subsidy at this high level is intended to encourage local authorities to concentrate on the rapid removal of insanitary conditions, and the amount of the subsidy makes it possible for all rural district councils to provide the necessary rehousing accommodation at rents within the means even of the lowest paid workers.

(d) Ante, p. 2893.
(e) The rates of subsidy were amended by the Housing (Financial Provisions) Act, 1938, ante, p. 1866.

HOUSING

5. The subsidy under Section 26 of the Act (a) is available in respect of persons displaced from clearance areas, improvement areas or individual insanitary houses outside such areas which are demolished under the powers of Part II of the Act. In some rural districts there are no doubt some groups of cottages which are so bad that nothing short of demolition is requisite, and such groups of houses may be suitable for declaration as clearance areas under Section 1 of the Act.

Sections 7 and 8 of the Act (a) empower local authorities to declare and treat areas which are called improvement areas. These are aggregations of houses in varying degrees of bad condition, more or less badly arranged and often seriously overcrowded; the general conditions are not so bad as to justify wholesale clearance and the Act provides treatment which includes the repairing or demolition of unfit houses, the purchase and demolition of houses to the extent necessary to let in light and air, and the making and enforcement of byelaws to abate overcrowding and prevent its recurrence. Areas of this character are, of course, more common in towns, but are found also in some rural parishes, and where they exist they should be dealt with under the powers of the Act.

The provisions of the Act which are of most assistance to and are most commonly used by rural district councils are those contained in Section 19 (a) relating to the demolition of individual unfit houses which are not considered to be repairable at reasonable cost. Old cottages of this class (which are beyond the possibility of reconditioning under the Act of 1926) exist in most rural districts; although the cost of building and the price of money have fallen to relatively low levels, the subsidy is being maintained at a very high level, and rural district councils will be well advised to take advantage of this conjunction of circumstances to secure the early demolition and replacement of all unfit houses in their districts.

It will be remembered that Part IV of the Housing Act, 1930 (a), gives to the county councils a special responsibility in relation to the provision of houses in rural districts and by Section 34 (a) enables contributions to be made by the county council towards the cost of the provision of houses by rural district councils and requires a contribution to be made where houses are required for the accommodation of the agricultural population of the district. Any contribution so made by the county council reduces pro tanto the charge upon the rates which would otherwise fall to be borne by the rural district council.

Further copies of this Circular may be obtained from His Majesty's Stationery Office.

CIRCULAR 1407.

Housing Authorities (England and Wales).

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL,
LONDON, S.W.1.
23rd May, 1934.

HOUSING ACT, 1930: PART I.

SIR,—1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to refer to the circular letter (No. 1331) of April 6th, 1933, (b) in which the Minister invited all housing authorities to prepare and submit to him programmes for the demolition of all houses in their area unfit for human habitation and for the provision of the necessary rehousing accommodation.

(a) The Housing Act, 1930; 23 Halsbury's Statutes 396, was for the most part repealed by the Housing Act, 1936, and sections here mentioned have been replaced as follows:
S. 8 by ss. 38 and 127, ante, pp. 1647, 1729.
S. 19 by s. 11, ante, p. 1608.
S. 26 by s. 105, ante, p. 1713.
S. 34 by s. 115, ante, p. 1722.
Part IV (ss. 32, 33, 34, 35 and 36) by ss. 88, 89, 115, 169 and 170, ante, pp. 1697, 1698, 1722, 1756, 1757.
(b) Not here reproduced.

The magnitude and promptitude of the response made to the Minister's invitation is evidenced in the White Paper (Cmd. 4535) laid before Parliament in March last. The public spirit shown in the preparation of the programmes submitted, though no more than had been expected by the Minister, is worthy of all commendation. The very magnitude of the response, however, presents an administrative problem, which must be seriously faced if the programmes submitted are to be completed in the anticipated period.

National interests require the completion of the programmes within the anticipated time. The first essential step towards their successful completion is their rapid and general commencement: and the Minister would impress upon all authorities the importance of getting as near as may be, in this the first year of the period, to the performance of a full quota of the programme of clearance and of rehousing.

2. Consistently with the limitations of the Housing Act, 1930—which are largely essential for the prevention of unfairness to the owners of property—the procedure for the clearance of an area, from the setting on foot of the necessary enquiries to the actual rehousing of the displaced persons, cannot be abbreviated at will, and it may therefore prevent the successful completion of a programme within the allotted time if the local authority is content to deal separately and successively with the several areas in the programme. Two methods are ordinarily adopted for dealing with this situation. Either a substantial number of areas is carried through all stages at the same time, or, as soon as the first stages of a new scheme are out of the way and while the second stages of that scheme are still in progress, the first stages of a second scheme are undertaken. In this way one large authority contemplates the submission of orders for clearance or compulsory purchase at intervals of no more than six weeks throughout the five year period.

The procedure as a whole is a matter that must receive express consideration by the local authority. Without attempting in any way to impose upon the local authorities, who have their own traditions and methods of transacting business, any single or uniform procedure, the Minister desires to offer for their consideration the following suggestions, which are based upon his experience of slum clearance work in different areas, and in large part upon successful experiments and innovations which have been adopted by particular authorities. It is suggested that the best method of approach may be to determine the total amount of rehousing required, to divide that rehousing as nearly equally as may be between the years allotted by the local authority to their programme, and to adjust to that production of houses the flow of Orders to be made, or of action in relation to individual houses to be taken, by the local authority, so that displacement will keep pace with the supply of rehousing accommodation.

It will be seen from the preceding paragraph that the Minister does not endorse the practice favoured by some authorities of postponing the provision of rehousing for the confirmation of particular Orders. Where the programmes are large there can be no financial risk in the immediate provision of rehousing accommodation, and even where the programme is small it is quite safe to proceed with the provision of at least a substantial proportion of it, and the Minister has already intimated his willingness to sanction the loans necessary for this purpose.

3. A proper organisation of the machinery of the local authority for carrying out the programme is of vital importance, and with this in view, the Minister desires to call the special attention of local authorities to the following points:—

(i) It should be considered whether the present distribution of business between Committees and officers involves avoidable duplication of work and discussion, and whether an economy of time and trouble could not be secured, for example, by assigning to a single committee reporting direct to the Council (subject of course to the usual scrutiny of the Finance Committee) the whole of the execution of the programme which the Council have adopted.

(ii) There may well be advantage in so arranging matters that when the representation of the Medical Officer is submitted to the Council it is accompanied by the draft declaration of the area and map and perhaps also the draft clearance or compulsory purchase order for simultaneous consideration and approval.

(iii) If the Orders of the local authority are submitted to the Minister immediately on their making, the period which has to elapse for the lodging of objections can be used by him for the necessary preliminary examination of the Orders and for making the arrangements for a public inquiry. Unnecessary delay results if, as sometimes happens, the Orders are not sent to the Minister till the period for objections has expired.

(iv) It is of course essential that for the purposes of a public inquiry the local authority should have available full information of the material facts relating to the property under consideration. There is, however, reason to suppose that in some instances time and trouble have been expended in the collection and recording of detailed information which is not essential to the authority's submission that the house concerned is on account of certain major and specified defects unfit for habitation or dangerous or injurious to health.

(v) The Minister would bring to the notice of local authorities generally the practice which is followed by some local authorities of circulating to each objector shortly before the holding of a public inquiry a brief note of the main and material grounds upon which the authority have reached the view that his property is unfit for habitation or dangerous or injurious to the health of the inhabitants of the area. The practice is of value in defining the material issues for consideration, and in avoiding the introduction of issues which are not strictly relevant, and tend to lengthen proceedings and increase expenditure.

(vi) For the purposes of the issue of the Minister's confirming Order, maps—usually amended maps—and sometimes other particulars have to be supplied. Local authorities have not in all cases realised the importance of promptitude in dealing with the Minister's request in this matter.

4. The Minister for his part has already made a substantial increase in the staff of the Housing Division of the Ministry, which is now organised on a basis which will readily permit of any further expansion that be desirable. He desires to take this opportunity of impressing on local authorities the fact that the super-imposition of the slum campaign upon the ordinary course of local administration must involve a substantial addition to the burden borne by their staff, which in many, if not in all, instances must be relieved by at least temporary additions. The cost of staff engaged in general survey work under the Act of 1930 cannot be treated as part of the cost of providing rehousing accommodation; but, in so far as the services of technical staff specially engaged for the purpose are required in connection with the inspection and examination of houses which are the subject of specific clearance or demolition Orders, or with the execution of a confirmed Clearance Order or Compulsory Purchase Order or the provision of the necessary rehousing accommodation in connection with it, the cost may, subject to audit, be charged to capital account and rank as part of the cost of the new houses for the purpose of determining the rents to be charged.

5. The Minister would remind local authorities of the arrangements which have been made for making available to local authorities the services of the District Valuers. Block estimates of the cost of acquiring properties proposed to be included in Compulsory Purchase Orders as Pink or Grey can be obtained before the actual making of the Order, and the District Valuers will, if requested by the local authorities, conduct the negotiations for actual acquisition.

AND WHEREAS the Contractor has agreed to execute upon and subject to the conditions and within the time or times hereinafter contained the works shown upon the said Drawings and described in the said Specification for the sum of ..... (hereinafter referred to as the " Contract price ").

Now it is hereby agreed by and between the parties hereto as follows:—

Interpretation Clause.

1. In this Contract the following expressions shall, unless the context otherwise requires, have the meanings hereby respectively assigned to them:—

" The Clerk " means the Clerk for the time being to the Employers;

" The Architect " means Mr.....or other person or persons appointed by the Employers to superintend the construction of the works;

" The Works " means the several works, matters and things comprised or referred to in this Contract and in the Drawings and Specification.

Execution of Works.

2.—(1) The Contractor shall execute and shall provide everything necessary for the execution of the works to the satisfaction of the Architect in accordance with the signed Drawings and Specification and with such further drawings, details, instructions and explanations as may from time to time be given to the Contractor by the Architect.

(2) If the Contractor finds any discrepancy in the Drawings or between the Drawings and Specification, he shall immediately refer the question to the Architect, who shall issue such further instructions and explanations, if any, as may be required. Figured dimensions are to be followed in preference to the scale.

(3) If the work shown on any such further drawings or details, or necessary to comply with any such instructions, directions or explanations is in the opinion of the Contractor extra to that comprised in the Contract, he shall, before proceeding with such work, give to the Architect notice in writing to this effect, and such notice shall include particulars of any claim made by him in respect thereof.

(4) If the Contractor proves that before the receipt of such further drawings, details, instructions and explanations he had properly prepared or bought materials for the purpose of the original Contract and will thereby suffer loss, such loss shall be borne by the Employers.

(5) If the Architect and Contractor fail to agree as to whether or not there is any extra, and the Architect decides that the Contractor is to carry out the said work, the Contractor shall do so, and the question whether or not there is any extra and, if so, the amount thereof, shall, failing agreement, be settled by arbitration, as provided in the last clause of this Contract.

3. Setting out Work.—The Contractor shall set out the Works, and during the progress of the building shall, unless the Architect shall decide to the contrary, amend at his own cost any errors arising from inaccurate setting out. A decision of the Architect under this clause shall be final.

4. Materials and Workmanship.—(1) Except so far as otherwise provided for in the Specification all goods and materials used in the execution of this Contract shall be goods and materials which have been manufactured and produced in the British Empire, unless the Employers by written consent authorise any departure from this requirement.

(2) All materials and workmanship shall be of the kinds described in the Specification: materials not described in the Specification shall, where a Specification issued by the British Standards Institution is current at the date of the Tender and is appropriate, be in accordance with such Specification, and where no such Specification exists, shall be the best of their respective kinds available, regard being had to the last preceding sub-clause. The Contractor shall, upon the request of the Architect, furnish him with vouchers to prove that the materials comply with the requirements of this Clause.

5. Access for Architect to Works.—The Architect and any person authorised by him on behalf of the Employers shall at all reasonable times have access to the Works, and the Architect and his representatives shall at like times have access to the workshops of the Contractor or other places where work is being prepared for the buildings.

6. Clerk of Works.—The Clerk of Works shall be considered to act solely as inspector on behalf of the Employers and under the Architect, and the Contractor shall afford him every facility for examining the works and materials.

7. Plant, &c., not to be removed.—All plant, tackle and materials used by the Contractor in the execution of the works shall, from the time at which they or any of them are brought upon the site until no longer required for completing the works, be deemed to be the property of the Employers, and the Contractor shall not remove the same nor any part thereof without the written authority of the Architect, but such authority shall not be unreasonably withheld.

Drawings and Specification.

8.—(1) Signed Drawings and Specification.—The signed Drawings and Specification shall remain in the custody of the Architect and shall be produced by him as and when required.

(2) Copies of the Drawings and Specification.—One complete copy of all Drawings and of the Specification shall be supplied by the Architect free of cost to the Contractor for his own use. The Architect shall furnish to the Contractor, within .....days after the receipt by him of a request for the same, any details which in the opinion of the Architect are necessary for the execution of any part of the work, such request to be made only within a reasonable time before it is necessary to execute such work in order to fulfil the Contract. The Architect or his representative shall at all reasonable times have access to such copies and details which shall be kept on the works until the completion thereof and thereafter returned by the Contractor to the Architect.

Staff and Workpeople.

9. Foreman.—The Contractor shall keep constantly on the Works a competent agent or general foreman, and any directions or explanations given by the Architect to such agent or foreman shall be held to have been given to the Contractor.

10. Dismissal of Workman by Architect.—The Contractor shall, on the request of the Architect, immediately dismiss from the Works any person employed thereon by him who may, in the opinion of the Architect, be incompetent or misconduct himself, and such person shall not be again employed on the Works without the permission of the Architect. A decision of the Architect under this clause shall be final.

11.—(1) (a) Fair Wages and Transfer of Contract.—The Contractor shall in the execution of this Contract pay rates of wages and observe hours of labour not less favourable than those commonly recognised by employers and trade societies (or, in absence of such recognised wages and hours, those which in practice prevail amongst good employers) in the trade in the district where the work is carried out. Where there are no such wages and hours recognised or prevailing in the district those recognised or prevailing in the nearest district in which the general industrial circumstances are similar shall be adopted. Further, the conditions of employment generally accepted in the district in the trade concerned shall be taken into account in considering how far the terms of this Clause are being observed. The Contractor shall be prohibited from transferring or assigning, directly or indirectly, to any person or persons whatever, any portion of his Contract without the written permission of the Employers. Sub-letting, other than that which may be customary in the trade concerned, shall be prohibited. The Contractor shall be responsible for the observance of this Clause by the Sub-Contractor.

(b) Exhibition of Notice at Works.—The Contractor shall cause a copy of the preceding condition to be prominently exhibited for the information of his workpeople on the premises where work is being executed under the Contract. In trades where it is the practice, the Contractor shall also cause to be exhibited, or have available for inspection, a copy of any signed agreement determining the rates of wages and hours of labour commonly recognised by employers and trade societies in the district.

(c) Inspection of Wages Books, &c.—The Contractor shall keep proper Wages Books and Time Sheets showing the wages paid to and the time worked by the work people in his employ in and about the execution of the Contract, and such Wages Books and Time Sheets shall be produced whenever required for the inspection of any officer authorised by the Employers.

(d) Subletting.—The Contractor shall not sublet any portion of the Contract without the consent in writing of the Employers.

(2) In case of breach of this covenant the Employers shall have power to determine this Contract and to recover from the Contractor the amount of any loss arising from such cancellation.

(3) If the Employers have reasonable grounds for believing that the above conditions are not being complied with, the Contractor and Sub-Contractors shall be required to produce proof to the satisfaction of the Employers of the rates of wages paid and hours and conditions observed by him or them in the execution of the works.

Variations and Extras.

12. Byelaws of Local Authorities, &c.—(1) The Contractor shall so far as necessary conform to the provisions of every Act of Parliament relating to the Works, and to the regulations, and byelaws of any Local Authority, and of any Water and Lighting Companies with whose systems the structure is proposed to be connected, and shall, before making any variation from the Drawings or Specification that may be necessitated by so conforming, give to the Architect written notice, specifying the variation proposed to be made, and the reason for making it, and applying for instructions thereon. In case the Contractor shall not in due course receive such instructions, he shall proceed with the work, conforming to the provision, regulation or byelaw in question.

(2) The Contractor shall give all notices required by any such Acts, regulations, or byelaws to be given to any Local Authority and pay all fees payable to any such Authority, or to any Public Officer, in respect of the Works.

13. Variations.—(1) The Contractor shall comply with any instruction which may from time to time be given to him by the Architect by way of variation of the original Drawings and Specification, and no such variation shall invalidate the Contract, and every such instruction shall be given in writing or by means of Drawings signed by the Architect.

(2) Except as provided in the last preceding clause hereof, the Contractor shall not make any variation, but a variation made by the Contractor may be subsequently approved in writing signed by the Architect.

14. Method of Pricing Variations.—(1) If the Contractor desires to make any claim for additional payment on the ground that any variation which he has been instructed by the Architect, or is required under clause 12 hereof, to make, involves work additional to that comprised in the Contract, he shall, before proceeding with such work, give written notice to the Architect to that effect, stating the particulars of his claim.

(2) If the price of any such additional work (hereinafter referred to as " authorised extras ") has not previously been agreed between the parties, the work shall be valued by the Architect at the rates contained in the Schedule hereto, or, where these do not apply, on the basis of fair measure and value, and a copy of the bill or statement of such measurement and valuation shall be given to the Contractor.

(3) If in the opinion of the Architect the work cannot be properly measured and valued, day work prices shall be allowed therefor, provided that vouchers specifying the time and material employed have been delivered for verification to the Architect or his nominee at or before the expiration of the week following that in which such work has been done. The prices to be allowed for day work shall be in the case of labour the actual wages paid to the workpeople employed, with an addition thereto of.....per cent., and in the case of materials the prime cost of such materials, with an addition thereof of.....per cent. Such prices shall be deemed to cover all insurances, establishment charges, superintendence, use of tools and scaffolding, travelling expenses and profits.

(4) Variations by way of omission made by the Contractor in accordance with the instructions of the Architect shall, unless the price has been previously agreed upon by the parties, be valued in accordance with paragraph (2) of this Clause.

(5) The amount to be allowed on either side in respect of the variations so ascertained shall be added to or deducted from the Contract price, as the case may require.

Improper Work and Defects after Completion.

15. Removal of Improper Work.—The Architect shall, during the progress of the Works, have power to order in writing from time to time the removal from the Works, within such reasonable time or times as may be specified in the order, of any materials which, in his opinion, are not in accordance with the Specification or with his instructions, the substitution of proper materials and the removal and proper re-execution of any work executed with materials or workmanship not in accordance with the Drawings and Specification or instructions, and the Contractor shall forthwith carry out such order at his own cost. A decision of the Architect under this clause shall be final.

16. Defects after Completion.—Any defects, shrinkage, or other faults which may appear within six months from the completion of the Works and are due to improper or defective materials or workmanship supplied by the Contractor or by any Sub-Contractor, and any damage to pointing by frost appearing within the like period shall upon the order in writing of the Architect and within such reasonable time as shall be specified therein, be amended and made good by the Contractor ; and unless the Architect otherwise decides such work shall be done at the Contractor's own cost. A decision of the Architect under this clause shall be final.

17. Power for Employers to remove and amend Works.—If the Contractor fails to carry out the order of the Architect under either of the two last preceding clauses, the Employers may employ and pay other persons to carry out such work or to make good such defects or damage as the order may specify, and all expenses consequent thereon or incidental thereto incurred by the Employers shall be recoverable by them from the Contractor as liquidated damages or may be deducted by them from any moneys due or to become due to the Contractor.

18. Work to be opened up at request of Architect.—The Contractor shall at the request of the Architect within such time as the Architect shall name open for inspection any work covered up, and if the Contractor refuses or neglects to comply with such request, the Architect may employ other workmen to open up the same. If the said work has been covered up in contravention of the Architect's instructions or if on being opened up it is found to be not in accordance with the Drawings and Specification or the instructions of the Architect, the expenses of opening and covering it up again, whether done by the Contractor or such other workmen, shall be borne by or recoverable from the Contractor, or may be deducted as aforesaid. If the work has not been covered up in contravention of such instructions and is found to be in accordance with the said Drawings and Specification or instructions, then the expenses aforesaid shall be borne by the Employers, and if the opening and covering up again have been done by the Contractor, shall be added to the Contract price: Provided that in the case of foundations or of any other urgent work so opened up and requiring immediate attention, the Architect shall within a reasonable time after receipt of notice from the Contractor that the work has been so opened up, make or cause the inspection thereof to be made, and at the expiration of such time, if such inspection shall not have been made, the Contractor may cover up the same and shall not be required to open it up again for inspection except at the expense of the Employers. A decision of the Architect under this clause shall be final.

Date of Completion: Default by Contractor.

19. Date of Completion.—Possession of the site (or premises) shall be given to the Contractor on or before the.....day of.....

He shall commence the Works immediately after such possession, shall regularly proceed with them and shall complete the same or parts of the same in the order and by the date or dates set out below:—

20. Damages for Non-completion.—If the Contractor fails to complete any part of the Works by the date specified in the preceding clause as the date of completion for that part, or within any extended time allowed by the Architect under this Contract, and the Architect certifies in writing that the Works could reasonably have been completed by the said date or within the said extended time, the Contractor shall pay or allow to the Employers the sum of £.....per week as liquidated damages for every week beyond the said date or extended time, as the case may be, during which that part of the Works shall remain unfinished.

21. Extension of Time.—(1) If the Works are delayed by force majeure or by reason of any exceptionally inclement weather, or of any extras or additions, or of any combination of workmen or strike or lock-out affecting any of the building trades, or by any other cause beyond the control of the Contractor, the Architect shall make a fair and reasonable extension of time for completion in respect thereof, and in case of such strike or lock-out, the Contractor shall, as soon as may be, give to the Architect written notice thereof.

(2) The Contractor shall nevertheless use his best endeavours to prevent delay and shall do all that may reasonably be required to the satisfaction of the Architect to proceed with the Works.

22. Suspension of Works by Contractor.—(1) If in the opinion of the Architect the Contractor neglects or fails to proceed with due diligence in the execution of the Works, or if he more than once makes default in the respects mentioned in Clause 15, the Architect acting on behalf of the Employers may give him notice in writing requiring that the Works be proceeded with in a reasonable manner and with reasonable dispatch. Such notice shall not be unreasonably or vexatiously given, and must signify that it purports to be a notice under the provisions of this clause, and must specify the act or default on the part of the Contractor upon which it is based.

(2) If the Contractor fails for.....days after such notice has been given to proceed with the Works as therein prescribed, the Employers may by notice to the Contractor in writing under the hand of the Clerk determine the Contract so far as regards the performance or completion thereof by the Contractor, but without affecting in other respects the obligations and liabilities of the Contractor or the rights of the Employers under the next following provision of this Clause.

(3) On such determination of the Contract as aforesaid, the Employers shall have power to enter upon and take possession of the Works, and all plant, tackle and materials on the ground, and either complete the Works themselves or enter into a fresh contract with some other person or firm for their completion, without prejudice to their rights to recover from the Contractor or his sureties (if any) as damages under the Contract the loss sustained by them owing to the Contractor's default.

Method of Payment.

23. Interim Payments.—(1) No money shall become due to the Contractor unless and until the Architect shall certify in writing the amount thereof and that the Contractor is entitled thereto.

(2) When work to the value of £.....has been executed and thereafter at monthly intervals the Architect shall certify in writing to the Contractor and the Employers the amount from time to time payable to the Contractor under this Contract, and shall issue such monthly certificate not later than the fifteenth day of each month following that in which the first certificate is given, and the Employers shall within fourteen days of the date of issue of the certificate pay to the Contractor the sum so certified.

(3) The amount to be certified by the Architect on his first and monthly certificates as due to the Contractor shall be at the rate of 90 per cent. of the value of all work (including authorised extras and day work) executed, and materials delivered on the site, up to the first day of the month in which payment is made. The balance of 10 per cent. of the value of the work shall be retained until the sum so retained (hereinafter called "the retention fund") amounts to £.....,* after which the Contractor shall be entitled to be paid monthly to the full value of all work executed and material supplied. One half of the retention fund shall be paid (subject to the conditions set out herein) to the Contractor at the completion or occupation of the Works and the other half, together with any further sum found due to the Contractor at the final adjustment of the accounts by the Architect, shall be paid.....months after completion or occupation of the works, provided that all defects for which the Contractor is liable are made good and that he has otherwise discharged his liabilities under this Contract.

(4) The Architect may nevertheless before issuing the second or any later certificate give notice in writing to the Contractor requiring him to furnish a statement in writing showing the value of the work executed and of the materials delivered on the site up to the first day of the month in which the certificate is due together with such invoices, vouchers, and other documents relating to the value of such work and materials as the Architect may reasonably require.

(5) The sums forming the retention fund shall be deposited by the Employers as they accrue in a Bank to be agreed between the parties in the name of the Employers, and any interest on such sums shall be the property of the Contractor, and shall be paid to him by the Employers at the time of the final payment after completion.

(6) No certificate of the Architect, except for the final balance, shall be considered conclusive evidence of any works or materials to which it relates, nor to the value thereof, nor shall it relieve the Contractor from his liability to make good any defects as provided by this Contract, nor shall it in any way prejudice the Employers in the final settlement of the accounts in any case where the Contractor has been overpaid during the progress of the Works.

24.—(1) If the Architect fails at any of the proper times to certify the sums to which the Contractor is entitled or if the final adjustment of the account is not completed within.....months after the completion of the Works, and the delay in the issue of the said certificates or in the final adjustment of accounts is not due to the Contractor's failure to submit any such statement of value and documents as may be required under Clause 23 (4) hereof in a sufficient time in which to allow the Architect to issue such certificate and calculate the final amount due, the Employers shall pay to the Contractor, in addition to the sums which have become due, interest on such sums, calculated at a rate being 1 per cent. above the current Bank rate, computed from the dates when such sums should have been certified or finally adjusted, as the case may be.

(2) If the Architect requires any detailed measurements on which to base any certificates other than the final certificate, it shall be his duty to cause such measurements to be made from time to time at the cost of the Employers, and to agree such figures with the Contractor, and such measuring and agreement of figures shall be carried out by the time necessary to enable the Employers to make the payments to the Contractor as hereinbefore provided.

(3) If the Employers fail to pay to the Contractor any sum certified by the Architect, whether by way of interim or final certificate, within the period of fourteen days from the date of such certificate, the Contractor may give written notice to the Employers of such default, and if the Employers fail to pay such sum forthwith after the receipt of such notice, the Contractor shall be at liberty to determine the Contract by notice in writing to the Employers.

(4) If the Architect fails at any of the proper times to certify the sum to which the Contractor is entitled, the Contractor shall give notice to the Employers of such failure or delay, and the Employers shall take steps to cause a proper certificate to be issued, and if the Architect fails for the second time to issue a proper certificate and the Employers decline or neglect to take such action as shall be necessary to cause such certificate to be issued, the Contractor shall be at liberty to determine the Contract by notice in writing to the Employers.

(5) If the Contractor determines the Contract under either of the two preceding paragraphs, he shall be entitled to recover payment in full for all work executed and materials supplied, and for any loss he may sustain upon any plant or material supplied or purchased or prepared for the purpose of the Contract, together with loss of profit on that part of the Contract remaining uncompleted.

25. Payments to Sub-Contractors.—(1) If any Sub-Contractors are engaged on the Works, the Architect shall state in any certificate issued by him the amount or amounts agreed by him with the Contractor and included in respect of such Sub-Contractors, and shall inform each Sub-Contractor of the granting of such certificate and of the amount included therein for his work.

(2) The Contractor shall, within seven days after receiving payment of the instalments due to him on the said certificate, pay over to such Sub-Contractors the amount included for them in such instalment, and shall not be entitled to obtain another certificate from the Architect for a further instalment unless and until he satisfies the Architect, by the production of vouchers or other sufficient evidence, that he has settled with such Sub-Contractors for the proportion due to them of the instalment paid under the previous certificate.

(3) This provision shall not imply or involve any contract between the Employers and the Sub-Contractor or any responsibility or liability on the part of the Employers to the Sub-Contractor.

Miscellaneous Provisions.

26. Execution of other Works.—(1) The Employers shall at all times have access to the Works and to other places where work under this Contract is being prepared and may execute and carry on any other works, or may appoint others to execute and carry on such, and the Contractor shall afford reasonable facilities for so doing.

(2) If such work impedes or interrupts the Contractor in his progress, he may, by giving notice to the Architect at any time during the continuance of the impediment or interruption, claim to be allowed time for the completion of the Works or of the part thereof affected in addition to the time specified in Clause 19 hereof, and if the Architect, being satisfied that the claim is a proper one, grants a time order, such additional time as is specified in the order will be allowed. Any time order which the Architect may think fit to grant shall be given by him within 21 days after the delivery of the Contractor's claim.

(3) Save as aforesaid, the Employers shall not be liable for any claim made by the Contractor on the ground of any alleged impediment to or interruption in the execution of the Works.

27. Damage to Person and Property.—(1) The Contractor shall be responsible for all damage to property, and for injury to persons, animals, or things, caused by the works or workmen, and shall indemnify the Employers against any claims or proceedings in respect thereof, and also against any claims or proceedings made at Common Law or under any Act of Parliament, including the Fatal Accidents Act, 1846, the Employers' Liability Act, 1880, and the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906, or any amendment thereof, by any person in the employ of the Contractor or or any Sub-Contractor or by any person claiming through such person.

(2) The Contractor shall, if and when required by the Employers so to do, secure the due performance of these indemnities either by entering into such policy or policies of insurance as the Employers shall approve, or by otherwise securing the Employers to their satisfaction against any liability hereunder.

(3) The policy or policies and receipts for premiums shall be produced to the Architect from time to time upon request, and in case of failure to do so the Employers shall be entitled to insure and deduct the amounts of the premiums from any sums due to the Contractor.

(4) The Contractor shall also be responsible for all injuries caused to the Works by frost or other inclemency of weather, and shall reinstate all damage caused thereby.

28. Fire Insurance and Care of Works.—(1) From the commencement until the delivering up of the Works the care of the same shall rest entirely with the Contractor, and he shall be responsible for anything that may be lost, stolen, or damaged by fire, or other accident, or in any other way, and he shall insure the same against fire to the full value thereof in the joint names of the Employers and the Contractor in a Fire Insurance Office to be approved by the Employers and pay all expenses incurred thereby.

(2) The policy and receipts for premiums from time to time shall be deposited with the Architect on behalf of the Employers. All moneys received under any such policies shall be applied in or towards the rebuilding, reinstatement, or reparation of the works destroyed or injured. In case of failure of the Contractor to effect and maintain such insurance the Employers shall be at liberty to insure, and deduct the amount of the premiums paid from any moneys payable to the Contractor.

29. "Prime cost" and Provisional Sums.—(1) "The Prime Cost" of any articles or materials means the net cost after deducting any trade or other discount except a cash discount not exceeding 2½ per cent., and includes the cost of packing and of carriage and delivery to the site.

(2) In respect of any items for which prime cost prices or provisional sums are included in the Specification, if more or less than the amount stated in the Specification is expended or an item is deducted in full, the tender price shall be adjusted accordingly, the addition or deduction made including an amount in respect of profit calculated at the rate of.....per cent.

30. Sub-Contractors.—(1) The Architect may nominate some person other than the Contractor to execute any work or supply any article for which a prime cost price or a provisional sum is included in the Specification, unless the Contractor makes reasonable objection to the nomination of such person.

(2) All persons so nominated and all specialists or other persons engaged by the Contractor with the approval of the Architect to execute any work are hereby declared to be Sub-Contractors employed by the Contractor.

(3) The Contractor shall enter into a contract with every Sub-Contractor which shall embody (whether by reference to this Contract or otherwise) the terms and conditions contained in this Contract so far as they are applicable and shall indemnify the Contractor against any claim made by a person in the employ of the Sub-Contractor or a person claiming through such person, or by any other person against the Contractor in consequence of any act, omission or default of the Sub-Contractor, his servants or agents.

31. Royalties and Patent Rights.—(1) The Contract sum shall include all royalties or other sums payable in respect of the supply and use in carrying out the Works of any patented articles, processes, or inventions which have been included in the Specification.

(2) The Contractor shall indemnify the Employers from and against all claims, proceedings, damages, costs and expenses which may be brought or made against the Employers, or to which they may be put by reason of the Contractor infringing or being held to have infringed any patent rights in relation to any such articles, processes and inventions, and in the event of any injunction being obtained against the use of the same the Contractor shall forthwith replace the same with other materials or appliances, as the case may be, satisfactory to the Employers, which do not infringe any such patent rights.

32. Bankruptcy Clause.—(1) If the Contractor shall become bankrupt or insolvent, or enter into liquidation, whether compulsory or voluntary (except liquidation for the purposes of reconstruction), or shall suffer execution for debt in any court of law, or shall propose any composition with his creditors for the settlement of his debts, or shall enter into, make, or execute any Deed of Arrangement, as defined by the Deeds of Arrangement Act, 1914, or shall carry on, or shall propose to carry on, his business under inspectors on behalf of his creditors, or shall commit any act of bankruptcy, the Employers may require the works to be proceeded with, and if this requisition is not satisfactorily complied with within seven days from the date of the Architect's notice to that effect, the Employers may by notice to the Contractor in writing under the hand of the Clerk determine the Contract so far as regards the performance or completion thereof by the Contractor, but without affecting in other respects the obligations and liabilities of the Contractor or the rights of the Employers under the next following provision of this Clause.

(2) On such determination of the Contract as aforesaid the Employers shall have power to enter upon and take possession of the Works, and all plant, tackle and materials on the ground, and either complete the Works themselves or enter into a fresh contract with some other person or firm for their completion, without prejudice to their rights to recover from the Contractor or his sureties (if any) as damages under the Contract the loss sustained by them owing to the Contractor's default.

33. Notices.—Any notice required or authorised by these conditions to be given by one party to the other, or by the Contractor to the Architect, or the Architect to the Contractor, shall be given in writing, delivered at or sent by registered letter to the office of the Employers or of the Architect, or the place of business of the Contractor, as the case may require.

34. Gifts, Inducements, and Rewards.—The Employers shall be entitled to determine this Contract and to recover from the Contractor the amount of any loss resulting from such determination, if the Contractor shall have offered or given or agreed to give to any person any gift or consideration of any kind as an inducement or reward for doing or forbearing to do or for having done or forborne to do any action in relation to the obtaining or execution of this Contract or any other Contract with the Employers, or for showing or forbearing to show favour or disfavour to any person in relation to this Contract or any other Contract with the Employers, or if the like acts shall have been done by any person employed by the Contractor or acting on his behalf (whether with or without the knowledge of the Contractor), or if in relation to this Contract or any other Contract with the Employers the Contractor or any person employed by him or acting on his behalf shall have committed any offence under the Prevention of Corruption Acts, 1889 to 1916, or shall have given any fee or reward the receipt of which is an offence under subsection (2) of Section 123 of the Local Government Act, 1933 (a).

35. Arbitration.—In all questions and disputes arising under or in connection with this Contract the decision in writing of the Architect, whether by way of certificate or otherwise, shall be binding as between the Employers and the Contractor; but, except where the Architect's decision is stated in the Contract to be final, it shall be open to either party within fourteen days after receiving notice of such decision to require by notice in writing to the other party that the matter in dispute be settled by arbitration. The matter shall thereupon be referred to the arbitration of a single arbitrator to be agreed by the parties hereto or in default of such agreement to the arbitration of a person to be appointed on the request of either party by the President for the time being of the Royal Institute of British Architects, and the award of such arbitrator shall be conclusive and binding upon the Employers and the Contractor.

HOUSING ACT, 1935.

MEMORANDUM A—GENERAL.

1. The Housing Act, 1935 (b), gives local authorities new powers and imposes upon them new duties in relation to the abatement of overcrowding and the redevelopment of congested areas. It provides for the consolidation of the housing accounts of local authorities, for the continuation of the subsidy under the Housing Act, 1930 (a), at its present rate until March 31, 1938, and for a new form of Exchequer assistance towards the cost of rehousing overcrowded persons, and makes many important amendments and additions to the housing powers of local authorities.

(a) Ante, p. 913.

(b) This Act (28 Halsbury's Statutes 199) was almost wholly repealed by the Housing Act, 1936, and the sections referred to in this memorandum replaced as indicated in the notes.

Separate Memoranda noted at the foot of the preceding index deal with certain matters of principal importance arising under the Act.

In the present Memorandum the other chief provisions of the Act are outlined under certain main headings and alterations in the present administrative procedure which may be necessary are indicated.

Alterations Affecting Part I of the Act of 1930.

2. Clearance Areas.—The new Act does not alter the general definition of, or the procedure for declaring a clearance area, as laid down in the Housing Act, 1930, but it alters in two respects the classes of property which may be included in such an area.

In the first place it provides in Section 67 (b) that a clearance area may include, or may be wholly composed of, property belonging to the local authority themselves. The restriction contained in Section 4 of the Housing Act, 1930 (c), whereby a local authority could only include property which they had acquired under Sections 54 or 63 of the Housing Act, 1925 (d), has been removed, and the only restriction which now remains affecting property owned by a local authority is that they cannot include in a clearance area property which they have acquired in such circumstances that an obligation rests upon them under the Fifth Schedule of the 1925 Act (e) to submit a rehousing scheme to the Minister.

In the second place, Section 80 of the Act (f) makes it clear that a local authority may include in a clearance area any hut, tent, caravan or similar structure which, although once movable, has in effect become a fixed structure used as a permanent dwelling and is unfit for human habitation. The criterion of distinction between a really movable dwelling and such a structure is that the structure has remained in the same enclosure during the period of two years immediately before it is included in the clearance area.

3. Clearance Orders.—The general procedure for the making, submission and confirmation of clearance orders is, with two important exceptions, untouched by the new Act. The first is that a local authority, when making a clearance order at any time after the date of the new Act in relation to property in a clearance area, must exclude from the clearance order any dwelling-houses or other buildings which have only been included in the area on the ground that, by reason of their bad arrangement in relation to other buildings or the narrowness or bad arrangement of the streets, they are dangerous or injurious to the health of the inhabitants of the area (Section 62 (g)). It will be seen, therefore, that if, in a clearance area declared by a local authority, there is a dwelling-house which is not in itself unfit for human habitation but which has been included in the area only as helping to congest other properties, it must be excluded from any clearance order relating to that area. Nothing in the section limits the power of the local authority to deal with a house which is of itself unfit. Generally under this provision a building other than a dwelling-house cannot be included in a clearance order, but a building, part of which is dwelling accommodation and part accommodation for some other purpose, may be included in a clearance order if the part not used for that other purpose is unfit for human habitation by reason of disrepair or sanitary defects. The question whether such a building should be included in a clearance order is one to be determined on the merits of each case. If the building is such that the dwelling accommodation forms only a subsidiary part of the main building, the appropriate course will normally be the making of a closing order on the unfit accommodation under the extended powers of the new Act (see paragraph 16).

The second alteration in procedure is made by Section 63 (a) which provides that the public inquiry into a clearance order cannot be held until at least fourteen days after the Minister is satisfied that the local authority have served on every objector a written notice setting out the facts on which they rely as their principal grounds for being satisfied that the property is unfit. It will therefore be necessary for local authorities to proceed with the preparation of these notices at an early stage in the proceedings in order to avoid delay in the fixing of inquiries.

4. Compulsory Purchase Orders.—The general procedure for the making, submission and confirmation of compulsory purchase orders under Part I of the Act of 1930 is somewhat modified by the new Act. The most important modifications are those which correspond to the modification in the clearance order procedure already mentioned. In the first place, there must be written notice under Section 63 to all objectors before the public inquiry can be held, and in the second place properties which, under the term of Section 62, cannot be included in a clearance order, can only be acquired compulsorily on the same basis of compensation as applies to property outside the clearance area, that is to say, compensation assessed in accordance with Part II of the Third Schedule of the Housing Act, 1930 (b), and these properties must be distinguished in the compulsory purchase order. The considerations mentioned in the preceding paragraph will apply in the case of a "mixed building."

In addition (1) the abolition of the reduction factor (see paragraph 5 of this memorandum) will make it unnecessary to distinguish in compulsory purchase orders land which it is proposed to use for rehousing; and

(2) Section 65 (c) provides that, where the local authority have submitted a compulsory purchase order to acquire property in a clearance area and on application by the authority and the owner of any particular property the Minister is satisfied that the owner might reasonably retain the land if he demolished the buildings thereon, the Minister may, (a) if the compulsory purchase order has not been confirmed, authorise the local authority to make without any of the usual formalities of notice, publication, etc., a clearance order with respect to that particular property and may then without a local inquiry confirm this clearance order and modify the compulsory purchase order accordingly; (b) if the compulsory purchase order has been confirmed but the local authority have not yet bought the property belonging to the owner in question, authorise the local authority not to proceed to purchase the land but to take binding covenants from the owner for the demolition of the property on his land.

5. Abolition of the Reduction Factor.—Section 62 repeals the proviso to Section 46 (1) of the Housing Act, 1925, which provides for a reduction of compensation payable in respect of the compulsory purchase of land comprised in a clearance area where the land is to be appropriated for rehousing. This repeal is effective as regards land included in any compulsory purchase order made by the local authority on or after December 20, 1934. If compensation for land acquired under such an order has been settled on the old basis, the owner can claim to have the matter re-opened and his compensation re-assessed.

6. Payments in respect of well maintained houses.—Section 64 (d) provides that in certain circumstances the local authority shall make a payment to the owner of a house which, though unfit for human habitation and therefore properly included in a clearance order or in a compulsory purchase order for purchase at site value, has been as well maintained as is practicable in all the circumstances. The houses concerned are those included in clearance orders or as pink property in compulsory purchase orders made by a local authority on or after December 20, 1934. The decision whether this payment is to be made in respect of a particular house will be taken by the Minister after considering the report of an Inspector. The Inspector's recommendation in this matter will be based on his findings as a result of his personal inspection of the property.

The total payment made in respect of any property, including compensation assessed under Part I of the Third Schedule to the Housing Act, 1930 (a), is not to exceed the compensation which would be payable if Part II of that Schedule were applicable. Subject to this limit the payment under Section 64 will be either (a) the amount by which the expenditure which the local authority are satisfied has been incurred on the property during the five years immediately preceding the date of the order exceeds an amount equal to 1¼ times the rateable value, or (b) an amount equal to 1½ times the rateable value of the house, whichever is the greater. In the case of an owner-occupier of three years' standing, or more, the minimum payment will be three times the rateable value. For this purpose the rateable value means the value of the house as shown at the date on which the order was made in the Valuation List in force at that date or, if the net annual value differs from the rateable value, the net annual value.

In certain circumstances defined in the Section, a payment under Section 64 may be made to some person other than the owner. It is to be made (a) to the owner if he is the occupier, and (b) in cases where the house is not owner-occupied, to the person or persons liable for the maintenance of the house, being apportioned, if there is more than one person liable, in such a manner as the authority think equitable. A further provision enables the local authority to pay the whole or part of the sum to some other person (e.g. the tenant) who may not be legally responsible for the maintenance of the house but satisfies the local authority that in fact the good maintenance of the house is materially due to work carried out by him or at his expense.

7. Ex-gratia Allowances towards cost of removal or in cases of financial loss.—Section 88 (b) extends Section 41 of the Act of 1930 (c), which empowers a local authority to make certain allowances to persons displaced from unfit property, by bringing within the scope of the Section (a) persons displaced from property not within a clearance area acquired by compulsory purchase under Part I of the Act of 1930; (b) persons displaced from property in a redevelopment area which is acquired at site value as being unfit for human habitation, and (c) retail shopkeepers whose premises are in the neighbourhood of a clearance area and who can satisfy the local authority that, as a result of the clearance operations having diminished the population of the locality, they have suffered loss involving personal hardship. In estimating any such loss, the local authority are to have regard to the probable future development of the locality.

The substance of Section 41 is not otherwise changed. The allowances are still entirely at the discretion of the local authority. The Minister trusts, however, that every local authority will exercise their power of making reasonable allowances in suitable cases in order to mitigate the hardships to shopkeepers and others which may result from the large scale clearance operations which are now proceeding. The Minister will be prepared to sanction loans to cover any expenditure incurred by a local authority in the exercise of their powers under Section 41, and these expenses or the necessary loan repayments may be included in the Housing Revenue Account.

8. Compensation to Statutory Undertakers.—Section 91 (d) provides a new code for the assessment of compensation to statutory undertakers whose pipes, mains, etc., are interfered with by clearance or redevelopment schemes of a local authority.

The Section deals with two cases—(a) where the removal of the statutory undertakers apparatus is necessary for the purpose of enabling the local authority to exercise their powers of clearance or redevelopment, and (b) where it is necessary for the purposes of the undertakers themselves. The term "apparatus" is defined in Section 97 (e) as meaning pipes, wires, etc., used for conveying to any premises a supply of water, gas, etc. It does not include apparatus on the premises themselves. In the first case the local authority may do the necessary work of removal and substitution and the undertakers are entitled to claim compensation for loss due to the destruction of apparatus. No claim is sustainable for loss of profits. In the second case the undertakers are empowered to call upon the local authority to carry out the work, and since it is done to meet the necessities of the undertakers, no question of compensation arises. In both cases the work must be carried out by the local authority to the reasonable satisfaction of the undertakers, but the latter have the option of doing the work themselves at the cost of the authority. Any dispute between the two bodies as to whether the works which the local authority propose or are required to carry out are necessary or reasonable is to be settled by arbitration.

These provisions take the place of Section 13 (2) of the Act of 1930, so far as regards the pipes, wires, etc., of statutory undertakers. As regards rights of way, easements, etc., vested in other persons, subsection (7) of Section 91 amends Section 13 (2) of the earlier Act by providing that such rights and easements are to be extinguished and compensation paid to any person who suffers loss by the extinguishment.

9. Improvement Areas.—The "improvement area" procedure which was set up by Sections 7 and 8 of the Act of 1930 is repealed by Section 19 (a) of the new Act. Byelaws relating to overcrowding will no longer be necessary in any case, as overcrowding in all areas is covered by the new Act; and a general power—and in certain circumstances a duty—of making housing byelaws on the other matters arising under Section 8 of the 1930 Act is conferred on local authorities by Section 68 of the Act (b) (see paragraph 27).

Where a local authority have already declared an improvement area but have not, before the passing of the new Act, taken the consequential step of making byelaws, the obligation to make byelaws for the area lapses and is absorbed in the other provision made by Section 2 and Section 68. Where such byelaws have already been made and are in force at the date of the passing of the new Act, they will remain in force until the "appointed day." This will be the day when the statutory overcrowding code comes into operation in the area of the local authority. As from that date that part of the byelaws relating to overcrowding in ordinary houses will lapse, but the remainder of the byelaws dealing with houses let in lodgings or with the sanitary conditions and amenities to be provided in houses will continue in force in relation to property in the improvement area.

Other Amendments affecting Part I of the Act of 1930.

10.—(a) Minister to state reasons for his decision that property is unfit.—Section 63 (2) of the new Act (c) provides that any objector who appeared at the Public Inquiry in support of his objection shall, if his property is included in a confirmed clearance or compulsory purchase order as unfit, be entitled, on making a request in writing, to be furnished by the Minister with a written statement of his reasons for deciding that the property was unfit.

(b) Section 13 of the Act of 1930 (Closing of Rights of Way) (d).—Section 81 (e) of the new Act amends Section 13 of the Act of 1930 with the object of avoiding delay. Under Section 13, a local authority who had purchased land in a clearance area or land immediately adjoining, could proceed to make an order closing any highways and extinguishing any rights-of-way on the land for the purpose of enabling them to redevelop the area properly, but this latter order could only be made when the land had been purchased. Section 81 provides that the local authority may proceed to make and submit to the Minister the order dealing with the closing of highways as soon as they have decided to purchase (i.e., in the usual case, have submitted the compulsory purchase order to the Minister). The Minister, in approving the order closing the highways, will direct that it shall operate either from the date on which the buildings are vacated, or from some subsequent specified date.

(c) Section 2 of the Act of 1930 (a) (Restrictions on Cleared Sites).—For the purpose of removing doubts, Section 80 of the new Act (b) declares that the powers conferred on local authorities by Section 2 (5) of the Act of 1930 to impose restrictions on the use of the cleared site of a clearance area, includes the power to impose restrictions on the erection or placing on the site of any hut, tent, caravan or similar structure.

(d) Section 5 of the Act of 1930 (c) (Exchange of Land).—Under this section, a local authority is empowered, subject to certain conditions, to sell land which they have acquired in a clearance area. It is sometimes possible for a local authority to acquire land in a clearance area on favourable terms by arranging with the owner for an exchange of that land for other land which the local authority possess or can acquire. Section 66 of the new Act (d) empowers a local authority to make such an exchange.

(e) Work carried out by Owners.—In certain circumstances where owners have themselves carried out works to their property, that property cannot be dealt with under Part I of the Act of 1930. (See paragraphs 14 and 15.)

Alterations affecting Part II of the Act of 1930.

11. Closing Orders.—Section 84 (e) repeals and re-enacts with modifications, Section 20 of the Act of 1930, (f) which empowers local authorities to make closing orders in certain cases. A local authority will now be able to make a closing order (a) on any part of a building which is occupied by the working classes, and not only, as at present, on any part of a building which is let as a separate habitation; (b) on any part of a house which, though not occupied, is suitable for occupation by the working classes; and (c) on an underground room whether used for sleeping purposes or not, falling within the definition of Section 18 of the Act of 1925 (g). Moreover, the effect of a "closing" order will in future be to limit the use of the room or part of the building to which it applies to a specified use approved by the local authority. Any aggrieved person may appeal to the County Court against a restriction imposed by a closing order. Section 68 of the new Act (h) provides that byelaws made under Section 6 of the Act of 1925 (h) may include provisions for the prevention of nuisances arising from or in a room or part of a building to which a closing order relates.

12. Demolition Orders.—(a) Section 83 (i) amends Section 19 of the 1930 Act directing that an owner if he wishes to submit an offer to carry out works to property in respect of which he has received a Section 19 notice (i) from the local authority must so inform the authority within twenty-one days. If he does so, the authority must allow him a reasonable time in which to submit his list of works. If he does not do so, and the matter goes to the Court, he will not be able to submit the undertaking to the County Court.

(b) Section 55 (k) directs that in certain circumstances where owners have themselves carried out works to their property, that property shall not for a number of years be made the subject of a demolition order or a closing order (see paragraph 15).

(c) Where a local authority exercise their new powers of cleansing from vermin a house to be demolished (see paragraph 28), the date on which the demolition order in respect of that house operates is postponed.

13. Obstructive Buildings.—Sections 58–61 (l) of the new Act reproduce the substance of Sections 19–22 of the Housing Act, 1925, (m) which gave local authorities power to secure the removal of obstructive buildings. The sections in the 1925 Act were repealed by the 1930 Act as being generally unnecessary in view of the special power given to local authorities in connection with improvement areas to acquier and demolish buildings where that course was necessary for the purpose of opening out the area. As the improvement area procedure is being repealed by the new Act, the power to deal with obstructive buildings has been re-inserted.

Redevelopment and Reconditioning by Owners.

14. Redevelopment by Owners.—Sections 54–56 (a) of the Act contain new provisions to facilitate the redevelopment and reconditioning of their property by owners. Owners wishing to carry out a scheme for the redevelopment of property, may submit plans of their proposals to the local authority. If the local authority are satisfied with the proposals (which will imply that they are of opinion that the proposals are not likely to conflict with any scheme to be carried out by themselves), they may approve the proposals and specify the time or times within which the work must be carried out. Thereupon, if the work proceeds according to the specified time schedule, the local authority are debarred from dealing with the property either under the 1930 Act or under the redevelopment provisions of the new Act. Proposals of this kind cannot be made in relation to property which is already the subject of a demolition order or has already been included in a clearance or compulsory purchase order confirmed under the Act of 1930 or a redevelopment plan approved under the new Act. If the property in question is included in an area which has already been declared to be a clearance or redevelopment area but as regards which no decision has been taken by the Minister, the local authority, in lieu of considering the owner's proposals themselves, may treat them as objections to their own proposals for dealing with the area and submit them to the Minister for his consideration when dealing with their subsequent order or redevelopment plan.

Section 54 also provides that, where a local authority have approved an owner's redevelopment proposals and the owner has to obtain possession of a rent-restricted (controlled) house in order to carry out his proposed works, the local authority can, if satisfied with the new accommodation which is to be provided for the tenants to be displaced, issue a certificate to the effect that suitable alternative accommodation within the meaning of the definition in Section 12 (b) is being provided. Such a certificate will have effect as if it were a certificate under the Rent Restriction Acts stating that the local authority were themselves rehousing the tenants, and will thus facilitate the owner's obtaining possession of the property.

15. Reconditioning by Owners.—Section 55 (c) provides that when an owner proposes to recondition property by works of structural alteration or improvement, including the provision of additional or improved fixtures or fittings, he may submit a list of works to the local authority with a request that they will state whether, in their opinion, the house would, after the execution of the works be fit for human habitation, and with proper maintenance, would remain fit for at least five years, or alternatively, what additional works would be necessary for that purpose. It is the duty of the local authority to comply with a request of this kind, and if not satisfied with the owner's proposals to state what other works they think are necessary. If subsequently all the works considered necessary by the local authority have been carried out to their satisfaction, they must, on request, issue to the owner, on payment of a fee of 1s., a certificate that the house is in all respects fit for human habitation and that it will, with reasonable maintenance, remain so fit for a period (not less than five years or more than 10 years), to be stated in the certificate. The possession of such a certificate by the owner will mean that his house cannot, during that period, if reasonably maintained, be made the subject of a demolition or closing order or be included in a clearance order or in a compulsory purchase order to be purchased at site value.

The foregoing procedure is not available in respect of any property which is the subject of a demolition order or is already included in a confirmed order or redevelopment plan, and if the property is included in an area already declared by the local authority to be a clearance area (or a redevelopment area under the new Act), then the local authority, instead of proceeding as provided for in Section 55, may submit the owner's proposals to the Minister for his consideration when he is dealing with their order or redevelopment plan.

The new rights conferred on owners by this section may, in certain areas, throw a considerable amount of extra work upon the local authority and their staff. It will be necessary that every application shall be carefully considered before a local authority approve the specified list of works as being sufficient, and that applications shall be dealt with expeditiously.

Housing Associations.

16. Definition.—Section 26 (a) defines the new term "Housing Association." For the most part the definition is taken from Section 3 (2) of the Housing, etc., Act, 1923 (b). It covers all bodies (including public utility societies and limited companies) dealing with working class housing, which do not trade for profit or issue shares or loan stock with interest or dividend exceeding a rate prescribed by the Treasury. The rate at present prescribed is 5 per cent.

17. Arrangements with Housing Associations.—Section 27 (c) provides that, with the approval of the Minister a local authority may make arrangements with any housing association for the association to—

(a) provide rehousing for persons displaced by the local authority by action under the 1930 Act from unfit houses;

(b) carry out the whole or any part of the housing work involved in the redevelopment of a congested area;

(c) provide rehousing for persons displaced by the local authority to abate overcrowding; or

(d) undertake the reconditioning and management of property bought by the local authority for that purpose.

The approved arrangements between the local authority and the housing association must inter alia specify the types of houses to be provided and the rents at which they are to be let. There are no special statutory conditions as to rent, tenancy, etc., apart from the terms of the approved arrangements, but in considering any proposed arrangements the Minister would have regard to the general conditions imposed on local authorities by Section 51 (d) of the new Act with a view to their adaptation, as far as practicable, to the circumstances of the association.

The local authority are required to pay to the association any grant which would be paid if the authority had themselves provided the accommodation, and this grant will be paid by the Minister to the local authority. The authority may, out of the rates, increase the amount of their contribution to the association beyond the amount of the grant.

The Minister, on the complaint of a housing association that a local authority have unreasonably refused to make arrangements with them, may require the authority to furnish him with a report on the matter, stating the reasons for their refusal.

Power is reserved to the Minister to reduce, suspend or discontinue his payment to the local authority where he is satisfied that the association are not carrying out the approved arrangements. If the Minister takes action of this sort, the local authority may take corresponding action in relation to their contribution to the housing association.

Section 28 (e) makes provision whereby a housing association which is receiving contributions under different enactments, subject to the observance of the special conditions laid down by those enactments, may request the Minister to make a scheme for the consolidation of the grants and the unification of the conditions. Before taking action the Minister must consult the local authority concerned. The new conditions applicable to the consolidated grant are to be based on the conditions in Part IV of the Act.

HOUSING Section 29 (a) of the Housing Act, 1930, is repealed without prejudice to existing arrangements under that section between a local authority and a public utility society.

18. Guarantees to Housing Associations.—Section 29 of the Act (b) contains provisions which enable the Public Works Loan Board to make advances to housing associations up to a maximum of 90 per cent. of the value of houses to be erected by them. Section 90 (5) of the Housing Act, 1925 (c), empowered the Board to advance money to public utility societies up to two-thirds of the value of the houses provided. Under the new section, a housing association may offer as security for an advance, not only the houses to be erected but any existing working class houses which they own. The Board will be empowered to make an advance up to 90 per cent. of the value of the property mortgaged when the payment of principal and interest is guaranteed under Section 70 of the 1925 Act (which requires the Minister's consent to be given) by a local authority or County Council. When a housing association cannot obtain such a guarantee, the advance may equal 75 per cent. of this value, but if it exceeds $66\frac{2}{3}$ per cent. the Public Works Loan Commissioners will require collateral security.

The powers of local authorities to assist public utility societies under Section 70 of the 1925 Act (d) are extended to cover assistance to all bodies included in the new definition of "housing association." Section 107 of the Act of 1925 (e) is extended by Section 77 of the new Act (f) to enable a local authority to provide buildings, recreation grounds, etc., which will serve a beneficial purpose in connection with the requirements of persons for whom housing accommodation has been provided by a housing association under approved arrangements with the local authority.

19. Central Housing Association.—Section 30 (g) provides that if a Central Housing Association is in existence or is formed in the future to assist and advise housing associations the Minister may give such an association official recognition and may, for a period of five years, make a grant in aid of the expenses of that association.

Housing (Rural Workers) Acts, 1926 to 1931 (h).

20. Extension and Alteration of the Acts.—Section 37 (i) extends the period of operation of these Acts from October 1, 1936, when they were due to expire, until June 24, 1938. It is expressly provided that this alteration of date will not necessitate the re-submission for approval by a local authority of schemes which have already been approved. In those approved schemes in which October 1, 1936, appears, a reference to June 24, 1938, is automatically substituted for the earlier date.

The rate of interest on loans granted under the Acts will not in future be prescribed by order of the Minister. It is fixed at a rate of $\frac{1}{4}$ per cent. in excess of the Public Works Loan Board's rate for housing loans to local authorities which was current one month before the terms of the loan were settled.

Section 3 (1) (b) of the 1926 Act (k) which provides that the maximum increase of rent for a reconditioned cottage shall not exceed 3 per cent. of the part of the estimated cost of the work borne by the owner himself, is amended by the substitution of 4 per cent. for 3 per cent., but this alteration will not apply in respect of a dwelling where the reconditioning was completed by January 1, 1935.

21. Houses owned by Local Authorities.—Section 38 (a) of the Act enables a local authority to obtain the same grant in respect of works which they carry out to property belonging to themselves as a private owner whould have obtained if he had carried out those works. Where the local authority carrying out the works are not the local authority under the Housing (Rural Workers) Acts, they will proceed exactly as if they were private owners, i.e., make an application in the proper form to the authority administering the Acts.

Where the local authority carrying out the works are the authority administering the Acts the application for assistance must be made direct to the Minister and should be accompanied by such details (including plans, specification and information as to rents to be charged, etc.) as would have been submitted by a private owner to the authority when making application for a grant. In such a case, if the local authority receiving grant are the County Council, the rent conditions contained in Section 3 of the Act of 1926 (b) will apply as if the County Council had received a grant of twice the amount which they actually receive. The effect is that the County Council, not being in a position to recoup themselves by an increase of rent except as to one-third of the estimated cost, will share with the Exchequer the remaining two-thirds, and the cost to the rates will thus be the same as if the grant had been made to a private owner. If the authority receiving grant are the Housing Authority for the district, the rent conditions contained in the Act of 1926 will not apply. (See Section 52 (2) (c).) Together with all other special conditions, they are replaced by the general conditions set out in Section 51 of the new Act (c). There is, however, a specific requirement that, where a Housing Authority receive a grant, they shall contribute an equivalent amount out of the rates.

The Minister knows that there is a wide scope for operations under these Acts and hopes that the new provisions enabling a local authority themselves to obtain grants will lead to greatly increased activity under those Acts. In many cases the most economical as well as the most satisfactory way of providing additional housing accommodation, especially to meet overcrowding, may be the making of extensions and additions to existing cottages, and local authorities are now armed with complete powers and facilities for seeing that the necessary work is done. In the case where, for some reason or other, desirable work of this kind is not carried out by the owner, the local authority have power compulsorily to acquire the property (see paragraph 24).

Housing Management Commissioners.

22. Section 25 (d) empowers a local authority to set up a Housing Management Commission to whom they may transfer their housing functions relating to the management, regulation, control, repair, etc., of all or any of the housing estates of the authority. The transfer is to be made by a scheme submitted by the local authority for the approval of the Minister. Any such scheme would include provisions as to the method of appointment and term of office of the members of the Commission and as to the financial relations between the local authority and the Commission. Section 25 itself includes a list of the most important subjects with which the scheme would have to deal.

It is contemplated that a scheme will normally provide that the Commission shall make an annual payment to the local authority in respect of the property transferred to them and should then be responsible for letting, repairs, maintenance, etc., and that, subject to carrying out this task satisfactorily, they would be a permanent body, though provision would require to be made in the scheme for the dissolution of the Commission and re-transfer of the property to the local authority on grounds to be specified.

This section is the first provision in the Housing Acts which recognises that a distinction may legitimately be drawn between the body responsible for providing housing accommodation when and where it is needed, and the body to be responsible for the management and control of that accommodation when it has been provided.

HOUSING There is no question but that the duty of seeing that the housing needs of their area are adequately met must rest solely upon the local authority, but there is a growing body of opinion that the local authority may not necessarily be the most appropriate body permanently to manage and control the houses when they have been provided. Housing Management Commissions of the type contemplated in the Section would secure continuity of policy and would extend the scope of professional house management, which experience has shown is so advantageous both from the point of view of improving the conditions of the tenants and from that of preventing the depreciation of the property. The section confers on local authorities a power to establish such Housing Management Commissions and does not impose a duty to do so, but the Minister hopes that every local authority will take the question of exercising their powers into serious consideration. The matter in the present stage is experimental, but the Minister sees no reason why a local authority should not take advantage of its new powers to set up a Housing Management Commission which could, in the first instance at any rate, operate over a limited area. Experience obtained from such an arrangement would then be available as a guide to the authority when considering its extension.

Apart from houses which may be placed in the charge of Management Commissions, the Minister desires to emphasize the importance of employing trained housing estate managers in connection with housing estates remaining under the management of local authorities. Attention has already been directed to this matter in the Minister's Annual Reports, where reference has been made to the successful results which have been achieved by the Octavia Hill system of management, which is also advocated in the Report of the Departmental Committee on Housing under the chairmanship of Lord Moyne. Operations under the Housing Act, 1930, have made it necessary for authorities to provide accommodation for many persons who have hitherto had little opportunity of learning to make the fullest use of, and to care for, the facilities afforded by a modern dwelling. The steps now to be taken to abate overcrowding will add to their number. Experience has shown that often such persons more readily derive the full advantage which should follow removal to healthy modern surroundings when encouraged by skilled help and guidance. At the same time it is of special importance that new houses in the occupation of such tenants should be regularly, though not necessarily formally, inspected, so that minor repairs to fittings, etc., may be carried out before the damage becomes worse by continued use. Trained housing estate managers have been remarkably successful in this work. The tenants have been found to respond readily to their help, while at the same time arrears of rent are kept to a minimum. In normal circumstances a single full-time manager is able to take charge of some 300 houses.

It is understood that twenty-eight authorities already employ trained housing estate managers, and the Minister feels that the question might with advantage receive wider consideration, especially where any appreciable number of persons removed from unsatisfactory surroundings are to be rehoused.

Central Housing Advisory Committee.

23. Section 24 (a) imposes on the Minister the duty of setting up a Central Housing Advisory Committee, the personnel of which will be announced in due course. The Committee will be charged with the duty of advising the Minister on any representations made by a local authority under Section 4 of the Act for the issue of an order modifying the overcrowding standard, of advising Housing Management Commissions, of advising the Minister on any housing question which he may from time to time refer to them and of considering the operation of the Housing Acts and making representations to the Minister with respect ot matters of general concern arising under them.

Other Amendments of the Housing Acts.

24. Compulsory Purchase.—The powers of a local authority to purchase property compulsorily are extended in two directions. Section 20 amends Sections 57 and 58 of the Act of 1925 (a), so as to enable a local authority to acquire compulsorily any houses or other buildings which are or may be made suitable as dwelling-houses for the working classes, together with any land occupied with such houses or other buildings, or any estate or interest in such houses or buildings and land. These powers will enable a local authority to carry out schemes of reconditioning working class property where they are satisfied that this course is the most economical and desirable in all the circumstances. In particular, taken in conjunction with the extension of the Housing (Rural Workers) Acts, they should greatly assist rural authorities in dealing with their housing conditions.

In this connection local authorities are reminded of the duty laid upon them by Section 38 of the Housing Act, 1930 (b)—which applies equally to housing under the new Act—of having regard in their housing proposals to the desirability of preserving existing works of architectural, historic or artistic interest. Houses of this character will often be found in clearance areas or may occur as individual houses which, as they stand, are unfit for human habitation. Their number has, however, been rapidly diminishing and accordingly local authorities should be careful to see that in their operations they are not destroying property which it would be better, in the interest of the general amenity of their town, to preserve. It is not, of course, suggested that houses which are unfit for human habitation should be allowed to remain in use as houses, but there will often be cases where the architectural or other interest of the building would make it worth the while of the local authority to acquire it and carry out more or less extensive works of reconstruction which would enable the building to be kept in use, whether as a dwelling or for other purposes, for a long period of years.

Section 70 amends Section 58 (3) of the Act of 1925 (c) so as to enable a local authority to purchase compulsorily for the purposes of Part III of the Act of 1925 land which the Minister considers is likely to be required within ten years.

25. Compensation on Compulsory Purchase.—Section 73 of the Act (d) provides that where land is purchased compulsorily for the purposes of Part III of the Act of 1925, the compensation payable shall be assessed in accordance with the provisions of Part II of the Third Schedule to the Housing Act, 1930 (e). The basis of compensation for such land is therefore assimilated to the basis of compensation for land other than land in a clearance area which is compulsorily acquired under Part I of the Housing Act, 1930.

Part II of the Third Schedule to the Housing Act, 1930, is itself amended by Section 90 of the new Act (f). A local authority claiming that compensation should be reduced owing to the premises being in a state of defective sanitation, or not in reasonably good repair, are required to furnish to the arbitrator and to the claimant a written statement setting out the alleged defects. The arbitrator is required to embody in his award a statement showing separately whether compensation has been reduced for any of the reasons set out in the Schedule, and, if so, the amount of reduction under each head.

26. Advances for House Purchase.—The limit on the market value of houses in respect of which advances may be made either under the Small Dwellings Acquisition Acts (g) or under Section 92 of the Act of 1925 (h), has been reduced (i) in respect of advances made after October 31, 1935, to £800. Local Authorities should not, therefore, enter into any further commitments to intending borrowers in respect of houses above this value, unless they are satisfied that it will be possible for them to have the mortgage completed before October 31, 1935. The date on which the mortgage is executed is deemed to be the date of the advance under the Acts.

The rate of interest on advances under the Small Dwellings Acquisition Acts is now fixed, by Section 92, at ¼ per cent. over the rate, current one month before the date on which the terms of the advance were settled, charged by the Public Works Loan Board for housing loans to local authorities.

27. Byelaws.—The powers of a local authority to make byelaws relating to housing are amended and extended by Section 68 of the new Act (a). Such byelaws will in future be deemed to be made under Section 6 of the 1925 Act (a) instead of being made under the Public Health Acts and the duty is laid upon a local authority to make such byelaws when required to do so by the Minister. The provision which limits the application of byelaws under Section 6 (except in an improvement area) to houses let in lodgings or to houses occupied by members of more than one family, is repealed. In future, therefore, such byelaws can relate to houses occupied by only one family, but the local authority is given the power to make some byelaws applicable to all houses, and others (e.g., registration with the local authority) applicable only to houses let in lodgings or occupied by members of more than one family. It will be seen that a local authority now have the power to propose byelaws providing for a minimum standard of fittings, structural equipment, etc., which will apply to all working class houses in their district.

The matters which hitherto could have been dealt with by byelaws made under Section 6 of the Act of 1925 are specified in that Section. The new Act makes two alterations. In the first place, the byelaws may now deal with the prevention of nuisances arising in a room or part of a building which is the subject of a closing order. In the second place, the reference to overcrowding is deleted in view of the general standard laid down by the new Act. In so far as a local authority have already byelaws in operation in their area which contain provisions relating to overcrowding, these provisions will cease to operate from the appointed day when the national overcrowding standard comes into force in their area. Model Byelaws * have been prepared and are available for the assistance of local authorities. The pamphlet summarising the principal provisions of the Housing and Public Health Acts in relation to the maintenance of dwellinghouses in a reasonably fit condition for human habitation has been revised and is now on sale.

28. Cleansing from Vermin.—Section 82 of (b) the Act empowers a local authority to cleanse from vermin before it is demolished, any house to which a demolition order or clearance order applies. Where the authority are satisfied that a house ought to be cleansed in order to prevent the spread of vermin which might be caused by the distribution of the materials obtained by demolition, they may at any time between the date of confirmation of the clearance order (or date of making the demolition order) and the date on which the order becomes operative serve notice on the owner of their intention to cleanse, and the owner must not start demolition until the authority have cleansed the building and authorise him to proceed. If the owner is anxious to proceed with demolition he can serve a counter notice on the local authority requiring them to complete the cleansing within fourteen days.

The Minister hopes that local authorities will make full use of the powers conferred on them by this section in view of the importance of any step which will assist to prevent the dissemination of bed-bugs.

29. Among other minor amendments effected by the new Act it appears necessary to mention only the following. Section 94 (c) provides that in future, where a local authority build houses under Part III of the Act of 1925, whether subsidised or unsubsidised, the contract for those houses must contain a fair wages clause in the usual form, and the houses themselves must contain a fixed bath in a bathroom unless the authority have obtained the prior consent of the Minister to a departure from that requirement. HOUSING ACT, 1935 (b).

MEMORANDUM B—THE PREVENTION AND ABATEMENT OF OVERCROWDING.

NOTE.—The forms and rules referred to in this Memorandum as having been prescribed were "The Housing Acts (Overcrowding and Miscellaneous Forms) Provisional Regulations, 1935 (c)."

1. Introductory.—Sections 1 to 12 of the Housing Act, 1935 (d), together with the First Schedule (e), contain the specific provisions of that Act for the abatement and prevention of overcrowding. The general scheme is to provide a standard for measuring overcrowding, and, subject to suitable safeguards, to make it, as soon as practicable, a punishable offence to infringe that standard; to provide for a survey by every housing authority to ascertain the extent of overcrowding in their area and the places where it exists; and to secure that the new accommodation required to abate overcrowding is provided in the places where it is needed. Other provisions in the Act (in particular those relating to the redevelopment of overcrowded and congested areas, which are dealt with more fully in Memorandum C of this series), have a close bearing on the question of the effective action to be taken by local authorities in abating overcrowding, and these are referred to where necessary in this memorandum. The first part of the memorandum is mainly an outline of the provisions contained in Sections 1 to 12 of the Act. The second part deals in detail with the necessary steps to be taken by local authorities to carry out the survey which they are required to make, and the form in which the report on that survey and the proposals of the authority should be submitted to the Minister.

2. The Survey.—Section 1 (f) imposes on every local authority the duty of carrying out an inspection of their district within a period to be fixed by the Minister in order to ascertain what houses are overcrowded (as defined in Section 2 and the First Schedule) and of reporting the result to the Minister with their proposals for building new houses, or flats where necessary, to abate the overcrowding. The method of carrying out the survey is dealt with in detail in Part II of this memorandum.

Generally speaking, once a complete survey has been carried out and the overcrowding abated, there should be no need for any subsequent survey on the same scale, but to meet exceptional conditions provision is made for a further survey to be carried out by the local authority if they consider that occasion for it has arisen, or the Minister so directs.

The duty, imposed upon local authorities by Section 25 (1) of the Act of 1930 (g), of reviewing the housing needs of their area from time to time remains in force, but Section 25 (2) of the 1930 Act which imposes on every urban authority with a population of over 20,000 the duty of making quinquennial surveys (in 1935, 1940, etc.) of the housing needs of their district, and submitting proposals to the Minister for meeting those needs, is repealed.

3.—The Overcrowding Standard.—Section 2 and the First Schedule to the Act (h), set out the new overcrowding standard which, subject to any temporary modification made by order under Section 4 of the Act (a), is to apply throughout the whole country. It is relevant to point out that this standard does not represent any ideal standard of housing, but the minimum which is in the view of Parliament tolerable while at the same time capable of immediate or early enforcement. Local authorities providing housing accommodation for overcrowded persons who are to be displaced will be bound by the provisions of Section 37 of the 1930 Act (b), as regards the number of persons who may be deemed to be properly accommodated in any replacement houses belonging to themselves.

The overcrowding standard consists of two parts. Section 2 (1) (a) provides that there must be sufficient sleeping accommodation in a house to secure proper sex separation. Section 2 (1) (b) is a standard of capacity, and in conjunction with Schedule 1, fixes in relation to the accommodation in any particular house the maximum number of persons, irrespective of sex, who may be permitted to sleep in that house at one time.

For convenience, the two tables in the First Schedule to the Act are here reproduced:—

TABLE I.

Where a house consists of—	The permitted number of persons is—
(a) One room	2
(b) Two rooms	3
(c) Three rooms	5
(d) Four rooms	7½
(e) Five rooms or more	10 with an additional 2 in respect of each room in excess of five.

(In using this Table, a room of less than 50 square feet is not counted as a room.)

TABLE II.

Where a room in a house has a floor area of—
(a) 110 sq. ft. or more	2
(b) 90 sq. ft. or more, but less than 110	1½
(c) 70 sq. ft. or more, but less than 90	1
(d) 50 sq. ft. or more, but less than 70	½
(e) Under 50 sq. ft.	Nil

In the application of these tables account is only to be taken of rooms which are normally used in the locality either as a living room or as a bedroom.

In applying Table II, each room of the size mentioned is to be reckoned as capable of accommodating the number set out in the Table, and the aggregate for all the rooms in the house is ascertained in this manner. The "permitted number" for the house is the aggregate number so obtained or the number given by Table I, whichever is the smaller.

It will be seen that if all the rooms in a house to which the Tables are to be applied are of 110 square feet or more in area only Table I will have to be used. Table II is to be applied only when one or more of these rooms is between 50 and 110 square feet in size. In such a case, the total number of persons which would be allowed under Table II according to the size of the rooms in the house is calculated. The number so reached will be the permitted number if it is less than the number given by Table I.

In considering the application of the standard in relation to particular families it is to be noted—

(i) that in the case of a house part of which is sub-let, the rooms occupied by the sub-tenant constitute a separate house; (Section 12, definition of dwelling-house);

(ii) that children between the ages of 1 and 10 years count as half a person and that a child under 1 year of age does not count at all (Section 2 (2));

(b) 23 Halsbury's Statutes 425. Now s. 136 of the Housing Act, 1936, ante, p. 1735.

(iii) that apart from the number of persons who may occupy a house there is an overriding condition that the accommodation available for a particular family must be such that no two persons both of 10 years of age or over of opposite sexes, except persons living together as husband and wife, must sleep in the same room (Section 2 (1) (a));

(iv) that only rooms normally used in the locality for sleeping or living purposes are counted as rooms, so that bathrooms, sculleries, etc., are not counted as part of the accommodation (Section 12, definition of "room").

A few examples are appended.

CASE 1.—The House of 1 Room.

In this case the permitted number of persons is 2 according to Table I of the standard. If the room happens to be less than 110 square feet in area the permitted number of persons will be found in Table II. The following families could occupy a house of one room of normal size :—

(a) A husband and wife with or without a child under 1 year of age.

(b) One parent with 2 children under 10 years.

(c) Any two adults of the same sex.

The following families could not occupy a house of one room without infringing the standard :—

(a) Two adults of opposite sexes not living together as husband and wife, e.g., brother and sister, mother and son over 10 years of age, father and daughter over 10 years of age ;

(b) Any family where the total number of persons exceeds 2, e.g., father and mother with one or more children over 1 year of age.

If the room had a floor area of 95 square feet it could only accommodate 1½ persons (Table II). Accordingly it would be overcrowded if occupied by a man and his wife but not if occupied, say, by one adult and one child under 10 years.

CASE 2.—The House of 2 Rooms.

The permitted number of persons for a house of 2 rooms is given by Table I as 3. In the following examples it is assumed that the rooms are of such areas that Table II does not operate, so that 3 is the permitted number of persons. Typical families who could live in such a house without infringing the standard are :—

(a) Father, mother and 1 child over 10 years.

(b) Father, mother and 2 children under 10 years.

(c) Father, grown-up daughter and 2 children under 10 years.

In any of the above cases, of course, there might be in addition a child (or children) under 1 year of age.

The following families could not occupy a house of 2 rooms without infringing the standard :—

(a) Parents with child under 10 years and child over 10 years (3½ persons).

(b) Parents with 3 children under 10 years (3½ persons).

(c) Father, grown-up son, grown-up daughter and 1 child under 10 years (3½ persons).

In the case of a 2-roomed house the sex separation part of the standard is always complied with if the permitted number of persons is not exceeded.

CASE 3.—The House of 3 Rooms.

According to Table I the permitted number of persons for a house of 3 rooms is 5. The following families could occupy a 3-roomed house, none of the rooms of which were of less than 110 square feet :—

(a) Father, mother and 3 children over 10 years.

(b) Father, mother, 2 children over 10 years and 2 children under 10 years.

(c) Father, mother, grandmother and 2 children over 10 years.

HOUSING

The following families could not occupy a normal 3-roomed house without infringing the standard :—

(a) Father, mother, 2 children over 10 years and 3 children under 10 years ($5\frac{1}{2}$ persons).

(b) Father, mother and 4 children over 10 years (6 persons).

4. Overcrowding Offences.—Section 3 (a) deals with the relation of the individual occupier or landlord to overcrowding. The general effect is that overcrowding existing at the appointed day (see paragraph 13) is not an offence until alternative accommodation has been offered and refused, but the creation after the appointed day of overcrowding in a house where it does not exist on the appointed day will be punishable.

By Section 3 (1) overcrowding after the appointed day is made an offence on the part of the occupier who causes it, and of the landlord who permits it. An offence is punishable by a fine not exceeding five pounds, with a further fine not exceeding two pounds per day in respect of each day on which the offence continues after conviction.

Section 3 (2) gives special protection to persons who are in occupation on the appointed day. Where there has been no change of occupier since the appointed day, and no addition to the occupants except by births, then notwithstanding that the house is overcrowded, no offence is committed by the occupier unless he refuses an offer of "suitable alternative accommodation" (defined in Section 12), or declines to take reasonable steps to get ridof some person who is not a member of his family (such as a lodger or sub-tenant) to whom suitable alternative accommodation has been offered. The removal of such a person might abate the overcrowding entirely; in any case it would ameliorate the conditions, and might justify the local authority in postponing further action until more urgent cases had been disposed of.

Section 3 (3) contains safeguards to cover the case where a family living in uncrowded conditions becomes overcrowded in course of time owing to increases in the number or ages of the children. These safeguards are general and apply to all occupiers whether or not they were in occupation on the appointed day. An occupier whose dwelling becomes overcrowded in the circumstances mentioned, provided that he has not subsequently increased the overcrowding by taking in additional persons, should apply to the local authority for alternative accommodation, and if he does so and does not refuse suitable accommodation which is offered to him, or fail in the particular case where it would be reasonable and practicable to ameliorate the overcrowding by the displacement of some lodger or sub-tenant (not a member of his family), will not be guilty of an offence.

Section 3 (4) gives a further safeguard where a house is overcrowded solely because a member of the occupier's family who does not normally live in the house is temporarily residing with him. This provision is to protect an occupier where a son or daughter or other member of the family returns home for a short stay.

Section 3 (5) sets out the two cases in which a landlord can be prosecuted for an overcrowding offence. They are :—

(a) where the landlord or his agent is informed in writing by the local authority that his tenant is committing an overcrowding offence, and the landlord does not take steps, including, if necessary, an application to the Court to obtain possession, to put an end to the offence, and

(b) where on the letting of a house the landlord, or person letting it on his behalf, had reasonable cause to believe that it would be overcrowded, or did not inquire the number, age and sex of the persons who were going to occupy it.

It will be observed in connection with the first provision that Section 9 of the Act (a) provides that in such a case the Rent Acts shall be no bar to the obtaining of possession by the landlord and that the obtaining of possession in such circumstances shall not lead to the decontrol of the house, while Section 10 (a) confers on the local authority powers, analogous to the powers in Section 39 of the Housing Act, 1930 (b), enabling them to take proceedings themselves for the eviction of the tenant.

The creation of new overcrowding must be prevented as far as possible, and the second provision will help to ensure that no landlord connives at or encourages its creation.

5. Temporary Modifications of the Overcrowding Standard.—Section 4 (a) gives the Minister the power, on the application of a local authority and after consultation with the Central Housing Advisory Committee, to modify temporarily the overcrowding standard in its application to houses in the district of a particular local authority or in any part of that district. It may be necessary to have recourse to this power in relation to exceptional areas where the normal housing accommodation available for the working classes is such that some considerable measure of overcrowding on the standard in the Act is unavoidable for a substantial period.

An order made under the section for the relaxation of the standard cannot operate for more than three years in the first instance, although it may be renewed. Any order may be revoked or varied, as circumstances may require, after consultation with the Central Advisory Committee.

The section sets out the circumstances which must exist before the Minister can make an order. They are that in the whole area of the authority, or in some defined part of it, a large proportion of the accommodation for the working classes consists either of (a) houses with a small number of rooms, or (b) houses with very large rooms, or (c) houses with very small rooms, and that in consequence the immediate application of the new standard would be impracticable in a particular district or in relation to particular types of houses. Normally, it is contemplated that any relaxation provided for by an order under Section 4 would apply to particular types of house and not to all the houses in an area.

Before the authority can be in a position to consider the necessity for a representation to the Minister that an Order under Section 4 should be issued, it will be necessary for them to have completed their survey and report under Section 1 of the Act in relation to the area in question, and so to have a general picture of what the conditions are likely to be on the appointed day. The Minister does not anticipate that any substantial number of local authorities will find it necessary to make representations under this provision.

6. Overcrowding Licences.—Section 5 (b) gives a local authority power, on the application of an occupier or intending occupier of a dwellinghouse, to issue a licence allowing that dwellinghouse to be occupied for a limited period by a number of persons in excess of the permitted number for the house. Such a licence can only be granted when the local authority are satisfied that exceptional circumstances exist which make it expedient to do so, but it is specially provided that exceptional circumstances in this sense may be held to include a seasonal influx of population into a town. The licence cannot continue in force for more than 12 months and may be revoked by the local authority at any time if they think this course desirable. Within seven days after issuing a licence to an occupier, the local authority must serve a copy of the licence on the landlord. While the occupier holds the licence and complies with any conditions attaching to it, he is not guilty of an offence. The form of licence and the form of revocation of a licence have been prescribed.

The power of a local authority to issue licences subject to such conditions as they think fit to impose will enable them to exercise control over temporary overcrowding which may be unavoidable. Such temporary overcrowding may arise in various circumstances. A not unusual case will be that of a family who are obliged to move, but cannot find at the moment any accommodation in which they will not infringe the standard. Apart from such individual cases, recourse to licensing might be necessitated by a temporary increase of the population of a small district caused (e.g.) by workmen carrying out constructional works. The Act itself contemplates that the circumstances of holiday resorts may be such as to require the issue of licences on rather a large scale.

In all cases where a licence is issued it is important to ensure that it is so framed as to permit only the minimum amount of overcrowding for the shortest possible time. This will be comparatively easy in the case of an application from an occupier for a licence to cover the occupation of a house by himself or by certain specified persons for a limited period, but in the case of licences granted to meet the circumstances of holiday resorts it will be necessary for the local authority to exercise special care. In many cases the application received by the local authority will take the form of a request for a general permit to take in visitors during the normal holiday season, and in the Minister's view it is desirable that in those circumstances any licence should cover any lettings during the season, so that an occupier would not have to make more than one application. On the other hand, the conditions of the licence should be determined by the circumstances of the case and in considering the degree of relaxation to be permitted, the local authority should have primary regard to the occupier's own family and the accommodation available for them. It would in suitable circumstances be proper for the local authority to make it a condition of the licence that at all times a certain specified number of rooms should be retained by the occupier for the exclusive use of himself and his family.

It will be necessary for the local authority to make arrangements for the keeping of records of all licences issued and of their period of operation.

7. Power to Obtain Information relating to Overcrowding.—Section 6 (3) of the Act (a) confers on a local authority a power of entry into a house for the purpose of ascertaining the number of rooms occupied and the measurement of those rooms, so that they can ascertain the permitted number for the dwellinghouse.

Section 8 (a) makes it the duty of a landlord or his agent under penalty of a £2 fine, to inform the local authority when it comes to his knowledge after the appointed day that his house is overcrowded. This does not apply to overcrowding which existed on the appointed day or to overcrowding which has been notified to the landlord by the local authority or is covered by licence, but should secure the early notification of any fresh overcrowding which may occur.

Section 10 (3) of the Act (a) provides that a local authority may serve notice on the occupier of a dwellinghouse requiring him to furnish them within 14 days with a statement in writing of the number, age and sex of the persons sleeping in the house. The form of notice for this purpose has been prescribed. The occupier is liable to a fine of £2 if he does not comply with the request or knowingly makes a false statement.

The power to obtain information from occupiers will be useful to local authorities both in carrying out the survey required by Section 1 of the Act, and later in any case where they have reason to suppose that a house is overcrowded. It is not suggested, however, that a local authority in the conduct of their survey should serve such a notice on every occupier. Their power should be used where an occupier refuses to give information to the officer of the authority making the survey.

8. Supply of Information by the Local Authority.—Section 6 (2) of the Act (b) makes it the duty of the local authority on the application of the landlord or the occupier of a dwellinghouse to inform him in writing of the permitted number of persons in relation to the house. This information will often be in the possession of the local authority as a result of the survey of their area. If it is not, it will be necessary to obtain it by inspection and in some cases measurement of the rooms. The Act does not specify the time within which this information must be supplied, but, as the permitted number is required to be inserted in rent books, it will be necessary to supply it some time before the date on which it becomes obligatory on a landlord to insert the information in the rent book (see paragraph 9).

Section 7 of the Act (b) empowers a local authority to publish information for the assistance of landlords and occupiers of dwellinghouses as to their rights and duties in regard to the new overcrowding provisions. It will be observed that various provisions of the Act are expressed to come into force on an "appointed day" or six months after an appointed day. There will not necessarily be one appointed day for all purposes within the area of a local authority, and the appointed day for the same purpose may vary as between the areas of different local authorities. It is therefore essential that there should be local publicity to ensure that all persons concerned are fully aware of the dates on which the several provisions of the Act come into force. Section 7 will enable local authorities to post notices and take other effective steps for this purpose. It will also enable them if they think fit, to prepare leaflets setting out the main provisions of the Act affecting landlords and occupiers for distribution to persons seeking information. A judicious use of the powers conferred by this section may prove of great assistance in securing the enforcement of the overcrowding provisions.

9. Information in Rent Books.—Section 6 (a) provides that, as from six months after the appointed day (i.e., the day appointed for the purposes of this section), all rent books or similar documents relating to working-class houses must contain a summary in a form prescribed by the Minister of those provisions of the Act relating to overcrowding which affect occupiers, together with a statement showing the permitted number of persons in relation to that house. A landlord who fails to comply with this requirement is liable on prosecution by the local authority to a fine of £10. To ensure compliance with these provisions, local authorities are empowered by Section 6 to call for the production of rent books, and any person who fails to produce the rent book within 7 days is liable to a fine of £2. The form of summary has been prescribed by the Minister.

10. Number and Size of Rooms.—As already mentioned the permitted number in respect of a dwellinghouse is determined solely by the number and size of the rooms in that house, and local authorities have a right of entry to ascertain these facts. By Section 6 (5) of the Act (b) a certificate of the local authority stating the number and floor areas of the rooms in a dwellinghouse and that the floor areas have been ascertained in the prescribed manner is made, for the purposes of any legal proceedings, primâ facie evidence of the facts stated therein. The rules for the measurement of floor areas have been prescribed by Regulations. Briefly, the rules are to the effect that the floor area is to be ascertained in the simplest possible manner without taking account of internal projections such as chimney-breasts, and that in the case of rooms with sloping ceilings, any part of the floor where the height is less than five feet is to be excluded.

11. Information to be supplied to the Minister.—In addition to the report which must be made to the Minister after the local authority have carried out the survey under Section 1 of the Act, it is provided that the Minister shall receive periodical reports of the progress made in dealing with the abatement of overcrowding. For this purpose Section 11 (c) provides that it shall be the specific duty of the Medical Officer of Health to report annually to the Minister as to conditions in relation to overcrowding, and in particular to furnish details with regard to dwellinghouses in which overcrowding had recurred after being abated by the local authority. Regulations dealing with this matter will be found in Draft Rules and Orders No. 83298 (relating to London) and No. 80146 (relating to the rest of the country) (d).

12. Enforcement of the Overcrowding Provisions.—Section 10 of the Act (e) provides that it shall be the duty of a local authority to enforce the overcrowding provisions in their area and that only a local authority can prosecute for an overcrowding offence. There is one exception to this. Where a local authority are themselves the landlords of houses and are guilty of an overcrowding offence, it is open to any person, with the consent of the Attorney-General, to take proceedings. The Minister is confident that local authorities can be relied upon to use their powers of prosecution with due discretion. The powers are necessary in order that local authorities may be fully armed to deal with the problem of overcrowding, but the normal procedure, even when the overcrowding constitutes an offence, will doubtless be to assist the overcrowded family to find other and more suitable accommodation and, if persuasion fails, to secure an order for their eviction. In practice if this normal procedure is followed it should rarely be found necessary to prosecute an occupier, although the power of prosecution must be used to meet the case of flagrant and repeated offences.

HOUSING

Section 10 (2) gives a local authority power to obtain vacant possession of a house which is overcrowded in such circumstances as to constitute an offence, if the occupier, after 14 days' notice in writing from the local authority, has not abated the overcrowding. In these circumstances the local authority may apply to a Court of Summary Jurisdiction for an order for vacant possession to be given to the landlord. Cases may arise in which a tenant complies with the authority's notice for a short time but then again overcrowds the house, but the local authority will be able, if the offence is repeated at any time within three months after the date of the first notice without serving any fresh notice, to make the application to the Magistrate. The expenses of their proceedings will be recoverable by the local authority from the landlord, on whom, but for this special provision, the onus of taking proceedings would have fallen.

13. Appointed Days.—"Appointed day" is defined in Section 97 (a) as such day as the Minister may appoint, and the Minister may fix different days for different purposes and different provisions of the Act and for different localities. The appropriate date for the "appointed day" for any purpose in any local authority's area will depend on the progress made under the Act. Strict enforcement of the law would be unreasonable until the local authority have made substantial progress in the provision of new accommodation which is required. On the other hand, if the "appointed day" is fixed appreciably later than this, there would be a risk of the recurrence of overcrowding in a dwelling which had already been decrowded and of a liability to find further alternative accommodation in respect of the same house.

The appointed day for the purposes of the insertion of notices in rent-books will not be fixed until local authorities have had time to obtain the information necessary to comply with requests for a statement of the permitted number in respect of any dwellinghouse in their area.

14. Definitions.—The definitions appropriate to the overcrowding sections of the Act will be found in Section 12 (a).

"Dwellinghouse."—A dwellinghouse is defined as any premises used as a separate dwelling by persons of the working classes or of a type suitable for such use. It therefore includes any part of a building which is used, or is capable of use as a separate dwelling by persons of the working classes. The part of a house occupied by a sub-tenant is therefore a separate dwellinghouse for the purposes of the overcrowding provisions.

"Landlord."—A landlord is defined as the immediate landlord of an occupier or, in the case of a service tenancy, the employer of an occupier. Thus the tenant of a whole house is the landlord in relation to the sub-tenant of part of his house.

"Agent."—An agent is defined as the person who collects the rents of a landlord or, in the case of a service tenancy, the person who pays remuneration to the occupier on behalf of the employer.

"Room."—A room is defined as not including any room of a type not normally used in the locality either as a living room or as a bedroom. It is further provided in the First Schedule that no room with a floor area of less than 50 sq. ft. shall be counted as a room. As the certificate of a local authority stating the number and sizes of the rooms in a house will be treated in any proceedings as prima facie evidence of the facts stated therein, it will be for the local authority in the first instance to determine whether or not any particular room is of a type normally used in the locality either as a living room or as a bedroom.

"Suitable alternative accommodation."—The definition of suitable alternative accommodation follows closely that contained in the Rent Restriction Acts. It means a dwellinghouse in which the occupier and his family can live without overcrowding, and one which is certified by the local authority to be suitable to the needs of the occupier and his family as respects security of tenure and proximity to place of work, and to be suitable in relation to his means. If the house belongs to the local authority, they must also certify that it is suitable in extent, having regard to the standard in Section 37 of the 1930 Act. The form of certificate for this purpose has been prescribed. A local authority will generally have no difficulty in certifying accommodation which they themselves have provided. Where the alternative accommodation which is being offered to an occupier is accommodation provided by a private landlord, the local authority should assure themselves that the terms of the definition are being satisfied. In such cases a definite arrangement with the landlord to afford to the tenant reasonable security of tenure so long as he pays a rent which the authority regard as suitable to his means, will usually be necessary.

PART II.

15. The Duty of Inspection.—Section 1 of the Act makes it the duty of every local authority " before such dates as may be fixed by the Minister as respects their district, to cause an inspection thereof to be made with a view to ascertaining what dwellinghouses therein are overcrowded, and to prepare and submit to the Minister a report showing the result of the inspection " and of the necessary action which the local authority propose to take. The Act does not define any more closely the form which the inspection is to take ; it must be such an inspection as will bring to light all cases of overcrowding. The date or dates to be fixed by the Minister must obviously have regard to the length of time which an inspection which will be adequate for the purpose in view will take, and this in turn depends on the arrangements made for carrying out that inspection. A comprehensive and detailed examination of all working class accommodation in the district, including the measurement of all the habitable rooms in every house, may be regarded as the ideal form of survey. Not only would it disclose accurately all cases of overcrowding, but it would provide a large amount of information including that required for the purpose of informing a landlord or occupier, on request, of the permitted number in respect of any particular dwellinghouse. But such an inspection would be a lengthy proceeding, and though measurement will ultimately be generally necessary would be more elaborate than is necessary to comply with the duty imposed by Section 1. Accordingly the Minister, in considering the question of the dates which he shall fix under that section, has had in mind a more limited survey designed primarily to serve the specific objects of the section, namely to ascertain the amount of overcrowding and the amount of new accommodation required to abate that overcrowding. The kind of inspection contemplated is dealt with generally in the next paragraph and in detail in subsequent paragraphs of this memorandum. The Minister is satisfied that by working on the method suggested or on some similar method, the inspection contemplated by Section 1 of the Act can be carried out by any local authority speedily and efficiently.

16. Method of Survey.—As the Act does not prescribe any particular method in which the inspection is to be carried out, local authorities are at liberty to use the method they consider most suitable. Whatever method is used, it is important to bear in mind that, in order to get an accurate picture of the position the inspection, once started, should be completed within the shortest possible time. Otherwise the movement of the population and other factors might invalidate the results. To assist local authorities, the Minister has drawn up in consultation with the associations of local authorities a procedure and forms of survey (appended to this memorandum) which, in his opinion, could with advantage be generally adopted and would enable local authorities to obtain speedily a comprehensive view of the overcrowding situation in their areas. Returns on a uniform basis are necessary to enable the Minister to obtain a complete picture of the housing conditions in the country as a whole, which is of the first importance for administrative purposes.

The general scheme contemplates a preliminary house to house survey of all working class houses in the area of a local authority. This survey will be directed as respects each such house only to the questions (a) whether it is empty, and (b) if it is occupied what is (i) the number of families and of persons in each family, and (ii) the number of rooms occupied by each family. The application to the facts so disclosed of Table I in the First Schedule (see paragraph 3 of this memorandum) will at once show a certain number of families to be overcrowded. This preliminary survey will not, however, disclose those families which, though not overcrowded when regard is had solely to the number of rooms in accordance with Table I, would nevertheless be found to infringe the standard when Table II, which takes account of the size of rooms, is applied. A family which is not overcrowded according to Table I but which is overcrowded when Table II is applied, must be very near the overcrowding level on Table I. It should accordingly be possible on the first survey to pick out all the cases which are likely to fall within the latter category and to arrange for a further inspection and measurement of the rooms in the houses concerned. It will of course also be necessary to measure the rooms in each house shown to be definitely overcrowded, in order to ascertain the exact extent of the overcrowding, but this step can await the completion of measurement in the doubtful cases. The procedure to be followed and the appropriate forms of record to be used (Forms A and B) are dealt with in the appendix to this memorandum. It will facilitate the summarizing of the results obtained from the Forms if from the commencement arrangements are made whereby the forms relating to particular areas (e.g., wards) or particular classes of property are kept separate. For example, there might well be one set of forms relating solely to houses in the area owned by the local authority, while the arrangements should, if possible, ensure that the authority can separate those forms relating to houses which are likely to be dealt with under the slum clearance programme. It is suggested also that for ease of handling by the enumerators the forms should be printed in blocks of 100 with a cover on which are printed the instructions to the enumerators. Where this is done, the sheets should be provided with a perforated edge to facilitate removal of any particular form where this is necessary.

The Minister is satisfied that the house to house enumeration which forms the foundation of the return can be completed in a comparatively short space of time. It will necessitate in some cases the division of the areas of local authorities into separate districts and the employment of temporary staff, and arrangements for instructing that staff in their duties. As a result of consultations with representatives of local authorities, the Minister considers that one enumerator could reasonably be expected to visit, and complete the forms for, 300 houses per week. In making their arrangements the local authority should bear in mind that technical qualifications on the part of the enumerator are not essential; in many cases they may be able to make temporary use of members of their staff normally employed on other work. Local authorities will doubtless consider the desirability of giving occupiers written intimation beforehand of the time and purpose of the enumerator's visit and of providing him with some suitable form of authorisation for production to the occupiers. It will be remembered in this connection that a local authority have power to enter and obtain particulars of occupation under the Act (see paragraph 7). The staff should in all cases be selected with due regard to the need for tact and courtesy and where measurement of rooms is necessary, only persons on whose accuracy reliance can be placed should be employed. If, at the date when the report on the inspection is to be submitted to the Minister, the authority have not been able to complete all necessary room measurements, they should not delay the submission. Their experience of the houses already measured will enable them to make a close estimate of the position of those still to be measured, and this estimate should be used to complete their report.

It is suggested that when Form B has been completed in respect of a particular house it should form the basis of the record of the local authority's action in dealing with the overcrowding in that house. For this purpose the back of the form, if provided with suitable headings to meet the needs of the locality, could conveniently be used.

17. The Record of the Inspection.—Whatever form of record is used, it is essential that it shall show the number of families found to be overcrowded and the sizes of those families, together with the amount of new accommodation which would be necessary to abate the overcrowding, regard being had to any existing vacant accommodation and the accommodation which would be rendered available by displacements. The Minister has thought it desirable to draw up a model form (Form C appended) in which the results of the survey can be presented to the local authority and to him.

Form C will be completed by a simple process of addition of the facts disclosed by the separate returns. It will be seen that the form is intersected by a diagonal line by the help of which the completed form will at once give a picture of the housing conditions (so far as density is concerned) of the working classes in the area concerned. The figures to the left of the diagonal line show the overcrowded families—those to the right the families which are not overcrowded. Further, the entries on the form will show as regards each size of overcrowded family the accommodation which it occupies and consequently the extent of the deficiency which has to be made up. And there are many other directions, such as the selection of the most pressing need requiring immediately alleviation, in which information of substantive importance to the housing authority can be derived from such a summary.

Form C may be completed either for the whole area of a local authority, for separate wards or other parts of that area, or for particular classes of houses, e.g., those belonging to a local authority or those included in the slum clearance programme of a local authority. In every case a form covering the whole area of the authority and forms covering the houses in the area belonging (a) to that authority and (b) to other local authorities are to be forwarded to the Minister, and should be accompanied by copies of any subsidiary forms which the local authority have prepared for their own purposes.

From the completed Forms C the authority will make their first rough estimate of the accommodation required to abate overcrowding. For this purpose there can be estimated from the form the total numbers of two-roomed, three-roomed, four-roomed, etc., houses which would be required to rehouse the families shown to be overcrowded. From these totals are to be deducted the number of houses of the same sizes which would be left vacant by the removal of the overcrowded families. The number of vacant houses of the same sizes which were vacant at the time of the survey should also be deducted. The resulting estimate of need, adjusted to take account of the difference between the overcrowding standard and the standard of Section 37 of the 1930 Act, would only be approximate, but in most cases would be sufficient to form the basis of at any rate the first rehousing proposals.

The survey, the report to the Minister on that survey incorporating Form C and the submission of housing proposals based on that report are to be carried through before dates which are, under Section 1 of the Act, to be fixed by the Minister who is now in correspondence with the Associations of Local Authorities on this matter and hopes to issue definite directions in the near future. But there is one further factor which will require consideration before the process of providing additional accommodation is completed, and this is the extent to which the overcrowding and the need of additional accommodation turns upon the presence of lodgers, or sub-tenants, and at a later date it will be necessary again to analyse the individual forms collected in the course of the survey so as to deal with this factor. The Minister will address a further communication to local authorities in due course to deal with this matter, which is mentioned at the present stage merely to ensure that the survey forms (even if they are not, as they can be, used as the basis of future housing records in the area) are preserved for this purpose.

18. Proposals for Rehousing.—Section 1 of the Act provides that unless a local authority are satisfied that the necessary accommodation shown by their report to be required for the abatement of overcrowding will be otherwise provided, the local authority must prepare and submit to the Minister proposals for providing such accommodation. The financial assistance available to local authorities in connection with the provision of such accommodation is explained in Memorandum D.

As already indicated, the date by which the general proposals of the local authority should be in the hands of the Minister will be given in a later communication. Generally, no doubt, the necessary accommodation will take the form of cottages and there should be no difficulty in such cases in the submission by the local authority at an early date of specific proposals for providing such accommodation. In considering their proposals the authority must take into account the number of overcrowded unfit houses which will fall to be dealt with as unfit houses under their slum clearance programme under the 1930 Act and not under the new Act, and also the accommodation provided, or likely to be provided, by private enterprise. Many local authorities will find that they have a certain number of very large families to provide for who cannot be adequately accommodated in the type of house normally provided by them. To meet the needs of such families, a local authority may sometimes be able to acquire suitable existing houses and for this purpose the powers of compulsory acquisition conferred by Section 20 of the Act will be available, if necessary. In other cases the local authority may themselves have to build houses containing five or even six bedrooms. Where this is necessary an endeavour should be made so to plan the house that at a later date it can readily be converted into two houses suitable for the occupation of two families.

In the larger centres of population it may not be practicable to meet the needs of displaced families and others who, for industrial or other reasons, require accommodation in central areas otherwise than by building flats. Where it is necessary to use for rehousing expensive central sites the erection of flats will be the only adequate and reasonably economical method of development, and the Act, recognising this, makes provision for the payment of a special subsidy in such circumstances. The sites of clearance areas and such vacant sites in central areas as can be acquired will normally lend themselves to this method of development, but there will be areas where nothing short of the exercise by the local authority of their powers of redevelopment—more fully dealt with in Memorandum C—will meet the needs of the case. In submitting their proposals under Section 1 of the Act, local authorities who intend to exercise those powers should indicate how many of the total number of overcrowded houses, as disclosed by the survey, are situated in the part of their area to be redeveloped, and how many constitute the balance to be covered by the proposals submitted.

In submitting their proposals to the Minister, the local authority should give their estimate of the total number of houses of the various types and sizes which they consider will be necessary. This total estimate will be based on the results of the analysis of Form C, as modified by other information in the possession of the local authority such as the effect of future demolitions and rehousing under the 1930 Act, the effect of building by private enterprise and the possibility of further cases of overcrowding arising in the near future by the growth of families in age and numbers. Where the amount of rehousing thus shown to be necessary is comparatively small, the local authority should submit specific proposals for the building of the total number of houses. Where, however, a substantial amount of rehousing is indicated as being required, the local authority should in the first instance submit specific proposals providing for only a proportion of the total number. In choosing the houses to be included in the first specific proposals, the local authority will of course have regard to the necessity for relieving the worst cases of overcrowding first and the first proposals should include houses of the proper types and suitably placed for this purpose. Form D appended to this memorandum is based on and largely reproduces the Form in which housing proposals have been submitted to the Minister. As revised it can conveniently be used for the submission of specific proposals based on the survey.

When the houses included in the first proposals of the authority have been completed they should, when submitting further proposals for building, furnish a report to the Minister showing how far the accommodation already provided has abated overcrowding and to what extent the accommodation rendered vacant by the removal of overcrowded families has been re-utilised. Experience gained in this way may lead the local authority to consider that their original estimate of need ought to be revised. In this connection it is relevant to point out that local authorities may often be able to make arrangements whereby the landlord of an overcrowded house, the occupants of which are being removed to alternative accommodation, may agree to accept as tenants persons from another house with the result that overcrowding in this other house is also abated. Often, too, a local authority may find that aged persons, owing to the lack of accommodation more suited to their needs, are occupying houses suitable for families, and in such a case the provision of houses suitable for aged persons may reduce the need for the provision of larger houses. Arrangements of this kind made with the agreement of all the parties concerned, may greatly reduce the amount of accommodation apparently necessary to abate overcrowding.

Instructions to enumerators.

A separate form must be used for each structurally separate dwelling.

Entries 1 and 2.—May in some cases be filled in at the office in advance.

Entry 3.—Insert brief description of property, e.g., two-storied house, tenement house, etc.

Entry 4.—The name of each tenant and sub-tenant occupying a portion of the premises as a separate dwelling is to be entered here.

Entry 5.—Must only include rooms normally used as living rooms or bedrooms in the locality.

The age to be taken into account is the age on the birthday next after the date of the enumeration.

NOTE.—Particulars should be filled in as far as possible whether the house is occupied or not. When dealing with an empty house the enumerator should enter the word "none" under entry 4, and if it is not possible to obtain precise information as to the number of rooms he should enter his estimate under column 5 putting E after the number. Thus if he estimates that the house has 3 habitable rooms he should enter 3E in column 5.

Instructions to office.

Entries 1 and 2.—May be found in the rate book (if filled in at the office).

Entry 7 (a).—This is calculated from entry 6. Persons over 10 count as 1. Persons under 10 count as $\frac{1}{2}$.

Entry 7 (b).—This is the number calculated from 5 using column (b) in the table below.

Entry 7 (c).—This is the number calculated from entry 5 using column (c) in the table below.

Entry 7 (d).—If 7 (a) is greater than 7 (b) (i.e. definite overcrowding) put + + here.

If 7 (a) is greater than or equal to 7 (c) (i.e. possible overcrowding) but less than or equal to 7 (b) put + here.

* This table is based on the assumption that in the ordinary dwelling some of the rooms will be below 110 square feet in area, and that consequently the permitted number ascertained solely from number of rooms without regard to their size would normally be in excess of the exact permitted number. The allowance for this factor in the table given is about one-fifth. The Medical Officer of Health may, however, find a different factor more appropriate for his district, in which case he will amend the third column of the table accordingly.

Instructions for filling in Form B [post, p. 2979]. (At the House.)

A separate form must be used for each structurally separate dwelling.

The office will normally have filled up entries 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, but if any of these are left blank the inspecting officer should elicit the facts and fill them up at the inspection. The inspecting officer should append his initials and the date.

Entry 6.—The "landlord" means the immediate landlord of the occupier in column 5. Thus in the case of a sub-tenancy, the "landlord" will be the tenant letting out the sub-tenancy.

Entries 7 and 8.—These will include only the persons normally sleeping on the premises. For entry 8 the age of persons under 10 is to be entered in years and twelfths of a year, (e.g. 5 years 9 months as $5\frac{9}{12}$, the age to be reckoned on the day of the month which corresponds with his birthday and follows next after the date of the inspection. Thus if a child was born on the 10th of January and the inspection in on the 20th of April, the age to be taken is the age on the 10th of May—i.e. so many years and 4 months; if he was born on the 25th of January the age to be taken would be that on the 25th of April.

Entry 9.—Normally the length and breadth will be entered—the area being computed and entered at the office—measurements being taken according to the instructions issued, but where rooms have a very awkward shape the inspecting officer should himself measure the floor area and complete entry 10.

Entries 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16 will be filled up at the office.

Instructions for filling in Form B [ante, p. 2979]. (At the Office.)

This form is to be filled up as far as possible at the office but if there is any doubt as to facts (e.g., the responsible tenant) they should be left for the inspecting officer to elicit and fill in.

Entries 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 will normally be filled in at the office from Form A.

One Form is to be used for each house, the separate tenancies (1), (2), etc., being filled in from Form A. From the number of rooms given on Form A it will be possible to draw the line between the various tenancies. In practice it will probably be better to leave space for one or two rooms extra to avoid confusion if a mistake has been made on Form A.

Entries 6, 7, 8, 9 will be filled in by the inspecting officer, together with his initials and the date.

Entry 10 will normally be filled in at the office, but if it is not possible to measure length and breadth (e.g., if the room has a very awkward shape), the inspecting officer will have entered his estimate of the floor area.

Entries 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16 will be filled in at the office.

Entry 11 will be the number of persons allowed for each room according to Table II having regard to the description of the room (rooms not normally used in the locality as living rooms or bedrooms should not be counted).

Entry 12 will be the sum of entries 11.

Entry 13 will be the number allowed under Table I.

[N.B.—No room under 50 square feet or not normally used as a living room or a bedroom in the locality may be counted.]

Entry 14 is the lesser of entries 12 and 13.

Entry 15 is calculated from entries 7 and 8 and is the number of persons of 10 or over plus half the number of children of 1 year, or over, but under 10.

Children below 1 year will not be counted but in making entry 15, due regard should be paid to the difference in the date of making this entry and the date entered by the inspecting officer on his inspection.

For example, if 3 months have elapsed, all children entered as of age $9\frac{9}{12}$, $9\frac{10}{12}$, $9\frac{11}{12}$, will be counted as of age 10 or over, and each must count as a whole unit and not a half. Similarly, all children of age $\frac{9}{12}$, $\frac{10}{12}$, $\frac{11}{12}$ must be entered as children between 1 and 10 years.

Entry 16 will be made at the same time as entry 15. A + sign should be put :—

(a) If the number under 15 exceeds that under 14 ; or

(b) If there are insufficient rooms to allow of proper segregation of the sexes for persons of 10 or over.

Entry 17 should be filled in for those houses which if still occupied by the same family (which includes children under 10) are likely to become overcrowded within two years. The entry will be the month and the year, one month after which the house would be overcrowded. For example, if the survey is made in January, 1935, for a house having a permitted number of 3 persons and the occupants are a man, wife, one child entered as $\frac{5}{12}$ and another as $8\frac{7}{12}$, then in 7 months the number of "persons" will be 3, and in 1 year and 5 months it will be $3\frac{1}{2}$, i.e., the house will be overcrowded. The "date for review" will then be 1 year and 4 months after January, 1935, i.e., May, 1936, and the entry will be $\frac{5}{36}$.

Instructions for Completing Form C.

This form is a summary of the information obtained from Form A and Form B, and the particulars in relation to every house covered by those Forms should be entered whether or not the house is overcrowded.

The Form printed on pages 26 and 27 deals with families up to a size corresponding to $8\frac{1}{2}$ "persons"; the Form actually used must of course extend sufficiently far to deal with the largest family in the district covered by the Form.

The method of compilation is simple. In any individual case the number of persons in the family (i.e., the line on the Form) will be given in Form B or in column 7 (a) of Form A and the permitted number in the dwellings occupied (i.e. the column of the Form) either in Form B or, where this Form has not been completed, in column 7 (c) of Form A. For example, if the entries on Form A are 3 persons, in column 7 (a) of the Form, and 2 persons in column 7 (c) of that Form, a note will be made in Form C in line 3 of column 2 as indicated by ×.

Cases where overcrowding exists will fall below the stepped diagonal line, and the worst cases will be those which are farthest from this line.

The totals column at the side is obtained by adding the entries on each line. The total at (a) in each line is the sum of the entries in the line in the spaces to the left of the diagonal; that at (b) is the sum of the entries to the right of the diagonal.

(If desired similar totals of columns could be inserted at the foot of the Form.)

MEMORANDUM C—THE REDEVELOPMENT OF OVERCROWDED AREAS.

1. Introductory.—The existence of serious overcrowding in the central parts of some of the cities and larger urban areas constitutes a special problem which the efforts of public and private enterprise have so far notoriously failed to solve. It is recognised that a solution cannot be found in new building, however intensive, on sites more or less remote from the areas affected, and special provisions have been introduced as the basis of effective action to deal with the evil. These central overcrowded areas contain aggregations of houses, often let out in parts to several families though ill adapted for the purpose, which are largely occupied by persons who for various reasons, including the desire to be near their place of work, are unwilling or unable to move far from their present homes. The resultant pressure on the limited accommodation available frequently produces overcrowding in an acute degree. Bad development, with mean and narrow streets, is usually a characteristic of such areas, the houses and other buildings being congested and arranged in a manner least calculated to secure adequate and economic use of the valuable sites which they occupy. The only way in which the overcrowding in such areas can be materially alleviated is by the provision within the areas of suitable accommodation for as many persons as the sites which are, or can be made, available will allow, if adequately developed in accordance with modern standards. As such areas usually contain few, if any, vacant sites, the problem resolves itself into clearing away a large part of the existing buildings and redeveloping the cleared sites. Provisions have accordingly been inserted in Part I of the new Act (b) which will arm local authorities with the necessary power to clear these congested areas and redevelop them on modern lines. Where certain specified conditions calling for the exercise of these powers are found to exist in any area within the jurisdiction of an urban authority, it will be the duty of the authority, by resolution and definition on a map, to declare the particular area to be a redevelopment area, and to take the further action for securing the necessary redevelopment which is detailed in later paragraphs of this Memorandum.

2. The Importance of Proper Planning.—The statutory provisions contemplate a close connection between the treatment of redevelopment areas and town planning. One of the specified conditions which must exist before an area can be declared a redevelopment area is that "it is expedient in connection with the provision of housing accommodation for the working classes that the area should be redeveloped as a whole," and the Act specifically requires that, in the preparation of a redevelopment plan, regard is to be had to the provision of any planning scheme or proposed scheme relating to the area and neighbouring land.

These two objects, the provision of adequate housing accommodation and the correlation of the development thereby entailed with the provisions of wider planning schemes, must therefore be borne in mind from the commencement by a local authority proposing to operate the redevelopment provisions of the new Act.

Once they have decided that the conditions in a particular part of their area are such that it becomes their duty to declare a redevelopment area, the actual limits of that area will depend almost as much on planning considerations as on housing and financial considerations. From the very earliest stage of their proceedings, therefore, it is essential that the Housing Committee and the Town Planning Committee should work in the closest co-operation. How this is to be arranged should receive the careful consideration of the local authority, and the Minister does not wish to urge any particular method beyond suggesting that in many cases joint sittings of the two Committees would be helpful. This co-operation must obviously continue throughout the preparation of the redevelopment plan. If there is any planning scheme in existence or in preparation relating to the area, the redevelopment plan will naturally follow this scheme. If there is no such scheme in existence or contemplation, the redevelopment plan will as regards the area affected be the practical equivalent of such a scheme. It is essential, therefore, that any redevelopment plan proposed by a local authority should have the full concurrence of the Planning Committee.

3. Financial Considerations.—It will frequently be the case that the local authority will find themselves faced with the problem of rehousing in a redevelopment area at least the same number of working class families as now reside there. Both for this reason, and also to secure the proper utilisation of the expensive sites, the rehousing will normally take the form of the erection of blocks of flats of three or more storeys in height over a considerable portion of the redevelopment area. The estimated cost of the site will be known, and from this the rate of the Exchequer subsidy per flat and of contribution from the rates can be calculated by reference to the Table given in the Third Schedule to the Act (a) (see also Memorandum D of this series), while in the case of property which is unfit for habitation the Exchequer subsidy and rate contribution under the 1930 Act will be known. So far, therefore, as the redevelopment area is to be used for rehousing, the authority will be able to form estimates of the capital cost of redevelopment and of the annual charges to be met. Where, as will often be the case, the whole redevelopment area is to be used for such rehousing, no other considerations will arise. Where, however, part of the area is to be developed for purposes other than housing, the local authority must from the first have regard to the fact that after the plan has been approved, it will be their duty to buy any land in respect of which effective arrangements have not been made for compliance with the plan, either by continuance of the existing user, or by redevelopment where the plan contemplates a change of user, and to hold that land until they can sell or lease it on terms which secure that it is used or redeveloped in accordance with the plan. A local authority may for the first few years of the scheme have to meet the loan charges on the capital cost of the land they have purchased without a corresponding income, but ultimately they may reasonably expect to be fully recouped for their expenditure. Such temporary charges in the first years of the scheme would necessarily fall on the rates, as the transactions relating to land in the redevelopment area not to be used for rehousing will not form part of the Housing Revenue Account.

4. The Bill as introduced contemplated that redevelopment areas would not be found necessary as a means to secure the improvement of housing except as regards the largest towns. In the course of discussion in Parliament it appeared that there might well be smaller towns in which housing difficulties could not be entirely met either by slum clearance or by the provision of additional houses on the outskirts of the built-up area, and accordingly the Act as passed confers the redevelopment powers on all urban authorities.

5. The Redevelopment Area.—Section 13 (b) lays down the conditions which must exist in an area before it can be declared a redevelopment area. They are (a) that the area contains 50 or more working-class houses; (b) that at least one-third of the working class houses in the area are overcrowded or unfit for human habitation and not capable at reasonable expense of being rendered so fit, or so arranged as to be congested; (c) that the industrial and social conditions of the local authority's district are such that the area should be used to a substantial extent for rehousing; and (d) that it is expedient in connection with the provision of housing accommodation that the area should be redeveloped as a whole.

Such an area should include all the property within a continuous line. It may include properties belonging to the authority and properties which the authority cannot, or do not propose to, interfere with in any way. Such properties might, for example, be churches, railway property or properties belonging to private owners the user of which it is not proposed to change.

Where a local authority find that the foregoing conditions exist in relation to any area in their district, it is their duty to declare the area to be a redevelopment area. They should—

(1) Define the area on a map.

(2) Pass a resolution declaring the area so defined to be a proposed redevelopment area.

(3) Publish in one or more newspapers circulating in their district a notice stating that the resolution has been passed and naming the place where a copy of the resolution and map may be inspected.

(4) Forward to the Minister a copy of the map and of their resolution.

The map should be on a scale of not less than 1/2500.

In submitting the copies of the map and resolution, the Council should inform the Minister, if the facts are not already given in the resolution, of the number of working-class houses in the area and the number which have been found to be overcrowded or which, in the opinion of the authority, are unfit for human habitation and not capable at reasonable expense of being rendered so fit, or are so arranged as to be congested, giving separately the number of houses in each such category. They should also furnish the Minister with a copy of each of the local newspapers containing the notice relating to the resolution.

6. The Redevelopment Plan.—Section 14 (a) provides that within six months after passing the resolution declaring a redevelopment area or within such extended period as the Minister may allow, the authority are to prepare and submit to the Minister a redevelopment plan for the area.

The plan is to show the manner in which the area is intended to be laid out and the land used whether for existing purposes or for purposes which necessitate redevelopment. In particular, it must indicate the land intended to be used for working-class houses, for streets and for open spaces. It is not either necessary or practicable for the plan to prescribe in detail the precise sites of particular buildings which will be permitted, but it should indicate the general purposes—industrial, commercial, and so forth—for which the land is to be appropriated. As explained below, the method of securing the development and use of the land for these purposes will be that of imposing contractual obligations on the owners.

If the local authority desire an extension of the six months period in any case, they should apply to the Minister at least one month before the expiration of the statutory period setting out their reasons for desiring the extension. Apart from this, the general procedure will be as follows:—

(1) The redevelopment plan should be prepared by the Housing and Planning Committees of the Council acting in co-operation and should be approved by the authority. The plan should be on a scale sufficient to show with precision the lines of the streets, the land to be used for working-class houses and the land to be kept for open spaces, and should show generally by the use of distinctive colouring the purposes for which it is proposed that the other land in the area should be used. The plan should also show clearly any properties in the area which the redevelopment would leave untouched. It is very desirable that the plan should be prepared in accordance with the instructions contained in a Memorandum, T. & C.P.5, relating to the preparation of planning maps, issued by the Minister in February, 1935. Copies of this memorandum can be obtained by application to the Ministry.

(2) Notice in the prescribed form should be published in one or more local newspapers stating that a plan has been prepared, naming the place where it can be inspected and specifying the time within which, and the manner in which, objections to the plan can be made.

(3) Notice to the same effect should be served in the prescribed form on every owner, lessee and occupier (except tenants for a month or less) of any land in the area and on every local authority, company, body or person owning mains, pipes, electric lines, etc. in the area.

(4) The Minister should be furnished with—

(a) copies of newspapers containing the advertisement and of notices;

(b) certificate of service of notices;

(c) certified copy of the redevelopment plan;

(d) a formal resolution of the authority applying for approval of the plan.

(5) If objections are made to the plan and are not withdrawn, a public local inquiry will be held.

(6) The Minister may approve the plan with or without modifications, and notice of the Minister's approval must be published in local newspapers and sent to those objectors who appeared at the Inquiry. The Minister has prescribed forms of notice for this purpose.

If, after a plan has been approved, the local authority desire to modify the layout of any of the land included in the approved plan, it will be necessary for them to submit a new plan covering the area of which the layout is to be modified, and before this new plan can be approved, the procedure appropriate to a redevelopment plan must be complied with.

The provisions of subsections (3), (4) and (5) of Section 11 of the Act of 1930 (a) apply to the Minister's approval of a redevelopment plan as they apply to the Minister's confirmation of orders under the 1930 Act. In effect, this means that the Minister's approval becomes operative six weeks after the publication of notice of his approval unless within that time the validity of his action has been questioned by proceedings taken in the High Court.

7. Redevelopment by Owners.—It is explained in paragraphs 14 and 15 of Memorandum A that owners wishing to carry out a scheme for the redevelopment of their own property may submit plans of their proposals to the local authority. If the property in question is included in an area which is likely to be declared a redevelopment area by the local authority in the near future, the authority, in considering such proposals, should take steps to satisfy themselves that they are not likely to conflict with any redevelopment plan they have in mind. If the property is included in an area which has already been declared to be a redevelopment area, the local authority, in lieu of considering the owner's proposals themselves, may treat them as objections to their own proposals for dealing with the area and submit them to the Minister for his consideration when dealing with the subsequent redevelopment plan.

8. The Carrying out of the Plan.—Once the plan has been approved by the Minister, it will rest with the local authority to secure that the redevelopment shown in the plan is carried out. The work of constructing new streets, providing new housing accommodation and open spaces, will be carried out by the local authority themselves, or under arrangements made by them with a housing association, but the remaining development will fall to be carried out by private enterprise.

(a) Redevelopment for Housing.—It may sometimes be possible for a local authority to make arrangements with the owners of property in the area to be used for rehousing whereby those owners will themselves redevelop the property in conformity with the plan. Any such arrangements should secure to the satisfaction of the authority that the new housing accommodation will be suitable to the needs of the persons for whom it is required. Where arrangements of this kind cannot be made, the local authority should endeavour to purchase the land by agreement, and failing this, must, before the expiration of six months from the date on which the approval of the plan becomes operative, submit a compulsory purchase order to the Minister. A local authority is not empowered however to purchase compulsorily the property of a local authority or of statutory undertakers. The period of six months may be extended by the Minister on the application of the authority. Any such application for extension should reach the Minister at least one month before the expiration of the fixed period.

The form of compulsory purchase order to be used has been prescribed by the Minister, and the land acquired will be deemed to have been purchased under Part III of the Housing Act, 1925, so that all the powers of dealing with such land which are conferred on local authorities by Section 59 of that Act will apply (a). They also have all the additional rights and powers to deal with the land which they have in the case of land in a clearance area which is the subject of a compulsory purchase order. They may make and submit orders to the Minister for the closing of streets, and they may remove or divert pipes, mains, etc. in those streets.

(b) Redevelopment other than for Housing.—A local authority should endeavour to make arrangements whereby the existing owners of land in the redevelopment area or other persons undertake to carry out the redevelopment, or in a case where no change of user is contemplated, to continue the existing use of the land in accordance with the plan. Section 78 (b) gives the authority power to enforce covenants against any persons deriving title under the covenantor. In so far as such arrangements have not been made, it is the duty of the local authority to purchase the land in the area by agreement, or within two years from the date when the scheme becomes operative to submit compulsory purchase orders for the acquisition of the property. This date may be extended by the Minister on the application of the authority. Local authorities are empowered to acquire compulsorily land outside the redevelopment area for the purpose of providing accommodation for persons occupying premises within it which the authority propose to purchase. Where a local authority have purchased land—other than land for housing purposes—in a redevelopment area, they are empowered, with the consent of the Minister, to sell or lease that land subject to the condition that it shall be redeveloped in accordance with the redevelopment plan, and have the same powers of closing streets, etc., as they have in the case of land in a clearance area which has been compulsorily acquired.

It is essential that the conditions on which the land is disposed of should ensure not only proper redevelopment but also that the use of the land when redeveloped should accord with the plan, and that there should be no danger of the area slipping back into its previous condition. In deciding whether to dispose of the freehold of the land or to grant leases, the local authority should bear this point in mind. In some cases it may be desirable to supplement the contractual obligations imposed on the purchasers or lessees of the land by provisions in a planning scheme.

9. Unfit Houses in a Redevelopment Area.—A redevelopment area will normally contain a number of houses which are unfit for human habitation and not capable at reasonable expense of being made so fit. The existence of such houses may have been one of the grounds upon which it became the duty of the authority to declare the redevelopment area, but once this step has been taken, there is nothing in the redevelopment sections of the new Act which in any way prevents a local authority from taking any action under the 1930 Act which is called for by the circumstances. They may, for instance, serve closing orders and demolition orders as if the redevelopment area had not been declared. This course may be desirable, for example, where the owner wishes to be left with the site to develop it himself. In many cases, however, the proposals of the local authority will involve the acquisition of these unfit houses, and in order to avoid duplication of procedure, it is provided that where a local authority submit a compulsory purchase order relating to property in a redevelopment area, the houses which they consider to be unfit for human habitation and not capable at reasonable expense of being rendered so fit are to be distinguished in the order. The provisions of Section 63 (c) of the Act will be applicable, so that it will be necessary for the local authority to inform persons objecting to the compulsory purchase of houses as unfit houses of the principal grounds on which their property is considered unfit, in the same way as if the property had been dealt with under the 1930 Act. Unless the Minister modifies or rejects the order, the result so far as the unfit property is concerned, will be the same as if that property had been comprised in a compulsory purchase order relating to property in a clearance area, that is to say, the basis of compensation will be site value and the rehousing subsidy under the Act of 1930 will be available (Section 35 (1) of the Act (a)). Where such property is included in a confirmed order. Section 88 of the Act (a) applies, Section 41 of the Act of 1930 (b) (power to make allowances to certain persons displaced), and Section 64 of the Act (a) (payments in respect of well-maintained houses) will also apply.

10. Basis of Compensation.—Apart from the unfit houses dealt with in the preceding paragraph, the basis of compensation for property in a redevelopment area which is purchased by the local authority is that laid down in Part II of the Third Schedule to the Act of 1930 (c) as amended by the new Act. The basis of compensation will therefore be the same as for any property (other than unfit property) purchased under the Housing Act powers, but in assessing compensation, the arbitrator is directed to have regard to, and to make an allowance in respect of, any increased value which in his opnion will be given to other premises of the same owner by the proposed redevelopment of the area in accordance with the redevelopment plan.

The new provision described in Memorandum A of this series relating to the compensation of statutory undertakers whose pipes, mains, cables, etc., are removed or diverted by the local authority in the course of their proceedings (Section 91) applies to redevelopment areas as well as to clearance areas.

11. Rehousing.—Section 18 (d) provides that where suitable accommodation is not available for working-class persons displaced during redevelopment, the local authority shall provide or secure the provision of such accommodation in advance of the displacements. Where, therefore, the site to be used for rehousing is already covered with working-class houses, it will be necessary for the local authority to make arrangements for rehousing some of the persons elsewhere for a time at any rate in order to enable them to make a start with rehousing. The rehousing will normally take the form of blocks of flats of three or more storeys in height, and the rate of Government subsidy available where such flats are erected on expensive sites is dealt with in Memorandum D of this series. Only in exceptional circumstances would the Minister be prepared to approve of blocks of flats exceeding five storeys in height. In submitting to the Minister for his approval their rehousing proposals, a local authority should furnish layout plans as well as plans and elevations of the buildings to be erected and details of the method of construction proposed.

The Minister considers it to be most desirable that each flat should, so far as possible, be equipped with a private balcony. One advantage of a private balcony as distinct from the access balcony is that babies can sleep in the open, free from disturbance—a factor which is undoubtedly of great importance to health. The Minister considers that this aspect of the question is so important that in cases where the provision of the normal family type of balcony is, for any reason, impracticable, the local authority should consider the question of providing a small balcony to each flat with free access to light and air and of sufficient size to accommodate a baby, and he is advised that such a balcony can be installed at no great cost if provision is made for it during the construction of the flats. Where balconies are constructed for babies, it is important that adequate safeguards should be provided and instructions given in their proper use.

The Departmental Committee appointed by the Minister to report on materials and methods of construction suitable for the building of blocks of flats, with special reference to efficiency and cost, has recently issue an Interim Report which will doubtless be of service to local authorities. The staff of the Ministry is available to

MEMORANDUM D—FINANCIAL PROVISIONS.

1. The financial provisions of the Housing Act, 1935, are contained in Part III of that Act, which itself is divided into four subsidiary parts relating to—

(a) contributions from the Exchequer and the rates towards the expenses of housing accommodation provided for the abatement of overcrowding or for rehousing persons displaced in carrying out redevelopment;

(b) arrangements for the periodical review of those contributions and of the corresponding contributions under the Housing Act, 1930;

(c) the extension and amendment of the Housing (Rural Workers) Acts, 1926 and 1931;

(d) consolidation of housing accounts.

The present Memorandum deals with the first and second of these matters. The provisions relating to the Housing (Rural Workers) Acts and the consolidation of housing accounts are dealt with in Memorandum A and Memorandum E of this series, respectively.

The Exchequer contributions provided for by the Act are in no sense to be general housing subsidies but, like the subisidies under the Housing Act, 1930, they are only to be available in connection with rehousing work carried out with the approval of the Minister for a specific purpose. Unlike those subsidies they are to be based on the actual number of houses or flats provided for rehousing and not on the number of persons displaced. Except in the case of accommodation provided in blocks of flats on expensive sites, there is not to be a uniform fixed rate of subsidy available to all local authorities. The Act contemplates that contributions in other cases shall be given only where, and only to the extent that, they are shown to be necessary. There are to be no special rent conditions attaching to the new subsidies. The general rent conditions (vide Memorandum E) replace all special conditions imposed by particular Housing Acts, and will govern the use of the new houses provided under the Act as well as that of houses already provided by the local authority.

2. Blocks of Flats on Expensive Sites.—Section 31 and the Third Schedule to the Act (a) lay down the statutory scale of Exchequer contributions payable in respect of each flat in a block of flats erected on a site the cost of which, as developed, exceeds £1,500 per acre. The cost of erection of a flat is greater than the cost of a cottage affording equivalent accommodation, and the Act recognises that this fact, combined with the high cost of central sites, makes a subsidy necessary if rents are to be kept at a reasonable level. Provision is accordingly made for the payment of subsidy in all cases where the approved rehousing accommodation takes this form. The scale of contributions is graduated to meet the varying cost of central sites. For convenience the Table in the Schedule is reproduced here :—

HOUSING

Subsidy will be payable in respect of blocks of flats the erection of which was begun on or after February 1, 1935.

The expression "block of flats" is defined in Section 97 of the Act (a). The building must consist of three or more storeys, exclusive of any storey which is constructed for use for purposes other than those of a dwellinghouse.

The expression "cost of the site as developed" is defined in paragraph 2 of the Third Schedule to the Act, which indicates the nature of some of the expenses which may be included as part of that cost, and allows the inclusion of such other necessary expenses as the Minister, with the consent of the Treasury, may approve. The Minister has considered suggestions which have been received from Associations of Local Authorities, and, with the consent of the Treasury, he is prepared to approve the inclusion of the following additional classes of expenditure :—

(1) Legal expenses and arbitration costs in connection with the purchase of the site ;

(2) Compensation and removal expenses properly paid to displaced tenants ;

(3) The net cost of clearing the site and stopping existing streets and services ;

(4) The cost of supervision and technical fees incurred in connection with the survey of the site and the construction of roads and sewers.

The amount of the expenses to be included as requisite for making the site available for the purpose of the provision of the flats is to be estimated by the local authority and approved by the Minister.

3. Rehousing on Other Sites.—In this case different considerations apply. Generally it is uneconomic to erect cottages on central sites. Nor is it generally desirable in towns of medium size or in small towns and urban areas that cottages should be built in central positions. Land is usually available within easy reach of the industrial parts, and it is preferable that the population should in such circumstances be accommodated in cottage estates. Under present conditions, and for some time past, it has been abundantly clear that cottages can generally be erected at a cost which enables the local authority to let them at reasonable rents without the aid of a subsidy or with a subsidy of comparatively small amount where conditions are less favourable. Accordingly it is provided that a subsidy will only be given in respect of cottage building (or of flats on sites not exceeding £1,500 per acre) where the circumstances justify it.

Section 32 (b) provides that where such circumstances obtain the Minister may, with the approval of the Treasury, undertake to make a contribution of such amount, not exceeding £5 a year per house or flat for a period not exceeding 20 years, as he considers necessary. For this purpose he must be satisfied that, having regard to the amount of the expenditure already incurred or to be incurred by the authority on housing in relation to the financial resources of the district, the proposed rehousing would impose an undue burden on the district by reason of (a) the rents which it will be practicable for the authority to charge having regard to the general conditions to be observed, or (b) the necessity for providing an unusually high proportion of accommodation for large families.

In view of the terms of the section, in most cases it will not be possible for the Minister to give any final decision on the question whether he could properly undertake to make any, and if so what subsidy towards the expenses of providing any particular rehousing accommodation included in specific proposals of a local authority until he has estimated the effect on the finances of that authority of the total number of houses which they would have to build in order to complete their slum clearance programme and to abate overcrowding. The Minister suggests, therefore, that before submitting an application for assistance under the section, they should complete the survey of overcrowding in their area and their estimate of the number of new houses which they will probably have to provide. Once this number is known the maximum amount of any additional financial burden likely to be thrown upon their area can be estimated on the basis of the probable cost of the houses and the rents which it will be practicable for them to charge. This burden may, in the case of some authorities, be considerably diminished, or even met entirely by other resources in the Housing Revenue Account. If, after examining the position in the light of these considerations, the local authority consider that they would be warranted in making an application for subsidy under the section, their application should be accompanied by a statement setting out all the relevant factors, including those mentioned above, the poundage of the current general rate, the current expenditure for housing falling to be borne by rates expressed as a rate in the £, and their reasons for considering that the carrying out of their housing programme without subsidy would impose an undue burden on their district.

A form in which such an application can be made will in due course be obtainable from the Ministry. There is, however, no reason to postpone for the settlement of this financial issue the proposals of the local authority for the provision of further houses or the actual erection of those houses.

4. Rehousing Accommodation for Agricultural Workers.—The Act recognises the special claims of rural districts so far as the housing of the agricultural population is concerned, and provision is made in Section 33 (a) for a special subsidy to be available to rural district councils providing houses for the relief of overcrowding among that section of the community. For this purpose "agricultural population" has the meaning given to it in Section 34 (2) of the Housing Act, 1930 (b). So far as other classes of workers are concerned, rural authorities will be in the same position as other authorities. The special Exchequer contribution in respect of houses approved for the agricultural population in rural districts will be an amount per house of not less than £2 or more than £8 per annum payable for a fixed period of 40 years.

Any application from a rural district council for a contribution under Section 33 falls to be considered by a Committee called the Rural Housing Committee which will be appointed by the Minister with the approval of the Treasury. This Committee will consider applications from rural district councils in the light of general directions given to them by the Minister with the approval of the Treasury, and the amount of the contribution to be made by the Minister within the limits above-mentioned will be based on their recommendation. Any application for a contribution under Section 33 by a rural district council should be addressed to the Minister when their rehousing proposals are submitted to him for his approval. The Minister will arrange for the consideration of the application by the Rural Housing Committee.

The special arrangement made in regard to overcrowded agricultural workers does not, it will be observed, preclude an application by a rural district council under Section 32 for assistance in regard to the necessary rehousing of the remainder of their population, nor does it limit their recourse to the facilities of the Act of 1930.

5. Rate Contributions.—Following the principle that has been adopted in previous housing legislation, local authorities to whom contributions are being paid by the Minister under the new Act are required themselves to make contributions from the general rate fund as follows:—

(i) In respect of houses (and flats) other than those erected by a rural district council for the agricultural population, the local authority's contribution, which will be provided in equal annual instalments over a period of 60 years, will be the sum equivalent to one-half of the amount of the Minister's contribution provided annually for the period for which the last mentioned contribution is payable.

(ii) In respect of each house erected by a rural district council for the agricultural population, the local authority's contribution will take the form of an equal annual payment for a period of 60 years equivalent to an annual sum of £1 payable for 40 years. The county council will also be required to make to the rural district council an annual payment of £1 for 40 years in respect of each such house. If the Minister should have exercised his power under Section 49 (c) to withhold or vary the Exchequer contributions because the local authority have failed to discharge their duty in the matter of reserving accommodation for members of the agricultural population, or other persons, the county council will be free from the liability to contribute either under this provision or under Section 34 of the 1930 Act (a).

The period of 60 years during which local authorities are required to make their contribution may, with the approval of the Minister, be reduced to a shorter period, which must not, however, be less than the period during which the Minister's contribution is payable. This provision is intended to meet the case of those local authorities who may borrow a substantial portion of their capital requirements for the buildings for a period corresponding to that for which the Exchequer subsidy is payable and who may prefer to discharge their liability for contributions from rates in the same period.

6. Periodical Review of Contributions.—Section 36 (b) provides for the review after October 1, 1937, and in each succeeding third year, of Exchequer contributions both under the new Act and under the Act of 1930. In the reviews the expenses towards which the Minister may make contributions under these Acts are to be taken into consideration. After each review the Minister will make an order, subject to the approval of Parliament, providing for the continuance, variation or cesser of contributions under the two Acts in respect of new houses not made available until after a date to be specified, but neither the rate of contribution nor the period during which it is payable may be increased. The order may deal also with the contributions to be made by local authorities so as to bring them into line with any variation of Exchequer contribution that may be made.

Under Section 28 of the Act of 1930, now repealed, the next review of the Exchequer contributions under that Act was due to take place after October 1, 1936, but the extension of this date to October 1, 1937, has been made in order that assistance at the present rate may be available during the period contemplated for the carrying out of the programme of slum clearance. It should be noted that the date to be specified in any order affecting Exchequer assistance under either Act that may be made as a result of the first review is to be March 31, 1938, so that houses available by that date will not be affected by any change made.

7. Contributions to Housing Associations.—Section 27 (3) (c) provides that the like contributions shall be payable to a local authority in respect of houses provided by a Housing Association under approved arrangements with them, as if the houses had been provided by the local authority themselves, and the authority are to pay to the Association by way of annual grant an amount not less than the contributions. The scope of the arrangements which may be made with Housing Associations is dealt with in Section 27 and has been referred to in Memorandum A.

8. Other Provisions affecting Housing Grants.—These are referred to in the relevant parts of Memorandum A and need only be briefly recapitulated (d). Section 24 provides for payment of expenses of a Central Housing Advisory Committee and Section 30 for grants in aid of the expenses of a Central Association or other body established for the purpose of promoting, advising and assisting Housing Associations. An increase of subsidy payable under other Acts may also arise by reason of amendments made by Section 38 (extension of the scope of the Rural Workers Acts), Section 67 (displacements from houses owned by a local authority which are included in a clearance area) and Section 84 (extension of the power to make a closing order on a part of a building). It should also be noted that, in accordance with Section 35 of the Act, where houses which are unfit for habitation are included in a redevelopment area, and action is taken in accordance with a redevelopment plan for the provision of accommodation for persons necessarily displaced from such houses, subsidy is payable under the provisions of Section 26 of the Act of 1930 instead of under the new Act.

MEMORANDUM E.—CONSOLIDATION OF HOUSING CONTRIBUTIONS AND ACCOUNTS.

I.—Introductory.

1. This Memorandum describes in some detail the provisions for the consolidation of contributions and accounts relating to houses belonging to local authorities which are contained in Sections 40 to 53 of the Housing Act, 1935, and in the Fourth and Fifth Schedules thereto.

2. The main object of the scheme of consolidation embodied in the above-mentioned provisions is the removal of the administrative difficulties which have arisen as a result of the diversity of the special conditions hitherto governing the rents of houses belonging to local authorities in respect of which Exchequer contributions are payable under the series of Housing Acts passed since 1918.

These special conditions will no longer be applicable and, subject to certain general conditions which are referred to in paragraph 36 of this Memorandum, local authorities will in future be free to deal with their houses as a whole, the contributions payable in respect of the houses from the Exchequer and from local rates in any given year being pooled and carried to one account, called "The Housing Revenue Account."

3. The Act provides, as part of the arrangements for the pooling of the various housing schemes of local authorities, that in future the Exchequer contributions in respect of schemes carried out by local authorities under the Act of 1919 are to be based on estimates of the annual losses on the schemes and prescribes the method by which the estimates are to be made. A detailed explanation of the new method of determination of these Exchequer contributions is given in paragraphs 14–17 of this Memorandum; the contributions will be varied as fluctuations occur in the annual produce of the penny rate and in the annual loan charges, but will not be affected by future fluctuations in rent income or in expenditure on the supervision and management and repair of the properties included in the scheme.

4. The provisions in the Act relating to the consolidation of housing contributions and housing accounts are only applicable to authorities who are local authorities for the purposes of Part III of the Housing Act of 1925, i.e., they do not apply to County Councils in respect of houses erected by them for their employees.

II.—Housing Revenue Account.

5. Section 42 of the Act (b) imposes upon each housing authority an obligation to keep as from April 1, 1935, a Housing Revenue Account relating to :—

(a) all dwelling houses for the working classes and other buildings which have been erected or acquired by the authority as housing authority since February 6, 1919;

(b) all land which at any time after February 6, 1919, has been acquired or appropriated by the authority for the purpose of the provision of housing accommodation for the working classes;

(c) all dwellings belonging to the authority in respect of which they have received assistance under the Housing (Rural Workers) Act, 1926, as amended by Section 38 of the Act of 1935 (c).

The authority may, with the consent of the Minister, bring into the account any other working-class houses belonging to them (Section 42 (d))—for example, houses built or acquired by them before February 6, 1919.

HOUSING

6. Section 43 (1) (a) sets out in detail the credits and debits which are to be included in the Housing Revenue Account for the year 1935–36 and for each subsequent financial year. The account is to be credited with amounts equal to the undermentioned items of income in respect of the houses, buildings, land and dwellings to which the Housing Revenue Account relates, viz. :—

(a) the income of the authority for that year from rents (exclusive of any amounts included therein in respect of rates or water charges) ;

(b) the aggregate of the Exchequer contributions payable to the authority for that year ;

(c) the aggregate of the contributions payable by the authority for that year out of the general rate fund (the amounts of the contributions to be calculated in the manner indicated in Part IV of this Memorandum) ;

(d) in the case of a rural district council, the aggregate of the contributions payable by the county council to the Council for that year ;

(e) the aggregate of the grants payable to the local authority for that year under Section 1 of the Housing (Rural Workers) Act, 1926 (b).

The account is to be debited with amounts equal to the undermentioned items of expenditure in respect of the houses, buildings, land and dwellings to which the Housing Revenue Account relates, viz. :—

(i) the loan charges which the local authority are liable to pay for that year ;

(ii) the rents, taxes and other charges (except rates and water charges) payable by the authority for that year ;

(iii) the expenditure incurred by the authority for that year in respect of supervision and management ;

(iv) the contribution, if any, which must be made in that year to the Housing Repairs Account required to be kept by Section 45 of the Act (a) (see Part V of this Memorandum).

(v) the contribution, if any, which must be made in that year to the Housing Equalisation Account required to be kept by Section 46 of the Act (a) (see Part VI of this Memorandum).

7. Section 43 (3) (c) provides that where any house, building, land or dwelling to which the Housing Revenue Account relates, or would have related if it had remained in the possession of the authority at April 1, 1935, is or has been sold or otherwise disposed of, an amount equal to any income of the authority arising from the investment or other use of capital money received by the authority in respect of the transaction is to be carried to the credit of the Housing Revenue Account, unless in special circumstances the Minister otherwise directs.

8. Section 43 (4) (d) is a special provision to cover the exceptional cases where a local authority has borrowed for housing purposes to which the Housing Revenue Account relates, moneys which prove to be in excess of the sums required for those purposes, and the surplus cannot be repaid immediately.

An amount equal to the income of the authority resulting from the investment or other use of such surplus moneys is to be credited to the Housing Revenue Account. This amount will be an offset to the loan charges which will fall to be debited to the Account. Even if the authority concerned is not in possession of any working-class houses, a Housing Revenue Account must nevertheless be kept for the purpose of entering these credit and debit items together with any other items such as Exchequer contributions which may be appropriate to the account.

9. Section 43 (5) (e) empowers the Minister to direct whether particular items of income and expenditure should be brought into the Housing Revenue Account. An authority should obtain the Minister's directions where they are uncertain whether any items should be included in or excluded from the account. It will normally be necessary for the directions of the Minister to be obtained as to the adjustments to be made in the account where an authority appropriate for housing purposes some houses or land originally bought for other purposes, or where an authority appropriate for other than housing purposes some houses or land originally bought for housing purposes.

10. It will be seen from Part IV of this Memorandum (paragraph 29) that if at the end of any financial year a deficit is shown in the Housing Revenue Account the deficit is to be made good by an additional contribution from the general rate fund. Under Section 44 (1) (a) any surplus existing at the end of a financial year may be used in making good to the general rate fund any additional contributions which may have been made from that fund to meet deficits on the account during the preceding four years. Any remainder of the surplus is to be carried forward to the credit of the Housing Revenue Account for the following year, subject to the exceptions indicated in the next paragraph.

11. At the close of the financial year 1939–40 and of every five years thereafter local authorities are required to review the position of their Housing Revenue Account. If at the end of any of the quinquennial periods there is a surplus in the account after the general rate fund has been recouped for any additional contributions made therefrom during the preceding four years, it is to be applied, with the Minister's consent, in the manner specified in Section 44 (2) (b).

12. The ways in which a quinquennial surplus may be applied are :—

(a) by transferring it to the Housing Repairs Account;

(b) by carrying it forward to the Housing Revenue Account of the next year;

(c) by refund to the Minister and the general rate fund respectively of any remainder of the surplus when all reasonable allocations of this nature have been made. The amounts so repaid to the Minister and the general rate fund are to be proportionate to the amounts which the Exchequer and the general rate fund have contributed to the Housing Revenue Account during the quinquennial period.

III.—Exchequer Contributions to be included in the Housing Revenue Account.

13. The Act requires each local authority to carry to the credit of their Housing Revenue Account for each year an amount equal to the aggregate of the Exchequer contributions payable for that year under the enactments specified in Part I of the Fourth Schedule to the Act (c). The methods by which the Exchequer contributions payable under Section 7 of the Act of 1919 and Section 1 (3) of the Act of 1923 are to be determined are set out in Part II of the Fourth Schedule to the Act (c) and are explained in the following paragraphs. The other Exchequer contributions to be accounted for in the Housing Revenue Account are fixed amounts per house or per person.

It should be noted that consolidation of subsidies is only applicable to the subsidies payable in respect of houses belonging to local authorities and does not extend to the Exchequer grants payable in respect of houses provided, with the assistance of local authorities, by private enterprise, Public Utility Societies, etc.

A.—Calculation of Exchequer Contributions under the Act of 1919.

14. Part II of the Fourth Schedule (d) to the Act is designed to secure that the amount of the Exchequer contribution for the year 1935–36 and each subsequent year in respect of a scheme carried out by a local authority under the Act of 1919 shall be the amount, if any, by which the estimated loss on the scheme for the year exceeds an amount equal to the produce of a rate of one penny in the pound in the authority's area in the year. The main items to be taken into account in arriving at the estimates of the annual loss arising from the carrying out of such a scheme are to be calculated on the following basis (see paragraphs 3–7 of Part II of the Fourth Schedule) :—

HOUSING

Income.

(a) The estimated annual rent income, i.e., a fixed amount equal to the yearly equivalent of the weekly rents which as at March 31, 1935, are accepted by the Minister for the purpose of the determination of the Exchequer contribution payable in respect of the scheme ;

Expenditure.

(b) A fixed amount equal to the aggregate of the two following sums :—

(i) a sum bearing the same proportion to the estimated rent income (as defined above) as the aggregate amount of the normal charges in respect of supervision and management, repairs, unoccupied houses and irrecoverable rents, bore to the aggregate amount of the accepted gross estimated rent income during the five years ended March 31, 1935 ;

(ii) a sum equal to 2 per cent. of the estimated rent income (as defined above) ;

(c) The actual amount of the loan charges for the year in respect of money borrowed for the purposes of the scheme (subject to a limitation as to the rate of interest that may be taken into account on a re-borrowing), reduced by the amount, if any, of loan charges for the year relating to expenditure not approved by the Minister for the purpose of the determination of the Exchequer contribution.

The amount at (b) (i), so far as it relates to repairs, will fall to be determined by reference to the normal charges in respect of repairs (generally annual contributions of sums equivalent to 15 per cent. of the gross estimated rental) included in the Housing (Assisted Scheme) Revenue Accounts during the five years ended March 31, 1935, which have been admitted as ranking for Exchequer subsidy. No account is to be taken in the determination of the amount at (b) (i) of charges admitted to rank for Exchequer subsidy during the said five years in respect of repairs of an abnormal and non-recurring nature or in respect of arrears of rent which accrued in exceptional circumstances.

The amount at (b) (ii) is a comprehensive additional allowance by the Exchequer to meet possible future contingencies generally.

15. Prior to April 1, 1935, Exchequer subsidy was being paid to some authorities wholly or partly on the basis of the estimated loss on their schemes under the Act of 1919, voluntary agreements to this end having been made under the provisions of Section 45 of the Act of 1930. Paragraph 6 of Part II of the Fourth Schedule provides that these agreements are to remain in force.

16. Paragraph 7 of Part II of the Fourth Schedule gives the Minister power to make an equitable adjustment of the Exchequer contribution payable in respect of a scheme under the Act of 1919, in cases where the number of dwellings included in the scheme is changed after March 31, 1935, as the result of the sale of any houses, the closing or demolition of huts, or the transference of houses to another local authority in consequence of an alteration of boundaries.

17. Paragraph 8 of Part II of the Fourth Schedule defines the method by which the produce of a penny rate (which a local authority are required to contribute towards the loss on a scheme under the Act of 1919) is to be ascertained in the year 1935–36 and subsequent years. The method of ascertainment is the same as was prescribed in the Local Authorities (Assisted Housing Schemes) Amendment Regulations, 1931 (a).

B.—Calculation of Exchequer Contribution under Section 1 (3) of the Act of 1923.

18. Paragraph 9 of Part II of the Fourth Schedule is designed to secure that the estimates of losses on slum clearance schemes under the Act of 1923 shall, as far as possible, be made in the same way as the estimates of losses on schemes under the Act of 1919. A few of the first mentioned schemes, however, have only recently been completed or are not yet complete, and some present exceptional features. The ordinary procedure laid down in paragraphs 3 to 7 of Part II of the Fourth

Schedule may have to be modified to some extent in these cases, and the paragraph empowers the Minister, subject to the approval of the Treasury, to make such modifications as he may consider to be necessary. The modifications as approved by the Treasury are set out in Appendix II to this Memorandum.

IV.—Method of ascertainment of contributions to be made by a local authority out of the general rate fund in respect of houses included in the Housing Revenue Account.

19. Section 41 of the Act (a) makes it a condition of the right of a local authority to receive any Exchequer contribution that the authority shall as from April 1935, make out of the general rate fund the contributions which are specified in Part III of the Fourth Schedule (a). The annual contributions from the general rate fund in respect of houses erected under the various Acts are to be as follows:—

20. Rate Contributions in the case of a scheme carried out under the Act of 1919 (b).—The contribution for any year within the period during which loan charges in respect of moneys borrowed for the purposes of the scheme remain payable, is to be an amount equal to the produce of a rate of one penny in the pound levied in the area of the local authority, together with the amount, if any, of the loan charges in respect of money borrowed for expenditure in connection with the scheme which was not approved by the Minister for the purpose of the determination of the Exchequer contribution. If the annual loss is less than the produce of a penny rate, the contribution will be the amount of such annual loss (see paragraph 1 of Part III of the Fourth Schedule).

21. Rate Contributions in the case of houses built under Section 1 (1) (b) of the Act of 1923 (c).—A contribution is to be made in respect of each house for the remainder of the period of 20 years from the completion of the house. Subject to the exceptions referred to in paragraph 25 the contribution for any year is to be an amount equal to the amount of the Exchequer contribution payable in respect of the house for that year or an amount equivalent to the average annual contribution made by the authority in respect of the house during the five years ended March 31, 1935, whichever is the less (see paragraph 2 of Part III of the Fourth Schedule).

22. Rate Contributions in the case of slum clearance schemes carried out under Section 1 (3) of the Act of 1923.—The contribution for any year is to be an amount equal to the amount of the Exchequer contribution payable for that year in respect of the scheme, together with the amount of any loan charges on expenditure incurred by the authority in connexion with the scheme which was not approved by the Minister for the purpose of the determination of the Exchequer contribution (see paragraph 3 of Part III of the Fourth Schedule).

23. Rate Contributions in the case of houses in respect of which an Exchequer contribution is payable under Section 2 of the Act of 1924 (d).—A contribution is to be made in respect of each house for the remainder of the period of 60 years from the completion of the house. The contribution for any year will normally be the equivalent, on a 60 year basis, of an annual sum of £4 10*s*. 0*d*. for 40 years, in the case of a house completed prior to October 1, 1927, or of an annual sum of £3 15*s*. 0*d*. for 40 years in the case of a house completed after September 30, 1927. Where, however, the county council are making an annual contribution under Section 34 of the Act of 1930 (e) towards the expenses incurred by a rural district council in connexion with the provision of a house the county council's contribution is to be deducted from the figure of £4 10*s*. 0*d*. (or £3 15*s*. 0*d*.) in calculating the rate contribution.

Again, where a local authority were charging, immediately prior to April 1, 1935, rents which, although complying with the special rent condition of Section 3 (1) (e) of the Act of 1924 (or of Section 1 (7) of the Act of 1931 (f)) involved an estimated annual rate loss less than the equivalent, on a 60 year basis, of an annual sum of £4 10*s*. 0*d*.

per house for 40 years (or in the case of houses completed after September 30, 1927, £3 15*s.* 0*d.* per house for 40 years) the rate contribution is to be such lesser sum per house. In such circumstances it will be necessary for the local authority to determine the estimated annual rate loss and a convenient method of calculation is as follows:—

(a) Deduct from the total annual rent income based on the weekly rent chargeable immediately prior to April 1, 1935, the annual amount estimated to be required for repairs, management, etc.

(b) Determine the capital value of the remainder (on the basis of a period of 60 years and the average rate of interest payable during 1934–35 on the related debt).

(c) Deduct (b) from the total capital expenditure.

(d) From the remainder, deduct the capital value of the total amount of the Exchequer contribution receivable (on the basis of a period of 40 years and the same rate of interest as at (b)).

(e) The balance will represent the capitalised rate contribution for 40 years. In order to ascertain the 60 year annuity equivalent this should be converted at the same rate of interest as at (b).

The amount at (e) represents the total estimated annual rate loss for 60 years, from which the average amount per house to be contributed out of the general rate fund can be calculated. (See also paragraph 25.)

24. Rate Contributions in the case of houses in respect of which an Exchequer contribution is payable under Section 26 of the Act of 1930 (a). (See paragraph 5 of Part III of the Fourth Schedule.)—A contribution is to be made in respect of each house for 60 years, or for the remainder of the period, as the case may be, of 60 years from the completion of the house. The contribution for any year is to be the equivalent, on a 60 year basis, of an annual sum of £3 15*s.* for 40 years. Where, however, the county council are making an annual contribution under Section 34 of the Act of 1930 (a) towards the expenses incurred by a rural district council in connexion with the provision of a house the county council's contribution is to be deducted from the figure of £3 13*s.* in calculating the rate contribution. (See also paragraph 25.)

25. Paragraph 9 of Part III of the Fourth Schedule empowers the Minister, where money has been borrowed for a shorter period than 60 years for the erection of houses under the Acts of 1924 and 1930, to approve that shorter period as the period during which the rate contributions in respect of such houses should be provided. Where such a reduced period is approved, the amount of the annual rate contribution will be correspondingly larger for the reduced period. The same paragraph empowers the Minister to sanction a reduction in the amount of the rate contributions in respect of houses erected by an authority under Section 1 (1) (b) of the Act of 1923, or under the Act of 1924, or under the Act of 1930, where the authority has provided prior to April 1, 1935, a substantially larger amount for the repayment of money borrowed for expenditure in connexion with the erection of the houses than would normally have been so provided by the date.

26. Rate Contributions in the case of housing accommodation provided for the purposes of Part I of the Act of 1935 (b).—Section 34 (b) of the Act makes it the duty of a local authority who are receiving an Exchequer contribution under Section 31, 32, or 33 (b) of the Act in respect of a flat or house, to make a rate contribution for a period of 60 years from the date of its completion. The contribution for any year is to be the equivalent, on a 60 year basis, of the appropriate one of the undermentioned sums:—

(a) in the case of a flat in respect of which Exchequer assistance is given under Section 31 of the Act, one-half of the amount of the Exchequer contribution provided annually for a period of 40 years;

(b) in the case of a house or flat in respect of which Exchequer assistance is given under Section 32 of the Act, one-half of the amount of the Exchequer contribution provided annually for the period during which such contributions will be payable; and

(a) 23 Halsbury's Statutes 416, 422. Now ss. 105, 115 of the Housing Act, 1936, ante, pp. 1713, 1722.

(b) Now replaced as follows: Part I by ss. 34–37 and 57–68 of the Housing Act, 1936, ante, pp. 1641, 1668; s. 34 by the Housing Act, 1936, ss. 114, 115, ante, p. 1721; ss. 31–33 by the Housing Act, 1936, ss. 106–108, ante, p. 1716.

(c) in the case of a house provided for members of the agricultural population in respect of which Exchequer assistance is given under Section 33 of the Act, a sum of £1 provided annually for a period of 40 years.

The period during which contributions are to be made from the general rate fund is fixed at 60 years as that is the normal period for loans for house building. Some local authorities, however, make arrangements for the repayment of such loans within a shorter period, and the proviso to Section 34 empowers the Minister in such a case to approve that shorter period (not being less than that for which the Exchequer contribution is payable) as the period during which the rate is approved, the amount of the annual rate contribution will be correspondingly larger for the reduced period.

27. Rate Contributions in the case of a house which has been improved by the authority with Exchequer assistance under Section 4 of the Housing (Rural Workers) Act, 1926 (a), as amended by Section 38 (2) of the Act of 1935.—Section 39 of the Act (b) provides that a rate contribution is to be made in respect of each house, and that the contribution is to be a sum equal to the amount of the Exchequer contribution and is to be payable for the same period as that contribution.

28. Calculation of 60 years equivalent of Local Authorities' annual contributions out of the general rate fund.—As indicated in the paragraphs immediately preceding, the amount of the annual rate contribution in the case of a house erected by an authority with Exchequer assistance under the Act of 1924, the Act of 1930, or the Act of 1935, will normally be calculated by reference to a period of 60 years.

In making the calculations it will first be necessary to ascertain the capital value of the annual rate contribution deemed to be payable for a period of 40 years and then spread this capital sum as an annuity over a period of 60 years.

The rate of interest to be used in the calculation should be the approximate average rate chargeable on the related debt.

(a) during the year ended March 31, 1935, in the case of houses completed on or before that date;

(b) during the year of completion in the case of houses completed after March 31, 1935.

29. Deficit in the Housing Revenue Account.—Paragraph 8 of Part III of the Fourth Schedule requires that where there is a deficit in any year in the Housing Revenue Account the amount of the deficit shall be made good by the local authority by means of an additional rate contribution. (As stated in paragraph 10 of this Memorandum a surplus in the Housing Revenue Account in any year may be used to recoup the general rate fund in respect of any such additional contributions which have been made during the preceding four years.)

V.—Housing Repairs Account.

30. Section 45 of the Act (c) makes it a duty of a local authority required to keep a Housing Revenue Account to set up as from April 1, 1935, a Housing Repairs Account. The authority is to credit to the Repairs Account each year such sum as they think proper, subject to a minimum of 15 per cent. of the annual rents (exclusive of rates and water charges) of the houses included in the Housing Revenue Account, together with such amount, if any, as may be necessary to make good any deficit shown in the Repairs Account at the end of the preceding year. Existing repairs funds are to be wound up, and any money standing to their credit transferred to the new statutory Repairs Account. The money in the Repairs Account is to be used only for the specific purpose of repair and maintenance of the property in respect of which the Housing Revenue Account is kept. If at any time it appears to the Minister, after consultation with the local authority, that the amount in the Repairs Account is more than sufficient for the purposes for which the Account is to be kept, or that it is no longer necessary to keep the Account, he may give directions for the reduction or suspension of further credits to the Account or for the closing of the Account and the application of any moneys standing to its credit.

(b) Ante, p. 1864.

VI.—Housing Equalisation Account.

31. Every local authority keeping a Housing Revenue Account is required under Section 46 of the Act (a) to set up a Housing Equalisation Account, unless they satisfy the Minister that it is not necessary for them to do so, in which case he may give such directions as he thinks proper in the circumstances. The object of this account is to equalise so far as practicable the income of the Housing Revenue Account derived from Exchequer contributions and contributions from other local authorities throughout the period during which the loan charges required to be debited to that account will be payable.

32. Section 46 (b) requires the Minister to prescribe the sums which are to be credited to the Equalisation Account and Regulations relating to this matter have been made.

33. The Regulations provide that as a general rule a local authority shall transfer to the Housing Equalisation Account in the year 1935–36 and in each subsequent financial year a sum equal to the one-seventh part of the total amount of the contributions payable to the authority for that year by the Exchequer and the county council in respect of houses erected by the authority under the Acts of 1924 and 1930 and under Sections 31 and 33 of the Act of 1935.

The Regulations, however, empower the Minister to approve the transfer to the Equalisation Account in any year of a larger or smaller amount than the sum normally prescribed where an authority satisfy him that, having regard to the arrangements made for repaying money borrowed for expenditure in connexion with the provision of the houses to which the Housing Revenue Account relates, or for some other reason, there are sufficient grounds for such action. The Regulations also provide for transfers to be made to the Equalisation Account in respect of Exchequer contributions payable in respect of houses erected under Section 1 (1) (b) of the Act of 1923 or under Section 32 of the Act of 1935, where the local authority satisfy the Minister that such transfers are expedient or necessary.

Section 46 (3) of the Act enables the Minister to direct that an Equalisation Account need not be opened, or need not be kept for the time being, or may be closed, if he is satisfied that the circumstances of the local authority justify the issue of such a direction. Some local authorities, in order to avoid difficulties which arise when the period during which loan charges are payable does not coincide with the period of payment of Exchequer contributions, have made special borrowing arrangements by which a great part of the loan charges will come to an end at the same time as the Exchequer contributions. In such cases it will not be necessary for the authority to open an Equalisation Account. Other local authorities may wish to defer the opening of an Equalisation Account to a later date, when the loan charges will have been reduced by the redemption of loans raised for a shorter period than that during which Exchequer contributions are payable, e.g., loans raised for the provision of roads and sewers in connexion with the houses. In other cases an Equalisation Account may become unnecessary, e.g., if all the houses concerned are sold.

34. Temporary application of moneys in Housing Repairs Account and Housing Equalisation Account.—Section 47 of the Act (b) makes provision for the temporary application to capital purposes (subject to certain conditions laid down in the Section) or for the investment of such moneys standing to the credit of the Housing Repairs Account and the Housing Equalisation Account as are not for the time being required for the purpose for which they will ultimately be applicable.

VII.—Unification of conditions affecting local authorities' houses.

35. The varying special conditions hitherto governing the rents of local authorities' houses in respect of which Exchequer subsidies under certain of the Housing Acts are payable are repealed as from the date of the coming into operation of the Act of 1935 (Section 52 and the Fifth Schedule) and, subject to the observance of certain general obligations specified in the next paragraph of this Memorandum, local authorities are free to deal with these houses as a whole irrespective of any special conditions of the particular Act under which Exchequer assistance was provided.

(b) Now s. 133 of the Housing Act, 1936, ante, p. 1733.

36. The new general obligations which must be observed by a local authority are specified in Section 51 of the Act (a) ; for convenience of reference the Section is reproduced here :—

(1) A local authority for the purposes of Part III of the Act of 1924 shall, in relation to all dwelling houses and dwellings in respect of which they are required to keep a Housing Revenue Account, observe the requirements specified in the following provisions of this section.

(2) The authority shall secure that in the selection of their tenants a reasonable preference is given to persons who are occupying insanitary or overcrowded houses, have large families or are living under unsatisfactory housing conditions.

(3) The authority shall secure that a number of dwelling houses or dwellings equal to the number of those in respect of which—are reserved for such persons as are mentioned in paragraph (a) of subsection (1) of section three of that Act, except in so far as the demand for housing accommodation in the district of the authority on the part of such persons can be satisfied without such reservation.

(a) the authority have received assistance under section one of the Housing (Rural Workers) Act, 1926 ; or

(b) the Minister has undertaken to pay a contribution to the authority under the subsection which by section thirty-eight of this Act is directed to be inserted in section four of the Housing (Rural Workers) Act, 1926 ;

(4) The authority shall secure that a number of dwelling houses equal to the number of those in respect of which the county council has undertaken to make a contribution to the authority under subsection (2) of section thirty-four of the Act of 1930, or are required by subsection (3) of section thirty-four of this Act to make a contribution to the authority, are reserved for members of the agricultural population, except in so far as the demand for housing accommodation in the district of the authority on the part of members of the agricultural population can be satisfied without such reservation.

(5) In fixing rents the authority shall take into consideration the rents ordinarily payable by persons of the working classes in the locality, but may grant to any tenant such rebates from rent, subject to such terms and conditions, as they may think fit.

(6) The authority shall from time to time review rents and make such changes, either of rents generally or of particular rents, and rebates (if any) as circumstances may require.

(7) The authority shall make it a term of every letting that the tenant shall not assign, sub-let or otherwise part with the possession of the premises, or any part thereof, except with the consent in writing of the authority, and shall not give such consent unless it is shown to their satisfaction that no payment other than a rent which is in their opinion a reasonable rent has been, or is to be, received by the tenant in consideration of the assignment, subletting or other transaction.

37. Each local authority should review, in the light of these general obligations, the rents at present charged for their houses. It will be seen that the Act contemplates the fixing of standard rents in relation to the general level of working-class rents in the locality. It will, however, be open to local authorities to fix differing standard rents for different types or groups of houses, and to grant rebates from the standard rent in particular cases according to the circumstances of the tenants. A continuous supervision of rents should be exercised so as to ensure that any alterations justified by changes of circumstances are made from time to time.

38. Special attention is drawn to the requirement that, in the selection of tenants for houses to which the Housing Revenue Account relates, reasonable perference is to be given to persons occupying insanitary or overcrowded houses, to large families or to persons living under unsatisfactory conditions. This requirement must be read with the new generalisation of the power of a local authority to grant in suitable cases rebates from their standard rents. The power will be of special service as a means of dealing with a person whose housing conditions are such as to require the provision of alternative accommodation but whose means are insufficient to enable him to meet the standard rent of any available house.

VIII.—Time and manner of payment of Exchequer contributions.

39. Section 48 of the Act (a) provides that contributions to be made by the Minister to a local authority under any enactment in the Housing Acts, 1919 to 1935, are to be payable at such times and in such manner as the Treasury may direct and subject to such conditions as to records, certificates, audit or otherwise as the Minister may, with the approval of the Treasury, impose.

The conditions as to records, certificates, audit or otherwise, as approved by the Treasury, appear in Appendix I to this memorandum.

40. It will be noted that in the case of a scheme carried out under the Act of 1919, and in the case of a rehousing scheme carried out under Section 1 (3) of the Act of 1923, the local authority is required to forward to the Minister each year a statement certified by the Chief Financial Officer of the authority and by the District Auditor showing the particulars necessary for the determination of the Exchequer contribution payable in respect of the scheme. To enable this to be done, separate records will have to be kept of the loan charges on each scheme and of any income derived from the investment or other use of moneys relating to the scheme.

If a local authority have a rehousing scheme under Section 1 (3) of the Act of 1923 which is still incomplete, they are required to keep a separate account in respect of the scheme up to the end of the year in which it is completed.

41. With the approval of the Treasury, payments on account of Exchequer contributions may be made periodically to local authorities and the balances will be paid after the claims of the authority have been examined by the District Auditor and his report has been made. Forms will be supplied for the purpose of claiming grants.

IX.—Miscellaneous.

42. Default of Local Authority.—Section 49 (1) of the Act (b) empowers the Minister to withhold the whole or any part of any Exchequer contributions payable to a local authority where he is satisfied that they have either (a) failed to discharge any of their housing duties or (b) failed to observe any of the conditions subject to which Exchequer contributions are payable.

43. Sale of land or houses.—Section 53 of the Act (c) provides that if any house, building, land or dwelling in respect of which a local authority is required to keep a Housing Revenue Account is sold the Minister may impose such conditions and make such consequential reductions of the Exchequer contributions and contributions from the general rate fund payable to the Housing Revenue Account as he thinks just.

44. Liability in respect of damage by fire.—The liability for making good damage by fire or, alternatively, for insurance against fire in the case of houses in schemes subject to the provisions of the Act of 1919, or of Section 1 (3) of the Act of 1923, will now fall upon the local authority, as in the case of houses provided under other Acts. The authority should therefore consider at once the steps to be taken to meet their liability in this respect.

45. Housing Management Commission.—Section 43 (2) of the Act (d) provides that if a local authority set up a Housing Management Commission, the provisions in the Act relating to the keeping of a Housing Revenue Account are to be modified in such manner as the Minister considers necessary.

46. Application to London.—The general provisions as regards the consolidation and shall forward to the Minister of Health as soon as may be after the close of each financial year—

(i) a statement, in such form as the Minister may require, of the Housing Revenue Account, the Housing Repairs Account and the Housing Equalisation Account, certified by the Chief Financial Officer of the authority and by the auditor of the accounts of the authority ; and

APPENDIX II.

MODIFICATIONS, APPROVED BY THE TREASURY, IN THE NORMAL METHOD OF DETERMINATION OF THE EXCHEQUER CONTRIBUTIONS PAYABLE IN RESPECT OF REHOUSING SCHEMES UNDER SECTION 1 (3) OF THE HOUSING ACT, 1923.

1. The Housing Act, 1935, provides (Fourth Schedule, Part II, paragraph 9) that for the financial year commencing on April 1, 1935, and for each subsequent financial year the amount of the Exchequer contribution towards the expenses incurred by a local authority in carrying out a rehousing scheme to which Section 1 (3) of the Act of 1923 applies is to be an amount equal to one-half of the estimated loss for the year incurred in carrying out the scheme, ascertained as provided by paragraphs 3 to 7 of Part II of the Fourth Schedule (wherein is set out the method by which the estimated annual loss on a scheme to which Section 7 of the Act of 1919 applies is to be determined), subject to such modifications as the Minister with the approval of the Treasury may determine to be necessary having regard to the date of the completion of the operations or expedient in all the circumstances. The modifications, as determined by the Minister with the approval of the Treasury, are as follows :—

I. A Scheme completed between April 1, 1930, and March 31, 1935.

In paragraph 5 of Part II of the Fourth Schedule the provisions of heads (a), (b), and (c) of sub-paragraph 1 shall not apply, and the following sub-paragraph shall be substituted for sub-paragraph (2) :—

THE MINISTRY OF HEALTH (CENTRAL HOUSING ADVISORY COMMITTEE) ORDER, 1935, DATED NOVEMBER 12, 1935, MADE BY THE MINISTER OF HEALTH.

Whereas by section twenty-four of the Housing Act, 1935 (a), it is enacted as follows:

"(1) The Minister shall appoint a committee, to be called the Central Housing Advisory Committee, for the purpose of—

(a) advising the Minister on any matter, relating to a temporary increase of the permitted number of persons in relation to overcrowding, as respects which he is required by section four of this Act to consult the Committee;

(b) advising Housing Management Commissions constituted under the next succeeding section on any matter as respect which such Commissions are required to consult the Committee;

(c) advising the Minister on any question which may be referred by him to the Committee with respect to any other matter arising in connection with the execution of the enactments relating to housing;

(d) considering the operation of the enactments relating to housing and making to the Minister such representations with respect to matters of general concern arising in connection with the execution of those enactments as the Committee think desirable.

(2) The Minister may by order make provision with respect to the constitution and procedure of the Committee, and any such order may be varied by a subsequent order."

Now therefore the Minister of Health in exercise of the powers conferred upon him by the said section twenty-four and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf hereby orders as follows:—

CIRCULAR 1539.

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL, S.W.1.
7th May, 1936.

To Housing Authorities
(England and Wales).

HOUSING ACT, 1935.

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to refer to Memorandum B enclosed with Circular 1,500A or 1,500b on the Housing Act, 1935 (dated October 22, 1935) and the later Circular 1507 (dated November 19, 1935) and to state that he has been considering the further steps which will require to be taken in order to bring into operation the whole of the overcrowding provisions of the Act of 1935.

The Local Authority will be aware that the operation of the Act depends upon the fixing of appointed days which, when fixed by the Minister, determine the date from which particular overcrowding provisions take effect in any area. The "appointed day" is defined in Section 97 of the Act of 1935 as meaning "such day as the Minister may appoint and the Minister may fix different days for different purposes and different provisions of this Act and for different localities." The fixing of an appointed day is provided for in various Sections of the Act (a):—

(a) Under Sections 3, 4, and 8, the appointed day is the date after which overcrowding may constitute an offence.

(b) Under Section 6 the appointed day is 6 months before the date by which a notice in the prescribed form must be inserted in every rent book.

(a) The sections of the Act of 1935 mentioned in this Circular have been repealed and replaced by the Housing Act, 1936, as follows: s. 97 by s. 68 of the Act of 1936, ante, p. 1678; s. 3 by s. 59 of the Act of 1936, ante, p. 1670; s. 4 by s. 60 of the Act of 1936, ante, p. 1672; s. 8 by s. 64 of the Act of 1936, ante, p. 1675; s. 6 by s. 62 of the Act of 1936, ante, p. 1674; s. 68 by s. 6 (2) of the Act of 1936, ante, p. 1599.

(c) Under Section 68 the appointed day is the date from which any byelaws under Section 6 of the Act of 1925 relating to the number of persons permitted to live in a house cease to have effect. This will naturally be the day from which the statutory standard comes into operation in place of the byelaw standard, i.e., the appointed day will be the same date as the appointed day under Section 3.

The pivotal date is that from which overcrowding is to constitute an offence. The date to be fixed for this purpose must be one which will be based on the actual state of affairs in the particular district, and, in the Minister's opinion, the two most relevant considerations are the extent of overcrowding as disclosed by the survey and the time likely to elapse before a substantial amount of that overcrowding can be remedied.

The final date fixed by the Minister for the submission to him of the report on the survey is June 1, 1936, but the Minister has already received a considerable number of reports and statistical returns in the Form C set out in Memorandum B. and the excellent progress which has been made by these Local Authorities has been of great assistance to the Minister in his consideration of the next steps in the campaign against overcrowding.

These reports indicate that in a comparatively small number of districts overcrowding is acute, but that in many districts it can be abated by the provision of such a number of houses as need not involve a long building programme. The advantages of preventing fresh overcrowding for the future, as well as the advantages of abating that which now exists affords very strong reasons for grappling forthwith with a problem of this kind, wherever that course is practicable, and the Minister has no doubt that all Local Authorities who are able to do so will wish to bring the Act into active operation at the earliest possible date.

After consultation with the Associations of Local Authorities the Minister has decided therefore, subject to consideration of any representations which may be received from individual Local Authorities, to fix January 1, 1937, as the appointed day under Sections 3, 4, 8 and 68, in the case of all Local Authorities whose survey under Section 1 of the Act discloses a total number of overcrowded families which is either under a hundred or is less than 2 per cent. of the total number of working-class houses in the district.

The Minister will be prepared also to consider applications from Local Authorities whose overcrowding falls outside these limits for the same date to be fixed for their area, and he may himself find it necessary to suggest the fixing of this date for such an Authority in order primarily to secure that "islands" in which overcrowding will not be an offence are not left in a large area in which overcrowding will be an offence.

Accordingly in the absence of any representations before June 1 from a Local Authority whose problem falls within the above limits the Minister proposes to fix January 1, 1937, as the appointed day for this purpose. He will be glad to receive also before June 1 any applications from Local Authorities whose problem does not fall within these limits but who desire this date to be fixed for their district. In those districts where overcrowding is acute and the problem one of considerable magnitude, the Minister recognises that a longer period will be necessary before the appointed day can be fixed, and he will be prepared to consider proposals made by the individual Local Authorities in the light of the knowledge of their local difficulties. The Minister will be glad to receive such suggestions at as early a date as is practicable, and not later than July 1.

In fixing January 1, 1937, as the earliest date for which overcrowding should constitute an offence, the Minister has had in mind two points:

(1) that the intervening period will allow Local Authorities to put in hand, if not to complete, at any rate a portion of the accommodation necessary for the abatement of overcrowding, and thus to shorten the period between the appointed day and the actual abatement of existing overcrowding.

(2) that the appointed day from which overcrowding is to constitute an offence must not be fixed until adequate means have been taken to inform the public in the district as to the circumstances in which an offence will arise.

The most important single factor in this latter connection will be the entries which are required to be made in rent books under Section 6 of the Act containing a summary of the provisions of the Act and a statement of the permitted number of persons in relation to the houses. It is desirable that all these entries should be inserted by the date from which offences may occur. The Minister accordingly proposes that when fixing the appointed day under Section 3 for any particular area he will at the same time appoint a day six months earlier as the appointed day under Section 6 for that area. In view of the fact that rent books are usually drawn up to run from January 1 and that there are general advantages in making any change date from the beginning of a new year, the Minister proposes that where under the arrangements already described in the earlier paragraphs the appointed day under Section 3 is to be January 1, 1937, the appointed day under Section 6 should be July 1, 1936.

Under Section 6 (2) of the Act it is the duty of the Local Authority, upon the application of the landlord or of the occupier of a dwelling-house, to inform the applicant in writing of the number of persons constituting the permitted number in relation to the house. To perform this function it will be necessary for the Local Authority to measure the rooms in that house, and if the Authority are to be in a position to meet any request for information without delay they will probably find that on the whole it will be more advantageous to undertake systematic measurement of the bulk of, if not of all, the working-class houses in their area than to delay measuring until a request is received. Each Local Authority will already have measured the overcrowded houses. Some Local Authorities have, in fact, already measured all the houses, and others are now engaged on the task.

The Minister does not anticipate that for those districts for which January 1, 1937, is fixed as the appointed day for the purposes of Section 3 the task of measuring will impose any difficulties which will outweigh the advantages of fixing an early date for the prevention of overcrowding.

The statutory obligation by the Local Authority will be discharged by this action, but the Minister hopes that each Local Authority will appreciate the importance in this matter of exercising widely the powers which have been given them under Section 7 of the Act to publish information for the assistance of landlord and occupiers as to their rights and duties under the provisions of the Act which relates to overcrowding.

Pending an offer of suitable alternative accommodation protection is afforded by the Act to those who are living under overcrowded conditions on the appointed day, but fresh overcrowding in general renders persons liable to penalties unless licences have been obtained from the Local Authority. For the first time a statutory standard of overcrowding is being applied, and no one will appreciate more than the Local Authority the advantages of preventing rather than punishing the commission of offences. To this end it will be necessary therefore to ensure that owners and occupiers are made aware of the dates fixed and of the obligations which follow therefrom. In the Minister's opinion very much can be done to secure the object of bringing the Act into operation effectively and without friction by the dissemination of full information during the time which elapses before overcrowding becomes an offence. The Minister hopes that each Local Authority will give this question their serious consideration and take such action as is appropriate to the circumstances of their district. The manner of making public the necessary information will be a matter for each Local Authority to decide, but it appears to the Minister that whether or not pamphlets, circulars or press notices are used for this purpose, it is desirable that notices should be printed and exhibited in the usual places drawing attention to the fixing of the appointed days, and stating that further information can be obtained from the offices of the Local Authority.

The next step which the Local Authority should consider is that of the provision of houses. The Local Authority will not be able to require the abatement of existing overcrowding until they are in a position to offer suitable alternative accommodation, and the more quickly such proposals can be executed the sooner will the Local Authority be able to remedy existing conditions without hardship or inconvenience. It may be that in some districts the calls which rehousing consequent upon slum clearance is making upon the available resources of the building industry will render it impossible to put in hand in the near future more than a small proportion of the total programme for the abatement of overcrowding. In many districts, however, the slum clearance programme is well on its way to completion, or the total amount of work to be done under slum clearance and for the abatement of overcrowding is not more than can be effected by a single building contract: in many rural districts in particular, where the total programme is made up of many small programmes scattered over a number of different parishes, there are clearly advantages in building at one and the same time the houses required in each parish for the two programmes, now that the total figure is known.

REHOUSING PROPOSALS.

In framing their rehousing proposals the Local Authority will take careful note of the information they now have available as to the housing conditions and housing needs of their district. The completed Forms C not only serve to disclose the actual overcrowded families, but also afford a valuable guide to the general housing conditions so far as the extent of accommodation for each family is concerned. While it is the duty of the Local Authority to see that each overcrowded family is provided with suitable accommodation in which it will not be overcrowded, it does not follow that the new accommodation which it may be necessary to provide should be determined solely with regard to the needs of the families found to be overcrowded at the time of the survey. The overcrowding of a particular family may be abated in various ways other than the direct provision by the Local Authority of a new house for that family. For example, it might be abated by the finding of alternative accommodation for sub-tenants (so increasing the amount of accommodation at the disposal of the overcrowded family) or by obtaining the removal of the overcrowded family to a suitable existing house whether belonging to the Local Authority or to a private owner.

In paragraph 17 of Memorandum B the Minister indicated how from the completed Forms C the Local Authority could make their first rough estimate of the accommodation required to abate overcrowding. As is also stated in that paragraph, this rough estimate will usually be sufficient to form the basis of the general rehousing proposals which are required to be submitted to the Minister by August 1, 1936, as prescribed in Circular 1507.

The Minister has no doubt that the Local Authorities will see that these necessary preliminary proposals are submitted not later than the prescribed date.

When attention is turned to specific building proposals, it will be necessary to proceed to a closer examination of the housing need, in order that the provision to be made may in type and extent coincide with the necessities of the situation. For this purpose an analysis of the particulars furnished on Form B will be necessary. The information already in the Minister's possession leads him to anticipate that this analysis will, in most districts, show that while there is a certain amount of overcrowding which can be abated by the finding of alternative accommodation for sub-tenants or, in the case of houses belonging to the Local Authority, by a re-allocation of houses or by the provision of the normal type of working-class house, there will be a residue of large and very large families for whom some extraordinary provision must be made. If there are no existing houses suitable for such families which can be made available for them, it will be necessary for the Local Authority to provide the appropriate accommodation, and in most cases this will mean that they will have to provide houses of a larger type than those which have ordinarily been provided on the estates of Local Authorities. The Minister has already pointed out in Memorandum B that the provision of cottages or flats for aged persons will often render available accommodation suitable for a normal sized family and accordingly he anticipates that the rehousing proposals put forward by Local Authorities will usually be made up of a certain number of one-bedroom houses for aged persons together with houses for large families requiring 3, 4, or more bedrooms.

As pointed out in paragraph 3 of Memorandum B the overcrowding standard set out in the Act of 1935 does not represent an ideal standard of housing, but is the minimum which, in the view of Parliament, is tolerable while at the same time capable of immediate or early enforcement. In planning their new houses the main consideration for the Local Authority to take into account is the provision of accommodation suitable and convenient for the type and size of family which will normally occupy it, and there should be no question of modifying an otherwise suitable plan merely for the purpose of increasing the number permitted by the overcrowding standard, e.g. the fact that a room of 110 feet in area would not be overcrowded under the Act of 1935 if occupied by two persons does not imply that this size is an adequate area for all bedrooms.

The standard of occupation to be adopted for rehousing under the Act of 1935 is that laid down for slum clearance schemes, namely that specified in Section 37 of the Act of 1930. This Section provides that the Local Authority "shall treat a house containing two bedrooms as providing accommodation for four persons; a house containing three bedrooms as providing accommodation for five persons; and a house containing four bedrooms as providing accommodation for seven persons."

It will be observed that this is not a complete standard of accommodation inasmuch as no mention is made of the size of the bedrooms and no indication of the standard for families consisting of more than seven persons, while it will be observed that in this section children count as whole persons whatever their age. The Minister thinks, however, that he may assist Local Authorities in their consideration of rehousing proposals, particularly where these proposals are likely to necessitate more considerable departures from what have been regarded as the usual types of houses to be built by Local Authorities, if he indicates what appear to him to be satisfactory standards. Reference to the size of these normal types was made in Circular 1238 of January 12, 1932. In amplification of that Memorandum the Minister would himself regard the following standards (in which by "person" is meant any individual whether adult or child) as being generally satisfactory:—

(a) The three-bedroom non-parlour type of house with a superficial area of 760 square feet or thereabouts and containing bedrooms of about 150, 100 and 80 square feet and a living room of 180 square feet, which follows the normal type being erected in large numbers by local authorities, affords adequate accommodation for a working-class family consisting of not more than five persons.

(b) For a family of six persons a three-bedroom non-parlour type of house of rather larger size than that referred to under (a) would afford adequate accommodation. The third bedroom should be made larger, and this would give on the ground floor the necessary extra living room accommodation. Suitable sizes recommended are bedrooms of 150, 120 and 100 square feet, and a living room of 200 square feet, with a total superficial area of about 850 square feet.

(c) For a family of seven persons appropriate accommodation could be provided in a four-bedroom non-parlour type of house containing bedrooms of approximately 150, 120, 100 and 80 square feet, and a living room of about 220 square feet, with a total superficial area of about 1,050 square feet. In certain cases if the local authority consider that the circumstances call for it, one substantial living room of, say, 180 square feet, together with a smaller parlour of, say, 100 square feet, might be substituted for the single large living room. In some cases this accommodation could be conveniently planned by arranging for a folding door between the two living rooms. By such an arrangement fuel could be economised, as one fire could often be used to warm the two rooms.

(d) For a family consisting of eight persons a four-bedroom house with a superficial area of approximately 1,130 square feet would afford appropriate accommodation. The bedrooms might be approximately 150, 120, 120 and 100 square feet in area. The living accommodation would normally take the form of a living room and a parlour.

(e) For families of more than eight persons the same general principle should be followed, that is, that a necessary increase of sleeping accommodation should be accompanied by a corresponding increase of living accommodation. Where there are nine persons in one family, appropriate accommodation might be provided in a four-bedroom house, on condition that the bedrooms were made large enough, e.g., so that the second bedroom had a minimum area of 130 square feet. In the case of very large families it may be necessary to provide five or even six-bedroom houses. Where this has to be done the authority should, as far as possible, associate with each large house a small dwelling, e.g., one suitable for an aged couple, in such a way that at some future date the combined dwelling might be structurally altered into two separate family houses. In some areas, especially in rural districts, it may be sufficient to add a bedroom or a parlour with a bedroom over it to existing houses. Many plans of existing houses will be found to lend themselves to this arrangement. The staff of the Ministry is available to local authorities for consultation and guidance on such questions.

Where rehousing takes the form of blocks of flats the planning should provide that the living room accommodation in each flat increases as the number of bedrooms increases, and sufficient bedrooms should be provided to ensure that the living accommodation is not to be used for sleeping purposes except, of course, in the case of one-room dwellings. The Minister does not think it necessary to lay down any general sizes and areas in view of the fact that the number of authorities providing blocks of flats will be comparatively small, and it will no doubt be administratively more convenient to deal with each proposal on its merits. He thinks, however, that generally speaking local authorities will take the view that it is undesirable for them to provide housing accommodation in flats for large families. For the very large family which will normally contain several young children a flat is definitely much less suitable accommodation than a cottage. As far as possible, therefore, the Minister suggests that local authorities should rehouse such families in cottages, reserving their flats for families of more normal size. In cases where it is necessary to rehouse large families as near the centre of a town as possible, accommodation may sometimes be found for them on the existing more central cottage estates of the authority by converting two existing cottages into one and rehousing the existing tenants of those cottages in the new flats.

In paragraph 11 of Memorandum C on the Housing Act, 1935, dealing with rehousing in blocks of flats, the Minister drew attention to the desirability of providing each flat with a private balcony. The authority should take special steps to ensure that such balconies are safe for children. The balcony must be kept clear of objects on which children might climb. The tenants of flats should be warned of the danger of leaving children unattended on the balcony while it contains furniture on which climbing is possible.

The programme of house building which remains to be carried out by Local Authorities under slum clearance and overcrowding is substantial, and the houses to be erected by Local Authorities will thus in many districts have an appreciable effect on the architectural character of the district. While the Minister recognises the good work which has been done in many areas, he would urge upon all Local Authorities the importance of securing that the execution of their schemes is entrusted to persons of experience capable of producing not only well-built houses but dwellings of architectural merit. If the Local Authority are not proposing to employ an architect he suggests that they should consult the Ministry at the earliest stage of their proposals.

Where new cottages are to be erected in an existing village of a well defined architectural character or in rural surroundings it is particularly important that every endeavour should be made to ensure that they harmonise with their surroundings and the Minister is assured that this can usually be done without increasing the cost of the cottages.

Many local authorities in submitting specific housing proposals have regularly furnished the Minister with plans, elevations and specification or description of the materials to be used, and the information so obtained, in addition to assisting the Minister to deal with the particular proposals, has been of great value to the department and has enabled the experience and ideas of some local authorities to be passed on to others. The Minister, while not proposing to ask for this information in all cases, hopes that local authorities will continue and extend this present practice. In particular, as he desires more complete information as to the position in rural areas, he would be glad to receive plans, elevations, etc. of houses to be erected in those areas.

I am, etc.

CIRCULAR 1591.

To Local Authorities
(England and Wales).

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL, S.W.1.
1*st January*, 1937.

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to communicate with the Local Authority on the question of the action to be taken by them under the overcrowding provisions of the Housing Act, 1935.

By virtue of orders (a) which have been made by the Minister after consultation with the Local Authorities the appointed days under sections 3, 4, and 68 of the Act have already been fixed for the greater part of the country, and as a result the overcrowding provisions will be in operation in those districts during the whole or some part of next year. As from the appointed day in their area it will be the duty of the Local Authority to see that existing cases of overcrowding are abated as soon as possible, and that no new cases arise except for special reasons and under conditions set out in a temporary license.

The discharge of these duties will call for care and thought in organisation before the appointed day and sympathy and understanding in administration after the appointed day.

Reference has been made in previous circulars to the general lines of the action to be taken by Local Authorities in advance of the appointed day, and the Minister has no doubt that Local Authorities for whose districts early appointed days have been fixed will already have completed the necessary arrangements to ensure the smooth working of the new provisions, and in particular will have provided for the following essentials:—

(1) The measuring of the rooms in working-class houses for the purpose of ascertaining the permitted number for each working-class dwelling, and for the furnishing of this information to landlords for insertion in the prescribed form of notice in rent-books.

(2) The combination of the information obtained by this measurement survey with the information obtained by the original overcrowding survey to build up a system of records which will not only serve as the basis for the authority's action in abating overcrowding but will show the progress made. Such a system of records is necessary to obviate the necessity for a further survey at a subsequent date and to enable the Medical Officer of Health to carry out the duties imposed upon him by the regulations made under Section 11 of the Act (b). The Minister wishes to stress the importance of making this system a complete record of all existing overcrowded families, and of the action taken to deal with them, of new cases as they arise by reason of births or the growing up of children and of cases licensed by the Authority.

(3) The dissemination of information to the public concerning their new duties and responsibilities and the date from which these operated, and the preparation of pamphlets for distribution to inquirers.

In previous Circulars the Minister has drawn attention to the necessity of providing adequate facilities for landlords and occupiers to obtain full information of their new duties and responsibilities.

A certain amount of information is given in the statutory notice which must be inserted in rent-books, but this notice could not, by its very nature, deal with difficult points which may arise, and that is why it contains the statement that any further information which may be desired can be obtained from the Local Authority. It is essential that this information should be forthcoming when it is requested, and inasmuch as there are sure to be the same points arising again and again it will probably be the most convenient course for each authority to prepare, or to obtain, pamphlets covering the chief points of the overcrowding code and explaining fully points on which difficulty is likely to arise. It appears to the Minister to be particularly desirable that it should be made clear to the tenant that the permitted number in the rent-book is the number for the whole dwelling comprised in the tenancy to which that rent-book relates and that if he lets part of his house to a sub-tenant the permitted number in his rent-book is no longer applicable. In the ordinary case the sub-tenant will have a rent-book in which the permitted number for his dwelling must be inserted by the tenant (who is the sub-tenant's landlord), and the tenant himself will be left with a dwelling in respect of which there is no separate rent-book. It will, therefore, be necessary for the tenant to ascertain from the local authority or otherwise the permitted number for the dwelling consisting of the part of the whole house which he himself occupies.

The Minister is confident that, when the Local Authorities come to the discharge of their new duties after the appointed day, he can rely on them to carry out this difficult task of administration with discretion and sympathy. The essence of the matter is to realise that most families are overcrowded through no fault of their own and that the object of the Act is to help such people and not to injure them.

The Act clearly provides that any occupier who is unfortunately living in overcrowded conditions is not thereby committing any offence; and there can be no question of putting pressure on him to abate the overcrowding by splitting up his family or by other drastic measures of that kind. The overcrowding is to be abated by finding him a house of a suitable size, suitably situated and suitably rented, in which he and his family can lead a healthy and comfortable life.

This does not mean that it will be necessary for the Local Authority to build a new house for each overcrowded family. There will be among the overcrowded families in most districts some small families at present living in one or two rooms for whom the ordinary type of working-class house would be suitable, if it could be made available, and some larger families for whom no existing working-class house is available.

For the latter type special steps must be taken, which may either consist of the erection of large houses of the types described in Circular 1539 (a) or the conversion of two existing houses into one or the acquisition or leasing of existing houses which can be made suitable for working-class occupation.

The needs of the smaller overcrowded families will be met to a considerable extent by a process of redistribution. For example every local authority which possesses a considerable number of houses will find a certain number becoming empty week by week and available for reletting. These relettings can be so arranged that on each occasion at least one case of overcrowding will be abated. The process of redistribution will be similarly applicable to the new building operations of the Authority. Where a batch of houses have been built and let to selected families, the Authority should take such steps as are possible to see that the accommodation vacated by the families rehoused is used in such a way as to abate other cases of overcrowding. The same process will be continued as other houses are built.

In deciding on the type and accommodation of new houses the Local Authority should have particular regard to the information they now have as to the shortage or surplus of various types of houses in their district. The overcrowding survey which the Authority made has given them information as to the number and sizes of the working-class families in their district, and also as to the number and sizes of the working-class dwellings in their district. They can therefore see at once if they have a shortage or a surplus of particular types and this information will serve as a background for their own housing activities, under whatever Act they are carried out.

For example, the houses being demolished under the slum clearance scheme of a Local Authority may be two-bedroomed houses of which there is already a surplus in the district though there is a shortage of three- or four-bedroomed houses. In such circumstances it would be better housing policy to provide new replacement houses of the larger types of which there is a shortage, use them for the accommodation of overcrowded families and arrange for the accommodation of the small families displaced from the demolished houses in existing small houses, which may be houses already belonging to the Local Authorities or other houses of this type which are available. In this way the building of new houses under the slum clearance programme of the Local Authority, the completion of which will occupy the full activities of many Local Authorities for some time, can be used to secure the abatement of overcrowding to a considerable extent.

The total number of new houses which will be required for the execution of the two programmes should thus be reduced without any detriment to the objective of securing decent and adequate houses for those now living in unfit or overcrowded houses.

In the Circular issued on May 7, 1936 (Circular 1539), the Minister referred to the standard of occupation to be used for rehousing under the Act of 1935, and indicated what appeared to him to be satisfactory standards for types of houses not covered by the terms of Section 37 of the Act of 1930 (a). In so far as existing accommodation is used for the abatement of overcrowding, the Minister thinks that the same standards would generally be appropriate.

In the course of their work local authorities will meet with a certain number of cases of special difficulty. One of these will be the overcrowded owner-occupier. The Housing Act, 1935, makes no distinction between an occupier and an owner-occupier; neither must overcrowd the house they live in. It is obvious, however, that cases involving overcrowded owner-occupiers must be treated with special care and sympathy. Where overcrowding in an owner-occupied house can be relieved by the removal of lodgers or sub-tenants, the matter is comparatively simple. Where, however, it is a case of the house being too small for the owner-occupier and his family, and the overcrowding is not likely to be relieved in a comparatively short time, e.g. by the marriage of a son or daughter, there may be no other solution but for the owner-occupier to move into a larger house. Such cases will be comparatively very few, but each will call for special consideration, and the course involving least hardship must be adopted. It is obvious that no hard and fast rules can be laid down, but there are various expedients which may sometimes help to ease a particular situation. It may, for example, occasionally be feasible for the Local Authority to purchase the owner-occupier's house and, by means of advances under the Housing Acts or Small Dwellings Acquisition Acts, assist him to become the owner of a larger house.

Another difficult case, calling for special consideration, will be the overcrowded house which is tied to a particular employment. These will mostly occur as tied cottages in agricultural areas. In such cases one possible remedy which should always be explored is the extension of the cottages to provide additional accommodation with financial assistance under the Housing (Rural Workers) Acts.

The Minister recognises that all these difficulties cannot be resolved in a moment. Local Authorities have by the Act been given considerable powers to secure the abatement of overcrowding: these powers are there in reserve but they will play no part in normal administration. Having regard to the smoothness and efficiency with which the survey of overcrowding was carried out by local authorities, the Minister feels sure that he can rely on them to carry out their further duties under the Act in the same spirit of sympathy and helpfulness towards those whom the Act is designed to assist. The Minister will be glad to arrange for his officers to afford to Local Authorities any advice or assistance in their power in dealing with the problems which arise in the administration of the Act.

The Housing Act, 1936.

This Act (b), which will come into operation on January 1, 1937, does not include any new legislative requirements, but merely repeals and re-enacts in consolidated form the provisions of the Housing Acts of 1925, 1930 and 1935. Owing to the numerous and important amendments made by the Act of 1930 in the Act of 1925 and by the Act of 1935 in both the earlier Acts, the position of housing legislation had become extremely complicated, and the new Act assembles, in appropriate sequence, the various parts of the housing code previously distributed among the three earlier Acts.

The Housing Act, 1936, is divided into seven parts which, with the exception of

(b) Ante, p. 1583.

Part I, follow generally the arrangement of the Act of 1925, with the necessary modification and expansion. Part I contains a general definition of the local authority for the purposes of the Act, with a reservation for the County of London. Part II relates to the repair, sanitary condition, etc., of small houses and reproduces Part I of the 1925 Act, as amended. Part III relates to clearance, improvement and redevelopment, and replaces Part II of the 1925 Act as amended, with the addition of the redevelopment provisions of Part I of the 1935 Act. Part IV reproduces the provisions of Part I of the 1935 Act relating to overcrowding. Part V relates generally to the provision of houses by local authorities and replaces Part III of the Act of 1925 as amended and extended. Part VI collects together the subsidy provisions of the Acts of 1930 and 1935, and the various provisions relating to local authority housing finances. Part VII of the Act contains a number of miscellaneous and general provisions taken from all three earlier Acts.

I am to draw special attention to Section 189, a comprehensive saving provision which secures continuity of action by enacting, inter alia, that anything done under the repealed enactments shall have effect as if done under the corresponding provision of the new Act, and that documents referring to the repealed enactments shall be construed as referring to the corresponding provision of the new Act.

There are also twelve Schedules to the Act. With the exception mentioned below, they merely re-enact the Schedules of the three earlier Acts. The First Schedule to the Act, however, represents an important change in arrangement. The earlier Acts contained three codes of procedure for the making of Compulsory Purchase Orders, viz. :—those relating respectively to orders made under the clearance provisions of the Act of 1930, the development provisions of the Act of 1935, and the general provisions of Part III of the Act of 1925. These three codes have all been collected in the First Schedule to the new Act, the first seven paragraphs of which contain the general provisions common to all three codes, while the remaining paragraphs set out the different variations.

The coming into operation of the Act of 1936 will necessitate some revision of the various forms, etc., prescribed under the earlier Acts, and the following draft Regulations have been made and issued :—

1. The Housing Act (Forms of Orders and Notices) Regulations, 1937 (a).

2. The Housing Act (Extinguishment of Public Right of Way) Regulations, 1937 (b).

3. The Housing Act (Overcrowding and Miscellaneous Forms) Regulations, 1937 (c).

These Regulations will come into force early in the new year, but their issue at the present time will enable local authorities to revise their forms in readiness for the operation of the Act of 1936.

The Minister has also caused to be prepared Tables of Comparison showing (1) the mode in which earlier enactments are dealt with by the Act of 1936 and (2) the sections of the Act of 1936 and corresponding provisions in earlier Acts.

The above mentioned draft Regulations and Tables of Comparison have been placed on sale and may be obtained in the usual way from H.M. Stationery Office, or through any bookseller.

Provided that if the person having control of the house proves that he—

(i) is receiving the rent merely as agent or trustee for some other person ; and

(ii) has not, and since the date of the service on him of the demand has not had, in his hands on behalf of that other person sufficient money to discharge the whole demand of the authority, his liability shall be limited to the total amount of the money, which he has, or has had, in his hands as aforesaid.

The local authority may by order declare any such expenses to be payable by weekly or other instalments within a period not exceeding thirty years with interest at such rate as the Minister may, with the approval of the Treasury, from time to time by order fix, from the date of the service of the demand until the whole amount is paid. Any such instalments and interest, or any part thereof, may be recovered summarily as a civil debt from any owner or occupier of the house, and, if recovered from an occupier, may be deducted by him from the rent of the house.

Housing Act, 1936.

Whereas the[1] (hereinafter referred to as " the Council ") after complying with the requirements of section 54 of the Housing Act, 1936, are satisfied that the building known as[2] is a building which by reason only of its contact with, or proximity to, other buildings, is dangerous or injurious to health, and is an obstructive building within the meaning of [2] Such description of the building as may be sufficient for identification.

[3] If the order requires vacation and demolition of part only of the building insert sufficient description of such part.

NOTE.

Section 54 of the Act defines an " obstructive building " as one which by reason only of its contact with or proximity to other buildings is dangerous or injurious to health.

The same section provides that a local authority may serve upon the owner or owners of a building which appears to them to be an obstructive building a notice of the time (not less than twenty-one days after the service of the notice) and place at which the question of the ordering of the demolition of the building will be considered by the authority and owners are entitled to be heard when the matter is so considered. If after such consideration the authority are satisfied that the building is an obstructive building and that the whole or any part of it ought to be demolished, they may make an order requiring that the building or any part of it shall be demolished, and that the building or such part of it as is required to be vacated for purposes of demolition, shall be vacated within two months from the date on which the order becomes operative. A copy of such order must be served on the owner or owners of the building.

Section 55 of the Act in effect provides that if before the expiration of the above-mentioned period of two months the owner or owners offer to sell the building and its site to the local authority at a price to be assessed, as if it were compensation for a compulsory purchase, by arbitration in accordance with the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, subject to the rules specified in the Fourth Schedule to the Housing Act, 1936, and if such acquisition would enable the local authority to carry out the demolition provided for by the order, the authority shall accept such offer and shall, as soon as possible after obtaining possession, carry out the demolition of the building. The section also provides that if no such offer is made the owner or owners of the building shall carry out the demolition required by the order before the expiration of six weeks from the last day of the said period of two months or, if the building, or such part of it as is required to be vacated, is not vacated until after that day, before the expiration of six weeks from the day on which it is vacated or, in either case, within such longer period as in the circumstances the local authority deem reasonable.

Where the demolition of the building is carried out under section 55 either by the owners or by the local authority compensation is required to be paid by the authority to the owners in respect of loss arising from such demolition and, notwithstanding that no land is acquired compulsorily by the authority, such compensation is to be assessed in accordance with the provisions of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, subject to the rules specified in the Fourth Schedule to the Housing Act, 1936, and as modified by subsection (4) of section 55 of the Act.

The provisions of section 15 of the Act are applicable to a demolition order in respect of an obstructive building. This section provides that any person aggrieved by a demolition order may appeal, within twenty-one days after the date of the service of the order, to the County Court within the jurisdiction of which the premises are situate.

The County Court Rules provide that an appeal shall be brought by giving notice of the appeal to the local authority and at the same time requesting the Registrar of the County Court having jurisdiction in the matter to enter the appeal.

The County Court Rules further provide that the notice to the local authorities and the request to the Registrar for entry of this appeal shall, so far as circumstances permit, be in accordance with the forms prescribed by the rules.

If no appeal is brought within the above-mentioned period of twenty-one days the order will become operative on the expiration of that period, but in case an appeal is made the order will not become operative until the appeal is finally determined or withdrawn.

The provisions of section 155 of the Act relating to the recovery of possession of buildings in respect of which a demolition order has become operative, are applicable to this order. By subsection (3) of that section it is provided that any person who knowing that a demolition order has become operative and applies to any building, enters into occupation of that building or any part thereof after the date by which the order requires that building to be vacated, or permits any other person to enter into such occupation after that date, shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds and to a further penalty of five pounds for every day or part of a day on which the occupation continues after conviction.

NOTICE TO OWNERS, MORTGAGEES, LESSEES AND OCCUPIERS OF THE MAKING OF A COMPULSORY PURCHASE ORDER IN RESPECT OF LAND COMPRISED IN A CLEARANCE AREA AND LAND SURROUNDED BY OR ADJOINING THE AREA.

Housing Act, 1936.

To[1] { Owner / Mortgagee / Lessee / Occupier }

Of[2]

Take Notice that the[3] (hereinafter referred to as "the Council") in pursuance of their powers under section 29 of the Housing Act, 1936, on the day of 19 , made an order which is about to be submitted for confirmation by the Minister of Health authorising them to purchase compulsorily the lands described in the schedule hereto.

The lands included in the order are

(1) lands in an area declared to be a clearance area by a resolution of the Council dated the day of 19 , which the Council have determined to purchase for securing the clearance thereof by themselves undertaking or otherwise securing the demolition of the buildings thereon and

(2) *lands which the Council in pursuance of their powers under section 27 of the Housing Act, 1936, have determined to purchase as being [lands surrounded by the clearance area the acquisition of which is reasonably necessary for the purpose of securing a cleared area of convenient shape and dimensions] or [lands adjoining the clearance area the acquisition of which is reasonably necessary for the satisfactory development or user of the cleared area].

Copies of the order and of the map referred to therein and a map of the clearance area have been deposited at and may be seen at all reasonable hours.

Reference to the order and maps will show:

(a) * what parts of the land to be acquired compulsorily are outside the clearance area;

(b) * what buildings, if any, to be purchased compulsorily are included in the clearance area, on the ground only, that by reason of their bad arrangement in relation to other buildings, or the narrowness or bad arrangement of the streets, they are dangerous or injurious to the health of the inhabitants of the area.

* Strike out if inapplicable.

Any objection to this order must be made in writing stating the grounds of your objection and addressed to the Minister of Health, Whitehall, London, S.W.1, before the day of 19 .

The Act provides that if no objection is duly made by any of the persons upon whom notices are required to be served, or if all objections so made are withdrawn, or if the Minister is satisfied that every objection duly made relates exclusively to matters which can be dealt with by the arbitrator by whom the compensation is to be assessed, the Minister may if he thinks fit confirm the order with or without modification, but in any other case he shall before confirming the order cause a public local inquiry to be held and shall consider any objection not withdrawn and the report of the person who held the inquiry and may then confirm the order either with or without modification.

The following paragraphs, with any necessary adaptations, to be inserted in notices to owners, etc., of land comprised in the clearance area.

As the lands in which you are interested are comprised in the clearance area, the compensation which will be payable for the land, including the buildings thereon, will, if the order is confirmed by the Minister, be assessed as follows—

(a) in the case of lands included in the clearance area on the ground only that the buildings thereon are, by reason of their bad arrangement in relation to other buildings, or the narrowness or bad arrangement of the streets, dangerous or injurious to the health of the inhabitants of the area, in accordance with the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, subject to the rules specified in the Fourth Schedule to the Housing Act, 1936;

(b) in the case of other lands in the clearance area, the compensation will be the value, at the time the valuation is made, of the land as a site cleared of buildings and available for development in accordance with the requirements of the building byelaws for the time being in force in the district, assessed in accordance with the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919.

Any local inquiry directed by the Minister of Health in connection with this order will deal with the question whether the land is properly included in the clearance area.

If the Minister is of opinion that land included by a local authority in a clearance area ought not to have been so included, he is required to modify the order so as to exclude that land for all purposes from the clearance area, but if he is of opinion that the land may properly be purchased by the local authority under section 27 of the Housing Act, 1936, as being land surrounded by the clearance area the acquisition of which is reasonably necessary for the purpose of securing a cleared area of convenient shape and dimensions, or as being land adjoining the clearance area the acquisition of which is reasonably necessary for the satisfactory development or user of the cleared area, he is required further to modify the order so as to authorise the authority to purchase the land under the said section 27 and not as being land comprised in the clearance area. The compensation payable for land so purchased is required to be assessed in accordance with the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, subject to the rules specified in the Fourth Schedule to the Housing Act, 1936.

The following paragraph to be inserted in notices to owners, etc., of land not comprised in the clearance area.

As the lands in which you are interested are not comprised in the clearance area, compensation will, if the order is confirmed by the Minister, be assessed in accordance with the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, subject to the rules specified in the Fourth Schedule to the Housing Act, 1936.

CIRCULAR 1602.

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL, S.W.1.
6th March, 1937.

HOUSING (RURAL WORKERS) ACTS: PUBLICITY.

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to refer to the Report on the Housing (Rural Workers) Acts, submitted to him by the Central Housing Advisory Committee, a copy of which was enclosed with Circular 1583 (a) and forwarded to you on November 28, 1936.

The Report drew attention to the excellent results obtained in those areas where wide publicity has been given to the facilities available under the Acts and included the following recommendation (paragraph 9 of the Report):—

> "We also suggest that the Minister of Health might be recommended to consider the preparation of an attractive illustrated pamphlet, calling attention to the facilities offered by the Acts and stressing the use which may be made of them in connection with the relief of overcrowding by making it possible to enlarge small cottages. This pamphlet could then be used by local authorities and other persons for purposes of publicity."

The Minister is of opinion that a greater use of the provisions of the Acts is much to be desired and he has gladly adopted the suggestion made to him by the Advisory Committee. Accordingly arrangements are now being made for the issue of an illustrated booklet and also of a pictorial poster and a folder illustrated in colours. Descriptions of these publications are given in the memorandum accompanying this Circular (b). The poster is intended for general display both outdoors and indoors, the folder for wide distribution to landowners, farmers, architects, surveyors, builders, solicitors, estate agents and others, and the booklet for issue to all who, in response to the wider publicity, seek more detailed information.

It is anticipated that these publications will be ready for issue shortly after Easter and the Minister earnestly hopes that the Council will be willing to co-operate with him by undertaking to distribute them in their area. Copies of the publications, together with envelopes for the folders and booklets, will be supplied without charge and it will be of great assistance to the Minister to know as soon as possible how many copies of each publication the Council are likely to require. As some guidance to the number of copies required, I am to add that provision has been made in the first instance to meet an average demand of about 500 posters and 2,500 leaflets for each administrative county. It will be appreciated that the booklet will not be available in such large numbers, as it will not be for general distribution but only for the use of bona fide inquirers. The Minister will accordingly be much obliged if you will be good enough to complete and return without delay the form, of which two copies are enclosed with this letter.

Suggestions as to publicity arrangements, some of which it may be found convenient to adopt, are given on pages 10–13 of the Advisory Committee's Report. In particular, the Minister thinks that County Councils administering the Acts will wish to act in close co-operation with the Rural District Councils within the county, and vice versa. He hopes also that his Inspectors may be able to be of some assistance to the Council on the matter, and they are being instructed to communicate with you to this end.

I am, etc.

23rd April, 1938.

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to refer to the Housing (Financial Provisions) Act, 1938 (a), and to enclose, for the information and guidance of the

(a) Ante, p. 1866.

Council, two copies of a memorandum explaining the provisions of the Act and the procedure which should be followed by local authorities in carrying out their duties under it. The memorandum has been placed on sale and further copies may be obtained from H.M. Stationery Office, or through any bookseller.

The main effect of the Act, so far as regards the County Borough Councils and the London housing authorities, is to replace as from the beginning of the year 1939 the varying Exchequer and rate contributions payable for the different purposes of the Housing Acts of 1930 and 1935 by uniform rates of contribution applicable alike to all those purposes. As from that date, therefore, the same rates of contributions will be payable in respect of the provision of such new houses as may be necessary, whether in connection with the rehousing of persons displaced from unfit houses in pursuance of demolition orders, closing orders, and clearance, improvement and redevelopment operations, or as a result of displacements from other houses in pursuance of redevelopment operations, or with a view to the abatement of overcrowding.

In accordance with the suggestion made in the Circular of October 22nd, 1935 (Circular 1500A), local authorities have in the execution of their programmes for dealing with slum clearance and the abatement of overcrowding concentrated their first efforts on the provision of houses in connection with slum clearance. As a result of the progress which has been made the position has now been reached that the total amount of rehousing work to be done after the end of 1938 may be expected to be divided in approximately equal proportions between slum clearance and overcrowding, although the proportions will vary in different districts. The equalisation of the contributions in respect of houses built for each purpose will facilitate the progress of the two campaigns for slum clearance and the abatement of overcrowing side by side and the Minister is anxious that both campaigns should be prosecuted with equal vigour.

It will be observed that, while under Section 1 of the Act the new Exchequer contributions will apply to houses completed after the beginning of 1939, the Minister is empowered by Section 10 to pay such contributions in respect of houses, other than houses provided in connection with slum clearance, completed before the end of 1938 for which no building contract had been entered into by February 3, 1938. There will consequently be no need for local authorities to hold up proposals for the provision of houses for the relief of overcrowding during the remainder of the present year, in order to secure the new subsidies.

It will also be observed that the new Exchequer contributions are payable for housing accommodation approved for the purposes of the Act by the Minister. Any houses, therefore, approved by the Minister under the Act of 1936 which are not completed fit for occupation by the end of 1938, and so will fall within the purview of the new Act, will require the approval of the Minister under the Act; and he hereby approves such houses for the purposes of the Act.

The assimilation of the two subsidies for slum clearance and the abatement of overcrowding which is effected by the Act of 1938 is based on the view that the economic position of those living in unfit and in overcrowded houses, respectively, does not differ to such an extent as to warrant any general difference in the rents of the houses built by local authorities for their accommodation. This assimilation will enable local authorities to determine the sequence of their housing programme during the next few years on the ground of the relative urgency of need from the public health point of view, and without reference to the comparative amount of assistance which will be available.

When the subsidies fixed by this Act come into operation nearly one-half of those living in unfit and overcrowded houses in the operative programmes will have moved to their new homes, though the proportion in any individual district will vary substantially according to the extent of the programme and the activity displayed by the local authority since the campaign began.

The subsidies fixed by the Act will be available for houses completed by September 30, 1942, and the Minister feels no doubt that with the activity which is now being generally displayed the programmes adopted by local authorities can be substantially completed within this period.

The Minister favours the practice which has been adopted generally by local authorities of entering into building contracts for the erection of such number of houses only as can be completed within a reasonable period. He suggests, however, that there is considerable advantage to local authorities in taking such preliminary steps as the choice and acquisition of sites required for the execution of their programme well in advance of actual building operations. Such procedure will enable local authorities to aid the planning of their district by determining in advance what land is likely to be required by them during the next few years for the erection of working-class houses, and will enable them to maintain an even flow of production, or to increase or decrease it as may at any time be found most convenient, without being hampered by any difficulties or delays in regard to the acquisition of sites.

The Minister will be prepared to entertain applications for sanction to loans for the acquisition of sites likely to be required by the local authority, notwithstanding that building operations are not immediately contemplated.

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL, S.W.1.
23rd April, 1938.

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to refer to the Housing (Financial Provisions) Act, 1938 (a), and to enclose, for the information and guidance of the Council, two copies of a memorandum explaining the provisions of the Act and the procedure which should be followed by local authorities in carrying out their duties under it. The memorandum has been placed on sale and further copies may be obtained from H.M. Stationery Office, or through any bookseller.

Under the Act the varying Exchequer and rate contributions payable for the different purposes of the Housing Acts of 1930 and 1935 will be replaced as from the beginning of the year 1939 by uniform rates of contribution applicable alike to all those purposes. As from that date, therefore, the same rates of contributions will be payable in respect of the provision of such new houses as may be necessary, whether in connection with the rehousing of persons displaced in pursuance of demolition orders, closing orders, and clearance and improvement operations, or with a view to the abatement of overcrowding. Although the amount of the contributions will be uniform for both slum clearance and the abatement of overcrowding, the Act maintains and extends the difference in the amount of this contribution in favour of the agricultural population which was established by the Act of 1935.

The amount of the Exchequer contribution payable in respect of houses built with the Minister's approval for the agricultural population will in the ordinary case be £10 a year for 40 years, but this amount may be increased up to £12 a year in exceptional circumstances.

The scope of the assistance available for the provision of houses for the agricultural population is considerably extended by the Act. The contributions under the Act are available not merely for houses built for slum clearance and the abatement of overcrowding but also for houses built to meet the general needs of the agricultural population.

Rural District Councils have in the past directed the Minister's attention to the difficulties which they have experienced in providing houses for agricultural workers at rents within their capacity to pay, and the Minister understands that the lack of modern houses available for such workers has contributed in no small measure to the drift from the land which has led to the present shortage of agricultural labour. The Rural Housing Sub-Committee of the Central Housing Advisory Committee recommended that assistance for the purpose should be made available and should be assimilated with that provided for the abatement of overcrowding.

The provisions in the Act are designed to secure this object and the Exchequer subsidy has been fixed at a high level in order to secure houses which can be let to agricultural workers at an appropriate level of rents without imposing an undue burden on local rates.

The Minister has no doubt that he can rely on local authorities to take early advantage of this opportunity with special reference to the needs of agricultural workers and that they will at once give consideration to the question of including in their building programme provision for their ascertained needs for this purpose.

The local authority will be aware from the surveys which they have made of the general extent of the house building required to replace unfit houses and to abate overcrowding. The full extent of the new accommodation required over a period of years for the general needs of the agricultural population will depend materially upon the trend of the agricultural industry in the district during this period, and any estimate now made will therefore need to be reviewed in the light of experience.

Nevertheless, with their knowledge of the conditions of their district the authority will no doubt already have ascertained or will be able readily to ascertain by inquiry in the different parishes what is the present need for this purpose and will be able to formulate provisional proposals for dealing with unfit houses, the abatement of overcrowding, and the general needs of the agricultural population.

With the knowledge of the subsidies available for houses to be built in the next few years the local authority should consider the adoption of such proposals in outline and take early action for the choice and acquisition of sites even though building operations may not in all cases be immediately contemplated. For the purpose of their immediate building programme the local authority will no doubt put in hand only such number of houses as can be completed within a reasonable period (say 9–12 months), and the Minister will be glad to be informed of the number of such houses. Particulars as to the form in which proposals should be submitted are contained in the accompanying memorandum.

In this connection the Minister wishes to emphasise the importance of building houses which will not only provide more healthy living conditions for the tenants but will be attractive and in keeping with the neighbourhood. The houses now to be built may be expected to stand as a part of the village or the countryside for several generations and the Minister is confident that the local authority will desire that they should be objects of pride and not of criticism. To secure this end the houses should be not merely well planned but well sited.

The Minister has already referred to this matter in the Circular issued in May, 1936 (a) (Circular 1539), and since, under the present Act, a special measure of financial assistance is being given towards the needs of the agricultural population, he wishes to urge upon local authorities the importance of securing skilled technical advice which will enable them to attain the desired object.

The Minister is anxious to afford any assistance in his power and he is about to issue a new Manual supplementary to those previously issued for the guidance of local authorities, containing additional material which he thinks will be of special interest to Rural District Councils. When plans have been prepared, it will save time and trouble at a later stage if they are submitted to the Department before tenders are obtained.

In considering the acquisition of sites for the new houses Rural District Councils will no doubt bear in mind the observations of the Rural Housing Sub-Committee of the Central Housing Advisory Committee in paragraphs 22 and 23 of their Second Report on "Rural Housing." The majority of the witnesses who appeared before the Sub-Committee considered that so far as possible new houses should be built in or close to existing villages, rather than on isolated sites; and the Sub-Committee suggested that the new houses might fit more appropriately into the existing surroundings if the size of gardens were varied to correspond to the custom of the district, additional land being provided if necessary in the form of separate allotments on which tenants might keep pigs or poultry without causing annoyance to their neighbours.

The Sub-Committee also stressed the importance of adequate outbuildings in rural areas and mentioned that, according to the evidence given before them, existing houses built by local authorities often left something to be desired in this respect.

It will be observed that, while under Section 1 of the Act the new Exchequer contributions will be payable for houses completed after the beginning of 1939, the Minister is empowered by Section 10 to pay such contributions in respect of houses, other than houses provided in connection with slum clearance, completed before the end of 1938 for which no building contract was entered into by February 3, 1938. There will consequently be no need for local authorities to hold up proposals for the provision of houses to abate overcrowding or houses for the agricultural population during the remainder of the present year in order to secure the new subsidies.

(a) Ante, p. 3010.

HOUSING

It will also be observed that the Exchequer contributions provided under the Act are payable for housing accommodation approved for the purposes of the Act by the Minister. Any houses therefore approved by the Minister under the Act of 1936, which are not completed fit for occupation by the end of 1938, and so will fall within the purview of the new Act, will require the approval of the Minister under the Act, and he hereby approves such houses for the purposes of the Act.

HOUSING (FINANCIAL PROVISIONS) ACT, 1938.

SUMMARY OF PROVISIONS OF THE ACT.

1. Section 1 provides that in respect of houses built by local authorities with the approval of the Minister for the rehousing of persons displaced from unfit houses as a result of demolition and closing orders and in pursuance of clearance, improvement, or redevelopment operations, for the rehousing of persons displaced from other houses in pursuance of redevelopment operations, and for the purpose of abating overcrowding, an Exchequer contribution of £5 10*s*. per house per annum shall be payable for 40 years.

Special provision is made in subsection (2) of Section 1 in respect of flats built on expensive sites, the Exchequer contribution being graded according to the cost of the site per acre, as set out in the Schedule to the Act.

Under subsections (3) and (4) of Section 1 the subsidy of £5 10*s*. may be increased to £6 10*s*. in non-county boroughs, urban and rural districts where the level of working-class rents is substantially below the average for the particular type of district and the financial resources of the district are small in relation to the housing work to be done.

Section 2 provides that in respect of houses built by local authorities with the approval of the Minister for members of the agricultural population, whether for slum clearance, overcrowding or for general needs, the Exchequer contribution shall be £10 a year for 40 years, which may in exceptional circumstances be increased up to a maximum of £12 a year.

Section 3 provides that if in special cases local authorities make arrangements for the erection of houses for members of the agricultural population by some person other than themselves an Exchequer contribution may be made available to the owner of the house up to £10 a year for 40 years, subject to certain specified conditions.

Section 4 prescribes that the Exchequer contributions (other than those payable under Section 3) provided under the Act shall be Exchequer contributions for the purposes of the Act of 1936, i.e. they shall be brought into the Housing Revenue Account.

Section 5 prescribes arrangements for the review of the Exchequer contributions payable under the Act, amending appropriately the relevant provisions of the Act of 1936. The section provides that the Minister shall review the situation after October 1, 1941, but that the contributions under the Act shall be payable in respect of all houses completed by September 30, 1942.

Section 6 provides that rate contributions shall be paid by the local authorities on the basis of one-half of the Exchequer contributions, with the exceptions that in cases in which the Exchequer contribution of £5 10*s*. is increased to £6 10*s*. the contribution by the local authority will be on the basis of one-half of £5 10*s*., and that the local authority's contribution in respect of houses provided by them for the agricultural population will be on the basis of £1 a year for 40 years.

Section 7 provides for contributions by the County Council in respect of agricultural housing and where the Exchequer contribution of £5 10*s.* is increased to £6 10*s.* In each case the County Council are required to make a payment of £1 a year for 40 years. Further, where the Exchequer contribution towards houses for the agricultural population is increased beyond £10 the County Council are required to contribute an additional amount equal to the excess.

Section 8 enables arrangements to be made by local authorities with housing associations for the provision of houses not only for purposes of slum clearance and the abatement of overcrowding as under the Act of 1936 but also for the general needs of the agricultural population, and for the Exchequer contributions provided under the Act to be made available to them.

Section 9 authorises the continuance of Exchequer contributions in cases in which houses provided by other persons with assistance from a local authority become, owing to default, vested in the local authority.

Section 10 makes the transitional provisions necessitated by the changes effected by the Act. It provides that houses completed not later than December 31, 1938, shall rank for the Exchequer contributions fixed by the Acts of 1930 and 1935, whereas those finished after that date will rank for the subsidies fixed by the new Act. It extends, however, the new subsidies to houses for the abatement of overcrowding or for the general needs of the agricultural population completed before December 31, 1938, if no contracts were entered into in respect of them before February 3, 1938.

Sections 11 and 12 deal with the interpretation and short title of the Act, with special reference to the interpretation of the term " blocks of flats."

TRANSITIONAL ARRANGEMENTS.

2. (a) Houses provided for the purposes of slum clearance.

Exchequer contributions at the rates fixed by the Act of 1930 will be available for houses the erection of which has been approved for slum clearance purposes and which are completed by December 31, 1938, where the housing accommodation is rendered necessary because of displacements occurring in the circumstances set out in paragraph (a) of Section 1 (5) of the new Act.

In order to render these houses eligible for assistance at the rate fixed under the Act of 1930 evidence should be available to show that the number of displacements effected by the local authority by December 31, 1938, or within a reasonable time after that date, arises in such circumstances as to justify the claim for subsidy. It would, on the one hand, be inequitable to exclude in calculating the subsidy to be paid as prescribed by the Act of 1930 persons displaced from unfit houses after December 31, 1938, whose needs formed part of the justification for the building of houses completed by that date. On the other hand, it would not be equitable to bring into account for the purpose of calculating subsidy displacements occurring perhaps before, perhaps long after, December 31, 1938, which were not so taken into account (except to the extent that they may have been substituted for others so taken into account but not actually dealt with).

(b) Houses erected to abate overcrowding.

As previously indicated, while the Exchequer contributions provided by the Act will normally be applicable to houses completed after December 31, 1938, those subsidies may be paid in respect of housing accommodation provided for purposes other than those referred to in sub-paragraph (a) of this paragraph completed before that date if they were included in contracts let not earlier than February 3, 1938.

GENERAL CONDITIONS ATTACHING TO PROPOSALS UNDER THE ACT.

3. Proposals submitted by local authorities after the receipt of this memorandum will for the most part relate to houses which will be completed after December 31, 1938. The Act does not amend the general law contained in the Acts which were consolidated in the Housing Act of 1936 and accordingly calls for no substantial alteration in the procedure of local authorities under those Acts. The main difference under the new Act lies in the fact that the Exchequer contributions payable under it will be uniform, whether the houses are provided for slum clearance or the abatement of overcrowding. It will not be necessary therefore for local authorities to adopt different procedures in submitting proposals for houses for these purposes, and it will make no difference if houses intended for one of these purposes at the outset are in fact used for the other of these purposes, and no approval by the Minister is needed to such change of procedure on the part of the local authority.

It is however essential that at the time of submitting proposals to the Minister for the erection of a specific number of houses and their approval for subsidy under the Act the local authority should have, and should submit to him, evidence that their needs for slum clearance, the abatement of overcrowding, or the general needs of the agricultural population, are sufficient to call for the erection of the number of houses proposed. In their application the local authority should therefore indicate—

(a) the number of unfit houses remaining in their programme for which provision has not been made by houses already approved;

(b) the number of overcrowded houses in regard to which provision has not already been made; and

(c) in the case of houses for the agricultural population, the number already reserved and the number still needed.

Under Section 85 (2) of the Housing Act, 1936, the local authority are required in selecting their tenants to give a reasonable preference to persons who are occupying insanitary or overcrowded houses, have large families or are living under unsatisfactory housing conditions. Exchequer contributions under the Act of 1938 are given specifically for the purposes of slum clearance and the abatement of overcrowding and it is essential therefore that the houses built under that Act should be let in such a way as to secure the maximum contribution to the solution of these evils.

For the reasons indicated in paragraph 4 following it will not be obligatory on the local authority to let the whole of the houses to persons removed from unfit or overcrowded houses but they must ensure that the provision of the houses is accompanied by the elimination of unfit accommodation or the abatement of overcrowding at least to an equivalent amount. An assurance that such action has been or will be taken will be required when proposals for the erection of further houses are submitted.

In approving proposals for the purposes of the Act, the Minister would not normally allow for Exchequer subsidy a greater number of houses than the total of the unfit houses to be dealt with plus the number of overcrowded families in respect of whom new accommodation has to be provided. But, where owing to the number of families living in the unfit houses it is necessary to provide new houses in excess of those which are to be dealt with, he would be prepared to allow a number of new houses not greater than the total number of families.

When the immediate building proposals which form the subject of the application approximate to the total some fuller evidence in regard to the number of houses included for the abatement of overcrowding will be required. The experience of local authorities has already shown that it is not as a rule necessary to build a new house in place of each overcrowded house, as many cases of overcrowding can be relieved by a better distribution of existing accommodation; and in such cases the local authority should therefore indicate the evidence on which they have formed their estimate of the number of houses likely to be required for this purpose. Care should be taken not to include among overcrowded houses those overcrowded houses which will be dealt with as unfit houses.

TYPES OF HOUSES TO BE INCLUDED IN PROPOSALS.

4. An important consideration for the local authority to bear in mind in the formulation of their building proposals is the type of houses to be built and the number of each type.

It is, of course, important to see that those families who are to be removed from unfit or overcrowded houses are provided with suitable accommodation, but it does not therefore follow that the new accommodation which is being provided should be determined solely with regard to the needs of the actual families whose displacement will be the justification for the local authority's claim for subsidy under the Act.

As a result of the overcrowding survey the local authorities now have available full information as to the housing conditions and housing needs of their districts and they are in a position to judge of which types of houses there is a surplus and of which types there is a deficiency. If the new houses to be provided by the local authority are to serve the most beneficial purpose they should take the form of those types in which the district is lacking and, in so far as the families to be displaced require accommodation of a type of which there is a surplus, opportunities should be taken to provide them with this accommodation by some re-allocation of existing accommodation. For instance, it is not uncommon to find that houses with two bedrooms constitute a large proportion of the working-class accommodation in many districts, and that many of these houses are occupied by families too large for them. It would in such districts be undesirable for the local authority to add to this type of accommodation when there is a demand for and a shortage of houses with more bedrooms for family use or of houses of a smaller type suitable for aged couples. While, therefore, the provision of those types which are generally suitable for the needs of the ordinary family will no doubt continue to constitute the main form of supply, the special needs of old age pensioners, and other single persons, and old couples and large families should be considered and when necessary provided for in the building programme of the authority.

The opportunities of relating the new houses to the general needs of the district will be greater in districts where there is a substantial programme of building than in districts where the work of the local authority consists of the provision of small groups of houses scattered over a large area, but the extent to which the general housing situation of the district can be improved by attention to this aspect of the problem should be carefully examined by each local authority.

OUTBUILDINGS, GARDENS, ETC., IN RURAL DISTRICTS.

5. Rural District Councils erecting houses should consider the desirability of providing such appurtenances as outbuildings, garden plots and suitable space for the keeping of poultry and pigs. In suitable cases such provision would materially enhance at small cost the value of the house to the tenant.

The normal density in rural areas has been at the rate of eight houses to the acre, but where land can be acquired at reasonable cost and the circumstances of the district render this course desirable the Minister would raise no objection to proposals which allow of additional land being provided for the use of some or all of the houses.

On the other hand the Minister accepts the view expressed in the report of the Rural Sub-Committee of the Central Housing Advisory Committee (paragraph 23 of that report) that there are occasions when houses may properly be erected at a somewhat higher density than eight to the acre, the needs of those tenants who require larger gardens being met by the provision of separate allotments. Each local authority should consider this question in the light of their own local conditions, and should take into account the wishes and habits of those who are likely to occupy the houses.

PROCEDURE OF LOCAL AUTHORITIES.

6. (a) General.

As indicated in an earlier paragraph of this Memorandum, the Act does not call for any substantial variation in the procedure previously adopted by local authorities. The experience which has been gained during the last few years suggests, however, that for the guidance of local authorities generally, and for the benefit of those who may under the new opportunities provided by this Act be embarking for the first time on building proposals, it is desirable to draw attention to a few points of procedure with a view to expediting the submission and approval of proposals.

(b) Acquisition of Sites.

Local authorities have for the most part had considerable experience in the selection and purchase of sites for housing purposes, but as difficulties have arisen in regard to individual proposals the Minister thinks it desirable to indicate the general procedure to be adopted.

HOUSING

In the selection of a site the local authority should have regard to the availability of services such as water, drainage, gas and electricity, and to the suitability of the site for an effective lay-out. Where the proposals presently in mind represent only an instalment of the need, the authority should consider the advisability of purchasing additional land at the same time in order that the lay-out may be prepared as a whole. Otherwise they may later find themselves under the necessity of purchasing additional land at a price enhanced by their own operations.

Applications to the Minister for sanction to a loan for the acquisition of a site should be accompanied by—

A site plan drawn to a scale of 1/500.

The District Valuer's valuation of the land.

The services of the District Valuer are available to the local authority for conducting negotiations for the acquisition of the land.

(c) Lay-out and House Plans.

Local authorities have in general put forward building proposals for the erection of such number of houses as can be completed within a reasonable period (say 9–12 months) and the Minister concurs in the adoption of this general procedure. His technical officers will, however, be glad to consider lay-outs of sites as a whole, notwithstanding that only a portion of the site is intended to be used for immediate building operations.

In giving instructions for the preparation of lay-out and house plans the local authority will have regard to the importance of obtaining skilled technical advice.

Before steps are taken to obtain tenders it will be necessary for local authorities to obtain the approval of the Minister to the number of houses to be built at any one time, and for this purpose the Minister should be furnished with the following information :—

(i) Site on which proposed to be erected, stating whether already acquired or not.

(ii) Description and superficial area of houses.

(iii) Whether the local authority have satisfied themselves that the proposals will not prejudice or conflict with the requirements of any planning scheme made or likely to be made in respect of or in the neighbourhood of the area in which the houses are to be provided.

(iv) A lay-out of the whole of the site with contour lines or sufficient spot levels to show the general lie of the land, indicating in some distinctive way the houses to be built immediately. The density of dwellings to be stated.

(v) Sketch plans of the houses to be built immediately.

(vi) An outline specification dealing with external materials.

(d) Tenders.

Where tenders have been obtained in accordance with the approval given as above, application will be made for sanction to the necessary loans.

It would be of assistance to the Minister's officers in expediting the consideration of tenders if local authorities would in submitting them supply the particulars specified in the form set out in Appendix II to this memorandum.

The information to be supplied to the Ministry at this stage should include—

(1) a copy of the resolution of the local authority applying for sanction to the loan : the resolution should specify separately the amounts estimated to be required for land, roads, sewers and houses ;

(2) a certificate that the houses as proposed will comply with the prescribed conditions as regards materials, type of construction and density ;

(3) a list of tenders submitted indicating which it is proposed to accept. If the tender proposed to be accepted is not the lowest tender, a statement of the special reasons of the local authority should be given ; and

(4) a copy of the lay-out, house plans and specifications if these are not already in the possession of the Ministry. If they are, a reference to the date of submission should be given.

ERECTION BY LOCAL AUTHORITIES OF HOUSES FOR AGRICULTURAL POPULATION.

7. Under the Act a higher rate of Exchequer contribution is available and there is a lower statutory rate contribution for houses required for the agricultural population, and these provisions apply not only to houses required for slum clearance and overcrowding but also to houses for the general needs of the agricultural population.

Applications for Exchequer contributions for houses for the agricultural population will under the Act be dealt with direct by the Minister and not, as was the case for houses built for the agricultural population under the Act of 1935, on the recommendation of a special Committee.

Houses for the agricultural population will no doubt as a rule form part of building proposals which include houses for which the ordinary rates of Exchequer contribution will be payable.

In view of the special rates of contribution it will be necessary for the local authority, as indicated in paragraph 3, to satisfy the Minister that the houses are actually required for the agricultural population.

Where therefore proposals are submitted to the Minister for authority to proceed with a specified number of houses including houses required for the agricultural population, the local authority should state the number estimated to be required for this purpose.

The proviso to Section 2 (1) of the Act makes provision for an increased subsidy for houses required for the agricultural population in certain special circumstances. In any such cases consultation with the County Council will be required, and as an application for an increase cannot be considered until after the necessary cost of the houses has been ascertained the procedure will be devised in consultation with the individual local authority as and when the case arises.

Although the definition of agricultural population is not restricted in terms to agricultural workers and their dependants as ordinarily understood the subsidy and particularly the new subsidy for the general needs of the agricultural population would have failed in its purpose if the houses were not in fact mainly occupied by the agricultural workers. The Minister will watch with interest the progress made by local authorities in improving by the means now available the housing conditions of agricultural workers for whose benefit this subsidy has been introduced.

RESERVATION OF HOUSES FOR AGRICULTURAL POPULATION.

8. The Minister's approval to building proposals will be given in the light of estimates made by the local authority but the payment of subsidy at the increased rate will be contingent upon evidence as to the use made by the Council of their housing accommodation for the benefit of the agricultural population.

The general requirement that only those houses needed for the agricultural population will attract the special rate of subsidy must be read in conjunction with the condition laid down in Section 2 (2) of the Act. The Council must secure that a number of their houses equal to the number for which they receive the higher rate of contribution are reserved for members of the agricultural population except in so far as the demand for housing accommodation in the district on the part of such members can be satisfied without such reservation.

This condition is similar to that contained in Section 85 of the Housing Act, 1936, and applies to the whole of the houses erected with the special rate of subsidy under Section 2 of the Act of 1938 as well as to those towards which the County Council have undertaken to make a contribution under subsection (2) of Section 115 of the Act of 1936, or are required to make a contribution under subsection (3) of that Section.

The essential point to remember is that, while the number of houses for which local authorities may receive this special rate of subsidy is governed by the needs of the agricultural population for the time being, a particular house need not always be occupied by a person in that category. If at some future date the Council consider that another of their houses would be more suitable it would be proper to reserve that house for a member of the agricultural population in need of one, in place of the house originally provided with the special rate of subsidy. The latter might then be occupied by an ordinary tenant, and the rent suitably adjusted according to the circumstances. Further, it would not be necessary that a member of this class should be compelled to vacate his home merely because he had changed his occupation, provided that another vacant house were made available for a member of the agricultural population needing accommodation. In such a case the subsidy would not be affected. The local authority must (under Section VII of Appendix I to Memorandum E which accompanied Circular 1500 of October 22, 1935 (a)) keep a register which will show at any date the actual houses reserved for members of the agricultural population.

ERECTION OF HOUSES FOR AGRICULTURAL WORKERS BY PERSONS OTHER THAN THE LOCAL AUTHORITY.

9. Section 3 of the Act enables the local authority to make grants in respect of agricultural housing by other persons. The local authority must before undertaking to grant assistance satisfy themselves on the individual application that the housing accommodation can more conveniently be provided in this way than by the local authority themselves. The particular case which the Rural Sub-Committee of the Housing Advisory Committee instanced as being likely to lend itself to this provision was the erection of new houses on isolated farms for the accommodation of stockmen, etc. There may be other occasions on which the local authority, in the light of their knowledge of local conditions, may satisfy themselves that they could not conveniently undertake the erection of houses, and it will be observed that under the terms of the section the local authority are required to satisfy themselves in regard to each individual application.

The assistance to be afforded by the local authority should take the form of an annual payment over a period of 40 years. The amount of the assistance will be at the discretion of the local authority but the amount of the Exchequer contribution payable to the local authority where such assistance has been granted will not exceed the amount of the assistance or a maximum of £10 a year for a period of 40 years for each house.

The payment of this Exchequer contribution will be dependent on the observance of certain requirements. These are that the house—

(a) is reserved for members of the agricultural population, and

(b) if let,

(i) is let at a rent which by any order of the appropriate agricultural wages committee in force at the time of letting is determined as the value at which the benefit of a cottage is to be reckoned as payment of wages in lieu of payment in cash, or

(ii) if no such rent is so determined such weekly rent as may be determined by the local authority, and

(c) is suitable in respect of size and construction.

The local authority should make the observance of these requirements a condition of their grant of assistance to the applicant, and it is suggested that the applicant should be required to sign an undertaking that requirements (a) and (b) will be observed.

No contribution is payable in respect of a house for any year unless those requirements have been observed and unless reasonable steps have been taken to secure the maintenance of the house in a proper state of repair during the year. It will be necessary for the local authority to certify to the Minister that these conditions have been observed during the year.

Particulars of any applications in regard to which the local authority propose to make arrangements should be submitted to the Minister with an indication of the amount of grant proposed to be given and of the steps which the local authority propose to take to ensure that the statutory requirements are observed. A plan and lay-out of the house or houses should be enclosed and also a certificate from the Surveyor to the Council that the houses—

(a) are in compliance with the requirements as to size, materials, density, type of construction, etc., approved by the Minister of Health for houses to be built by local authorities;

(a) Ante, p. 3007.

(b) are to be of entirely new construction and of a type for which a loan period of not less than 60 years is allowed to a local authority by the Minister of Health;

(c) will not prejudice or conflict with the requirements of any planning scheme made or likely to be made in respect of or in the neighbourhood of the area in which the houses are to be provided.

EXCHEQUER CONTRIBUTION OF £6 10*s.* IN SPECIAL CASES.

10. The essential qualifications for this rate of contribution are indicated in subsections (3) and (4) of Section 1 of the Act. They are—

(i) that the houses in the borough or district which are occupied by members of the working classes are let at rents substantially less on the average than the average of the rents of such houses in the country generally. The rental standard of comparison for a borough or urban district will be with the average of boroughs and urban districts, and for a rural district with the average of rural districts; and

(ii) that the provision of the houses without the additional contributions provided by this subsection will involve an undue burden on the borough or district.

It will be necessary for any local authority who wish to make application under these subsections to supplement the information required under paragraphs 3 and 6 of this memorandum with a summary of the particulars which they have obtained for the purpose of ascertaining the average rents of houses occupied by members of the working classes in the district, and with particulars regarding their past and prospective expenditure for housing purposes, and as to their financial position generally.

The Minister is required by the statute to consult with the County Council before undertaking to make any contribution under these subsections, and he will be glad if the local authority will apprise the County Council of the application and of the information which they furnish to the Minister, informing the Minister that they have done so.

REGISTERS, RECORDS, ETC.

11. The Exchequer contributions provided for by the Act are payable subject to any conditions laid down by the Treasury. The Treasury conditions are appended to this memorandum (Appendix I).

The forms of registers to be kept under the Treasury conditions differ slightly from those previously kept. Local authorities may, however, in some cases find it convenient to adapt the existing registers set up under the Acts of 1930 and 1935 instead of compiling new ones. The registers will record the completion of operations in connection with which the new accommodation is to be provided and will show cases where for any reason those operations were not carried out in their entirety. It should thus be easy when considering proposals for further building to make due allowance for any accommodation provided under earlier proposals which may prove to have been in excess of requirements.

Appended to this memorandum (Appendix III) is a model form of application for the use of local authorities in submitting proposals under the Act.

HOUSING (RURAL WORKERS) AMENDMENT ACT, 1938.

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to call the attention of county councils and other local authorities administering the Housing (Rural Workers) Acts, 1926 and 1931 (a), to the above-mentioned amending Act (b) which recently became law.

The following is a summary of the provisions of the Act :—

Section 1 extends the operation of the existing Acts of 1926 and 1931 and of schemes made by local authorities under them so as to cover applications for assistance made up to September 30th, 1942.

Section 2 provides that lump sum grants under the Acts may in future be paid by instalments as the reconditioning works progress.

Section 3 provides that persons exercising the option to relieve themselves of the conditions attached to grants by making repayment shall in future be required to repay not the whole of the grant but an amount proportionate to the unexpired part of the period during which the conditions were to operate.

Section 4 amends the definition in Section 3 of the principal Act of the term "normal agricultural rent" in relation to cases in which the number of agricultural workers in a district is insufficient to enable an average rent of such workers to be determined.

Section 5 prescribes in respect of grants made after the passing of the Act that in addition to the conditions laid down under the earlier Acts all reasonable steps must be taken for twenty years to maintain the house in a fit state for working-class habitation.

* If the Council possess land already acquired for housing purposes and do not propose to utilise it for the present scheme the reasons should be stated.

(a). Ante, pp. 1839, 1859.

(b) Ante, 1875.

Section 6 specifies the maximum rent which may be charged by owners who, having received assistance under the Acts, subsequently obtain further assistance in respect of the same house.

Section 7 provides for the apportionment by the local authority of the rent of a house in respect of which assistance has been received under the Acts in cases in which the house is let with other land at a single rent.

Section 8 enables a county council, if they have paid grants in the district of a local authority to whom the administration of the Acts is subsequently transferred, to include the district in their area of charge in respect of these grants.

Section 9 provides that where a dwelling in respect of which grant has been paid on an application made before August 2, 1935, is overcrowded within the meaning of the Housing Act, 1936, a further grant may be paid in respect of improvements designed to abate the overcrowding equivalent to a maximum of two-thirds of the cost of the works with a limit of £100, but the total amount of all the grants paid in respect of the dwelling must not exceed £150.

Section 10 relates exclusively to Scotland.

Section 11 deals with the short title, citation, construction, and extent of the Act.

It will be seen that the Act extends (with certain modifications) the provisions of the Acts of 1926 and 1931 to cover applications received by local authorities not later than September 30, 1942.

The period of extension has been synchronised so far as is practicable with the period for which Exchequer assistance has been made available for the building of new houses for the agricultural population under the Housing (Financial Provisions) Act, 1938, and the Minister trusts that by the concurrent operation of the two Acts, which are complementary to each other, the maximum degree of improvement will be secured during the next four years in the housing condition of the agricultural population. He hopes moreover that local authorities will be prepared in all cases to envisage the maximum assistance permissible under the Acts, since he feels sure that the establishment of any arbitrary maximum below that amount, as has, he understands, been done by some local authorities in the past, would have the effect of limiting the number of cottages benefiting under the Acts.

The first essentials in this campaign, so far as the present Act is concerned, are to ascertain what houses are most suitable for improvement and to give every facility and encouragement for the improvement of these houses.

The Minister is much impressed with the increased progress made in those areas where wide publicity has been given to the facilities available under the Acts and he trusts that local authorities will continue and intensify this work. Further supplies of the illustrated folder and booklets made available to local authorities in the spring of last year, suitably amended to take account of the provisions of the new Act, will be obtainable without charge on application to the Ministry. Specimens will be forwarded as soon as practicable, together with an application form.

The Rural Sub-Committee of the Central Housing Advisory Committee in their Second Report recommended a survey to show what suitable houses there are, and the Minister believes that the making of such a survey would be a most useful supplement to the publicity work which local authorities are already carrying out.

In cases in which the county council are the authority administering the Acts the councils of county districts will, the Minister hopes, place all information in their possession as to houses suitable for assistance at the disposal of the county council, and will, if requested by that council, undertake investigations on their behalf. As a result of the surveys which they have already made in order to ascertain the unfit and overcrowded houses in their areas local authorities will in most cases be in a position to give the county council valuable information for the purpose of extending the operation of the Acts. In this, as in other matters, the Minister trusts that he may rely on the councils of county districts to establish the closest co-operation with the county councils. Conversely, the Minister hopes that county councils will take steps to secure the fullest possible co-operation with the councils of county districts with a view to drawing on their knowledge and experience. This will assist in the establishment of uniform standards as between county councils and the councils of county districts which is of vital importance. Apart from other considerations, it is clearly desirable to avoid any possibility that cottages for which grant had been paid by the county council should subsequently be regarded as fit for demolition by the council of the county district.

The character and scope of the work to be carried out with the help of the Acts is of primary importance. Ordinary works of repair are excluded, and it should be the objective to secure not simply such amount of work as would be sufficient to bring a house up to a minimum standard of fitness or to save it from falling below that standard, but such substantial and comprehensive improvements as will make the house as near as can be comparable in its standard of structure and amenities with a modern house. Information which has on occasion been supplied by individual local authorities in regard to work already done under the Acts shows that substantial expenditure has often been incurred by owners in excess of the statutory minimum with the idea of attaining this objective, and the Minister welcomes the attitude which this action betokens. No one will suggest that in every way or in every case there can be any exact comparison between an old and a new house, but by careful attention to the range of practicable works it should usually be possible to make the life of the occupants as healthy and comfortable in the old house which is reconstructed as in a new house on the same site. The Minister thinks it desirable to indicate for the guidance of local authorities and of applicants the sort of points which he has in mind.

The limited facilities for water supply and drainage in many rural districts impose corresponding limits on the extent to which country cottages can be equipped with the sanitary conveniences which are available in towns, but where possible it is in the Minister's view highly desirable that such cottages should have an internal water supply, a bathroom, and modern sanitary accommodation. Other desirable facilities are modern cooking appliances, and, in suitable areas, electric or gas lighting. In connection with the provision of water supply and drainage local authorities are reminded that assistance may be given to persons providing such facilities jointly for a number of cottages if the total cost is not less than £100 irrespective of the number of cottages concerned. Authorities will doubtless bring this point to the notice of potential applicants in suitable cases.

If the Act is to succeed in its object, it is essential that the administering authorities should not only do all they can to encourage applications for assistance but should also give applicants every possible help. Their procedure should accordingly be as elastic and personal as possible. The purpose of the Acts is to provide good homes for the tenants, and local authorities should not therefore reject proposals for improvements simply because in their view the applicants could afford to carry out the work without assistance.

In Circular 1697 (a) issued on April 23, 1938, regarding the Housing (Financial Provisions) Act, 1938, the Minister emphasised the importance of building houses which will not only provide more healthy living conditions for the tenants but will be attractive and in keeping with the neighbourhood, and of securing skilled technical advice which will enable local authorities to attain this object. Similar considerations apply to the reconstruction of rural cottages under the Housing (Rural Workers) Acts in cases in which, as will often happen, improvements affect design, and the manual referred to in that Circular, which has now been issued, contains a section on the subject of reconditioning. The Minister hopes that county councils will enlist the services of their appropriate technical officer in considering reconditioning proposals and will, if necessary, be prepared to make his services available to the councils of county districts administering the Acts. Local authorities will doubtless in suitable cases point out to applicants that architects' fees can be included in the cost of works for which assistance is claimed, and that the Council for the Preservation of Rural England in conjunction with the Royal Institute of British Architects and the Institute of Builders have organised local panels who will give general advice to owners free of charge. Further information about the local panel can be obtained from the Secretary to the Council for the Preservation of Rural England, 4, Hobart Place, London, S.W.1.

The Minister would draw the attention of authorities to the following difficulties in the administration of the Acts referred to in the Second Report of the Rural Housing Sub-Committee of the Central Housing Advisory Committee:—

(a) the difficulty which has sometimes arisen in providing temporary accommodation for tenants during the process of works. The Minister suggests that the difficulty might be met, as has been done in some areas, by the placing of a road van at the disposal of the tenants ;

(b) where a house has been separately let before the execution of works and the rent charged has been less than that normally paid by agricultural workers in the district the rent may be raised on completion of the works to the level of the rent normally paid by such workers, but there is no power to force the owner to reduce a rent which has previously been above the normal agricultural rent. The Minister suggests that authorities might consider the obtaining of an undertaking that if assistance is granted the rent to be charged in future should not exceed that normally paid in the district.

The Minister earnestly invites each local authority administering the Acts, and particularly those in whose districts comparatively little advantage has been taken of the Acts, to review their machinery and to consider in what manner they can secure that the best possible use is made of the Acts in their districts. The Minister will be glad to afford local authorities any help in his power if they wish to apply to him for advice. In addition to providing good homes for rural workers at comparatively small cost, a proper use of the Acts may well save many country cottages the loss of which would be generally deplored.

Local authorities will observe that the Act of 1938 imposes certain new functions upon them. Thus, under Section 2 they now have the power to pay grants by instalments, under Section 7 they may have to apportion rents as between houses and land, and under Section 9 they are empowered to give additional assistance with a view to the abatement of overcrowding and are required to ensure that the additional assistance will in fact lead to such abatement. Further, Sections 3, 4, 5, and 6 will involve local authorities in certain duties of ascertainment. But the Act does not call for any alteration of procedure as between the Minister and local authorities and the schemes made under Section 1 of the Act of 1926 are continued under it. It will, however, be appreciated that if the extension of the operation of a scheme makes it necessary to exceed any limit, e.g., in respect of the number of applications to be granted contained in the scheme the Minister's approval should be obtained.

Two copies of this Circular are enclosed. The Circular has been placed on sale and further copies may be obtained from H.M. Stationery Office, or through any bookseller.

To Housing Authorities.

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL,
LONDON, S.W.1.

REPORT ON THE MANAGEMENT OF MUNICIPAL HOUSING ESTATES.

SIR,—1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to enclose for the information of your Council a copy of a Report on the Management of Housing Estates by local authorities which has been prepared by a Sub-Committee of the Central Housing Advisory Committee (a). This Report was the outcome of an investigation made by the Sub-Committee at the request of Sir Kingsley Wood; and Mr. Elliot, who fully shares Sir Kingsley's view that the question of house management is of comparable importance with that of the building of new houses, believes that the Report will be of much interest and value to local authorities, and hopes that it will receive careful study.

2. The Minister recognises that by statute the control and management of houses belonging to a local authority is vested in the authority, and he has no intention of seeking to interfere with a system of local discretion which has worked well for so many years past. At the same time, in view of the fact that local authorities own over 1,000,000 houses and that this accommodation is being increased at the rate of about 80,000 houses a year, it has for some time been clear that the subject of house management is of such importance, both from the financial and the social point of view, as to call for special investigation, and it was for this reason that the Sub-Committee were invited to undertake their task.

3. The success of municipal housing administration depends on a combination of individual freedom and corporate responsibility. There is no reason why the tenants of a municipal housing estate should enjoy less individual freedom than any other body of tenants: there is no reason why they should be less willing to accept those limitations of individual freedom which, in the general interests of the tenants, are essential to the efficient administration of any housing estate, whether municipal or not.

These will be commonplaces readily accepted by the general body of municipal tenants, accustomed to live their own lives without impinging upon the comfort or convenience of their neighbours.

The function of the local authority is to play the part of the prudent and progressive landlord who will combine efficient management of his estate with the development of its amenities, and the adaptation to their new environment of those tenants for whom it provides an opportunity for a new life in healthy surroundings.

4. The concentration of local authorities during the last few years upon the provision of new homes for those living in unfit or overcrowded houses emphasises this aspect of their work, and it is now a statutory requirement that in the selection of tenants preference is to be given to those living under such conditions and to tenants with large families, an area of choice which should generally concentrate the benefits of subsidised housing upon those most in need of such assistance. In considering their method of management local authorities will have regard to their local conditions and to the needs of the various types of tenant, and the Minister has no doubt that these considerations have weighed with local authorities in the type of organisation which they have gradually evolved. Compliance by local authorities with their statutory obligations will progressively increase the proportion of municipal tenants who come from unfit or overcrowded houses; and the Minister thinks that local authorities generally might with advantage review their existing machinery for management in the light of the recommendations made by the Advisory Committee, with a view to ensuring that the system in operation is calculated to secure the best results for the local authority and the tenants. The Minister has no intention of dogmatising upon a matter which is essentially one of local knowledge and judgment, nor is it necessary for him to comment on each and every one of the suggestions contained in the Report. He thinks it desirable, however, to draw attention to the following points :—

(1) He agrees with the view of the Committee that, particularly where families are being removed from unfit or overcrowded houses, contact with the families in their old homes before their removal is an essential preliminary, and that this contact should, where possible, be established by means of the officer who will be primarily in touch with the tenants after they have moved into their new homes.

(2) He agrees that, so far as practicable, there should be a single officer to whom the tenants will normally look as the medium of communication between themselves and the local authority. This continuity and regularity of personal association appears to the Minister most likely to promote the right relationship between the local authority and their tenants for their mutual benefit.

Without regarding it as essential that the whole of the functions which bring the local authority and the tenants into association (rent collecting, repairs and social service) should be concentrated in the hands of one person, a concentration to the greatest degree consistent with practical efficiency will, in the view of the Minister, be likely to prove most successful.

(3) It appears to the Minister important to recognise in practical administration the substantial difference in the needs of individual tenants both for help and for supervision. The measure of attention required may vary from place to place, e.g., according to local traditions of house-wifery ; it will certainly vary in the same place from tenant to tenant according to the degree of individual capacity for managing their own affairs and to social habits and financial resources. For this reason it does not appear to the Minister either practicable or desirable to lay down any precise number of houses which should at all times and in all places be regarded as an appropriate unit for the whole-time services of a responsible officer. Each local authority and their responsible officers will need to make up their own minds on this point in the light of practical experience and local conditions.

(4) The Minister has no intention of suggesting the employment of one sex to the exclusion of the other on house management, but it does not appear to him that there are any functions involved which cannot adequately be performed by women of the right training and character.

In reviewing this matter a local authority should consider whether the number of their houses is sufficient to call for the employment of a whole-time manager. Where a whole-time manager could with advantage be employed, the Minister sees no reason to dissent from the suggestions made in the Report as to the kind of qualifications and characteristics for which they should look in any officer to be appointed for this purpose.

5. Reference is made in the Report to the two types of case where special arrangements are likely to be necessary—the authority with a large scheme which will remain under the general control of some qualified technical officer of the local authority, and the authority with a scheme insufficiently large to call for the employment of a whole-time officer. Although the actual arrangements required may vary according to the circumstances of particular cases, the principles and methods of sound management will remain equally applicable in such cases. The Minister feels that it would be of great advantage to him and to local authorities to have some co-ordinated information as to the methods of management adopted by local authorities and the general results which are being secured, on a wider scale than was practicable in the investigation made by the Sub-Committee. Local authorities have for nearly 20 years (some of them even longer) been engaged in the management of houses to an increasing extent, and one local authority can most easily profit by the experience of another if information as to this general body of experience is made readily available. With this object in view the Minister would be obliged if the local authority would, after they have given careful consideration to this question, acquaint him with their conclusions, and if at some time not later than June 30 next they will to him make a report. The form in which this report should be submitted is set out in an appendix to this Circular, but the Minister will be glad to receive any supplementary information derived from the experience of the local authority which may be likely to be of interest or use.

6. It is important in good management that the local authority should be satisfied that the best use is being made of the houses provided by them for the purposes for which they are built. As has already been stated, local authorities are by statute required to secure that in the selection of their tenants a reasonable preference is given to persons who are occupying insanitary or overcrowded houses, have large families or are living under unsatisfactory housing conditions, and these conditions are applicable both to new houses built by the authority and to re-lets of houses previously built.

The Minister is aware that in many districts the process of rescuing families from bad housing conditions has been substantially accelerated by the use for their benefit of vacancies in existing council houses. In the large pool of housing accommodation built by local authorities during the last 20 years there must be a considerable volume of change: some tenants are fortunate enough no longer to require the assistance which is provided by a subsidised rent: others by changes in family circumstances, such as the growing up and marriage of children, no longer require the same amount of accommodation as at the time of their original tenancy. Those who have had the benefit of a municipal house in the time of their need will be the first to appreciate that these houses should be used to the widest possible extent for the benefit of those whose needs are greatest, and the Minister is aware that in some districts a considerable contribution to this end has been secured by a gradual re-adjustment of the letting of municipal houses. The matter is essentially one requiring tact and good will on the part of the authority and tenants, and the Minister does not think it necessary to do more than indicate his view that in reviewing the allocation of houses at their disposal the authority should keep to the fore the objective of better housing for those whose needs are greatest.

7. The Committee have dealt with a number of other issues which will be of interest to local authorities and the Minister is in general agreement with the views which they have expressed.

He thinks it sufficient to refer here to the following points—

Disinfestation.

The Minister agrees with the view expressed by the Committee that where disinfestation is carried out it is better that the process should be carried out automatically and as a matter of routine rather than in selected cases.

It is now generally appreciated that the infestation with bed-bugs, which has unfortunately been so common in old properties, is usually beyond the control of the individual tenant and that the process of disinfestation does not involve any criticism of the tenant, but is carried out solely with the idea of saving him from exposure to similar trouble in his new home.

Provision of Furniture.

The Minister concurs in the view of the Committee that facilities for this purpose may be of material benefit to tenants in their new houses, and that these facilities can be provided without interfering in any way with the normal trading arrangements.

Community Centres.

The attention of local authorities has no doubt already been directed to the special question of the need for Youth Community Centres on new housing estates referred to in the Report of the Board of Education Juvenile Organisations Committee issued to local education authorities in 1936, and the Minister has no doubt that local authorities recognise the importance of this question for adults as well as for the young. Local authorities have a variety of statutory powers which enable them to make this provision in one form or another, and it will be for the local authority to consider in what form and under which statutory authority the provision can best be made. All the Minister thinks it necessary to say here is that in selecting and planning a site for the erection of houses, the local authority should satisfy themselves that adequate facilities for community activities will be available in a reasonably central position on the site or elsewhere, and that where the local authority do decide that the provision can best be made under the Housing Acts, he will be prepared to sanction the necessary loans and his officers will be prepared to give any advice or assistance in the preliminary consideration of any plans for this purpose.

Intermixture of Tenants.

The Minister considers that there is some force in the Committee's suggestion that the few tenants whose domestic standard is markedly below the average would benefit from living amongst families with a good standard. He thinks, therefore, that much can be said in favour of a policy of mixing families of all types upon municipal housing estates.

Standard of Building in New Houses.

It will be observed that the Report refers to the importance of sound construction and finish and the care which needs to be exercised in regard to the matter of technical supervision in connection with the provision of new houses. The Minister does not doubt that the local authorities have for long recognised, as he has, the value of a well-built house from a management point of view, and that they will be the first to endorse the Committee's recommendations on these points.

The Committee also make certain suggestions regarding the maintenance of the house and its repair. Here, too, the Minister feels sure that the local authorities, as responsible landlords, appreciate the advantages of keeping their property in good tenantable condition and the desirability of regular inspections to this end.

8. Further copies of this Circular and the Report can be obtained through any bookseller or direct from H.M. Stationery Office.

APPENDIX.

The Minister is anxious to collect information as to the method of house management adopted by local authorities. He would, therefore, be glad to be supplied, not later than June 30, 1939, with brief notes on the following points affecting the management of the Council's houses, together with any other particulars considered to be of general interest: the reply should so far as practicable relate to the position as it is likely to be after June 30, 1939, indicating any changes the Council have in mind after consideration of the Report and the Circular :—

1. The total number of completed dwellings owned by the Council. Where the Council have provided blocks of flats, the number of these should be stated, and any special arrangements made in regard to their management indicated.

2. The number and qualifications of the staff engaged in the management of the Council's dwellings, indicating particularly—

(a) whether a whole-time manager is employed : if so, whether man or woman, and the rate of salary paid.

(b) what officers are responsible for—

(i) rent collection,

(ii) repairs,

(iii) social service.

3. What arrangements are made for ascertaining disrepair, e.g., by inspection or otherwise, and for carrying out and supervising redecorations and repairs ; and whether the local authority or the tenants are responsible for interior decorations.

4. Whether contact is established with the tenants before moving to the new house, and if so, by what officer.

The Minister would be glad to be furnished with a copy of any handbook for tenants which may have been issued by the Council.

HOUSING ACT, 1936.

DEMOLITION OF INDIVIDUAL UNFIT HOUSES IN RURAL AREAS.

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to state that his attention has been drawn to certain difficulties which have arisen in connection with the administration of the procedure under the Housing Act, 1936, in relation to the demolition of individual houses of the working-class type in rural areas.

The statistics in relation to unfit houses show that, in the overwhelming majority of cases houses in regard to which proceedings have been taken by local authorities on the ground that they were unfit for human habitation and not capable at reasonable expense of being rendered fit have subsequently either been made fit by the owners or have become the subject of operative Demolition Orders without any suggestion either from the owner or anyone else that demolition was not the most appropriate method of dealing with the house.

A limited number of individual cases have, however, been brought to the Minister's notice where proposals to recondition a house, or to use it for some purpose other than human habitation, which might have been acceptable if submitted at the proper time, have had to be rejected because they were not submitted until after a Demolition Order had become operative and when it was too late to do anything in the matter. Moreover, it has been suggested that proposals of this kind have on occasion related to cottages of architectural or artistic merits or historic value, and that the district has suffered loss of charm by the demolition of these cottages.

The Minister has no jurisdiction in relation to the particular provisions of the Housing Act which deal with individual houses, the appeal from a decision of a local authority lying to the County Court, but he is naturally concerned with the efficient and equitable working of the Acts as a whole; and the fact that even a limited number of cases were brought to light in which it was suggested that reconditioning could, with advantage, have been substituted for demolition if the facilities for reconditioning had been known and proposals put forward at the right time seemed to him to call for further investigation into the procedure.

He accordingly appointed a Sub-Committee of the Central Housing Advisory Committee "to investigate the administration of the statutory provisions relating to the demolition of individual unfit houses in rural areas, having regard to the importance of giving full consideration to the possibility of reconditioning and to advise whether and, if so, how, the administration of these provisions can be improved."

The Sub-Committee have presented a report which has been adopted by the Central Housing Advisory Committee with slight modifications. The report has been printed and the Minister desires me to enclose a copy (a) and to request that the recommendations of the Sub-Committee, with which he is in general agreement, will receive the careful consideration of the Council.

In order to give effect to the first recommendation of the Sub-Committee a paragraph has been added to the form of "Time and Place" notice prescribed by the Minister making it clear that if the owner fails to take action the Rural District Council are bound to make a Demolition Order requiring the owner to demolish the house at his own expense and that once the Order becomes operative there is no power to rescind or vary it. A copy of this amended form is enclosed with this Circular.

The Minister trusts that in their administrative procedure in dealing with individual unfit houses the Council will give effect, in the most appropriate manner practicable, to the remaining recommendations of the Sub-Committee which, as adopted by the Central Housing Advisory Committee are, for convenience, set out below—

(1) That a leaflet drawing attention to the facilities provided under the Housing (Rural Workers) Acts should be enclosed with the formal notice.

(2) That an unofficial letter should be sent, at the same time as the formal notice, emphasising the effect of the notice and particularly emphasising the necessity for a time limit to make action effective. The letter should intimate that a short statement of the principal defects will be supplied on application to the Council.

(3) That either before or after the issue of the formal notice an officer or member of the Rural District Council, specially delegated for the purpose, should, if possible, personally interview the owner or his representative for the purpose of explaining the procedure and the facilities available under the Housing (Rural Workers) Acts.

(4) That before a Rural District Council reach a decision to take action under Section 11 of the Housing Act, 1936, in respect of a house, on the architectural or artistic merits or historic value of which any question may arise, the house should be reported upon, not only by the Sanitary Inspector and the Medical Officer of Health, but also by a member of the Architectural Panel of the Council for the Preservation of Rural England operating in the area or by some person or persons on whose information and judgment the authority may have confidence as qualified to form an opinion on such merits or value.

The Minister understands that some of these recommendations already form part of the current practice of many rural local authorities and he believes that if these recommendations are universally and systematically adopted the difficulties which have arisen in regard to individual cases will be obviated in future. In this way it will be possible to secure the objective of eliminating those houses which have reached the end of their useful life while at the same time ensuring that no house which can be made fit for human habitation or which is of architectural or artistic merits or historic value is demolished until every opportunity has been given for the submission of proposals.

A Council, who are not themselves the authority under the Housing (Rural Workers) Acts, can obtain explanatory leaflets or booklets from the County Council, who may have a leaflet or booklet of their own in addition to the illustrated booklets provided free of charge by the Ministry.

TREASURY MINUTE, DATED MAY 9, 1939, FIXING RATES OF INTEREST ON LOCAL LOANS.

My Lords read Section 1 of the Public Works Loans Act, 1897 (a) (60 & 61 Vict. c. 51), which empowers the Treasury from time to time to fix the rates of interest at which loans may be made out of the Local Loans Fund on the security of Local rates, and provides that the Treasury, in fixing the rates, shall have regard to the duration of the loans, and also that the rates shall be such as, in the opinion of the Treasury, are sufficient to enable the loans to be made without loss to the Fund.

They also read Section 4 of the Public Works Loans Act, 1918 (a) (8 & 9 Geo. 5, c. 27), by which it is declared that the power of the Treasury under Section 1 of the Public Works Loans Act, 1897, as amended by Section 4 of the Public Works Loans Act, 1917 (7 & 8 Geo. 5, c. 32), to fix rates of interest on loans made out of the Local Loans Fund otherwise than on the security of local rates includes (subject always to the provisions of the said Sections) a power to fix rates of interest differing from the rates fixed for loans made out of that fund on the security of local rates, and a power to fix different rates of interest in respect of different loans and that in fixing the rate of interest the Treasury may take into account the nature and value of the security for the loan.

They further read Section 92 of the Housing Act, 1936 (b) (26 Geo. 5 & 1 Edw. 8, c. 51), and Section 73 of the Housing (Scotland) Act, 1925 (15 & 16 Geo. 5, c. 15), as amended by Sections 25 and 28 of the Housing (Scotland) Act, 1935 (25 & 26 Geo. 5, c. 41), which provide that loans may be granted to companies, societies, associations and persons as defined in those Sections in connection with the provision of houses for the working classes.

The rates of interest were last revised by the Treasury Minute of March 31, 1939, when the minimum rate was fixed at $3\frac{7}{8}$ per cent. In view, however, of present monetary conditions the lowest rate now consistent with the conditions laid down by the Acts cited in the first and second paragraphs above is 4 per cent.

Accordingly, the Chancellor of the Exchequer recommends that the minimum rate for local loans be raised from $3\frac{7}{8}$ per cent. to 4 per cent. and that all other rates for local loans, whether secured on local rates or otherwise, be raised by $\frac{1}{8}$ per cent.

My Lords approve, and accordingly the following scales will come into operation as from May 10, 1939, and will apply to all loans granted out of the Local Loans Fund on or after that date :—

HOUSING ASSOCIATIONS.

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to enclose for the information of the Council a copy of a Report upon the Operations of Housing Associations prepared by a Sub-Committee of the Central Housing Advisory Committee and adopted by the Advisory Committee (c). Mr. Elliot feels sure that local authorities are, as he is, sensible of the valuable assistance, both in providing new housing accommodation and in stimulating public interest in housing, which has been given by housing associations to local authorities in connection with the execution of the statutory housing duties for which the latter are primarily responsible. He does not doubt that the Report will for this reason receive their careful consideration.

The Sub-Committee point out that housing associations are dependent upon the goodwill of the local authorities if they are to be allowed to supplement the work of the authorities, and that this result can only be achieved if the respective bodies act in close collaboration. The Minister fully concurs. The extent of the co-operation which has already been secured is borne out by the numbers of new dwellings, referred to in the Report, which have been provided by housing associations. The Minister appreciates that in some parts of the country a good deal of work still remains to be done, and he trusts that facilities will be afforded to housing associations, especially by those authorities with a big programme yet to complete, still further to extend the scope of their activities.

The Sub-Committee draw attention to the powers available to local authorities under Section 93 of the Housing Act, 1936 (a), enabling them, subject to any regulations or conditions which may be made or imposed by the Minister, to make grants or loans to a housing association on such security as they think fit. The Minister agrees with the view of the Sub-Committee that local authorities should favourably consider making use in appropriate cases of their power to lend money for the purpose of financing the building schemes of housing associations, seeing especially that such schemes serve to relieve the local authorities of housing obligations which they would otherwise themselves have to undertake; and he will be prepared to entertain sympathetically proposals submitted to him by local authorities with the object of assisting housing associations in this way.

The Sub-Committee refer in their Report to a number of other matters connected with the operations of housing associations their remarks on which will, the Minister believes, be of interest to local authorities. He agrees generally with the views expressed by the Sub-Committee on these matters.

* CIRCULAR 1810.

To Housing Authorities, England and Wales.

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL, S.W.1.

REPAIR OF WAR DAMAGE.
HOUSING ACCOMMODATION.

SIR,—1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to inform you that the Government have had under consideration the steps to be taken for carrying out the necessary repairs to housing accommodation rendered unfit for habitation by air bombardment or other war action and have decided that the duty of supervising and carrying out such work should rest with the housing authority.

2. As regards houses for the working classes, the duties which the Government will call upon local authorities to undertake are substantially those already imposed by the Housing Act, 1936. The Government intended, however, in the event of an emergency, to seek legislation which will extend the duties to cover houses and other buildings which, although not working-class houses, are being used or are required to be used for the accommodation of the general population. The proposed legislation would enable the housing authority to proceed with a minimum of formalities.

3. For the purpose of dealing with possible claims for compensation the local authority have been requested in Circular 1811 to compile a return after any damage has resulted from war action for transmission to the District Valuer at the Inland Revenue Valuation Office which will show amongst other things the number of buildings which are:

(a) totally destroyed;

(b) so badly damaged that demolition is necessary;

(c) seriously damaged by capable of repair; and

(d) slightly damaged.

For purposes of their housing duties the authority have been asked to make additional copies of the Summary part of the return, and to send one copy to the Ministry of Health at Whitehall and one copy to the Ministry of Health Regional Office for their region.

4. The first duty of a local authority after a raid would consist in rescue and demolition work and nothing must be allowed to hinder this. It is probable, however, that after the raid the local authority would find many occupied houses (or buildings used as housing accommodation) with damaged walls and roofs, etc., which could speedily be rendered wind and water-tight by emergency repairs of a "first-aid" nature, e.g. by placing a tarpaulin over the hole in the roof or by temporarily boarding up a hole in the wall. The immediate carrying out of this work is essential to safeguard the the health of the occupants and to prevent further damage to their belongings. Such repairs when carried out would often be effective for a considerable time and would allow the local authority time in which to schedule the more permanent repairs required and to carry them out if necessary. Accordingly, the proposed legislation would empower the local authority without serving prior notice to carry out " first-aid " repairs in all cases where they consider these should be done at once. In the case of more permanent repairs the legislation would provide that the local authority must give fourteen days' notice to the person having control of the house or building that at the expiration of that time they proposed to carry out the works named in the notice, the estimated cost of which would also be given. These works would be such as to make the house or building reasonably fit for human habitation having regard to the existence of an emergency, and would include such things as reinstating tiling, brickwork, windows, etc., but not internal decoration. The local authority would consider any representations made by the person having control of the house or building and would no doubt endeavour to reach agreement with him, but there would be no question of appeal against the works which the authority proposed to carry out or against their decision to do them.

5. The cost of any works carried out by the local authority under these provisions would be registered as a charge on the premises but there would be no right of recovery until the end of the emergency. The local authority would obtain the necessary money to pay for the repairs by means of loans advanced by the Minister on terms and conditions approved by the Treasury. There would normally be no repayments or interest charges in respect of these loans until the end of the emergency. At the end of the emergency the question of the treatment of any residual liability remaining on the local authority after taking into account the charges registered on property and the operation of the Government's compensation scheme would be considered.

6. The foregoing outlines briefly the scheme which the Government contemplate would be put into operation in the event of an emergency. Advice and assistance in the execution of their task will be available to local authorities from the Regional offices of the Ministry.

In the case of the " first-aid " repairs, the matter is of such urgency that it must largely be left to the local authority and their officers, but it will be essential to keep proper records of the cost in terms of time and materials of the work done on emergency repairs to each house. In the case of the subsequent operation of carrying out more permanent repairs, the position is different and there will be time to give the matter adequate consideration and for consultation with the Ministry's officers. For this reason, the Minister's consent is required before the local authority can serve the fourteen days' notice referred to above. This consent will in most cases be given on the Minister's behalf by the regional representatives of the Department. The precise degree of consultation between the officers of the local authority and the officers of the Department which will be possible or advisable will depend largely on circumstances as they develop, but it is not intended that the Department's officer should inspect every property on which it is proposed that the more permanent repairs should be carried out. Before giving consent on the Minister's behalf the regional representative will, however, have to be satisfied that the number of premises on which more permanent repairs are to be undertaken bears a reasonable relation to the needs of the district. It should be kept clearly in mind that the local authority's duty will not be to repair every house that has been damaged but to see that repairs are carried out or to carry out those repairs themselves where necessary on such number of houses or other buildings used as housing accommodation as will ensure that a reasonable amount of habitable accommodation is kept going in their area. The Minister's representative will also be instructed to give special attention to houses on which it is proposed that more than the average amount of money is to be spent on repairs.

7. In deciding how much should be done in addition to the " first-aid " repairs it is probable that local authorities, in view of difficulties associated with the supply of labour and materials, will find it necessary to make a selection of the houses damaged and to confine the repairs to the minimum necessary to make them reasonably fit as housing accommodation in war time. In making their selection, the authority will take into account the accommodation available in undamaged property in the area at any given moment, the liability of the property to further damage if repaired and the possible effect of evacuation schemes or transference of industry. One very relevant factor will be the relation between the value of the property when repaired to the cost of repairs. Houses which were unfit for human habitation before being damaged would not, save in very exceptional circumstances, be repaired and where there is a choice, it is clearly better to spend £50 on a house worth £400 than £100 on a house only worth £300.

8. In advance of an emergency the most important preparatory step for the local authority to take is to make such arrangements as may be possible for securing that the "first-aid" repairs referred to above could be effected immediately.

For this purpose the Minister suggested that the authority should get into touch with the representatives of the building industry in their area and endeavour to arrange that in an emergency small squads of men with the requisite plant and temporary materials could be taken off the work they have in hand and sent out immediately to effect temporary repairs, returning to their other work when finished. In this connection attention is drawn to Circular No. 104/1939 and to paragraph 3 of Circular No. 142/1939 issued by the Lord Privy Seal.

The materials most useful for temporary repairs are sheeting materials of various kinds (roofing felt, corrugated iron, asbestos sheets, wall boards, etc.) and timber, with their necessary accessories. Steps are being taken to ensure that a reasonably adequate supply of materials will be available for an emergency, but if during an emergency the local authority experience any difficulty in obtaining sufficient supplies they should communicate with the regional housing officer of the Ministry, who will be instructed to give any necessary advice and assistance to the local authority in the carrying out of the duties described in this circular.

HOUSING ACTS.
POSTPONEMENT OF WORK.

SIR,—1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to say that in view of the outbreak of war he has had under consideration the action to be taken by local authorities in relation to their normal housing work. In the case of Slum Clearance the schemes are in various stages from the earliest step of the declaration of the area to the stage when an Order has been confirmed by the Minister but the operative date is still in the future. In the case of Housing Schemes, local authorities have nearly 50,000 houses under construction whilst there are large numbers of such schemes in stages varying from the selection of a site to the acceptance of a tender for houses.

2. Local authorities have powers and duties under the Housing (Emergency Powers) Act, 1939 (a), and the Essential Buildings and Plant (Repair of War Damage) Act, 1939 (b), which may involve them in a considerable amount of work. At the moment it is not possible to envisage just how the normal activities of Housing Authorities will be affected by the war, but for the time being, at any rate, the Minister has decided that it is necessary to defer the holding of Inquiries into Slum Clearance Orders. Accordingly, for the present, local authorities should take no further steps in connection with Orders which have not reached the stage of local Inquiry. As regards any Orders on which the Inquiry has been held, the Minister proposes to postpone his decision or the issue of his Order unless he is satisfied on representations by the local authority that there are special circumstances which make it desirable that action on that particular Order should proceed.

3. Where an Order has been confirmed by the Minister so that it becomes the duty of the local authority to proceed with the steps which will end with the demolition of the property the Minister is of opinion that, save in exceptional circumstances, the steps taken should stop short of actual demolition. In view of the possible destruction of housing accommodation by attacks from the air, it is clearly desirable that the existing supply of accommodation should not be diminished. Questions as to the payment of subsidy which this procedure may raise will be considered later.

4. Considerations similar to those in the preceding paragraphs apply to individual demolition orders and redevelopment schemes, and similar action should be taken

5. The postponement of the demolition of unfit property in the manner suggested will allow the provision of replacement accommodation to be deferred and to that extent the immediate building programme of the Local Authorities will be diminished. In view of the probable heavy demand on the supply of building labour and material, it may also be necessary for local authorities to curtail building for overcrowding and general needs. Generally speaking, therefore, the Minister would not be prepared for the time being to approve of the erection of further houses unless he were satisfied that there were exceptional circumstances which rendered the work of importance in the national interest, e.g., that the houses were necessary for the employees of new factories or, in agricultural districts, for agricultural workers.

6. As regards houses which are in course of construction, the Minister would be glad if local authorities would arrange with their contractors to concentrate on those houses which are in an advanced stage of construction and not to continue work on houses in an early stage or to start foundations for new houses. If a local authority have good ground for considering that the completion of a contract would be in the national interest they should communicate with the Minister.

1. A Compulsory Order for hiring made by a Council shall be in the Form set forth in the Appendix to these Regulations or to the like effect; Provided that an Order when submitted to the Minister for confirmation may be modified by the Minister after notice of the intended modification to the Council and to those persons interested in the land who, in the opinion of the Minister, would be affected thereby, and after consideration of any objection thereto presented to the Minister within the time prescribed by such notice.

2.—(1) When a Council propose to hire land compulsorily, the Council, not less than one calendar month before they submit the Order to the Minister, shall publish the Order by means of a notice containing such particulars as are prescribed by this Regulation, inserted as an advertisement in one or more newspapers circulating in the locality and the Council shall furnish a copy of the Order (except any plan annexed to or referred to in the Order) free of charge to any person interested in the land who shall apply for the same. 4. The period within which an objection to a Compulsory Order may, under Regulation 2 (3), be presented to the Minister by a person interested in the land to which the Order relates shall be the period of one calendar month from and after the date on which notice of the Order is sent to him, or if no notice is sent to him, in that case from and after the date of the latest advertisement of a notice of the Order.

PART II.

Procedure for Enforcing Compulsory Hiring Order.

6.—(1) When the Council require to hire compulsorily any land authorised to be hired by a Compulsory Order, they shall give notice to that effect to the owner of such land, and to any existing tenant thereof, or to such of the said parties as shall, after diligent inquiry, be known to the Council, and by such notice shall demand from such parties the particulars of their estate and interest in such land, in so far as such particulars are required in order to ascertain the owner thereof and the interests of the existing tenants (if any); and every such notice shall state the particulars of the land required to be hired, and the term for which the Council are authorised to hire the same, and that the Council are willing to treat for the hiring thereof. The Council shall in every such notice state a date consistent with the terms of the Order on which they require that the tenancy of the Council shall commence.

(2) Where the owner is a tenant the Council shall also give notice to the person in receipt of the rent reserved under the lease under which the owner holds as tenant that they require to hire compulsorily the lands specified in such notice.

(3) The notices referred to in this Regulation must be served within three calendar months after the date of confirmation by the Minister.

7. On receipt of the particulars of the interest of an existing tenant, the Council shall within twenty-one days give notice to the tenant, stating whether the Council desire to extinguish the interest of such tenant or to hire the land subject to such interest, and if the Council fail to give such notice they shall be deemed to desire to extinguish the interest of the tenant. Any interest of an existing tenant which is extinguished under the powers conferred by a Compulsory Order shall be extinguished upon, and by reason of, the commencement of the tenancy of the Council.

8.—(1) An existing tenant whose interest in the land is extinguished upon, and by reason of, the commencement of the tenancy of the Council shall be entitled to recover from the Council compensation for the value of his interest in the land and for any just allowance which ought to be made to him by an incoming tenant, and for any loss or injury which the existing tenant may sustain.

(2) If any person claim compensation in respect of any unexpired term or interest under any lease of lands by the Order authorised to be hired, the Council may require such person to produce the lease in respect of which such claim is made, or sufficient evidence thereof, and if, after demand made in writing by the Council, such lease, or such evidence thereof, be not produced within twenty-one days, the party so claiming compensation shall be considered as a tenant holding only from year to year, and be entitled to compensation accordingly.

9. If the owner of land authorised by a Compulsory Order to be hired is unable, except under powers conferred by these Regulations, to lease the land for the term and on the conditions for and on which the Council are so authorised to hire the land, the rent to be paid by the Council shall be determined, as in default of agreement, under and in accordance with the provisions of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919 (a), and the Small Holdings and Allotments Acts, 1908 to 1931 (a), and the Allotments Acts, 1922 and 1925 (a).

10. If an existing tenant is unable, except under powers conferred by these Regulations, to dispose of the interest created by the lease under which he holds and to give an absolute discharge for the compensation for such interest, the amount payable by the Council to the existing tenant or any person claiming through him in respect of such interest or in respect of improvements executed on the land or otherwise, and, where part only of the holding is hired, the rent to be paid for the residue of the holding during the remainder of the term for which the holding is held, shall be determined, as in default of agreement, in manner provided by the preceding Regulation.

11. If the Council cannot after diligent inquiry ascertain the owner or existing tenant, or if for twenty-one days after the giving of such notice to treat to the owner or existing tenant as is required by these Regulations, he fail to state the particulars demanded by the notice or fail to treat with the Council in respect of his interest, or if the owner or the existing tenant do not agree with the Council as to any matter which under paragraph (3) of Part II. of the First Schedule to the Act of 1908 is in default of such agreement to be determined as therein provided, the Council may require that the rent, compensation or other matter to be determined shall be determined in manner provided by the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, and the Small Holdings and Allotments Acts, 1908 to 1931, and the Allotments Acts, 1922 and 1925.

12. If the land authorised to be compulsorily hired is held by the owner subject to any reservation or exception or easement from which the Council require that the land when leased to the Council shall be exonerated during the existence of the lease, any person injuriously affected by the exoneration of the land from such reservation or exception or by the extinguishment of the easement effected by the lease to the Council shall be entitled to recover compensation for the injury from the Council, and the amount of the compensation shall in default of agreement between such person and the Council be determined under and in accordance with the provisions of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, and the Small Holdings and Allotments Acts, 1908 to 1931, and the Allotments Acts, 1922 and 1925.

13. In determining the rent to be paid by the Council for land authorised to be compulsorily hired the interest of any existing tenant and the existence of any reservation or exception or easement affecting the land shall be taken into consideration, and the land shall be valued as subject to such interest, reservation, exception, or easement.

14.—(1) In determining the rent to be paid for land authorised to be compulsorily hired regard shall be had by the arbitrator not only to the value of the land to be hired, but also to the damage (if any) to be sustained by the owner of the land by reason of its severance from other land of such owner, or by reason of such other land being otherwise injuriously affected by the exercise of the powers conferred on the Council by the Compulsory Order, the Small Holdings and Allotments Acts, 1908 to 1931, or by the Allotments Acts, 1922 and 1925.

(2) Every existing tenant shall be entitled to receive from the Council compensation for the damage done to him in his tenancy by reason of the severance of the land to be hired from land which is held by such tenant and is not required to be hired.

15.—(1) As soon as the amount of the rent to be paid by the Council for the land proposed to be compulsorily hired, and the amount of any other compensation to be paid by the Council to any person entitled thereto in respect of the land or any interest therein, or in respect of improvements executed on the land or otherwise, have been determined, so far as the same can be determined before the tenancy of the Council commences, the owner shall on the application of the Council execute a lease of the land in accordance with the Order, subject only to the interest of any existing tenant which the Council have given notice that they do not desire to extinguish, and to any reservation, exception, or easement subject to which the land is to be hired, and if the owner refuses or after notice in writing by the Council fails within one month, to execute the lease, or if the owner of the land cannot after diligent inquiry be ascertained by the Council, the Council shall execute the lease in duplicate, and shall forward one copy to the owner, if he can be found, and a lease so executed shall take effect as if it had been duly executed by the owner.

(2) A lease executed by the owner, or by the Council under this Regulation, shall be binding on and enure for the benefit of all persons interested in the land hired, and shall not cause any forfeiture of the land, or of any land held therewith or create any right of entry on any such land, or any right of action for breach of a covenant not to assign, or like covenant.

16. The lease to the Council shall, when executed in accordance with these Regulations, and subject as hereinafter provided, take effect as from the date specified by the Council in the notice to treat given by the Council to the owner of the land, and in such case the Council shall on the date so specified be entitled to enter on the land, subject to the interest of any existing tenant which is not to be extinguished by the hiring;

Provided that this Regulation is subject to the power of the Council under subsection (8) of section 39 of the Act of 1908 to withdraw such notice to treat.

17.—(1) Costs reasonably incurred by the owner in connection with the preparation and execution of the lease and any counterpart and costs reasonably incurred by the owner or an existing tenant in furnishing any particulars of his estate and interest required by notice under these Regulations, or otherwise required by the Council, shall be paid by the Council to the owner or tenant as the case may be.

(2) If the Council and the party entitled to any such costs do not agree as to the amount thereof, such costs shall be taxed by one of the Taxing Masters of the High Court, upon an Order of the Court to be obtained upon petition in a summary way by either of the parties; and the Council shall pay what the said Master shall certify to be due in respect of such costs to the party entitled thereto, or in default thereof the same may be recovered in the same way as any other costs payable under an Order of the Court, and the expense of taxing such costs shall be borne by the Council unless upon such taxation one-sixth part of the amount of such costs be disallowed, in which case the costs of such taxation shall be borne by the party whose costs shall be so taxed, and the amount thereof shall be ascertained by the said Master, and deducted by him accordingly in his certificate of such taxation.

18. If in any case the Council are authorised by a Compulsory Order and these Regulations to enter upon and hold any land authorised to be compulsorily hired, and the owner or occupier of any such lands or any other person refuses to give up the possession thereof, or hinders the Council from entering upon the same, a court of summary jurisdiction, on complaint made by the Council, may require the owner or occupier of such land or other person to deliver possession of the same to the Council or permit them to enter thereon; and any Order made under these provisions may be enforced as provided by section 34 of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879 (a).

19. The arbitrator shall within one month after his appointment, or within such extended time as the Minister shall allow, make and sign a determination of all matters referred to him for determination which are in his opinion capable of being ascertained at the date of the determination, and shall within one month after the commencement of the tenancy of the Council, or within such extended time as the Minister shall allow, make and sign a determination of all matters referred to him for determination which are not determined by the previous determination.

20. Every determination made by an arbitrator shall be duly stamped by him and sent as soon as possible to the Council and a copy shall at the same time be sent to the owner and any existing tenant affected by the determination.

(a) 11 Halsbury's Statutes 342.

21.—(1) Any compensation, other than rent, payable by the Council in respect of the compulsory hiring, including any compensation payable in respect of the interest of an existing tenant which is extinguished by such hiring, shall be payable by the Council in manner provided by these Regulations on the execution of the lease, or if payable in respect of any matter not then determined, on the date when it is duly determined.

(2) Subject to any provision in the Compulsory Order and these Regulations, compensation so payable by the Council shall be paid on demand to the owner, or the existing tenant, as the case may be.

22. Subject to any provision in the Compulsory Order relating to mines and minerals, there shall, unless the owner and the Council otherwise agree, be excepted and reserved out of the lease all the mines and minerals, metals, ores, and other substrata, whether of coal, stone, clay, sand, or any other metalliferous or mineral substance or produce whatsoever, whether opened or unopened, worked or unworked, within or under the hired land (all which are hereinafter collectively referred to as "the said mines and minerals"); with full liberty and power for the persons entitled to the said mines and minerals at all times during the lease by underground workings only to win, work, and carry away the whole of the said mines and minerals, and also to carry away the produce of any other mines; nevertheless making reasonable compensation for any damage or subsidence which may be occasioned to any building on the land hired by reason of such working and carrying away of the said mines and minerals as aforesaid or the exercise of the powers to be reserved as aforesaid, such compensation to be settled in case of dispute by a single arbitrator in accordance with the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1923 (a).

23. Except as in these Regulations expressly provided, any person interested in the determination of any matter under these Regulations shall not be required to produce to the person making the valuation, or give him access to, any document of title.

PART III.

Schedule to Form of Order for Compulsory Hiring

This Schedule shall contain a draft of the lease under which it is proposed that the land shall be authorised to be acquired by the Council, setting out all the proposed terms and conditions except the date of the commencement of the tenancy and the rent.

The lease shall contain covenants by the Council to cultivate the land in a proper manner and to pay to the landlord at the determination of the tenancy, on the Council quitting the land, compensation for any depreciation of the land by reason of any failure by the Council, or any person deriving title under them, to observe such covenants, or by reason of any user of the land by the Council or such person as aforesaid, and, unless otherwise agreed, a covenant by the Council to keep the buildings and premises demised in repair.

If the land authorised to be acquired for allotment gardens is the property of a corporation or company acquired by them for the purposes of a railway, dock, canal, water or other public undertaking, the lease shall contain a condition enabling the corporation or company to resume possession of the land when required by them for the purpose (not being the use of land for agriculture) for which it was acquired by the corporation or company.

The lease shall also provide that, except with the consent of the landlord, the Council shall not fell or cut timber or trees, or take, sell, or carry away any minerals, gravel, sand, or clay, except so far as may be necessary or convenient for the purpose of erecting buildings on the land or otherwise adapting the land for small holdings [allotments] [allotment gardens], and except upon payment of compensation for minerals, gravel, sand, or clay so used.

LOCAL LAND CHARGES.

A copy is enclosed of the Local Land Charges Rules, 1934, which have been made by the Lord Chancellor under the Land Charges Act, 1925, as amended by the Law of Property (Amendment) Act, 1926, and will come into operation on the 7th May, 1934.

The new Rules, which re-enact the Local Land Charges Rules, 1927, with amendments necessitated by the Town and Country Planning Act, 1932, and incorporate the Local Land Charges (Ancient Monuments) Rules, 1931, will not materially affect the general form of the register. The attention of local authorities and local registrars is drawn to the following points:—

Rule 8. Part III of the register where a scheme is not in operation must contain, in addition to the documents and particulars required to be entered under the revoked Rules of 1927, a copy of any order or declaration under Section 17 of the Town and Country Planning Act, and notice of the place at which inspection may be made of particulars of any decisions of the interim development authority or of the Minister of Health on appeal given after the 7th May, 1934.

Rule 9. Part III of the register where a scheme is in operation must contain in addition to the scheme (including a varying or supplementary scheme—see definition of "scheme" in Rule 2) a certified copy of any supplementary order or general development order (see paragraph (4) of Rule 13) in operation and of any order or declaration under Section 17 of the Town and Country Planning Act relating to the land in the area of the scheme.

Rule 11. (1) The period within which a charge must be entered in the register in order that the registration shall, by reason of the priority notice, take effect at the date when the charge arose, is:

(a) in the case of a scheme or supplementary order fourteen days from the date on which the scheme or order comes into operation;

(b) in the case of any other planning charges arising on the approval of the Minister being given, e.g., a resolution to prepare or adopt a scheme, or an order under Section 17 of the Town and Country Planning Act, within fourteen days of the date of the Minister's authority or approval.

(2) Where a resolution to prepare or adopt a scheme requires the approval of the Minister of Health, the resolution is not a charge until it takes effect, namely, on its approval by the Minister. It is, however, open to a local authority on passing a resolution to enter a priority notice of the contemplated charge or, if the resolution extends to land outside their area, to give a priority notice to the local registrar of the district in which the land is situate.

Rule 15. Where a plan is necessary to define the land in respect of which search is to be made the plan must be furnished in duplicate if the applicant for search requires a copy of the plan to be returned with the certificate of search.

First Schedule. The form of requisition for official search has been amended so that search may be required for subsisting entries up to and including a date specified by the applicant. It is thought that the change now made will encourage early application and thus assist registrars in arranging their work. It is, of course, important that the local registrar should issue the certificate on the date mentioned.

LAND CHARGES

Second Schedule. An alteration has been made in the Fee Order so as to limit the additional charge in respect of parcels of land above one where personal search is made, or where requisition for official search is made in respect of contiguous parcels of land for the purpose of the same transaction, to a maximum of fourteen shillings and twenty-one shillings respectively.

Representations have been made that in some cases the total fee which was chargeable under the Fee Order in respect of a large number of contiguous parcels of land was unduly high in proportion to the labour entailed by the official search. It is understood that local registrars have not in these circumstances always charged the full amount allowed by the Order. It is important that the practice in the matter should be uniform and, accordingly, an appropriate maximum fee has been imposed.

LOANS

PAYMENTS TO OFFICERS AND WORKMEN OUT OF LOAN MONEYS.

In sanctioning loans to local authorities the Minister of Health normally stipulates as follows :—

"No part of the salary or wages of the council's permanent staff (including employees) ordinarily charged to revenue account should be defrayed out of moneys borrowed under this sanction. There would, however, be no objection to the payment out of the loan of reasonable remuneration for additional work performed outside normal hours or, where it is necessary temporarily to employ substitutes to take the place of permanent staff during the time that the staff is engaged on the work for which the loan is sanctioned, a sum equal to the reasonable remuneration paid to the substitutes.

"With regard to payments (if any) due to yourself (the clerk) for legal work in connection with the object of the loan and not within the scope of your duties, the bills as taxed may properly be paid out of the loan."

Where the loan includes the purchase of land as well as the execution of works, the following sentence is added :—

"Charges within the scale prescribed in Part I. of the Schedule I. to the General Order under the Solicitors' Remuneration Act, 1881, need not be submitted for taxation."

THE LOCAL AUTHORITIES (STOCK) REGULATIONS, 1934,* DATED JUNE 21ST, 1934, MADE BY THE MINISTER OF HEALTH UNDER SECTION 204 OF THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT, 1933.

The Minister of Health in exercise of the powers conferred on him by Section 204 of the Local Government Act, 1933 (b), hereby makes the following Regulations :—

1. These Regulations may be cited as the Local Authorities (Stock) Regulations, 1934.

2.—(1) In these Regulations, unless the context otherwise requires, the following words and expressions have the respective meanings hereby assigned to them :—

"The Minister" means the Minister of Health;

"Local Authority" means a county council, other than the London County Council, the council of a borough and an urban or rural district council;

(a) These Acts are printed in a later volume of this work.
* These regulations are in the form approved by resolutions of both Houses of Parliament.
(b) Ante, p. 1038.

Creation and Redemption of Stock.

3.—(1) Subject to the provisions of these Regulations and with the consent of the Minister (which consent shall be expressed in an order, in these Regulations referred to as a "consent order"), a local authority who desire to exercise any statutory borrowing power may by resolution create redeemable stock for that purpose.

(2) The resolution may be in the form set out in the Schedule to these Regulations or in a form substantially to the like effect and shall specify—

(a) the borrowing powers to be exercised;

(b) the amount of stock to be issued;

(c) the price at which the stock is to be issued;

(d) the rate of interest and the half-yearly or other intervals at which the interest will be payable;

(e) the period after which the stock is to be redeemable at par at the option of the local authority;

(f) the period within which the stock must be redeemed or purchased and extinguished;

(g) the name of the stock; and

(h) whether the stock is to be transferable in books or by deed:

Provided that in lieu of specifying any of the matters mentioned in sub-paragraphs (b) to (g) of this paragraph the resolution may, if the local authority think fit, indicate the procedure by which any of those matters shall be determined.

(3) Except with the consent of the Minister, stock shall not be issued at a price lower than ninety-five per cent.

(4) The period within which stock must be redeemed or purchased and extinguished shall not exceed sixty years.

4. With a view to the consolidation for the purpose of repayment of loans which a local authority have raised or intend to raise by the issue of stock the authority may prepare, and the Minister may approve, with or without modifications, a scheme of consolidation, and the scheme shall fix the period or periods within which the loans which it is proposed to consolidate shall be repaid and for that purpose may extend or vary any periods originally fixed as the periods within which provision was required to be made for the repayment of the several loans, due regard being had to the amounts of the loans and the periods so originally fixed.

5.—(1) For the payment of interest on each class of stock there shall in each year be carried to a separate account of the county fund or the general rate fund, as the case may be, a sum or sums equal to the aggregate amount of all interest payable on the stock of that class during the year.

(2) Such account shall be called the Stock (Interest) Account and shall be distinguished by number or otherwise from the corresponding account relating to stock of another class, and in these Regulations every such account is referred to as the "interest account."

(3) The local authority shall from time to time pay the interest on the stock and charge the payments to the interest account.

6.—(1) For the redemption or purchase and extinction of each class of stock the local authority shall establish a separate account of the county fund or the general rate fund, as the case may be, to be entitled the Stock (Sinking Fund) Account, and the said account shall be distinguished by number or otherwise from the corresponding account relating to stock of another class, and in these Regulations every such account is referred to as the "sinking fund account."

LOANS

(2) The local authority shall keep in connection with the sinking fund account—

(a) an account showing the securities on which all sums carried to the sinking fund account are from time to time invested;

(b) separate accounts relative to each undertaking or purpose for or in respect of which any statutory borrowing power is exercised by them by the issue of the stock; and

(c) separate accounts relative to each statutory borrowing power so exercised.

(3) The accounts to be kept under sub-paragraphs (b) and (c) of the last preceding paragraph shall show—

(i) the amount of stock for the time being chargeable to each undertaking or purpose;

(ii) if more than one statutory borrowing power has been exercised in respect of an undertaking or purpose, the amount of stock attributable to the exercise of each such borrowing power;

(iii) the amount of stock attributable to each statutory borrowing power which has been redeemed or purchased and extinguished by means of the sinking fund account, and shall further show in relation to each undertaking or purpose—

(iv) all money being capital, or in the nature of capital, carried to the sinking fund account and in the opinion of the local authority properly attributable to that undertaking or purpose;

(v) all money carried to the sinking fund account as the equivalent of interest on the last-mentioned money;

(vi) all money and securities transferred or carried to the sinking fund account under Article 10 of these Regulations, and all money carried to the sinking fund account as the equivalent of interest on the last-mentioned money or securities;

(vii) all money carried to the sinking fund account as contributions from the revenues of the local authority in respect of redemption or purchase and extinction of stock; and

(viii) all money carried to the sinking fund account as the equivalent of interest of the last-mentioned money.

7.—(1) The amounts to be carried to the sinking fund account in respect of each loan represented by stock throughout the period within which the loan is required to be repaid or, if a scheme for the consolidation of loans is in operation, throughout the period fixed by the scheme shall be, as the local authority with the consent of the Minister may determine, either—

(a) such equal annual sums as would, with accumulations at a rate to be determined from time to time by the Minister, be sufficient, after payment of all expenses, for the purpose of purchasing the amount of stock at par within that period; or

(b) such equal annual sums as would, without accumulations, be sufficient for the purpose aforesaid:

Provided that—

(i) if stock is issued by a local authority to raise money which they are authorised to lend to a parish council or other authority and which is to be repaid to them by instalments, the sums to be carried in each year to the sinking fund account shall be such sums as are in that year due to be paid to the local authority by way of repayment of capital; and

(ii) if stock is issued for raising a loan and the local authority are authorised to postpone commencing provision for repayment of the loan, the provisions of this Article shall apply with the necessary modifications;

(iii) if stock is issued for paying off money previously borrowed in respect of which no period for repayment was prescribed by or under the enactment conferring the statutory borrowing power, the period by reference to which the annual sums aforesaid are to be substituted shall be such as the local authority, with the consent of the Minister, may determine; and

(iv) the provisions of Section 214 of the Act of 1933, which enable or require adjustments of amounts payable to a sinking fund to be made in certain circumstances, shall apply to the amounts payable to the sinking fund account.

(2) The interest in any year from the investment of the sums carried to the sinking fund account shall form part of the revenue for that year of the county fund or the general rate fund, as the case may be, but in the case of a sinking fund account to which accumulations are required to be carried the contribution to be made to the sinking fund account out of the county fund or the general rate fund, as the case may be, shall in that year be increased by a sum equal to the interest that would have accrued to that account during that year, if interest had been accumulated therein at the rate per cent. per annum on which the annual payments to the account are based.

8. For the purpose of calculating the sums required to be carried to the sinking fund account—

(a) where stock has been issued at a discount, so much of the stock as represents the difference between the price of the stock as issued and its nominal value; and

(b) where stock has been issued for the purpose of defraying the expenses of the creation and issue of any stock, the amount of stock created and issued for that purpose, shall be deemed to represent a loan repayable at the date at which the stock is first redeemable at par at the option of the local authority.

9. The local authority shall apply the money standing to the credit of the sinking fund account in redeeming stock according to the terms of issue and may, if they think fit, apply such money in purchasing stock for extinction and, pending such application, any money standing to the credit of that account shall either be applied in the exercise of borrowing powers in the manner provided in Article 13 of these Regulations or shall be invested in statutory securities, other than securities created by the local authority, and the local authority may from time to time vary and transpose the investments.

10. If a local authority redeem or purchase and extinguish stock by the application of any money standing to the credit of the sinking fund account, the stock so redeemed or purchased and extinguished shall be deemed to be stock issued in respect of such one or more of the statutory borrowing powers exercised by the issue of stock, and, if in respect of more than one, in such proportions as the local authority may determine:

Provided that no larger amount of stock shall be deemed to be redeemed or purchased and extinguished in respect of any statutory borrowing power than the amount which, according to the actual price of redemption or purchase, could be redeemed or purchased with the money standing to the credit of the sinking fund account in respect of that borrowing power.

11. Where a local authority apply any sum standing to the credit of the sinking fund account in or towards the redemption or purchase and extinction of stock, then—

(i) in the case of a sinking fund account to which accumulations are required to be carried, the authority shall credit in each year to the account to which the stock so redeemed or purchased is allocated and shall accumulate during the residue of the period allowed for the continuance of the loan a sum equal to the interest which would have been produced by the sum so applied, if it had been invested at the rate per cent. per annum on which the annual payments to the sinking fund account are based; and

(ii) if the stock is purchased by the local authority at a rate exceeding one hundred pounds for one hundred pounds stock, the sum to be carried to the sinking fund account under this Article by way of interest shall be calculated as if only one hundred pounds had been so applied for each one hundred pounds stock purchased, and the local authority shall either carry to the sinking fund account during the year in which the purchase is made, an additional sum equal to the sum paid in excess of the said rate for the purchase of stock in such year, or shall, during that year and each succeeding year for such period as the Minister may approve, carry to that account such additional sum as the Minister may approve.

12. Any stock redeemed or purchased by the local authority under these Regulations shall thereupon be cancelled by the registrar, and on such cancellation the stock and all interest thereon which has not already become payable shall be and the same are by virtue of these Regulations extinguished.

13.—(1) Where a local authority have any statutory borrowing power they may, with the consent of the Minister, instead of raising money by the creation and issue of additional stock, exercise the power, either wholly or partially, by using for the purpose any money standing to the credit of the sinking fund account, and in that case they shall—

(a) withdraw from the money standing to the credit of the sinking fund account such sum as may be specified in the resolution, being a sum equal to the amount of the statutory borrowing power proposed to be exercised, which sum shall be deemed to be withdrawn from such separate account of the sinking fund account as may be specified in the resolution; and

(b) deduct, from the amount of stock chargeable to the undertaking or purpose or attributable to the exercise of the borrowing power to which the said separate account relates, a portion of stock at par value or at such other value as the Minister may direct equal to the sum withdrawn from that separate account, and transfer that portion of stock, as from a date to be specified in the resolution, to the separate account in respect of which the statutory borrowing power is exercised.

(2) These Regulations shall apply—

(a) to the money withdrawn from the sinking fund account and used as aforesaid as though the money so withdrawn had been applied in the redemption of stock, at par or at such other value as the Minister may direct, on the separate account from which the money was withdrawn, and as though the money so used had been raised by the issue of additional stock for the purposes of the separate account in respect of which the statutory borrowing power is exercised; and

(b) to the stock deducted and transferred as aforesaid as though the stock so deducted had been redeemed by the application of the sinking fund account on the separate account from which the stock was deducted, but subject to the condition that such stock shall not be cancelled, and as though the stock so transferred were additional stock expressly issued for the purposes of the separate account in respect of which the statutory borrowing power is exercised.

Conversion of other securities into stock.

14.—(1) Where the consent of the Minister is given to the exercise by the local authority of any statutory borrowing power by the creation and issue of stock and for that purpose the local authority propose to reborrow any sum represented by any mortgage, bond, debenture, stock, annuity, rentcharge, or other security which was granted or created by them under any statutory borrowing power and which they have power, with the consent of the holder of that security, or otherwise, to pay off or to redeem, they may pay off or redeem the security accordingly with money raised by stock, or they may, with the consent of the holder thereof, issue stock in substitution for the security.

(2) The local authority may in every such case make such reasonable payment as they may think fit to the holder of any security for his consent, or for otherwise compensating him for the payment off or redemption of or substitution for his security, and any such payment may be either in money or stock, or partly in one and partly in the other:

Provided that the amount of any payment under this paragraph which may be raised by the issue of stock shall not exceed the amount which the Minister may by the consent order authorise to be so raised.

(3) The period within which provision shall be made for the redemption of stock created and issued for the purpose of any payment to be made under the last preceding paragraph shall be such period, not exceeding the period within which the money representing the security paid off or redeemed or for which the stock is substituted is required to be paid off under the statutory borrowing power or the consent order, as the Minister may by the consent order prescribe, or may subsequently determine.

(5) Where the holder of the security is a person under disability who is enabled by Section 7 of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (a), to sell land, he may consent to payment or redemption of, or substitution for, the money secured or represented by that security, and may accept money for giving that consent as if he were the absolute owner of the security, and his receipt shall be a good discharge for the same.

(2) A stock certificate shall be primâ facie evidence of the title of the person therein named, his executors, administrators, successors, or assigns, to the stock therein specified, but the absence of a stock certificate, if accounted for to the satisfaction of the local authority, shall not prevent the holder of stock from disposing of and transferring the stock.

30. Where two or more persons are registered as joint holders of stock, any one of them may give an effectual receipt for interest thereon, unless notice in writing to the contrary has been given to the registrar by any other of them.

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL, LONDON, S.W.1.

28*th June*, 1934.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT, 1933.

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to enclose herewith a copy of the Local Government (Form of Mortgages and Transfers) Regulations, 1934, made by the Minister under Sections 205 and 206 of the Local Government Act, 1933.

The Regulations apply to all Local Authorities within the meaning of the Act; but, having regard to the relatively small number of Parish Councils which have occasion to borrow, the Minister has not considered it necessary to send copies of the Regulations to those authorities, but he will be glad if County Councils will take any necessary steps to bring the Regulations to the notice of the Parish Councils who are likely to be affected. In the cases where County Councils themselves lend the money which Parish Councils are authorised to borrow there are certain additional conditions to be observed. These are now prescribed by an Order under section 201 of the Act of 1933, and copies of this Order are enclosed with the copies of this Circular sent to County Councils.

The Minister has also made Regulations under section 204 of the Act, entitled the Local Authorities (Stock) Regulations, 1934. These are not being circulated generally. They are published as Statutory Rules and Orders, No. 619 of 1934 (a); and Local Authorities interested will be able to purchase copies of them from H.M. Stationery Office at the addresses shown on the back of this circular.

A further copy of this circular is enclosed for the information of the Chief Financial Officer of the Council.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient Servant,

E. H. RHODES,
Assistant Secretary.

The Clerk to the Authority.

Whereas by subsection (1) of section 201 of the Local Government Act, 1933 (a), it is provided that in relation to borrowing by a county council for the purpose of lending to a parish council the Minister of Health (in this Order referred to as "the Minister") may by order impose conditions to be observed either generally or in any particular case in addition to the conditions to be observed in relation to borrowing for other purposes.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT, 1933.

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to enclose a copy of the Local Government (Sinking Funds Rate of Accumulation) Regulations, 1934 (a), made by the Minister under Section 213 of the Local Government Act, 1933 (b).

The Regulations provide that where a local authority determine to repay money borrowed on mortgage under Part IX of the Act of 1933 by means of an accumulating sinking fund the rate of accumulation to be taken in calculating the annual payments to the sinking fund shall be 3 per cent.

The Regulations will not generally speaking apply to payments made during the current financial year since the first payment to a sinking fund is not usually made until twelve months after the date of borrowing. Nor will they apply to borrowings effected otherwise than under the Act of 1933. There is however in the absence of special circumstances no good reason why existing sinking funds should not be brought on to the same basis as that prescribed by Regulations for new sinking funds, and the Minister considers that local authorities should do this in cases where existing sinking funds are based on a higher rate than 3 per cent. In so far as an alteration to a 3 per cent. basis is dependent on the Minister's approval that approval is given by this letter.

The general approval now given does not affect the charge for contributions to sinking funds to be taken for the purpose of calculating subsidy under the Housing etc. Act, 1919, for the current financial year. The position in this respect is as set out in the slip which accompanied the forms of application for payment.

Section 213 provides that in a particular case some rate other than that prescribed by the Regulations may be fixed with the approval of the Minister. Special application should be made where it is considered that the circumstances justify this course.

A further copy of this circular is enclosed for the information of the Chief Financial Officer of the Council. Additional copies of the circular and regulations can be obtained from H.M. Stationery Office, at the addresses shown below, or through any bookseller.

THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT (SINKING FUNDS, RATE OF ACCUMULATION) REGULATIONS, 1934, DATED NOVEMBER 30TH, 1934, MADE BY THE MINISTER OF HEALTH UNDER SECTION 213 OF THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT, 1933.

Whereas by section 213 of the Local Government Act, 1933 (b) (hereinafter referred to as " the Act ") it is provided that if a local authority determine to repay by means of an accumulating sinking fund any sums borrowed under Part IX of the Act by way of mortgage, the sinking fund shall be formed and maintained by payment to the fund throughout the fixed period of such equal sums as with accumulations at a rate not exceeding the prescribed rate (or such other rate as the Minister may in any particular case approve) will be sufficient to pay off within that period the moneys for the repayment of which the sinking fund is formed:

Now therefore the Minister of Health in pursuance of the powers conferred on him by the above recited section hereby makes the following Regulations:—

1. These regulations may be cited as the Local Government (Sinking Funds, Rate of Accumulation) Regulations, 1934.

2. The prescribed rate of accumulation for the purpose of the above recited section shall be three per centum per annum.

CAPITAL EXPENDITURE.

SURVEY OF PROSPECTIVE WORKS.

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to draw the attention of your Authority to certain considerations of importance in relation to prospective works involving capital expenditure.

The Minister has on previous occasions urged upon local authorities the policy of making every year a survey of their probable capital commitments for at least five years ahead. It is only by such means that authorities can take a reasonably long view of their future requirements. Upon such a system the programme of capital works can be arranged in an order of priority, which, though necessarily conditioned by considerations of their relative urgency, will have regard to present and anticipated conditions in respect of costs and the supply of labour so that the programme can be carried out with the greatest possible efficiency and economy.

This long term review of questions of capital expenditure, more particularly in connection with projects involving building work, is of special importance under present conditions not merely in order to secure the smooth progress of local authorities' operations but as a matter of national economic policy.

At the present time the building industry, apart from normal seasonal variations, continues to be one of the most active in the country, and any increase in large-scale operations which would put an undue strain on its resources is to be depreciated. It is true that in England and Wales the building operations of local authorities form a relatively small part of the work of the building industry as a whole, and that the activity of the industry depends mainly on the extent to which private enterprise is engaged in the erection of commercial and industrial buildings, houses, shops, etc. Moreover, the probable increase or decrease of this activity cannot be foretold with accuracy from year to year, still less over a long period of time.

None the less, by an ordered planning of their prospective capital works on a basis which will admit of adjustment should circumstances make it desirable, local authorities can make a valuable contribution to the stablisation of the conditions in industry over a considerable period. At the same time the adoption of such a policy will enable them to take the fullest advantage, in the interests of their ratepayers, of periods when industrial resources are not unduly strained and conditions are therefore most favourable for the execution of necessary works.

For this purpose the first essential is the preparation of a programme for the period under review which, it is suggested, should be the five years commencing on 1st April, 1938, and the Minister requests that the Local Authority will take this matter into their early consideration. The programme should cover the whole of the capital works which are in contemplation including those, such as housing and roads, for which provisional programmes may be already in existence. It should also indicate at what point in the period covered by the programme each item of work is provisionally intended to commence and should furnish a rough estimate of the probable cost. It will be realised that since the assumption by the Minister of Transport of direct responsibility for trunk roads, work on these roads is removed for the scope of the local authority's works programme.

The preparation of a comprehensive programme should not, of course, be allowed to interfere with the progress of current works, nor should it in general delay works which though not actually begun are urgent. The settlement of priority within the programme is a matter which each local authority will require carefully to consider in the light of their own local conditions, and they will bear in mind the need for discharging such statutory obligations as are placed upon them. There are, however, certain factors of more general application to be borne in mind. Urgent considerations of national defence make it essential for the Government to carry out their defence programme with all possible expedition and similar considerations apply to that portion of local authorities' prospective works which is concerned with air-raid precautions, including many police buildings and fire stations. The need for the early provision of these essential requirements emphasises the advantage of an ordered programme of constructional works in general so arranged that work on previously prepared plans can be started, when circumstances are most favourable, with the minimum of delay.

The programme normally will be compounded of projects emanating from the various Committees of the Authority. It is suggested, therefore, that the several Committees should be invited to formulate their proposals and that arrangements should be made for the examination of them by some co-ordinating Committee and their embodiment in a provisional programme to be approved by the Authority.

The existence of some central co-ordinating machinery will clearly be necessary, as it is often difficult to assess relative degrees of urgency, and the various Committees of the Authority may have divergent views on this point. Co-ordination—either by the Finance Committee or by a Committee specially appointed for the purpose—will, therefore, be required, to assist the Local Authority to determine whether a particular project should be included in the programme and, if so, what provisional position should be assigned to that project in the programme.

Further, a considerable measure of elasticity in the arrangements will be necessary. It may well be that, over a period of years or in any particular year, circumstances will make it desirable to increase the amount of work to be carried out as compared the that envisaged in the programme, or to diminish it, and it is of primary importance that the execution of an authority's programme should be capable of acceleration or retardation as circumstances require.

The Minister will be glad to be informed that your Authority have taken steps to formulate a programme and to receive as soon as practicable, within the next six months, a summary of the programme in the enclosed Form H.283 (a). He will be ready to afford any assistance practicable to the Local Authority in the preparation of the programme and the preliminary work required in order to enable particular schemes to be put in hand with the minimum of delay when the most favourable opportunity arises.

It will be appreciated that one of the essential features of the policy outlined is that active preparations should at once be made for such schemes as are likely to require much preliminary work, e.g., in regard to the acquisition of land and the preparation of outline specifications, plans, etc.

(a) Not here reproduced.

The acquisition of land is often an essential preliminary, and in many cases the details of specific proposals cannot be settled until it is known that a particular site can be acquired. Upon being satisfied that a scheme is one which may ultimately be approved, the Minister will be prepared to sanction loans for the immediate acquisition of land in readiness for the execution of the proposed works at a later date.

The technical preparatory work may also occupy a considerable time, particularly in the larger schemes. To enable work on such schemes to be put in hand at comparatively short notice it is essential that preparatory work should be done well in advance, and with this object the Departments concerned would be willing to consider proposals submitted to them notwithstanding that immediate execution of the work may not be contemplated. It should usually be possible to prepare plans and estimates of any projected scheme which will not require substantial revision even if the execution of the scheme is deferred for some time.

The Minister desires me to state that the terms of this Circular have been discussed with the other Departments concerned and that it is issued with their concurrence. In cases where the programme of the Local Authority includes works which will require the sanction or approval of some Department other than the Ministry of Health, it will of course be understood that the normal procedure for consultation with that Department in regard to the relevant part of the programme and the preparation of plans should be observed. A copy of the programme submitted to the Minister should also be supplied to that Department.

An additional copy of this Circular is enclosed for the use of the Chief Financial Officer. Further copies of Form H.283, if required, can be obtained on application to this Department.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient Servant,
E. J. MAUDE.

The Clerk of the Authority.

TREASURY MINUTE, DATED MAY 9TH, 1939, FIXING RATES OF INTEREST ON LOCAL LOANS (a).

My Lords read Section 1 of the Public Works Loans Act, 1897 (60 & 61 Vict. c. 51), which empowers the Treasury from time to time to fix the rates of interest at which loans may be made out of the Local Loans Fund on the security of local rates, and provides that the Treasury, in fixing the rates, shall have regard to the duration of the loans, and also that the rates shall be such as, in the opinion of the Treasury, are sufficient to enable the loans to be made without loss to the Fund.

They also read Section 4 of the Public Works Loans Act, 1918 (8 & 9 Geo. 5, c. 27), by which it is declared that the power of the Treasury under Section 1 of the Public Works Loans Act, 1897, as amended by Section 4 of the Public Works Loans Act, 1917 (7 & 8 Geo. 5, c. 32), to fix rates of interest on loans made out of the Local Loans Fund otherwise than on the security of local rates includes (subject always to the provisions of the said Sections) a power to fix rates of interest differing from the rates fixed for loans made out of that fund on the security of local rates, and a power to fix different rates of interest in respect of different loans and that in fixing the rate of interest the Treasury may take into account the nature and value of the security for the loan.

They further read Section 92 of the Housing Act, 1936 (26 Geo. 5 & 1 Edw. 8, c. 51), and Section 73 of the Housing (Scotland) Act, 1925 (15 & 16 Geo. 5, c. 15), as amended by Sections 25 and 28 of the Housing (Scotland) Act, 1935 (25 & 26 Geo. 5, c. 41), which provide that loans may be granted to companies, societies, associations and persons as defined in those Sections in connection with the provision of houses for the working classes.

(a) This Minute was the last issued before the outbreak of War in September, 1939. It is, of course, impossible to forecast the effect of the war on rates of interest.

LOANS

The rates of interest were last revised by the Treasury Minute of the 31st March, 1939, when the minimum rate was fixed at 3⅞ per cent. In view, however, of present monetary conditions the lowest rate now consistent with the conditions laid down by the Acts cited in the first and second paragraphs above is 4 per cent.

Accordingly, the Chancellor of the Exchequer recommends that the minimum rate for local loans be raised from 3⅞ per cent. to 4 per cent. and that all other rates for local loans, whether secured on local rates or otherwise, be raised by ⅛ per cent.

My Lords approve, and accordingly the following scales will come into operation as from the 10th May, 1939, and will apply to all loans granted out of the Local Loans Fund on or after that date :—

LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

NOTE.—Parts of the memoranda and other documents printed under this heading related to the bringing into operation of the Local Government Act, 1929, and to the first review of county districts thereunder, and are therefore spent (see, for example, paragraph 5 of memorandum L.G.A. 1, infra), but are retained in this edition for convenience of reference, in determining rights and liabilities which follow from that Act (see, for example, paragraphs 11–23 of the same memorandum). MINISTRY OF HEALTH. MEMORANDUM L.G.A. 1.

County Councils (outside London).

LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT, 1929.

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS OF GUARDIANS.

PRELIMINARY ACTION TO BE TAKEN BY COUNTY COUNCILS.

1. The "appointed day" for the purposes of Part I. of the Act is the 1st April, 1930, and it will be incumbent upon the council at an early date to take the new provisions into their special consideration with a view to the elimination, so far as may be, of the difficulties incidental to a period of transition and the securing of a smooth and easy substitution of the new for the old administration. In particular, it will be a matter of the first importance that the changes shall not involve any poor person in hardship or in a delay in the consideration and, so far as may be necessary, the relief of his needs.

2. In this connection attention is to be drawn to the difference between poor law relief and such assistance as has hithero been given by the council under other enactments. Assistance of the latter kind may be largely a matter of selection and discretion, but once the fact of destitution is established the grant of the relief in the form thought appropriate by the relieving authority becomes a statutory duty of that authority.

3. It is not proposed in this memorandum to set out all the matters arising on the transfer effected by the Act. Direct reference to the relevant provisions of the Act which are comprised in sections 1 to 17, 19, 20, 53, 113, 114, 119, 121, 123, 124, 126, 127, 128, 131 and 132, and the Sixth, Eighth, Ninth and Tenth Schedules of the Act will be necessary. What is here mainly sought is to draw particular attention to matters which must be dealt with before the appointed day, and to indicate certain general administrative considerations to which the council will prudently have regard in deciding upon the action which they may be disposed to take.

4. Attention should be given to the provision in section 13 requiring the council when making provision for hospital accommodation in discharge of the functions transferred to them under Part I. of the Act to consult such committee or other body as they consider to represent both the governing bodies and the medical and surgical staffs of the voluntary hospitals providing services in or for the benefit of the county as to the accommodation to be provided and as to the purposes for which it is to be used.

I.—ADMINISTRATIVE SCHEME.

5. The council is to prepare and submit to the Minister (section 4), not later than the 27th September, 1929, an administrative scheme of the arrangements proposed to be made for discharging the functions transferred to the council.

6. Copies of the scheme are to be sent to the council of each county district wholly or partly in the county and a notice of the submission of the scheme, stating the place at which a copy may be inspected, is to be published in one or more newspapers circulating in the county (section 8 (1)). The scheme will not be effective ıtil it has been approved by the Minister, who is empowered to modify it before ving his approval (section 8 (2)).

7. In the event of failure on the part of the council to submit a scheme to the inister within the prescribed time, or such extended time as the Minister may allow ection 4 proviso), the Minister may himself make a scheme (section 8 (3)). It ill, in this connection, be realised that great difficulty would be involved if in any rge number of cases an extension of the prescribed time for the submission of a heme were sought.

8. It may well be that in the first instance the council will desire to make only a heme to meet the immediate necessities of the transfer, with the intention of evising that scheme after a comparatively short time. When considering this oint the council will no doubt have regard to the possible necessity of adaptation f a number of the transferred institutions to make them suitable for the several urposes for which they will be used under the new regime.

9. Any scheme made by the council may be amended by a scheme similarly nade and approved, and any scheme made by the Minister may be altered by a cheme similarly made or by a scheme made in the prescribed manner by the council nd duly approved by the Minister. (Section 131.)

10. Section 5 requires the council, in preparing an administrative scheme, to have egard to the desirability of securing that, as soon as circumstances permit, all ssistance which can lawfully be provided otherwise than by way of poor relief hall be so provided. The Minister is sure that the council will wish to make the videst possible arrangements under this provision, and, indeed, it is a main object f the Act to secure that as soon as practicable the existing duplication of powers hall be brought to an end and that each form of assistance shall be in the hands of ne and not more than one branch of the council's organisation. The section nables the council to include in a scheme a formal declaration on this subject vhich will have the effect of abrogating the council's powers of dealing under he Poor Law Act, 1927, with any functions specified in the declaration and leaving hose functions to be performed exclusively under the appropriate special Act. The making of such a declaration places the council, in so far as destitute persons are concerned, under an obligation to exercise the powers which they have under the special Acts, and accordingly a formal declaration should not be made until adequate resources can be placed at the disposal of the committee administering the special Act. As a simple example, it will generally be practicable to declare that the domiciliary assistance of blind persons shall be administered under the Blind Persons Act, 1920, but the immediate extension of the declaration to cover the institutional relief of such blind persons as require it will generally present difficulties. This function could not be regarded as being discharged under the special Act if any blind person could be provided with institutional relief only by admission to a workhouse or other institution provided under the Poor Law Act, 1927.

11. The council will therefore take into consideration at an early stage the extent to which a declaration can be made and will, in particular, have regard to such typical services as—

(1) Maintenance and treatment of sick persons and pregnant women in hospitals.
(2) Maintenance of mental defectives in institutions.
(3) Maintenance of blind persons in institutions and in their homes.
(4) Maintenance and treatment of tuberculous persons in sanatoria and other institutions.
(5) Education of children.

Even where a declaration is not immediately practicable it will often be possible for a particular poor law institution to be appropriated under section 53 for the purposes of a special Act. Where, for example, hospital provision cannot be made for a whole county, it may be practicable to appropriate a particular poor law infirmary for use as a public hospital under the Local Government Act, 1888, and still to keep in operation the poor law powers of relieving the sick poor in so far as other accommodation for them is required.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

12. Attention may also be drawn in this connection to the power given by the Act (section 6 (3)) of entrusting the administration of a poor law service to a committee such as the Public Health and Housing or the Education Committee of the Council, to be administered on behalf of and subject to the general direction and control of the Public Assistance Committee.

13. An administrative scheme is to include provisions on the following matters:—

(i) the constitution of a Public Assistance Committee (section 6 (1)) to which, subject to the provisions of section 5 (2) and (3), all matters relating to the exercise of the transferred functions other than those specified in section 2 (except the power of raising a rate and borrowing money) shall stand referred;

(ii) the division (section 7 (1) (a)) of the county into areas consisting of one or more county districts;

(iii) the constitution (section 7 (1) (a) and (b)) of a sub-committee of the Public Assistance Committee to be called the Guardians Committee for each such area. A guardians committee is to consist of not more than 36 nor less than 12 members. The members are to be—

(a) representatives nominated by district councils;

(b) county councillors representing electoral divisions in the area;

(c) additional members, not exceeding one-third of the total membership of the committee, some of whom are to be women; county aldermen may be included;

(iv) the discharge by the Guardians Committees or sub-committees of those committees, subject to restrictions or conditions which may be imposed by the county council, of certain duties specified in the Act (section 7 (1) (c));

(v) effective consultation between the Public Assistance Committee and the Guardians Committees of any area upon business relating specially to that area, and in particular the enabling of every guardians committee to nominate their chairman, or other representative, to be present at any meeting of the Public Assistance Committee at which business specially relating to the area of the guardians committee is to be transacted (section 7 (4));

(vi) the determination of the place at which each guardians committee is to sit (section 7 (5)).

Every local authority is required to allow a guardians committee or sub-committee thereof to use, free of charge, for the purposes of their meetings any premises belonging to the authority, at any time when they are not required for the use of the local authority.

14. The Minister may, on representations from the council of the existence of special circumstances in the whole or any part of the county, direct that the preceding requirements, except that numbered (i), shall not apply. (Section 7 (1) proviso.)

It may, for example, be thought that in some of the smallest counties the establishment of guardians committees with separate areas is unnecessary, and in cases of this kind the Minister is empowered to give a direction exempting the council from the necessity of constituting, under the administration of guardians committees, areas such as are above mentioned.

15. In addition, there are certain points on which provision may at the council's option be made, but can only be effectively made in an administrative scheme.

(i) Committees of the council.

(a) In lieu of establishing a new committee to be the Public Assistance Committe, the provision in the scheme may be either that an existing committee of the council shall act as the Public Assistance Committee, or that the members for the time being of an existing committee with or without additional members shall so act. (Section 6 (1) (a).)

(b) Subject to the provisions of section 5 (2) (3) all matters relating to the exercise of the transferred functions except the power of raising a rate or borrowing money are to stand referred to the Public Assistance Committee, whose report upon them the council will consider (except in an urgent matter) before deciding upon action (section 6 (2)). It is, however, open to the council by their administrative scheme to give independent powers of action to the Public Assistance Committee by delegating (section 6 (3)) to the committee with or without restrictions or conditions any of the transferred functions (except the power of raising a rate or borrowing money).

(c) The scheme may provide that particular functions which have been delegated to the Public Assistance Committee shall be discharged on behalf of and subject to the general control of the committee by another committee of the council. (Section 6 (3).) This power is directed to meeting a case in which the special Acts under which a particular committee is working do not extend to a service performed under the Poor Law Acts, which it is, nevertheless, desired to co-ordinate with the special service.

As regards the care of children, for example, while the council will no doubt generally make at once a declaration that their education shall be provided under the Education Acts and not under their poor law powers, it may or may not also be thought desirable that the education committee should undertake, under the provision mentioned in the preceding paragraph, the maintenance and care of boarded-out children and of children maintained in institutions.

(ii) Additional members.

Section 6 (1) (b) empowers the council to secure on their Public Assistance Committee or other committee or body acting as such the assistance of specially qualified persons who are not members of the council. Where additional members are so appointed, women are to be included among them. The whole number of appointed members is not to be more than one-third of the committee or body. (Provisions as to the appointment of additional members of other committees and sub-committees of the council are contained in section 14 (3) and 14 (5), but these appointments can be made without any reference thereto in an administrative scheme.)

(iii) Alternative powers of giving assistance (section 5).

Reference has already been made in paragraph 10 to the Minister's desire that services for the supply of which other powers exist shall cease to be poor law services, and to the conditions under which and the methods by which this result may be attained. It is only necessary here to point out that any declarations under the section must define precisely the extent to which the poor law powers are to be abrogated in favour of those of the parallel Act, and that pending the practicability of an actual declaration as regards any particular service the council have large powers of rearranging the transferred business so as to secure an approximation to the result which they, as well as the Minister, will wish to secure.

(iv) Arrangements with other local authorities in the county.

As a rule, a county council is not the local authority throughout the administrative county for the purposes of Part III. of the Education Act, 1921, or of the Maternity and Child Welfare Act of 1918, and in such case the education committee of the council or the maternity and child welfare committee, as the case may be, will not be able to accept responsibility for the transferred duty in the whole of the county. If, therefore, the council propose to allocate any of the transferred functions to their education committee or their maternity and child welfare committee, it will be necessary for the council, before making a declaration relating to these statutes under section 5 of the Act, either (1) to ascertain that all the local authorities within the county who function under one or both of the Acts of 1921 and 1918 are able and willing to undertake within their areas the duties which, in the rest of the county, will be allocated to the committees referred to and will therefore not remain with the Public Assistance Committee; or (2) to make other provision for meeting this point. In some cases under the Maternity and Child Welfare Act a solution may be found by the council undertaking throughout the county particular services not already undertaken by the other local authorities, e.g., the provision of maternity institutions, while the other local authorities undertake within their areas the other services under the Act akin to the services they now administer.

16. The circumstances of the counties, the administrative methods of the councils and the institutional and other facilities which will be available vary so greatly that the Minister anticipates that there will be some diversity in the form of the administrative schemes submitted for his approval. He has, however, caused to be prepared for the assistance of the council in approaching this matter a form (L.G.A.2) for a complete scheme of administration such as may be suitable where ample facilities are available for the break up of the poor law, indicating by means of an appendix to the scheme a number of branches of the services in respect of which duplicate powers at present exist, and some of which may probably be made the subject of declaration in the council's first scheme. Others must no doubt in many cases be left to be dealt with, as opportunity occurs, in amending schemes.

It will be seen that the form of scheme contemplates that, subject to safeguards which are suggested, and which can be expanded or adapted to meet the local administrative methods, there shall be a measure of delegation of the council's powers to the Public Assistance Committee. It appears to the Minister that the business of public assistance must clearly involve on occasion the prompt taking of decisions which must be followed by immediate action. In these circumstances the omission of a provision of this kind may well lead to legal difficulties, since, apart from such a provision, the committee would have no legal authority to act in anticipation of the confirmation of its recommendations by the council.

II.—CO-ORDINATION OF ASSISTANCE.

17. In considering the adaptation of its machinery to the new state of things, the council will no doubt have in mind the necessity of co-ordinating public assistance and will consider how far it is essential or desirable to provide a central register or index from which each of its committees can ascertain how far the circumstances of persons with whom they are dealing are known to other branches of the council's administration.

18. The council will also consider the possible advantages of an arrangement under which all material assistance given in the home is administered by or through the instrumentality of the Public Assistance Committee and its staff, full regard being, of course, paid to the desires of any other committee which from its own angle is satisfied that any particular assistance ought to be so given.

19. It will become the duty of the council as from the appointed day to recover the expenses incurred by them in the maintenance of persons in institutions (except where admission to the institution was for the purpose of treatment for infectious disease, and the question of recovery will remain a matter of discretion), in addition to the duty transferred to them of recovering the cost of assistance granted under the poor law. The council will no doubt desire to secure the greatest possible measure of co-ordination of the arrangements made by them for recovery of this kind whatever the statutory authority under which they are acting, in regard not only to the steps to be taken to ascertain the means and circumstances of the persons from whom recovery is due but also as to the basis to be adopted in assessing the amount to be recovered.

III.—TRANSFERRED INSTITUTIONS.

20. Another matter which must be dealt with before the appointed day is the disposal of poor law institutions at present belonging to a union, only part of which is within the county.

21. The institutions of any union which is wholly within the county are to be automatically transferred to the county (section 113 (1)), but those belonging to any union crossing the county boundary are (section 113 (2) (a)) to be the subject of an agreement between the councils of the counties and county boroughs concerned. The agreement may provide for joint ownership of institutional property, for its division between two or more councils, or for its transfer to one council, and the agreement, whatever its main purpose, may provide for the joint user of an institution or attach conditions to its transfer or user. The agreement may, in regard to the user of an institution, be modified from time to time as circumstances may require. Unless an agreement is reached by the 1st February, 1930, the matter will be determinable by Order of the Minister. It is to be observed that the settlement of an administrative scheme may well turn upon the effect of the agreement to be made, and that the council may be in a difficult position if an agreement is not reached in the near future.

22. It is clear that there will be many instances in which administrative considerations make it necessary, at any rate in the first instance, that arrangements shall be made to secure the joint user of an institution, but it may well be that these arrangements will more generally be made by vesting the ownership of an institution in one council, subject to an agreement to receive, by the reservation of a specified number of beds or otherwise, suitable cases chargeable to other councils. Here again it may be convenient that in the first instance the arrangements made should apply only for a limited period.

23. Where a transferred institution can be spared from the poor law use for which it was provided it may be appropriated for other purposes, e.g., those of a hospital under the Local Government Act, 1888 (as extended), or a home for mental defectives under the Mental Deficiency Acts. The approval of the Minister will be required to any such appropriation (see section 53), and such other consents as are ordinarily necessary for the provision of an institution, e.g., in the case last cited, that of the Board of Control.

IV.—JOINT COMMITTEES AND VAGRANCY.

24. Apart from joint arrangements which may be necessitated by the adoption of the county and county borough boundaries for poor law purposes, the council is empowered (section 3 (1)) to apply for an order of the Minister combining the area of the council with other areas for any purpose connected with the exercise of the transferred functions. The Minister may make an order for this purpose, and may act in this manner without any application being made to him if the course appears to him one which would tend to diminish expense or otherwise would be of public or local advantage, but is required to hold a local inquiry before making an order unless all the councils whose areas are to be combined give their consent (section 3 (2)). Such a combination may be set up before the appointed day and commence its active life on that day. (Section 3 (5).)

25. It appears probable that there may be many services at present entrusted to the poor law authorities for which combinations covering wide areas may form the best administrative authorities. In certain instances, as, for example, the care of mental defectives, combinations of boards of guardians for areas extending beyond one county or county borough are already in existence, and the maintenance of a joint authority may in these cases prove more satisfactory than the above-mentioned alternative of single ownership and joint user of an institution.

26. A special case for combined action will arise as regards the relief of vagrancy. It has long been recognised (see, e.g., the Report of the Departmental Committee on Vagrancy of 1905, Cd. 2852) that this is a service which requires for its efficient administration a specialised authority with an extended geographical sphere of operation. Efficiency is impossible, or at best is rarely attained, so long as this service is a mere branch of a larger service, and so long as the administrators consider only the circumstances of one casual ward. To meet this difficulty many combinations of boards of guardians either of a semi-formal kind, or deriving their authority and position from an order of the Minister, have already been established. The organisation of the whole country on these lines requires further consideration, but the Minister considers it of the first importance that the combinations of areas for this purpose which have been secured should continue, and that further combinations should be formed with all reasonable rapidity. He proposes accordingly to invite the views of the local authorities concerned in regard to the maintenance of the existing combinations and the formation of others. He hopes at any rate to be in a position to make the necessary orders continuing, with or without alterations, such of the existing combinations as extend beyond the boundaries of one county in time for their operation on the appointed day.

V.—FINANCE.

27. The council will probably desire to lay down with some precision the line upon which the financial arrangements necessary for the performance of their new duties are to be made, and will no doubt request their finance committee to submit at an early date proposals to this end. It will obviously be essential that these arrangements shall be in working order on the appointed day.

VI.—TRANSFERRED OFFICERS.

28. Provision in regard to the transfer to the county and county borough councils of the existing poor law staffs is contained in section 119 of the Act. Where a union is wholly comprised within a county the whole staff will be transferred to the council and in other cases officers employed in an institution or district will follow the institution or district, and other officers will be transferred as the councils operating in the union area may agree not later than two months before the appointed day or as the Minister may determine.

29. Poor law officers are at present generally subject to the provisions of the Poor Law Officers' Superannuation Act, 1896, and they will, where the council has no scheme of superannuation or where they elect not to enter the council's existing scheme upon terms that would safeguard their present position, remain subject to that Act until provision is made by Parliament for a general superannuation arrangement covering the staffs of all counties and county boroughs (section 124).

30. The Act preserves (section 121) the existing tenure and conditions of office of the transferred officers, and authorises the council to redistribute their duties. It further contains (section 123 and Schedule 8) provisions for the compensation of transferred officers who lose or in certain circumstances (section 123 (3) (a)) relinquish office in consequence of the Act.

VII.—GENERAL INSPECTORS.

31. For the purposes of the administration of the Poor Law Act, 1927, and of other functions the Minister is represented locally by officers known as general inspectors. These officers have by virtue of their duties an intimate knowledge of the purposes served by and the capabilities of the poor law institutions within their districts, besides being closely acquainted with the poor law personnel and the Poor Law Acts and Regulations and the administration thereof. A list of the names and addresses of the inspectors together with a list of counties, and of the inspector's districts in which they are comprised, is appended for the assistance of the councils who will naturally desire to consult these officers in the preparation of administrative schemes and in the allocation of the institutions transferred to them. It is intended that the general inspectors shall, after the appointed day, continue to act substantially in their present capacity of intermediaries between the local authorities and the Ministry.

This Memorandum and the model scheme of which a copy accompanies it will be placed on sale and copies may be obtained at the addresses below.

MINISTRY OF HEALTH. MEMORANDUM L.G.A. 5.

County and County Borough Councils.

1. LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT, 1929.
2. MATERNITY AND CHILD WELFARE (a).
3. VOLUNTARY ASSOCIATIONS.

1. Section 101 of the Local Government Act, 1929, requires the council of every county and of every county borough, six months at least before the beginning of each fixed grant period, to prepare and submit to the Minister for his approval a scheme for securing the payment by the council of annual contributions towards the expenses of voluntary associations, if any, providing maternity and child welfare services in or for the benefit of the county or county borough. Sub-section (2) provides that the associations to be included in these schemes are (a) those whose services are approved by the Minister immediately before the appointed day; and (b) those whose services are not so approved but are utilised by the council.

2. Copies of model schemes which the Minister has caused to be prepared for use by county councils and county borough councils, respectively, are enclosed with this Memorandum. The Minister will be prepared to approve schemes on the lines of these models, and he suggests that the councils should generally adopt this form of scheme (b).

3. A list is being sent (in duplicate) to each council containing the names of the voluntary associations in the area of the council whose services were approved by the Minister up to the 31st March, 1929, and also the amount of the grant paid by the Minister to each association in respect of the standard year. The list contains a column for the amounts, if any, of the contributions paid by the council to these associations in respect of that year, and this column should be completed and one copy of the list returned to the Minister as soon as possible.

4. It will be observed that the first schemes prepared under section 101 must be submitted to the Minister by the 30th September next, and it is desirable that the council should take steps to prepare their scheme at the earliest possible date. The Minister will be glad on request to furnish the council with any information in his possession as to the activities or finances of particular associations, but before preparing their scheme the council should communicate with representatives of each of the voluntary associations included in the list with a view to obtaining particulars of the services now being rendered, and proposed to be rendered during each of the three years comprised in the first fixed grant period, together with information as to the present and probable future cost.

5. Regard should of course be had to this information in considering the amounts of the annual contributions to be specified in the scheme, and the Minister is of opinion that, save in exceptional circumstances, the amount specified for each association should be not less than the total of the sums received by the association in respect of the standard year from the Minister and the council, respectively. As the council are aware, the grant paid in respect of the standard year to each association included in the list will form part of the "loss on account of grants" of the county or county borough for the purposes of the Act.

(a) See the general note to Part VII of the Public Health Act, 1936, ante, p. 470.
(b) The model scheme (Memorandum L.G.A. 6) is omitted from this edition.

6. In certain cases councils, with the approval of the Minister, utilise the services of voluntary associations which are not in receipt of grants from the Minister, and make payments to the associations for the actual services rendered. These associations are not included in the lists furnished to the councils, and it will be for each council to consider whether such associations should be included in the scheme.

7. In some areas it may happen that additional associations, or further services provided by some of the associations already approved, will be approved by the Minister before the appointed day. The Minister will furnish to the appropriate council particulars of any additions to the list which are approved before a scheme is submitted, but in other cases provision will have to be made for these additional associations or services by modification of the scheme under section 101 (3).

8. In the case of county councils, attention is drawn to the provisions of section 101 (4). In the lists sent to the councils of those counties in which there are voluntary associations providing services in or for the benefit of a district whose council have established a maternity and child welfare committee, the Minister has indicated those associations whose services appear to him to be such that contributions should be paid thereto by the district council. This is, however, a matter for the determination of the county council in the first instance, and it will be observed that, if any such determination is made, a copy of the scheme must be sent to the district councils concerned when the scheme is submitted to the Minister.

Memorandum L.G.A. 9.

County Councils.
Town Councils.
Urban District Councils.
Rural District Councils.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT.

ROADS (a).

(PARTS III. AND VII.)

I.—CHANGES IN HIGHWAY ADMINISTRATION.

The effect of the first portion of Part III. of the Act, which deals with highways, may be broadly stated to be that, as from the appointed day (1st April, 1930), all roads in rural districts and all classified roads in urban districts will become a county responsibility. The term "road" means a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large and includes bridges so repairable.

Roads which were main roads before the appointed day, and all roads which under the Act become a county responsibility, will be known as "county roads," and the county councils will be the highway authorities as regards these roads. All county roads (other than roads "claimed" by an urban authority) will vest in the county council. The position in county boroughs and metropolitan boroughs will remain unchanged.

This general statement is subject to the modifications explained below under the headings "Rights of Urban Authorities to claim County Roads" and "Delegation."

(a) See also the Restriction of Ribbon Development Act, 1935, ante, p. 2001, and the Trunk Roads Act, 1936 (29 Halsbury's Statutes 183), with relevant memoranda etc. under the heading TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Throughout this memorandum "urban district" includes non-county borough and "urban district council" includes the council of a non-county borough.

II.—POWERS OF LOCAL AUTHORITIES IN RELATION TO ROADS.

1. County Councils.

(1) The Act provides (section 29 (1) and (2)) that all enactments relating to main roads shall apply to county roads, and that county councils shall, in relation to county roads (other than roads which are claimed by an urban authority), have the like functions as with respect to main roads.

The county council will become responsible for the maintenance, repair, improvement, etc., of all bridges in the county repairable by the inhabitants at large which carry county roads. These will include some "borough" bridges (see section 29 (4)) which are now maintained by the corporation even though the road is a main road (section 119, Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, and section 35 (1), Local Government Act, 1888). The right to claim to maintain county roads will, however, extend to such "borough" bridges.

In some instances town and district councils may be liable under section 308 of the Public Health Act, 1875, to compensate public utility undertakers who sustain damage by an alteration made to a road. Liability to pay compensation under the section can arise only when the alteration is made in the exercise of powers under the Act of 1875 and not in the exercise of powers under some other Act, for instance, the Highway Acts. Section 39 of the Act provides that, in the case of any road which by virtue of the Act becomes vested in a county council, the council shall be subject to the same liability as that to which the town or district council were subject before the road became vested in the county council, where a public utility undertaker sustains damage by reason of the exercise of a function by the county council which, prior to the transfer of the road, could have been exercised by the town or district council only under the Act of 1875.

(2) In rural districts, county councils will have (in addition to their general powers in relation to county roads) such powers under the Highway Acts, 1835 to 1885, as could be exercised by rural district councils who were successors of highway boards (section 30 (1)). These functions relate both to highways repairable by the inhabitants at large and to highways not so repairable (e.g. the enforcement of a liability ratione tenuræ); and whereas the powers of rural district councils now differ, those that succeeded highway boards having larger powers than those that succeeded highway surveyors, all county councils will under the Act have the larger powers.

(3) County councils will also have in all rural districts functions under the enactments set out in Parts I. and II. of the First Schedule to the Act. In order to assist local authorities readily to see the effect of the First Schedule, a graphic statement has been appended to this memorandum showing how functions are distributed by the schedule.

These functions include those under the Private Streets Works Act, 1892. Where the powers of the Act of 1892 are not delegated to the rural district council and are exercised by the county council themselves, the county surveyor when preparing his specification of private street works is required to consult the rural district council, if and so far as the works include sewers. The rural district council will continue to be the authority responsible for sewerage and sewage disposal, whether the highway functions are delegated to them or not, and it is therefore important that they should be consulted as to any proposed new sewers or alteration of existing sewers.

Another of the powers transferred to county councils in rural areas is the power to require (under section 31 of the Public Health Act, 1925) streets of greater width than the width for which the byelaws provide. The power can be exercised when a plan of a new street is submitted for approval. The plan will continue to be submitted, under the byelaws, to the rural district council. If the county council were not informed of the plan they would have no opportunity of exercising their powers. The Act provides, therefore, that the district council must notify the county council within seven days; and the county council can then state their requirements within the limits of the Act of 1925.

Despatch is essential in this matter, because section 158 of the Public Health Act, 1875, requires a local authority to approve or disapprove a plan submitted to them under their byelaws within one month. It is provided, therefore, that the county council may authorise the county surveyor to exercise on their behalf their powers under section 31 of the Act of 1925 (First Schedule, Part I.).

As the rural district council must in any event communicate their own decision to the person who deposited the plan within a month, they should inform him whether any requirement (and, if so, what requirement) has been notified to them by the county council or county surveyor.

(4) In urban districts, county councils will have the functions of an urban district council or a local authority under the enactments mentioned in Parts III., IV. and V. of the First Schedule as amended by any subsequent enactment (section 31 (5)). These functions will in urban districts relate only to county roads and, further, will not extend to " claimed " roads.

(5) County councils will be empowered to delegate highway functions in urban and rural districts to the district councils (see note on " Delegation " below).

2. Rural District Councils.

(1) Rural district councils will cease to be highway authorities and all the roads in their areas will become county roads as from the appointed day (1st April, 1930). They will retain their functions under the Local Government Act, 1894, as respects rights of way and encroachment on roadside wastes (section 30 (1)), and in these matters will, to a large extent, have concurrent powers with the county councils.

(2) Rural district councils will cease to exercise any functions relating to private street works under section 150 of the Public Health Act, 1875, with which they have been invested. They will also cease to exercise functions under the enactments (including the Private Street Works Act, 1892) mentioned in Part I. of the First Schedule unless the highway functions of the county council are delegated to them. Rural district councils who can now exercise functions under any of the enactments mentioned in Part II. of that schedule will be entitled to do so only with the consent of the county council (section 30 (3)).

(3) Rural district councils who are empowered to make byelaws under section 157 of the Public Health Act, 1875, with respect to the level, width, and construction of new streets will retain this power; but before making such byelaws the district council are required to consult with the county council. The county council may call upon the rural district council to exercise the power of making such byelaws, and, if thereafter the district council fail to do so within six months, the county council may themselves exercise the power (section 30 (4)).

(4) Rural district councils may apply to county councils for the delegation to them of the county council's functions in relation to roads in their district (see under heading " Delegation ").

3. Urban District Councils.

(1) As from the appointed day all classified roads in urban districts will become county roads.

(2) If a road in an urban district is classified after the appointed day it will become a county road.

(3) Urban district councils will retain their present responsibilities for unclassified roads (other than existing main roads) in their areas. They may, however, if they so desire, enter into agreements with the county council for the maintenance, repair and improvement of these roads by the latter in consideration of such payments as may be agreed between the two councils (sections 31 (1) and 34).

(4) Urban district councils the population of whose district, as estimated for the year 1928, exceeds 20,000 persons may claim to maintain county roads in their areas (see under heading " Rights of Urban Authorities to claim County Roads ").

(5) Urban district councils will also exercise certain functions with respect to the county roads in their areas. In respect to such roads (other than claimed roads) the Act (section 31 (5)) provides that the urban authority:—

(a) shall cease to exercise functions under the enactments mentioned in Part III. of the First Schedule;

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

(b) shall exercise functions under Part IV. of the First Schedule concurrently with the county council; and

(c) may exercise functions under the enactments mentioned in Part V. of the schedule only with the consent of the county council.

(6) Urban authorities may apply to the county council for the delegation to them of the county council's functions in relation to county roads in their area (see note on "Delegation" below).

(7) Urban authorities are empowered to appeal to the Minister of Transport if a county council refuse an application for an order declaring a road to be a county road.

Application for such an order may be made on the grounds (in addition to the grounds set out in section 15 of the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878) that the road is situate in a part of an urban district which is rural in character (section 37).

III.—RIGHTS OF URBAN AUTHORITIES TO CLAIM COUNTY ROADS.

(1) Any urban authority the population of whose area, as estimated for the year 1928, exceeded 20,000 persons may claim to exercise the functions of maintenance and repair of any county road within their district, subject to exceptions which are mentioned in the proviso to section 32 (3) of the Act. Such "claimed" roads will vest in the urban district council, and for the purpose of the maintenance, repair and improvement and other dealing with any such road, the district council will have the same functions as if they were the highway authority with respect to that road and the road were an ordinary road vested in them (section 32 (1)).

(2) Any urban authority which has claimed to exercise the functions mentioned may at any time relinquish those functions to the county council with the consent of the latter. An appeal may be made to the Minister of Transport if the county council refuse their consent (section 32 (4)).

(3) The provisions of the existing law with regard to the making of annual payments by county councils towards the maintenance and repair and any reasonable improvement connected with maintenance and repair of a claimed county road are continued; but the Act provides for the making of payments by quarterly instalments (section 33 (1)).

(4) The Act further provides for the payment by a county council of contributions towards the expenses of any improvement of a claimed county road, not being expenses in connection with the maintenance and repair of the road. But the county council may refuse to contribute towards an expense on the ground, for instance, that the improvement is in the nature of a town improvement; and, in the event of disagreement, the decision rests with the Minister of Transport (section 33 (1) (b)). The term "improvement" includes the fixing of a building line or improvement line (section 134; see under "Road").

(5) Provisions with regard to the submission to county councils by urban authorities of estimates and supplementary estimates are contained in section 33 (2) and (3). Any difference arising under these provisions is determinable by the Minister of Transport (section 33 (4)).

IV.—DELEGATION.

(1) The Act provides (section 35 (1)) that the council of any county district may apply to the county council for the delegation to them of the county council's functions with regard to the maintenance, repair and improvement of—

(a) the whole of the unclassified roads (exclusive of county bridges) within the district;

(b) all or any of the classified roads (exclusive of county bridges) within the district;

(c) all or any of the county bridges within the district.

It may be explained that a bridge is not a "county bridge" simply because it carries a county road. A "county bridge" is a bridge for which the county council are responsible apart from their responsibility for county roads, for instance, a bridge for which the county council became responsible as successors to quarter sessions under the Local Government Act, 1888 (section 134; see under "County Bridge").

(2) As regards classified roads and county bridges, the county council have complete discretion as to whether they will or will not grant delegation (section 35 (3)).

(3) As regards unclassified roads, the county council are required to grant the application for delegation unless they are satisfied that, having regard to the best means of promoting economy and efficiency in highway administration throughout the county and to the particular circumstances of the district in respect of which the application is made, the application ought not to be granted (section 35 (2)).

If the county council refuse delegation in regard to unclassified roads, the district authority has a right of appeal to the Minister of Transport (section 35 (5)).

(4) Delegated functions may be relinquished by a district council by giving notice to the county council (section 35 (6) and (8)).

(5) The county council may determine the delegation of functions to any particular district authority, subject in the case of delegation in respect of unclassified roads to a right of appeal by the district authority to the Minister of Transport (section 35 (7) and (8)).

(6) The procedure with regard to the application for delegation is set out in sub-sections (1), (4), (5) and (8) of section 35.

(7) In discharging delegated functions the district council will act as agents of the county council. The conditions affecting such delegation are set out in section 36 (1) of the Act.

(8) Where functions are delegated to a county district council as regards any roads, the council will also as a matter of course discharge—

(a) in the case of rural districts, all the functions under the enactments set out in Part I. of the First Schedule relating to the delegated roads and to highways not repairable by the inhabitants at large (such as private streets); and

(b) in the case of urban districts, all the functions relating to the delegated roads set out in Part III. of the First Schedule.

The council will discharge the scheduled functions as agents of the county council, and subject to such conditions as the county council think fit with respect to any action to be taken by the district council.

District councils exercising such functions are empowered to make a contribution towards the cost of private street works or for any other purpose in connection with such functions where, in the opinion of the county council, expenditure would not be properly chargeable as general county expenses (section 36 (2)).

V.—TRANSFER OF LIABILITIES.

(1) This subject is dealt with in Part VII. of the Act (sections 117 and 118). County councils will take over from district councils the property and liabilities set out in paragraphs (a), (b), (c) and (d) of section 117 (1) so far as they relate to roads which immediately before the appointed day were, or, as from that day become, vested in the county council.

(2) It is to be noted that if, in the case of an existing main road, any loan charges are outstanding in respect of a loan raised by a district council before the road was mained, the county council will assume responsibility for them. Similarly they will take over the assets mentioned in paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of section 117 (1) in respect to such roads.

(3) The Act provides that, if the county council and the district council so agree, the county council may pay the sums required from time to time to meet loan charges instead of assuming responsibility for the loan.

(4) Any sums due to be paid before 1st April, 1930, by a district council into a sinking fund required to be established for the purpose of a loan transferred to the county council are to be a debt due from the district council to the county council (section 117 (2)).

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

(5) In the case of roads which are claimed prior to the appointed day the county council are to repay to the urban district council such sums as are required to meet any loan charges falling due on or after the appointed day in respect of loans raised before that day for the road or its improvement (section 117 (3)).

(6) Where on an alteration of boundaries or other change a district council has received a payment (under the Local Government (Adjustments) Act, 1913, or otherwise) from another authority in respect of increased burden for highway expenditure which will not now fall on the district, an equitable adjustment of these payments has to be made in accordance with provisions set out in section 117 (4).

(7) Any disputes arising as to the transfer of property or liabilities under the section are to be determined by the Minister of Health (section 117 (6)).

(8) The above provisions do not apply to the transfer of quarries, plant, materials and depots, and special provisions relating to these matters are contained in section 118.

The county council, if the rural district council so desire, are required to take over any quarry, plant or materials belonging to, or any depot used by, the rural district council in their capacity as highway authority, and to pay therefor such sum as may be agreed, or, failing agreement, settled by arbitration.

Similarly, if an urban authority, not being a "claiming" authority, so desire, the county council are required to take over, on terms to be agreed or settled by an arbitrator, any quarry belonging to the urban authority in their capacity as highway authority, together with any fixed plant.

Where highway functions are relinquished by a county district council or the delegation of these functions is terminated by the county council, similar provisions apply as from the date of the relinquishment or termination.

VI.—ACTION WHICH MAY OR MUST BE TAKEN BY LOCAL AUTHORITIES ON OR BEFORE APRIL 1ST, 1930 (a).

Particular attention is directed to the dates by which action has to be taken under the Act. In order to assist the smooth operation of the provisions of the Act it is most desirable that local authorities should take action which the Act requires or permits at as early a date as possible, and should not wait until the approach of the latest day on which such action may be taken.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Notes.

1. The distribution of functions is shown by the thick black lines in the several columns. Thus, taking as an instance the first entry in the table, which relates to section 146 of the Public Health Act, 1875, the lines show that the function indicated in the first column is to be exercised in rural districts only by the county councils and in urban districts as regards county roads similarly by county councils alone. Taking another instance, the entry as regards section 21 of the Act of 1925 (which relates to works for preventing water from flowing on the footpath) shows that the functions are to be exercised in rural districts by the county council only but for county roads in urban districts concurrently by the county council and the urban district council.

The distribution of functions is subject to the power to delegate, which has already been explained in the text. The table shows the distribution when there is not delegation.

In urban districts the functions relating to unclassified roads, other than main roads, will continue to be discharged by the district councils.

2. The first column gives a general indication of the function; the appropriate section should be consulted for the provisions of the law.

3. In the second column, giving the legal references,

4. When powers can now be exercised by an urban district council or a rural district council only after an order has been issued by the Minister of Health or his consent obtained, such an order or consent will still be necessary before the district council can exercise the powers, with this exception that, when the power is conferred on the county council by the Act and the power is then delegated by the county council to the district council, an order or consent will not be required.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT, 1929.

RATING AND VALUATION (a).

The provisions relating to rating and valuation, which chiefly concern rating authorities and assessment committees, are contained for the most part in Part V. of the Act, where provision is made for the derating of agricultural land and agricultural buildings (other than dwelling-houses) and the partial derating of industrial and freight-transport hereditaments. That Part also contains provisions amending the Rating and Valuation (Apportionment) Act, 1928, as regards the classification of industrial premises in which no person is employed, within the meaning of the Factory and Workshop Acts; provisions amending section 11 of the Rating and Valuation Act, 1925, as to the rating of owners; provisions as to deductions from inclusive rents of industrial hereditaments in respect of rate relief; provisions as to the valuation of agricultural dwelling-houses (consequential on the repeal of the Agricultural Rates Act, 1896), and other consequential provisions.

It is to be noted that the "appointed day" for the purposes of Part V. is the 1st October, 1929.

Reference is also made in this Memorandum to certain temporary provisions included in the Ninth Schedule, relating to the amendment of valuation lists, and to section 133, which deals with the effect of amendments of the valuation lists in force on 1st October, 1929, on the ascertainment of the "reduced rateable values" and the "unreduced rateable values," to be used in the calculation of the new Exchequer grants.

(a) This memorandum is inserted here, as it was in the tenth edition, by reason of its connection with other memoranda upon the Local Government Act, 1929. Reference should also be made to the heading RATING AND VALUATION, post. The memorandum as printed is partly spent, but is inserted for convenience of reference. For the Rating and Valuation Acts, see Vol. II, ante, p. 2113.

Attention is also drawn to section 112, which contains transitory provisions as to rates and precepts and compensation for loss of rates in respect of the six months, 1st October, 1929—31st March, 1930.

In this Memorandum the Rating and Valuation Act, 1925, and the Rating and Valuation (Apportionment) Act, 1928, are, for the sake of brevity, subsequently referred to as "the Act of 1925" and "the Apportionment Act" respectively.

DERATING OF AGRICULTURAL HEREDITAMENTS.

In section 67 provision is made for the derating of agricultural land and agricultural buildings as defined by the Apportionment Act. The section provides that no person shall be liable to pay rates thereon in respect of any period beginning on or after the 1st October, 1929, or be deemed to be in occupation thereof for rating purposes. Agricultural land and buildings are to be excluded from any such rate.

As from the 1st October, 1929, the special lists now in course of preparation under the Apportionment Act will be incorporated in the valuation lists in force, and the entries relating to agricultural land and agricultural buildings which appear in the special lists will in effect be substituted for the entries at present appearing in the lists made under the Act of 1925 (Paragraph 8 of the First Schedule to the Apportionment Act). They will remain in the special lists during the period for which the valuation lists in force on the 1st October, 1929, continue to operate, but the rateable value of any such hereditament should be entered in the appropriate column of the special lists as "nil."

No entries relating to agricultural land or agricultural buildings are to be made in any new valuation list prepared after 1st October, 1929 (section 67 (2)).

PARTIAL DERATING OF INDUSTRIAL AND FREIGHT-TRANSPORT HEREDITAMENTS.

Section 68 provides for the partial derating of "industrial" and "freight-transport" hereditaments as defined in the Apportionment Act. The section will apply to all hereditaments required to be entered in Parts II. and III. of the special lists now being prepared under that Act and thereafter to all industrial and freight-transport hereditaments distinguished as such in future valuation lists. As from the 1st October, 1929, when the entries as to such hereditaments in the special lists will in effect be substituted for those appearing in the current valuation lists, rate relief will be accorded to industrial and freight-transport hereditaments by the reduction of the rateable value.

The Rating and Valuation (Apportionment) Act (Special List) Rules, 1928 [S. R. & O., 1928, No. 627, post, p. 3711], provided that no entries should be made in any of the columns of the special list in which rateable value is to be shown—i.e., in columns 9b, 10b and 11 of Part II., and in columns 10c, 11b, 12b and 13 of Part III. This provision was necessary because Parliament, at the time when the Rules were issued, had not decided what the rateable value was to be. The Minister has now made amending Rules superseding this provision, and it will accordingly be necessary to complete the lists by inserting in the appropriate columns the rateable value ascertained in accordance with section 68. A copy of the amending Rules [S. R. & O., 1929–244, post, p. 3727], accompanies this Memorandum.

ASCERTAINMENT OF RATEABLE VALUE OF INDUSTRIAL HEREDITAMENTS.

In the case of a hereditament occupied and used wholly for industrial purposes the rateable value to be entered in columns 9b and 11 of Part II. of the special list will be one-quarter of the net annual value as shown in column 9a.

In the case of a hereditament occupied and used partly for industrial purposes and partly for non-industrial purposes the rateable value to be entered in column 9b will be one-quarter of the net annual value shown in column 9a, the rateable value to be entered in column 10b will be the same as the net annual value shown in column 10a, and the total rateable value to be entered in column 11 will be the sum of the amounts shown in columns 9b and 10b.

The foregoing instructions will require modification in the case of any industrial hereditament of which the rateable value ascertained under the Act of 1925 was not identical with the net annual value. These will be hereditaments which

(a) being in an urban area, were entitled under the Act of 1925 to a deduction from net annual value for the purpose of determining rateable value by virtue of any scheme made under Part III. of the Second Schedule to that Act, or by virtue of any earlier local Act (i.e., any industrial hereditament assessed as land covered with water and therefore marked " W " in column 8 of Part II. of the special list); or

(b) were entitled to such a deduction under any scheme for the preservation of privileges of rating made under section 64 of the Act of 1925.

In either of these cases the appropriate deductions from net annual value provided for in the scheme or local Act should first be made. The rateable value will, under the provisions of section 68 (1) Proviso, be calculated in the manner above described from the net annual value as so reduced.

ASCERTAINMENT OF RATEABLE VALUE OF FREIGHT-TRANSPORT HEREDITAMENTS.

In the case of freight-transport hereditaments the rateable value to be entered in column 10c of Part III. of the special list will be one-quarter of the amount shown in column 10b, and the rateable value to be entered in column 11b will be one-quarter of the amount shown in column 11a. The rateable value in column 12b will be the same as the net annual value shown in column 12a. The totals of the rateable values in columns 10c, 11b and 12b will be entered in column 13.

INCIDENCE OF RATES IN 1929–30 ON INDUSTRIAL AND FREIGHT-TRANSPORT HEREDITAMENTS.

As already indicated, the special lists in which the reduced rateable values provided for in the Act are to be shown will come into force on the 1st October, 1929.

In the case of any rate made in respect of a period commencing on or after that date the ratepayer's liability will be determined by the new rateable values shown in those lists.

In cases where a yearly or other rate is made in respect of a period commencing before and continuing after 1st October, 1929, the occupier's liability, as shown by the original entries in the rate book, will require to be adjusted as follows:—

(a) In the case of a yearly rate—i.e., one made in respect of the whole of the period 1st April, 1929, to 31st March, 1930—the occupier's liability is to be calculated as if two rates had been made—one for the first half of the financial year (1st April to 30th September, 1929) and the other for the second half (1st October, 1929, to 31st March, 1930). The poundage of the rate is, in such a case, to be divided equally between these two notional rates.

(b) If the period of any rate runs into both half-years, but is less than a full year, the poundage will, for the purpose of determining the occupier's liability, be apportioned according to the number of days in each part of the period. (Section 68 (2).)

(The proviso to sub-section (2) of section 68 is applicable only in one or two special cases and will not concern rating authorities generally.)

The Act empowers any person who has paid a sum in excess of the amount properly chargeable under section 68 (2) to recover from the rating authority the amount overpaid (section 68 (3)).

AMENDMENT OF SECTION 3 OF THE APPORTIONMENT ACT.

Section 69 of the Act removes a doubt which has arisen as to the application of the definition of " industrial hereditament " in section 3 (2) of the Apportionment

Act to premises in which no person is employed, within the meaning of the Factory and Workshop Acts (a).

The effect of the section is to secure that the mere fact that the owner or occupier of a hereditament is the only person working therein, or that no other person working therein is in his employment, shall not in itself preclude the hereditament from being deemed for purposes of the Apportionment Act to be used as a factory or workshop, and therefore, if the other conditions are satisfied, being treated as an "industrial hereditament."

AMENDMENT OF VALUATION LISTS.

The Act contains detailed provisions as to the method of making any amendment of a valuation list necessitated by reason of a hereditament having become or ceased to be an agricultural, industrial or freight-transport hereditament, and for this purpose it adapts, with certain modifications, the existing machinery. The relevant provisions, so far as they are of a permanent character, are contained in section 70, while certain temporary provisions are included in Part II. of the Ninth Schedule.

N.B.—For the sake of brevity, the fact that a hereditament has become or ceased to be an agricultural, industrial or freight-transport hereditament is referred to in this Memorandum as a change in the status of a hereditament, and that phrase is intended to cover not only cases where the circumstances determining the classification of a hereditament actually change after 1st October, 1929, but also cases where the classification adopted for the purposes of the special list is (or is alleged to be) incorrect on the circumstances existing immediately before 1st October, 1929.

(i) PERMANENT PROVISIONS.

The general effect of the permanent provisions is to make a change in the status of a hereditament a ground for making a proposal for amendment of the valuation list under section 37 of the Act of 1925.

In this connection attention may be drawn to the following points:—

(a) The permanent provisions operate only in cases where proceedings for the amendment of a list are initiated after 1st October, 1929, as from which date the entries in the special lists are to be read in substitution for the corresponding entries appearing in the main valuation list.

(b) Only owners or occupiers can move to amend a list on the ground that a hereditament ought to be, but is not, treated therein as an agricultural, industrial or freight-transport hereditament (section 70 (2)).

(c) If it is desired that a hereditament should be treated as an agricultural, industrial or freight-transport hereditament the proposal for amendment must contain such particulars as the Minister may prescribe (section 70 (2)). These particulars will be prescribed in due course.

(d) Amendments effected by the applied machinery above referred to will have effect as regards the ratepayer's liability as from the same date as any other amendment made by a proposal for amendment. The change in the status of a hereditament will be treated as "an event giving rise to an alteration of value" within the meaning of the proviso to section 37 (10) of the Act of 1925 (section 70 (3)).

Note.—The dates as from which amendments made as a result of proposals instituted during the twelve months, 1st October, 1929, to 1st October, 1930, will have effect for purposes of the calculation of the new Exchequer grants are governed by the provisions of section 133 and are dealt with below.

It is to be noted also that, in the case of future valuation lists, a claim by the owner or occupier will be a condition precedent to the treatment of any hereditament as an agricultural, industrial or freight-transport hereditament unless the hereditament was so treated in the last preceding list (section 70 (4)).

(ii) TEMPORARY PROVISIONS (b).

(a) See notes ante, p. 2276, especially the relevant sections of repealed Factory and Workshop Acts, which are kept alive for purposes of rating and are printed, ante, p. 2284.

(b) Omitted as spent.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

MISCELLANEOUS RATING AND CONSEQUENTIAL PROVISIONS.

Part V. of the Act includes a number of provisions connected with rating and valuation or rendered necessary by derating and the consequential alterations of the valuation list.

(i) Rating of Owners of Small Hereditaments.

Amendment of Section 11 of the Rating and Valuation Act, 1925.

By section 11 (1) of the Rating and Valuation Act, 1925, rating authorities were empowered, by resolution, to direct that, in the case of hereditaments falling within a class to be defined by them, the owners shall be rated instead of the occupiers. It was, however, provided that the class should not be so defined as to include any hereditament with a rateable value exceeding £13 (except where a higher value was in force for the purposes of section 3 of the Poor Rate Assessment and Collection Act, 1869) or any hereditament the rent of which becomes payable or is collected at quarterly or longer intervals.

Section 71 gives rating authorities a wider discretion in the matter. They may now define the class to which the rating of owners is to apply either by reference solely to the limit of rateable value specified in section 11 (1) of the Act of 1925, or, if they so desire, by reference to that limit of value and also to the interval at which rent becomes payable and is collected.

(ii) Valuation of Farmhouses and Farm Cottages.

Section 72 preserves the basis of assessment, which, since 1896, when agricultural holdings ceased to be assessable as single units, has applied to the buildings forming part of such a holding (as distinct from the land) in pursuance of the provisions of section 5 (c) of the Agricultural Rates Act of that year. It will be observed that the section applies to farm houses and also to farm cottages (whether held on a tenancy or on a service occupation, strictly so-called) where residence depends on employment on the particular agricultural land in connection with which the cottage is occupied.

It does not apply to cottages not coming within that category, although they may be occupied by agricultural workers.

The date of operation of this section is the 1st April, 1930, as from which date the Agricultural Rates Act, 1896, will be repealed.

(iii) Industrial Hereditaments Let at Inclusive Rentals.

Section 73 is designed to secure to the tenants of industrial hereditaments which are let at inclusive rentals (the landlord paying the rates) the benefit of the rate relief conferred by the Act.

Under sub-section (2) of the section it will be the duty of the rating authority, on the application of the landlord or tenant, to certify the amount to be paid or allowed by the landlord in any case where—as happens, for instance, under what are known as "Room and Power Agreements"—part of any premises for the time being assessed as a single industrial hereditament is let (or sublet) by the person rated in respect of the whole.

The section operates only during the currency of existing tenancies.

(iv) Water Rates.

Adaptations are required in Acts and Orders regulating the charges for the supply of water in consequence of the provisions of the Act under which the rateable value of industrial and freight transport hereditaments will be reduced and particulars of agricultural land and buildings will be omitted from future valuation lists.

By section 77 of the Act, where the water rate is required to be levied on the rateable value of the premises as shown in the valuation list, the net annual value of the premises as so shown is to be substituted as the basis upon which the water rate is to be levied.

Where the water rate is required in an Act or Order to be levied on a value which will not in future appear in the valuation list, the value for the purposes of the water rate is to be determined, in case of dispute, by two justices of the peace.

(v) Drainage Rates.

As certain hereditaments liable to drainage rates (i.e., "rates assessed under any commission of sewers or in respect of any drainage, wall, embankment or other work for the benefit of the land") will not appear in future valuation lists, and others will appear with a materially reduced rateable value, it is necessary to provide some other basis in cases where the authority levying such rate is now required to assess them on values as appearing in the valuation lists for the time being in force.

Section 78 is designed to secure that, in such cases, the basis shall be—for all properties liable to be assessed to such rate—the gross value for Income Tax, Schedule A. If the property is not assessed to Schedule A the value is to be determined, in the event of dispute, by a court of summary jurisdiction. Provision is made for any necessary apportionment of the Schedule A value.

(vi) Qualification of Jurors and Special Jurors.

For the same reasons it is provided that, as from the 1st October, 1929, net annual value for rating purposes will be substituted for rateable value for the purposes of determining the qualification of a juror or special juror; and if no net annual value is shown in the valuation list the qualification will be determined on the net annual value for purposes of Income Tax, Schedule A. Provision is made for any necessary apportionment of the net annual value by the Registration Officer, subject to revision, on appeal, by a court of summary jurisdiction (section 79).

(vii) Qualification of Voters.

Where the qualification of voters is defined in the Representation of the People Act, 1918, in relation to the yearly value of land, that value is to be taken to be the gross value for rating purposes; or, if there is no gross value in the valuation list, the gross value for purposes of Income Tax; or, in any other case, the amount which the Registration Officer estimates would have been the gross value for rating purposes under the law in force in 1918. (Section 80.)

(viii) Access to Schedule A Valuations.

The authorities and persons concerned with voters' lists, jurors' lists and the levying of drainage rates are empowered to obtain from the Surveyors of Taxes copies of the Schedule A values at the maximum rate of 5*s.* per hundred entries. (Section 81.)

The provisions contained in Part V. relating to (a) borrowing power limits, (b) limits on expenditure, (c) parochial balances, (d) Welsh education, and (e) general adaptation of enactments, etc., are referred to in other memoranda.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT, 1929.

REVIEW OF DISTRICTS AND GENERAL LOCAL GOVERNMENT (a).

The present memorandum deals with matters of general local government contained in the Local Government Act, 1929, which it is desired to bring specially to the notice of local authorities.

(a) See the introductory note to LOCAL GOVERNMENT, ante, p. 3214. The unrepealed sections of the L.G.A., 1929, will be found in Vol. V, post.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

I.—REARRANGEMENT OF COUNTY DISTRICTS.

First Review (Section 46).

1. These provisions are based on the recommendations in the second Report of the Royal Commission on Local Government, and require each county council to make a review of the districts in their county and to submit to the Minister proposals for their rearrangement where desirable. (In section 134 of the Act "district" is defined as meaning a county district—that is to say, a non-county borough or other urban district or a rural district). The review is to be made as soon as may be after the commencement of the Act (section 46 (1)), meaning as soon as may be after the passing of the Act. Thus, not only section 46 of the Act, but sections 48 and 49, which also deal with alterations of boundaries, are already in operation.

If in any case a survey has already been made within the three years preceding, the Minister may decide that a further review is unnecessary (sub-section (6)). Otherwise the county council must submit their proposals to him before the 1st April, 1932, though the Minister may extend that date. If they fail to do so, the Minister may himself make proposals (sub-section (5)).

The points to be borne in mind are:—

(1) Before making their proposals the county council must confer with the representatives of the councils of the several districts wholly or partly within the county and with the councils of county boroughs adjoining the county. Every endeavour should be made to reach agreement;

(2) After the completion of the review as respects the whole or any part of the county, the county council must send the Minister a report of the review, together with proposals as to the changes (if any) which they consider desirable;

(3) As soon as the proposals are made to the Minister, the county council are required by sub-section (3) to—

(a) send copies of them to the councils of the several districts affected thereby;

(b) advertise them in one or more of the newspapers circulating in the districts affected by the proposals and include in the advertisements statements that a copy of the proposals is open to inspection at a specified place and that representations with respect to the proposals may be made to the Minister within six weeks after the publication of the notice;

(4) The proposals may include an alteration or definition of the boundaries—

(a) of urban and rural districts;

(b) of non-county boroughs;

(c) of county boroughs (but only in agreement with the county borough council);

(d) of parishes;

(5) New urban districts, rural districts or parishes may be formed or existing districts or parishes may be united, but the procedure does not allow of the constitution under it of a new borough or the abolition of an existing borough (see sub-section (2) and section 65).

2. The Minister may by order confirm the proposals or any of them, with or without modifications, or may reject them, and his decision is final; but if the proposals are objected to by a local authority who are affected by them, and the objection is not withdrawn, the Minister must hold a local inquiry before deciding to issue an order or orders (sub-section (4)).

3. The county council may submit proposals dealing with a part only of the county; but usually it will doubtless be found advisable to deal with the county as a whole. Where proposals are submitted for a part only of a county, care should be taken to make sure that this part is a satisfactory unit; otherwise it may be found, when other parts of the county are considered, that the best arrangements have not been put forward.

4. The Minister is preparing a statement to assist county councils in making the reviews (a). This will specify the particulars with which the Minister will require to be furnished, when proposals are submitted, for the purpose of drafting the order or orders, and will contain suggestions as to the information which county councils will find it advantageous to obtain for the purpose of their reviews. It may, however, be stated generally that, subject to their complying with the statutory requirements as outlined above, county councils may use their discretion as to the method of and procedure for the conduct by them of the reviews.

5. Attention is drawn to the remarks of the Royal Commission on Local Government in their second Report that they "are of opinion that the need for a general review of areas of county districts and parishes has been established. The representatives of the local authorities have not dissented from the view that there are at present authorities who cannot efficiently discharge the functions entrusted to them and that a review of areas should be undertaken in order to see how far ineffective units can be eliminated by reorganisation" (paragraph 39, page 15). The Commission further state (paragraph 61, page 25): "The primary object of the reorganisation of areas recommended by us, and indeed of all alterations of local government areas, being to improve their local administration, we are hopeful that the adoption of our proposals on this subject and of those in our First Report will result in the elimination to a large extent of those councils of county districts who by themselves are not strong enough financially to perform the essential sanitary services, and that most parts of the country will be within the jurisdiction of local authorities who are able to discharge their duties without further financial assistance." While the Commission recognised that probably "some councils of county districts will remain who either are or will become financially incapable of carrying out essential services, particularly the provision of a proper water supply and a system of sewerage and sewage disposal," yet, having regard to the existence of many such districts, it will be necessary that the review and proposals of the county council should be of a thorough nature.

Later Reviews (Section 47 (b)).

6. Similar reviews can be made subsequently when desirable or when required by the Minister; but ten years at least must elapse between any two reviews. The procedure will be similar, subject to this important difference, that if the resulting proposals would alter borough boundaries and are objected to by the town council of the borough, that council may object to the order of the Minister by which effect is given to the proposal, and in that event the Minister's order will become a provisional order and will need confirmation by Parliament.

Divided or Detached Areas (Section 49 (1) (c)).

7. County councils may put forward to the Minister agreed proposals for an order so altering a county boundary as to secure that the whole of a district or parish shall be within one county and that there shall no longer be detached parts of counties. The policy that the whole of each parish and of each rural district should be within the same county was enunciated in section 36 of the Local Government Act, 1894, but the section enabled the county council for special reasons to direct that a rural district should continue in more than one county, and several rural districts are so situate at the present day, or where the portion in each county was constituted a separate rural district, are "temporarily" administered by the council of an adjoining rural district under section 24 (5) of the Act of 1894. The Royal Commission on Local Government stated in their second Report that in their opinion "it is desirable that every parish and every district should be wholly within the area of one administrative county for all purposes" (page 17 (g)); and

(a) This statement (L.G.A. 24), was printed at p. 3518 of the tenth edition of this work. In so far as it relates to the principles and practice to be observed, it will be of service in future county reviews, but it is largely spent, and is therefore not included in the present edition.

county councils should take concerted and agreed measures for dealing with the anomalies that remain.

Under section 49 of the new Act a district not wholly comprised within one county may be brought wholly within one county by an alteration of the county boundary. A similar result may be reached by means of a proposal under section 46 of the Act, as for the transfer of all the parishes of the district which are within the same county to a borough, urban district or rural district in that county, or to more than one of these units of local government. Under this procedure an alteration of the county boundary would not be necessary for the purpose of securing that the district should cease to be in more than one county.

Detached parts of counties, several of which exist, are likely to lead to difficulties in the administration of poor relief, and it is hoped that county councils will formulate representations under section 49 (1) of the Act which will lead to a general abolition of these anomalous areas.

Adjustments of Boundaries between a County and County Borough (Section 49 (2)(a)).

8. A county council and a county borough council may also make a joint representation to the Minister for an order to alter the boundary between their areas. Any district council who may be affected by the alteration should, of course, be fully consulted. A detached part of a county borough could be abolished by an order under this sub-section.

Proposals for Alterations in Individual Cases (Section 48 (b)).

9. The present machinery contained in sections 54 and 57 of the Local Government Act, 1888, for the constitution of new urban or rural districts or for the alteration of the boundaries of individual boroughs, districts and parishes will continue in operation.

Important modifications, however, which came into operation on the passing of the Act, are made in section 57 of the Act of 1888 :—

(1) County councils will have power to make orders under the section of their own accord ; doubts have been felt as to whether they could take action in the absence of a proposal for the alteration ;

(2) It has been considered that neither the county council nor the Minister could travel beyond the scope of the original proposal submitted to the county council. Power is now given to make modifications, if desirable, after due notice and hearing of representations ;

(3) The Minister previously was obliged to confirm an unopposed order of the county council, even though he thought the alteration undesirable. Power is now given to the Minister to modify or reject an order whether it is opposed or not ;

(4) Complaints have been made that there was no appeal against a decision of a county council rejecting an application for an order. The section now provides for an appeal to the Minister in such cases.

The amendments above mentioned will extend to county borough councils in making orders under section 57 of the Act of 1888 (see sub-section (2)).

Scope of Orders of the Minister (Section 66).

Any order of the Minister under section 46 of the Act must obviously contain supplemental provisions for the purpose of carrying it into effect. This point is met by section 66 of the Act which applies section 59 of the Local Government Act, 1888, to all orders made under Part IV. of the recent Act, with the result that the Minister will be able to include in any order made by him all such provisions as are commonly included in an order of a county council under section 57 of the Act of 1888. Provision is also made for financial adjustments consequent upon the order, as section 62 of the Act of 1888 is also applied by section 66 of the new Act. An order under Part IV. of the Act cannot affect the limits of any parliamentary county or parliamentary borough (section 66 (2)). Orders under the Local Government Act, 1888, are subject to a similar restriction (see section 92, Local Government Act, 1888).

II.—REVIEW OF ELECTORAL DIVISIONS (SECTION 50).

County councils must make a review of the electoral divisions, in accordance with the procedure laid down in the section. This must be made as soon as possible after the first general review of county districts and before the 1st January, 1933, but the Secretary of State may in individual cases extend that date, or, where he considers such a review to be unnecessary, he may relieve the county council from the duty of making it. If the county council fail to put proposals before him, the Secretary of State may himself make proposals.

In making their proposals the county council should act on the principles laid down for the constitution of electoral divisions in section 51 of the Local Government Act, 1888.

Relinquishment of Functions (Section 57 (2)).

VII.—BORROWING AND EXPENDITURE (f).

VIII.—PARISH PROPERTY.

(SECTION 115 AND SEVENTH SCHEDULE) (g).

Consquent upon the abolition of boards of guardians, the law relating to the holding and disposal of parish property (usually consisting of old parish workhouses and cottages, parochial offices and vestry rooms) has been recast, to take effect as from the 1st April, 1930.

Parish property may be vested in the borough or urban district council, parish council, or, in rural parishes without a parish council, in a statutory representative body; but a sale or letting of this property devolves in urban parishes ordinarily upon the board of guardians.

Parish property vested in any council or representative body already mentioned will continue so vested; but the Act transfers the powers exercised by the guardians as well as all the guardians' interests in parish property (including sale proceeds and any securities in which sale proceeds have been invested), to the council or representative body.

The principal matters to which attention need be drawn are :—

(1) The Minister's approval and, where the property belongs to a rural parish, the consent of the parish meeting will continue to be required to the sale, exchange, letting, etc., of parish property, except in the case of a letting for a term not exceeding one year ;

(2) It will no longer be necessary for the consent of the owners and ratepayers to be obtained to a sale of the property belonging either to an urban parish or a rural parish ;

(3) Parish councils have in the past been empowered to expend money out of the rates on works relating to parish property, and similar powers could be conferred on a town or urban district council by an order of the Minister under section 33 of the Local Government Act, 1894. Such an order will now no longer be necessary, these councils being given the necessary powers. Similar powers are also given to parish meetings ;

(4) The expenses of the council of a borough or urban district in relation to parish property may, at the discretion of the council, be charged to the general rate levied for the whole borough or district or be levied as an additional item of such rate on the parish or parishes to which the property belongs (sub-section (4)) ;

(5) Section 3 of the Union and Parish Property Act, 1835, gave the Minister control over the application of the rents and profits of a letting, as well as over the proceeds of a sale, of parish property. This section is repealed (Part VII. of the Twelfth Schedule to the Act). Under paragraph 4 of the Seventh Schedule the rents and profits of letting parish property are to be applied for the benefit of the parish. The consent of the Minister is, however, still required by paragraph 2 of the same Schedule to the application of the proceeds of a sale ;

(6) Subject to the provisions of the Sale of Exhausted Parish Lands Act, 1876, which give a right of pre-emption to an owner of adjoining land and deal with minerals, etc., under the land, the above provisions are applied to a sale of any property under the Act, generally quarries which were allotted to surveyors of highways for the purpose of the repair of public and private roads in the parish ;

(7) The before-mentioned provisions do not extend to recreation grounds, village greens or open spaces, nor do they affect the powers of parish councils as to the letting, sale or exchange of property under section 8 (2) of the Local Government Act, 1894, which relates to property acquired by the council out of rates or applicable in aid of rates or held by the council in trust for charitable purposes.

THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT, 1929.

(PART VI. AND THE SECOND, THIRD, FOURTH AND FIFTH SCHEDULES.)

NOTE.—This memorandum is in part spent, but is necessary to an understanding of several series of financial regulations since made, post. For example, the Local Government (Special and Parish Rates) (Third Fixed Grant Period) Regulations, 1937 (S. R. & O., 37, No. 751), post, p. 3682, refer back to the Local Government (Special and Parish ıtes) (First Fixed Grant Period) Regulations, 1932 (S. R. & O., 1932, No. 162). The repealed sections of the L.G.A., 1929, will be found in Vol. V, post.

Exchequer Grants and other Financial Matters.

I.—INTRODUCTORY.

1. A general description of the provisions of the Local Government Act, 1929, ıher than the financial provisions contained in Part VI. and the Second, Third, ɔurth and Fifth Schedules of the Act will be found in other Memoranda. The ːesent Memorandum deals with these financial provisions, and in particular indiıtes in some detail the first steps to be taken by the Minister of Health and the ɔal authorities respectively in order to bring them into operation.

The Agricultural Rates Act, 1929, which provides (i) that occupiers of agricultural ɲd and agricultural buildings (other than dwelling houses) shall be wholly exempt ɔm rates during the half-year from the 1st April, 1929, to the 30th September, 929; and (ii) for a compensatory Exchequer Grant to rating authorities for that alf-year only, is not dealt with in this Memorandum but in a separate circular hich has already been sent to local authorities.

2. Throughout this Memorandum the word "Act" means, unless the context therwise requires, the Local Government Act, 1929, and the provisions of Part V. f the Act relating to the complete or partial exemption from rates of the occupiers f certain hereditaments are referred to as "the derating provisions," while the ɔor Law and Highway services which, under Parts I. and III. of the Act respecively, will be transferred mainly to the councils of counties and county boroughs ɹe referred to, as in the Act itself, as "the transferred services."

The derating provisions of the Act will take effect on the 1st October, 1929, ɯd the transferred services will be transferred on the 1st April, 1930. The period ɔetween these two dates is throughout this Memorandum called "the transitory ɔeriod."

3. Part VI. of the Act contemplates that the present system of Exchequer ɟrants which was in operation in the year ending 31st March, 1929, shall continue ɔo operate in respect of the whole of the year ending 31st March, 1930, and provides ɔhat as from that date certain of those grants shall be discontinued and a new ɜystem of Exchequer Grants brought into operation. In the last six months of the year ending 31st March, 1930, during which the derating provisions of the Act will be in operation, an additional (temporary) grant will be payable in respect of that period only. The object of this grant is to make good to rating authorities the loss of rate-income arising during the transitory period by reason of those provisions.

4. Stated very broadly, and from the point of view of local government only, the principal objects of the new system of grants which will operate as from 1st April, 1930, are (i) to provide a contribution from the State towards local government expenses; and (ii) to secure that the amount of this contribution shall ultimately be distributed among the several counties and county boroughs in proportion to their respective needs as measured in the manner laid down in the Act. In order to avoid too violent a dislocation of existing local financial arrangements, the Act provides that certain modifications of this ultimate basis shall apply during the first seventeen years of the scheme, i.e., during the period between the 1st April, 1930, and the 31st March, 1947.

5. The following sections of this Memorandum deal successively with :—

(i) the transitory period;

(ii) the discontinuance, as from the 31st March, 1930, of certain Exchequer Grants and the winding up of the Local Taxation Account and of the Exchequer Contribution Accounts;

(iii) the new system of Exchequer Grants to be brought into operation on the 1st April, 1930;

(iv) some miscellaneous financial provisions; and

(v) the steps necessary to bring the new scheme of grants into operation.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

II.—TRANSITORY PERIOD.

(1ST OCTOBER, 1929, TO 31ST MARCH, 1930) (a).

III.—DISCONTINUANCE OF CERTAIN GRANTS AND THE WINDING-UP OF THE LOCAL TAXATION ACCOUNT AND OF THE EXCHEQUER CONTRIBUTION ACCOUNTS.

12. The Second Schedule to the Act specifies the exchequer grants which under sub-section (1) of section 85 cease to be payable in respect of any period after the 31st March, 1930. The grants to be discontinued are:—

(i) All grants hitherto paid out of the Local Taxation Account, viz.:—

(a) The estate duty grant;

(b) The equivalent of the proceeds of such of the local taxation licence duties as are not levied by the councils of counties and county boroughs (including the fixed sums payable in respect of the duties on carriage licences and liquor licences);

(c) The annual grant of £60,000 towards the cost of the collection of licence duties;

(d) The fixed grant payable in respect of the proceeds of the Local Taxation (Customs and Excise) Duties;

(e) The fixed grant payable under the Agricultural Rates Act, 1896; and

(f) The variable grant payable under the Agricultural Rates Act, 1923.

(ii) The undermentioned grants hitherto made in respect of certain health services, viz.:—

(a) Grants for maternity and child welfare, other than the training of midwives and health visitors;

(b) Grants for the treatment of tuberculosis;

(c) Grants for the treatment of venereal diseases;

(d) Grants for the welfare of the blind; and

(e) Grants in respect of mental defectives.

(iii) The undermentioned road grants hitherto made out of the Road Fund, viz.:—

(a) Classification grants in respect of Class I. or Class II. roads and bridges in London and county boroughs; and

(b) Grants for the maintenance of unclassified roads in areas comprised in administrative counties.

The above-mentioned grants will be payable in respect of the year ending the 31st March, 1930.

13. The sums payable or transferable out of the Exchequer Contribution Accounts of the several counties and county boroughs in respect of the year ending 31st March, 1930, should be paid or transferred, as may be appropriate in the special circumstances. The Local Taxation Account and the Exchequer Contribution Accounts will thereupon be wound up in accordance with the provisions of section 85. Financial adjustments affecting the discontinued grants will cease to have effect, but in certain cases provided for in sub-section (5) of section 85 a new financial adjustment may be necessary.

14. Steps have been taken to expedite the determination of the amounts payable to the credit of the Exchequer Contribution Accounts of the councils of counties and county boroughs in respect of the standard year (i) by the Minister, out of the Local Taxation Account; and (ii) by the Postmaster-General, in respect of the proceeds of the Local Taxation Licence Duties levied by the councils.

Information showing the extent, if any, to which the amounts paid to the credit of the Exchequer Contribution Accounts for the standard year are affected by financial adjustments will in due course be called for by the Minister from the councils of counties and county boroughs in order that he may be in a position to certify, for each county and county borough, the net amount of such of the discontinued grants for the standard year as are affected by those adjustments. It is essential that in the meantime any council concerned with an outstanding financial adjustment shall proceed without delay to dispose of all outstanding questions affecting the apportionment of the discontinued grants. The attention of the councils of counties and county boroughs is specially directed in connection with this matter to the provisions of sub-section (5) of section 85.

Local Taxation Licence Duties levied by the Councils of Counties and County Boroughs.

15. These duties will continue to be leviable by the councils of counties and county boroughs after the 31st March, 1930, and the proceeds thereof will, after that date, be applicable in the case of a county council to expenses chargeable on the general county fund, and in the case of a county borough to expenses chargeable on the general rate. Any financial adjustment affecting the allocation of such proceeds should be dealt with in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (5) of section 85.

Certain payments hitherto charged on Exchequer Contribution Accounts to be charged on County and County Borough Funds.

16. Payments corresponding to those which the councils of counties and county boroughs have hitherto been liable to make out of their Exchequer Contribution Accounts towards the salaries of medical officers of health and sanitary inspectors and the remuneration of public vaccinators will be made, after the 31st March, 1930, by those councils out of their general funds in accordance with the provisions of the Third Schedule to the Act.

Payments hitherto made out of, or diverted from, the Local Taxation Account in respect of charges on the Cattle Pleuro-Pneumonia Account and in respect of rates on certain tithe rent charges.

17. In connection with the winding-up of the Local Taxation Account, the arrangements set out in paragraphs 1 and 2 of the Third Schedule will come into operation. One result will be that the amount of exchequer grants distributable to local authorities will no longer be affected by any variation in the amounts of the payments mentioned in the heading to this paragraph.

Sums hitherto paid out of the Local Taxation Account which were applicable specifically towards the costs of the pay and clothing of the police and police superannuation and the costs of higher education.

18. It is intended that, in respect of any period after the 31st March, 1930, these payments, so far as they relate to the police, shall be merged in grants to be paid by the Home Office, and, so far as they relate to higher education, shall be merged in grants to be paid by the Board of Education.

IV.—NEW EXCHEQUER GRANTS-IN-AID OF LOCAL GOVERNMENT EXPENSES.

19. The local authorities to whom the new grants will be paid as from the 1st April, 1930, are county councils, county borough councils, metropolitan borough councils and the common council of the city of London, and the councils of county districts, that is, non-county boroughs, urban districts not being boroughs, and rural districts. The new grants will be paid by the Minister directly to these authorities.

20. The general outline of the new scheme of grants is as follows:—Each year there is to be provided by Parliament, for distribution to local authorities in England and Wales, a sum of money called the General Exchequer Contribution.

The annual amount of the General Exchequer Contribution will not vary during a "fixed grant period." In accordance with the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 86 the annual amount of the General Exchequer Contribution for the first fixed grant period will be revised for the second fixed grant period as from the beginning of that period; the annual amount for the second fixed grant period will for the third fixed grant period be revised as from the beginning of the third grant period; and so on for each subsequent fixed grant period.

The first fixed grant period is the period of three years from the 1st April, 1930, to the 31st March, 1933; the second fixed grant period is the period of four years from the 1st April, 1933, to the 31st March, 1937; and each subsequent fixed grant period is the period of five years from the expiration of the previous period. At each revision the amount of the General Exchequer Contribution is to be determined by Parliament, subject, however, to the condition contained in sub-section (3) (c) of section 86, which provides for the maintenance of a certain minimum ratio between the General Exchequer Contribution and the total rate and grant-borne expenditure of the country.

The General Exchequer Contribution will first be apportioned, on a basis specified in the Act, among all the administrative counties and county boroughs, the amount so apportioned to any county being called the County Apportionment and the amount so apportioned to any county borough being called the County Borough Apportionment. In the case of a county borough, the County Borough Apportionment will be payable to the council of that county borough as its General Exchequer Grant. In the case of a county, the County Apportionment is to be divided between the councils of the county districts on the one hand and the county council on the other hand; and the balance of the County Apportionment which remains after the amount payable to the councils of the county districts has been set aside for that purpose, will be payable to the county council as its General Exchequer Grant. The total grant payable to the council of a county district is the General Exchequer Grant of that council.

In any case where the County or County Borough Apportionment does not reach a certain sum specified in the Act an Additional Exchequer Grant will be payable to the council of that county or county borough. Any such grants will be provided by Parliament out of moneys additional to the General Exchequer Contribution.

In accordance with section 105 the General Exchequer Grant and the Additional Exchequer Grant (if any) of a county council are to be applicable to general county purposes.

There is a further type of grant, called the Supplementary Exchequer Grant, which is not part of the main scheme, but is a temporary and diminishing grant intended to ease the transition from the existing system of local government to the new system. The authorities to whom supplementary grants will be payable are mentioned in later paragraphs. These grants are intended to ensure that no separately rated area shall, owing to the operation of the scheme, suffer any increase of rate poundage for the first five years of the scheme. After the first five years each Supplementary Exchequer Grant is to be reduced annually by one-fifteenth of its initial amount, so that after 19 years no Supplementary Exchequer Grant will be payable. These Supplementary Grants, like the Additional Exchequer Grants, will not be payable out of the General Exchequer Contribution, but out of additional sums to be provided by Parliament.

Estimated total amount of the New Exchequer Grants.

21. It is estimated upon the basis of figures for 1926–27 that in each year of the first fixed grant period the amount of the General Exchequer Contribution for England and Wales will be about £45,500,000, that the Additional Exchequer Grants will amount to about £650,000, and that the Supplementary Exchequer Grant will amount to about £1,680,000, making a total of about £47,830,000 annually.

In the following paragraphs, further particulars are given as to the new system of grants.

The General Exchequer Contribution.

22. Section 86 provides that the General Exchequer Contribution for England and Wales shall be the total of the following amounts:—

(i) An amount equal to the total "losses on account of rates" arising from the derating provisions. (This amount is at present estimated to be about £24,000,000 for England and Wales.)

(ii) An amount equal to the total "losses on account of grants" arising from the discontinuance of certain existing grants. (This amount is at present estimated to be about £16,500,000 for England and Wales.)

(iii) An additional amount which, for each of the three years 1930–31, 1931–32 and 1932–33, is fixed at £5,000,000 for England and Wales.

"Losses on account of Rates."

23. Part I. of the Fourth Schedule sets out the rules for determining the amounts of the losses on account of rates due to the derating provisions of the Act. ["Rates" has the same meaning as in sub-section (1) of section 68 of the Rating and Valuation Act, 1925, i.e., it comprises general rates, additional items of general rates, and special rates only.] The "loss on account of rates of a county" is for the purposes of the Act to be deemed to be the aggregate of the losses on account of rates of all the separate rating areas in the county. For the purpose of determining these losses the Minister is to estimate and certify as respects each rating area the expenditure in respect of the "standard year" (that is, the financial year 1928–29), which would have fallen to be borne by rates levied in that area on certain assumptions, set out in Rule I. of Part I. of the Fourth Schedule, the most important being that expenditure on the transferred services is to be treated as if it had been expenditure of county or county borough councils.

In the case of a joint authority and in a case where the area of an authority extends into more than one county or county borough, and it is, therefore, necessary to apportion the expenditure of the authority, the apportionment will be made in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (1) of section 108 or sub-section (1) of section 109 as may be appropriate.

Under section 107 it is provided that for the purposes of estimating losses on account of rates, contributions in lieu of rates in respect of Crown property shall be treated as rates.

24. To enable the Minister to make these estimates of rate-borne expenditure every local authority is required, under the Local Government (Statements of Rate-borne Expenditure) Regulations, 1929, issued under section 108 (1) (c), to furnish to him a statement giving information in a prescribed form and by a prescribed date as to the income and expenditure of the authority in respect of the standard year. The Regulations define the expression "income and expenditure" and provide that the statements shall be compiled from the accounts as made up and balanced in accordance with the established practice of the authority. Statements of receipts and expenditure will be accepted in appropriate cases.

25. It will be seen from paragraph 22 of this Memorandum that the amount of the General Exchequer Contribution, on which is to be based the grant to each individual authority, cannot be finally determined until that part of it relating to total losses on account of rates in England and Wales has been ascertained. It is obvious that this cannot be done until every local authority has furnished the statement as to income and expenditure which is mentioned above. It is accordingly of paramount importance that these statements should be sent to the Ministry as soon as possible.

26. It is intended that most of the "prescribed forms" mentioned in paragraph 24 shall be issued to local authorities during April and May, 1929, and in view of what is stated above the latest dates for the submission of the statements to the Minister have been fixed by the Regulations as follows:—

(i) Boards of guardians and joint authorities representative only of those boards—31st May, 1929.

(ii) Rural district councils and joint authorities representative only of rural district councils—30th June, 1929.

(iii) Councils of municipal boroughs (not being county boroughs) all of whose accounts are subject to audit by district auditors, councils of urban districts (not being boroughs) and joint authorities upon which any of those councils are represented—30th June, 1929.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

(iv) Councils of counties and municipal boroughs (excluding boroughs to which paragraph (iii) above relates), councils of metropolitan boroughs, the common council of the city of London, and any other local authorities— 31st July, 1929.

"Losses on account of Grants."

27. The present Exchequer Grants which cease under sub-section (1) of section 85 to be payable in respect of any period after the 31st March, 1930, have been specified in paragraph 12. It has also been mentioned in paragraph 18 that although all these grants are to be discontinued, sums representing the portions of them at present applicable specifically in aid of the costs of the police and costs of higher education will in future be paid to local authorities by the appropriate Government departments.

The total of the "losses on account of grants" is the total amount of the discontinued grants payable in respect of the standard year, excluding, however, the sums which were applicable in aid of higher education and police services referred to above. These amounts will be estimated and certified from the records of the appropriate Government departments; and, except as regards financial adjustments of Local Taxation Account moneys (see paragraph 14), local authorities will not be required to furnish returns specifically for this purpose.

The rules for determining losses on account of grants are contained in Part II. of the Fourth Schedule.

The "loss on account of grants of a county" is the aggregate of those losses for the county council and for every borough council, district council and other spending authority (including boards of guardians and voluntary associations) within the county.

28. Provision is made in the rules—see paragraph 2 of Part II. of the Fourth Schedule—for calculating the loss on account of classified road grants as if those grants had been made in respect of the standard year at the higher rates (viz., 60 per cent. for Class I. roads and 50 per cent. for Class II. roads) at which they will be made in respect of the year 1929–30.

29. Sub-section (2) of section 109 deals with the apportionment of discontinued grants in cases where apportionment is necessary, e.g., where a board of guardians, rural district council or voluntary association has operated in more than one county.

County Apportionments and County Borough Apportionments.

30. Provision is made in section 88 whereby eventually, that is, from 1st April, 1947, the whole of the General Exchequer Contribution will be apportioned between counties and county boroughs on the basis of "weighted population." The formula for arriving at weighted population is set out in Part III. of the Fourth Schedule of the Act, and is explained in the Appendix to this Memorandum. During the first four fixed grant periods part only of the General Exchequer Contribution will be allocated on the basis of weighted population. For these four periods each County Apportionment and each County Borough Apportionment will be made up of (i) the "appropriate percentage" of the losses on account of rates and the losses on account of grants of the county or county borough for the standard year, and (ii) the share of the county or county borough, in proportion to weighted population, of the balance of the General Exchequer Contribution. The "appropriate percentage" means for the first two fixed grant periods 75 per cent., for the third fixed grant period 50 per cent., and for the fourth fixed grant period 25 per cent.

Grants to Councils of Counties other than London.

31. As already mentioned in paragraph 20, the General Exchequer Grant of the council of a county is such portion of the County Apportionment of that county as is not required to be set aside for making grants to the councils of the county districts within the county (section 89). The grants so payable to the councils of county districts are described in paragraphs 33 to 37 below.

32. As also stated in paragraph 20, an Additional Exchequer Grant is payable (section 90) to the council of a county in any case where the County Apportionment falls short of a certain amount. This amount is the "standard sum," which, in the first fixed grant period, is the sum of the losses on account of rates and the losses on account of grants of the county in the standard year. In any case where the County Apportionment for the first fixed grant period falls short of the "standard sum" increased by a sum equivalent to one shilling per head of the estimated population (unweighted) of the administrative county for the standard year, the amount of the Additional Exchequer Grant for that fixed grant period will be equal to the amount of the deficiency.

Grants to non-County Borough Councils and other Urban District Councils.

33. Any grant payable under the Act to the council of a non-county borough or other urban district will be called the General Exchequer Grant of that council, and will, in accordance with the provisions contained in sections 91, 93 and 94, be arrived at as follows:—

(a) Sums set aside from the County Apportionment:—

(i) A capitation grant, calculated at a flat rate per head of (unweighted) population for every urban district in England and Wales (see paragraph 34); and

(ii) A sum allocated to any council which administers maternity and child welfare services—such sum to be determined in accordance with a scheme to be made by the Minister (see paragraph 35).

(b) A sum added by way of Supplementary Exchequer Grant in any case where it is estimated that an increase of rates would result from the operation of the scheme (see paragraph 36).

(c) In any case where it is estimated that a decrease of rates would result from the operation of the scheme there will be deducted from the amount of the above-mentioned capitation grant for the district a sum representing a contribution towards the losses in other districts in the county (see paragraph 36).

34. Under Part IV. of the Fourth Schedule the flat rate at which the above-mentioned capitation grant will be paid will be determined by dividing one-half of the aggregate of the County Apportionments of counties other than London by the aggregate population (unweighted) of those counties, the result being taken to the nearest penny. It is estimated that the flat rate would have been about 12*s.* 6*d.* per head in the year 1926–27 if the Act had been in operation in that year.

35. Section 93 provides that for each county containing a district, the council of which have established a Maternity and Child Welfare Committee, the Minister shall, after consultation with the county council and the councils of the districts concerned, make a scheme. The scheme will specify the addition to be made to the grants payable by the Minister out of the County Apportionment to each of the district councils administering maternity and child welfare services. The Minister will in due course prepare a scheme for every such county and will forward the draft scheme to the county council and the district councils concerned, for their consideration.

36. As mentioned in paragraph 20 above, the Act makes provision, as part of the gradual process by which the new scheme is to be brought into operation, that no separately rated area * shall suffer an increase of rate poundage by reason of the operation of the scheme during the first five years in which it is in force, and that any necessary rate adjustments consequent on the operation of the scheme shall be spread gradually over the following fourteen years.

The adjustments will be based on "gains" or "losses" which the Minister is to ascertain in respect of each separately rated area in accordance with the Rules set out in the Fifth Schedule to the Act. If the calculations made under that

* The whole of any borough or district which is not subject to separate or differential rating is a "separately rated area"; and if, within a borough or district, there is a parish or other part which is subject to separate rating or to differential rating of a permanent character, that parish or part is a "separately rated area"—see definition in section 134.

schedule show that any such area would suffer a loss (i.e., an increase of rate poundage) by reason of the operation of the scheme, then to the General Exchequer Grant otherwise payable by the Minister to the borough or district council of the area he will add for each of the first five years of the scheme a sum equal to the whole amount of the loss as ascertained in accordance with the rules. The money out of which any such additional sum will be paid by the Minister will be obtained from the under-mentioned sources :—

(A) One-half will be obtained from contributions drawn from those separately rated areas within the county which "gain" under the scheme. All the areas which gain will for this purpose give up, by way of deductions made from the General Exchequer Grants otherwise payable to their councils, an equal proportion of their gains, provided that no council will be required to give up, by way of such deduction, a sum larger than the amount of its capitation grant.

(B) The other half, together with any deficiency in the contribution arising from the limitation mentioned in (A), will be obtained from a further Exchequer grant called the "Supplementary Exchequer Grant."

The amount of each of the sums mentioned in (A) and (B) above will remain fixed for each area for the first five years of the scheme. Thereafter the amounts of any contributions so made by the areas and the Exchequer will be reduced annually by one-fifteenth of the initial amounts, and the sums received out of those contributions will likewise be reduced by one-fifteenth annually.

37. Regulations will in due course be made under section 94 (1) (d) by the Minister for securing that the grant paid to the council of any non-county borough or other urban district which contains two or more separately rated areas shall be so distributed as to effect a rate adjustment between those areas in the manner contemplated by the Act. But, subject to these Regulations, the grant payable to the council of any such borough or district is applicable in aid of the total expenses otherwise falling to be met out of the general rate of the borough or district, including expenses of the county council as well as expenses of the borough or district council.

Grants to Rural District Councils.

38. Any grant payable under the Act to the council of a rural district will be called the General Exchequer Grant of that council and will be arrived at in a similar manner to that for the councils of urban districts, and paragraphs 33 to 36 apply equally to councils of rural districts, with the following modifications :—

(i) The capitation grant will be calculated at a flat rate which will be one-fifth of that applicable in the case of urban districts ;

(ii) In calculating "losses" and "gains" of separately rated areas, parish rates * and special rates * will not be brought into account.

(iii) Section 92 provides that, where a parish rate or special rate was levied within a rural district in the standard year, there shall, in addition to the sums mentioned in paragraph 33 (a) of this Memorandum, be set aside out of the County Apportionment a further sum which is to be paid by the Minister to the rural district council in respect of losses on account of special rates and parish rates levied within the rural district. For the first and second fixed grant periods this further sum will be equivalent to 75 per cent. of the losses on account of such rates estimated on the basis of the figures for the standard year. During these two periods the remaining 25 per cent. of the last-mentioned losses will be paid by the county council to the rural district council. The manner in which the additional sums so received by a rural district council (a) from the Minister and (b) from the county council are to be applied in aid of special and parish rates will be dealt with in Regulations to be made in due course by the Minister under

* "Parish rate" means a rate or an additional item of a rate levied to meet the expenses of a parish council or parish meeting (other than expenses, if any, which are chargeable on a special rate) and includes any additional item of the general rate which by virtue of section 3 of the Rating and Valuation Act, 1925, is to be levied in lieu of a special rate. "Special rate" has the same meaning as in the Rating and Valuation Act, 1925.

sub-section (2) of section 92. Provision for periods subsequent to the second fixed grant period is contained in the section.

The Regulations mentioned in paragraph 37 will apply also to rural district councils.

The grants payable under the Act to a rural district council (other than the grants in respect of parish rates and special rates) will be applicable to all expenses chargeable on the general rate of the district, including expenses of the county council.

Grants to County Borough Councils.

39. As stated in paragraph 20 of this Memorandum, the whole of the County Borough Apportionment will be paid to the county borough council and will be the General Exchequer Grant of the council (section 95).

40. An Additional Exchequer Grant will, under section 96, be payable to the council of a county borough in any case where the County Borough Apportionment falls short of a certain amount. This amount for the first fixed grant period is the "standard sum" increased by a sum equivalent to one shilling per head of the (unweighted) population of the county borough for the standard year. The "standard sum" for the first fixed grant period is so defined as in effect to be equal, in the case of a county borough which is coterminous with a poor law union, to the aggregate of the losses on account of rates and the losses on account of grants as estimated for the standard year. In the case of any other county borough the "standard sum" is so defined as in effect to be equal to the corresponding aggregate for that borough, increased by the loss, or reduced by the gain, of the county borough as a whole, due to any alteration of area of charge consequent upon the transfer of poor law functions to the council of that borough. "Losses" and "gains" will be calculated in the manner laid down in the Fifth Schedule.

41. Where a county borough contains two or more separately rated areas, section 97 provides for an adjustment of the "losses" and "gains" of those areas and for the payment of Supplementary Exchequer Grants in certain cases. The purpose of the Supplementary Exchequer Grant is to make good, at the cost of the Exchequer, one-half of the amount of the "loss" of each separately rated area. In the case of a county borough in respect of which an Additional Exchequer Grant is payable, these losses will already have entered into the calculation of the amount of the Additional Exchequer Grant. The section provides in such a case that a Supplementary Exchequer Grant shall be payable only if the Additional Exchequer Grant is less than one-half of the aggregate amount of the losses of those separately rated areas within the county borough which lose, and that the amount of the Supplementary Exchequer Grant shall be such that the total of the Additional and Supplementary Exchequer Grants is equal to one-half of the aggregate losses. Regulations designed to effect the rate-adjustments contemplated by the Act will in due course be made under the section by the Minister. These Regulations will deal with the method of distributing the grants between any separately rated areas within a county borough.

Grants to the London County Council.

42. The London County Apportionment will be calculated in the same manner as for other administrative counties, and, under section 98, the General Exchequer Grant to the London county council will be the balance of the County Apportionment after deducting the sums set aside for payment to the common council of the city of London and the councils of the metropolitan boroughs. The provisions as to Additional Exchequer Grants also apply to the London county council as they apply to the councils of other administrative counties (section 99). In the case of London, however, there are special provisions relating to the Supplementary Exchequer Grants (section 100). These grants are necessarily payable to the local authorities charged with the duty of making such rate-adjustments as will ensure that no separately rated area shall, for the first five years, lose by reason of the scheme. Except in the county of London these authorities are the rating authorities. In London, because the rate-adjustments will, under the provisions of section 100, be made, not by the rating authorities, but by the county council, and by means of a differential county rate, the Supplementary Grant in respect of areas within the county will be payable to the county council.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Grants to the Common Council of the City of London and to the Councils of Metropolitan Boroughs (section 98).

43. The only grant payable under the Act to each of these councils is the General Exchequer Grant of that council. These grants will be set aside by the Minister out of the London County Apportionment and paid by him to each council. They will not be calculated in the same manner as those set aside for county districts out of the County Apportionments of Counties other than London, but will be more analogous to the General Exchequer Grants payable in the case of county boroughs. Thus, the General Exchequer Grant payable to each of these councils will, for the first fixed grant period, be the sum of the following amounts:—

(i) 75 per cent. of the aggregate of the losses on account of rates and the losses on account of grants of the council.

(ii) a grant based on population weighted by the children and rateable value factors only, and calculated at one-third of the rate per head applicable in the case of county boroughs.

An appropriate proportion of the expenditure and grants of the Receiver of the Metropolitan Police District will for this purpose be regarded as rates and grants of the council of each metropolitan borough [section 108 and Fourth Schedule, Part II., paragraph 6 (b)].

Sub-section (4) of section 98 provides that the London (Equalisation of Rates) Act, 1894, shall cease to have effect as from 1st April, 1930.

Payment of Grants.

44. Section 103 provides that the new grants shall be payable as and when the Treasury may direct.

The proposal as regards the payment of the grants for the transitory period will be found in paragraph 7 of this Memorandum.

As regards the new Exchequer grants payable after 1st April, 1930, it is contemplated that eight payments will be made in each year and that the method of payment will be that adopted in the case of grants from the Local Taxation Account, namely, by payment to the banking account of the local authority's treasurer through the head office or the London agent of his bank. It is proposed that the first payment of grant shall be made in May, 1930. It is intended to send a further communication to local authorities on this subject in due course.

V.—OTHER FINANCIAL PROVISIONS IN PART VI. OF THE ACT.

Voluntary Associations carrying out Health Services.

45. Direct grants will no longer be payable to these associations by the Minister, but will be replaced by contributions payable to them by local authorities. In the case of voluntary associations providing maternity and child welfare services (section 101) or services for the blind or mental defectives (section 102) the amounts of these contributions will be determined by schemes to be approved or made by the Minister. As regards the schemes under section 101 relating to the maternity and child welfare services, Memorandum L.G.A. 5 has already been addressed to county and county borough councils. Section 102 also provides for a scheme to be made by the Minister to determine the amounts of the contributions payable by the councils of counties and county boroughs in Wales and Monmouthshire to the Welsh National Memorial Association in respect of the treatment of tuberculosis.

Section 106 provides that the Minister, at the request of the council of a county or county borough, may pay the contribution of that council directly to any voluntary association and deduct the amount of such payment from the General Exchequer Grant of that council.

Power of the Minister to reduce grants.

46. Section 104 provides that in circumstances specified therein the Minister may, subject to confirmation by Parliament, reduce by such amount as he thinks just the amount of grant payable in any year under the Act to any council.

Power of the Minister to make Regulations.

47. Section 108 gives the Minister the power to make Regulations for giving effect to the provisions of Part VI. of the Act, and provides in particular that Regulations may be made as to—

(a) the manner in which the expenditure of joint authorities is for the purposes of Part VI. to be apportioned between the areas of the constituent authorities;

(b) the manner in which the new grants are to be adjusted in connection with alterations of authorities or boundaries taking effect on or after the 1st April, 1930; and

(c) the manner in which estimates and calculations are to be made for the purposes of Part VI., and the manner in which the necessary information for those purposes is to be obtained.

Such Regulations, when made, must be laid before Parliament.

Adjustments necessitated by alterations of area, etc., taking effect between 1st April, 1928, and 1st April, 1930, will be made by the Minister under section 111.

VI.—SUMMARY OF THE STEPS NECESSARY TO BRING THE NEW SCHEME OF GRANTS INTO OPERATION (a).

APPENDIX.

RULES FOR DETERMINING WEIGHTED POPULATION.

(Part III. of the Fourth Schedule.)

I.—As stated in paragraph 30 of this Memorandum, the Act provides (section 88) that ultimately (i.e., from the 1st April, 1947) the whole of the General Exchequer Contribution for England and Wales shall be apportioned amongst the several counties and county boroughs therein on the basis of weighted population, but that during the first two fixed grant periods (i.e., during 1930–37) only part—approximately one-third—is to be so apportioned. The Act also provides (section 110) that before the expiration of the second fixed grant period, i.e., before the 31st March, 1937, the working of the rules as to the calculation of weighted population shall be inquired into and reported upon to Parliament.

II.—For the purposes of the Act the weighted population of each administrative county, each county borough and (in a modified form, see paragraph 43) of the city of London and each metropolitan borough, will be determined. It will not be necessary to determine the weighted population of any parish, district, or other area within an administrative county, county borough, or metropolitan borough.

III.—Weighted population for each county and county borough will be determined for the period 1930–37 in the following manner:—

(1) The population as estimated by the Registrar-General (hereinafter referred to as "the population") will be increased:—

(i) where the proportion of children under 5 years of age per 1,000 of the population is more than 50, by the percentage which the excess over 50 bears to 50; and

(ii) where the rateable value per head of the population is less than £10, by the percentage which the amount of the difference between £10 and the rateable value per head bears to £10.

(2) The population, as increased under (1) above, will be further increased:—

(iii) where the average number of unemployed insured men, plus 10 per cent. of unemployed insured women, as certified by the Minister of Labour, expressed as a percentage of the population, exceeds one-and-a-half, by a percentage equal to 10 times the excess; and

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

(iv) in the case of administrative counties only, and excluding London, by a percentage in respect of sparsity of population: this percentage will be arrived at as follows:—

(a) Where the population per mile of public road is less than 100, the percentage addition will be the percentage represented by the proportion which the difference between 200 and the population per mile of road bears to 200;

(b) Where the population per mile of public road is greater than 100, the percentage addition will be the percentage represented by the proportion which 50 bears to the population per mile of road.

IV.—The following example shows the method of applying the factors in a hypothetical county the population of which is taken to be 400,000, the rateable value per head £4, the percentage of unemployment 2½, and the population per mile of road 250:—

(1) The population			400,000
(i) Number of children under 5 years of age per 1,000 of the estimated population	90
Excess of 90 over 50 is 40, which is 80 per cent. of 50. Therefore, add 80 per cent. of 400,000		=	320,000
(ii) Rateable value per head	£4
£4 is less than £10 by £6, which is 60 per cent. of £10. Therefore, add 60 per cent. of 400,000		=	240,000
Total of foregoing numbers			960,000
(2) (iii) Percentage of unemployment as certified by Minister of Labour	2½
Excess of 2½ per cent. over 1½ per cent. is 1 per cent.; 10 times this excess is 10 per cent. Therefore, add 10 per cent. of 960,000		=	96,000
(iv) Population per mile of road	250
250 being greater than 100, the percentage addition is represented by the proportion which 50 bears to 250. 50 is 20 per cent. of 250. Therefore, add 20 per cent. of 960,000		=	192,000
Weighted population of county, being total of foregoing numbers			1,248,000

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
Whitehall, S.W.1.

Memorandum L.G.A. 22.

Councils of Certain County Districts.

1. LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT, 1929 (a).
2. MATERNITY AND CHILD WELFARE (b).
3. VOLUNTARY ASSOCIATIONS.

1. Section 101 of the Local Government Act, 1929, requires the council of every county, six months at least before the beginning of each fixed grant period, to prepare and submit to the Minister for his approval a scheme for securing the payment by the council of annual contributions towards the expenses of voluntary associations, if any, providing maternity and child welfare services in or for the benefit of the county. Subsection (2) provides that the associations to be included in these schemes are (a) those whose services are approved by the Minister immediately before the appointed day; and (b) those whose services are not so approved but are utilised by the council.

2. Section 101 (4) provides that a scheme made by a county council under the section shall determine whether and to what extent the services provided by any voluntary association are such that contributions thereto should be paid by a council of a district in the county who have established a maternity and child welfare committee under the Maternity and Child Welfare Act, 1918; and that where the scheme provides for such contributions being made by the council of any district a copy thereof shall be sent to that council by the county council when the scheme is submitted to the Minister. The subsection proceeds to impose on the council of the district the duty of preparing and submitting to the Minister within three months after the receipt of the said copy, a scheme for the payment of such contributions by the council.

(a) The unrepealed sections of the L.G.A., 1929, will be printed in Vol. V., post.
(b) See the general note to Part VII. of the Public Health Act, 1936, ante, p. 470.

3. Clause 4 of the scheme made by the county council under section 101 determines that the maternity and child welfare services provided by the voluntary association(s) named in column 1 of the Second Schedule to the scheme are such that contributions thereto should be paid by the council(s) of the district(s) named in column 2 of that schedule. It is, therefore, the duty of the {town council / urban district council} to prepare and submit to the Minister within three calendar months after the receipt of a copy of the scheme made by the county council, a scheme for the payment of such contributions by the {town council / urban district council}.

4. Copies of a model scheme which the Minister has caused to be prepared for use by the council of county districts are enclosed with this memorandum. The Minister will be prepared to approve schemes on the lines of this model, and he suggests that the council should adopt this form of scheme (a).

5. A statement (in duplicate) is enclosed showing the amount of the grant paid by the Minister in respect of the standard year to the association(s) named in column 1 of the Second Schedule to the scheme of the county council. The statement contains a column for the amounts, if any, of the contributions paid by the council of the county district to the association(s) in respect of that year, and this column should be completed and one copy of the statement returned to the Minister as soon as possible.

6. The Minister will be glad on request to furnish the council with any information in his possession as to the activities or finances of the association(s) included in the statement, but before preparing their scheme the council should communicate with representatives of the association(s) with a view to obtaining particulars of the services now being rendered and proposed to be rendered during each of the three years comprised in the first fixed grant period, together with information as to the present and probable future cost.

7. Regard should of course be had to this information in considering the amounts of the annual contributions to be specified in the scheme, and the Minister is of opinion that, save in exceptional circumstances, the amount specified for each association should be not less than the total of the sums received by association in respect of the standard year from the Minister and the council, respectively. In framing the scheme to be made under section 93 of the Act for increasing the sum to be set aside out of the county apportionment in respect of the district, the Minister will take into account the amounts of the contributions for the payment of which provision is made in the scheme of the council under section 101 (4).

CIRCULAR 1072.

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
Whitehall, S.W.1.

12*th February*, 1930.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT, 1929.

SIR,—1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to refer to section 59 (a) of the Local Government Act, 1929, and to enclose copies of the regulations (b) made under that section prescribing the qualifications of medical officers and health visitors appointed by local authorities under the Maternity and Child Welfare Act, 1918 (c), the Public Health (Tuberculosis) Act, 1921 (d), and the Public Health (Venereal Diseases) Regulations, 1916 (e). These regulations will come into operation on the 1st April next, and on and after that date it will not be necessary for local authorities to obtain the approval of the Minister to individual appointments of any officers appointed to carry out duties under the Acts of 1918 and 1921, or the Regulations of 1916.

2. The Minister has had under consideration the general question of the extent to which the statutory provisions now governing the administration by local authorities of the maternity and child welfare, tuberculosis, and venereal diseases services, will necessitate his approval being obtained after the 31st March next to developments of these services. He is advised that these provisions generally require his approval or sanction to the arrangements made by local authorities for discharging the functions in question. The principle underlying the Local Government Act, 1929, is that local authorities should have as much freedom as possible in administering the health services. The Minister has caused the existing statutes and regulations to be examined from that standpoint, and instructs me to make the following observations as to each of the three specified services.

Maternity and Child Welfare.

3. Section 1 of the Maternity and Child Welfare Act, 1918, enables local authorities to make such arrangements as may be sanctioned by the Minister for attending to the health of expectant and nursing mothers, and of children under the age of 5 years who are not being educated in schools recognised by the Board of Education; and section 2 of the Notification of Births (Extension) Act, 1915, empowers local authorities, for the purpose of the care of expectant and nursing mothers and young children, to exercise any powers which a sanitary authority have under the Public Health Acts, 1875 to 1907, or the Public Health (London) Act, 1891.

4. The Minister is advised that the latter section enables local authorities to provide infant welfare centres, ante-natal clinics, hospitals for pregnant women, and for sick and ailing children, and convalescent homes for mothers and young children. It will, therefore, not be necessary for the Minister's sanction to be obtained in future to the provision or extension of any institutions of these kinds unless the local authority propose to raise a loan to defray any necessary capital expenditure. Similarly, any arrangements which the local authority propose to make with the managers of voluntary institutions of these kinds, which provide services of the standard required by the local authority, can be made without the sanction of the Minister.

5. The authority for other services commonly provided as part of the arrangements for maternity and child welfare, such for instance as health visiting, a midwifery service, maternity nursing and nursing for expectant mothers and young children, home helps, day nurseries, and the supply of milk or meals, must be found in section 1 of the Act of 1918, and the Minister is advised that his sanction will still be necessary to the provision of any of these services. But in all cases in which any one of these services has already been provided by a local authority with his approval, he hereby sanctions the extension of that service to such an extent, and in such a manner, as the authority think desirable.

(a) Repealed by the Public Health Act, 1936, ante, p. 732, but see note (d) to s. 204 of that Act, ante, p. 475.
(b) These regulations are set out at p. 3296, post.

Treatment of Tuberculosis.

6. Under the Public Health (Tuberculosis) Act, 1921, county and county borough councils are required to carry out and continue in operation the schemes of institutional treatment approved by the Minister or his predecessors, and any modifications of those schemes need the Minister's approval. The institutions in which treatment is given, i.e., dispensaries, sanatoria and hospitals, have also to be approved by the Minister. Section 3 of the Public Health (Prevention and Treatment of Disease) Act, 1913, enables local authorities to make such arrangements as may be sanctioned by the Minister for the treatment of tuberculosis.

7. The Minister is advised that it will be necessary for his approval to be obtained to any proposed modification of an approved scheme of institutional treatment which would result in smaller provision being made for treatment, but he hereby sanctions any extension of a scheme which the council may think desirable, so long as the extension provides for treatment being given at institutions approved by the Minister.

8. The formal approval of institutions has been given by the Minister subject, in each case, to certain specified conditions (see section 3 of the Act of 1921), and the Minister hereby varies those conditions in the case of institutions belonging to county and county borough councils, or joint committees of those councils, so as to require only the following conditions to be observed :—

(1) That the institution and the records kept thereat will be open to inspection at any time by any officer of the Ministry.

(2) That such records will be kept and such returns will be made in connection with the institution as the Minister may from time to time require.

And, in the case of an institution in which children are treated, the following further condition :—

(3) That if the Board of Education make any requirements in regard to educational arrangements for the children, those requirements will be satisfactorily met.

It will not in future be necessary for the Minister's approval to be obtained to proposed extensions of these institutions unless the cost is to be defrayed by means of a loan.

9. Under section 3 of the Act of 1913 arrangements have been sanctioned by which local authorities have been enabled to provide certain forms of non-institutional treatment for tuberculosis, such as nursing in the homes of patients and the supply of extra nourishment for patients who are living at home. The Minister is advised that it will be necessary for his sanction to be obtained in any case in which a local authority propose to initiate any such arrangements, but he hereby sanctions any extension which the local authority think desirable of arrangements already approved.

Venereal Diseases.

10. The Public Health (Venereal Diseases) Regulations, 1916, require county and county borough councils to make arrangements for the pathological examination of specimens, for the provision of treatment at hospitals or other institutions, and for the supply of arsenobenzene preparations to medical practitioners. These arrangements are subject to the approval of the Minister, and the regulations also require his approval of the laboratories at which specimens are examined, and of the institutions at which treatment is given.

11. The Minister is advised that it will be necessary, under the regulations, for his approval to be obtained to any proposed modifications of the arrangements already approved which would result in a curtailment of the existing facilities for diagnosis or treatment, but he hereby sanctions any extension of such arrangements which the councils may think desirable, provided that the arrangements are made with approved laboratories or institutions. It will also be necessary to obtain his approval of the supply to medical practitioners of any arsenobenzene preparation which is not included in the lists of approved preparations issued from time to time by this department.

12. The Minister's approval of laboratories and institutions has been given subject in each case to certain specified conditions, and he hereby varies the terms of these approvals so as to require only the following conditions to be observed:—

(1) That the laboratory or institution, and the records kept thereat, will be open to inspection at any time by any officer of the Ministry.

(2) That such records will be kept, and such returns will be made, of the work of the laboratory or institution, as the Minister may from time to time require.

(3) That the Wassermann tests at the laboratory will be performed under the personal supervision of the medical officer in charge of the laboratory, and that such tests will conform to the standards of technique approved by the Minister.

And, in the case of a laboratory or institution which is not provided by a local authority, the following further condition:—

(4) That the medical officer in charge of the laboratory or institution possesses the qualifications prescribed in the regulations made by the Minister under section 59 of the Local Government Act, 1929, for a medical officer in charge of a laboratory or for a medical officer in clinical charge of a treatment centre, provided by a local authority, as the case may be.

General.

13. Although the formal approval of the Minister will not in future be required to the establishment or extension of institutions provided under these three services, unless it is proposed to raise a loan to defray the cost, the department will, of course, be prepared at any time to advise on the planning, equipment or staffing of such institutions, or in regard to any proposed extensions. Considerable experience has now been accumulated in the planning of maternity homes, sanatoria and venereal disease clinics. It seems to the Minister essential that the fullest use should be made of this experience and the Ministry will hold itself in readiness to place it at the disposal of local authorities, and to give any other assistance or advice which may be desired.

14. The inspection by the medical officers of the department of these services, and of the institutions and premises in which the services are carried on, will, in future, usually form part of the general inspection of public health services to be undertaken from time to time in each area. These inspections, both general and particular, will be required in order that the Minister may be satisfied that each local authority is maintaining a reasonable standard of efficiency and progress in the discharge of their functions relating to public health services, as defined in the Local Government Act, 1929, regard being had to the standards maintained in other areas whose financial resources and other relevant circumstances are substantially similar.

15. A further communication will be addressed to local authorities in due course relative to the annual returns which the Minister will require in future under section 51 of the Act with respect, inter alia, to the three services to which this circular refers.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient Servant,
A. B. MACLACHLAN,
Assistant Secretary.

The Clerk of the Council, or Joint Committee, or The Town Clerk.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT, 1929.

SIR,

1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to refer to subsection (2) of section 85 of the Local Government Act, 1929 (a), which provides for the winding up of the Exchequer Contribution Account of every county and county borough in accordance with such directions as the Minister may give, and to enclose copies of the Exchequer Contribution Accounts (Winding-up) Order, 1930, which he has made under that sub-section (b).

2. The winding up of the Exchequer Contribution Account will present no difficulty where on the 31st March, 1930, there were no amounts payable out of the Account to a poor law authority. It will only be necessary to make out of the Account any payments to other local authorities and any transfers to other accounts of the Council which should be met out of the Account, and to transfer the balance then remaining in the Account, to the general county account in the county fund or to the general fund, as the case may be.

3. Any sums which immediately before the appointed day were payable out of the Account to a poor law authority are "property" held by or on behalf of the poor law authority, and are therefore subject to the provisions of section 113 or section 116 of the Act of 1929. The Order provides that any such amounts shall be transferred to a separate account in the county fund (or the general fund) to be applied as if the payments had been made immediately before the 1st April, 1930. Where the area of the poor law authority was wholly comprised in the county or county borough, the property will vest in the council of the county or county borough. Where the area of the poor law authority was not wholly comprised in the county or county borough, any amount which was payable out of the Account to a board of guardians in respect of the remuneration of registrar of births and deaths vests in the council to whom the functions of the board of guardians have been transferred under Part II of the Act of 1929. Any other amount which was payable to the poor law authority vests in the council of the county or county borough in which the portion of the poor law area having the larger or largest reduced rateable value is situate, and will be subject to apportionment or adjustment in accordance with section 113 (2) (d) (i) of, and the Sixth Schedule to, the Act. The necessary payments to other councils and transfers to other accounts should be made out of the separate account accordingly.

The concluding words of Article 2 (2) of the Order are inserted only for the purpose of ensuring the proper application of the sums to which reference is made, and do not constitute a direction which under Article 3 must be complied with before the balance remaining in the Exchequer Contribution Account is transferred and the Account wound up.

4. The proceeds of the local taxation licence duties levied by the council, which were formerly carried to the Exchequer Contribution Account, will in future be carried to the county fund (and be applicable to general county purposes as directed by section 105 of the Act of 1929) or to the general fund, as the case may be.

5. An additional copy of this circular and of the Order is enclosed for transmission to the Chief Financial Officer of the Council.

THE RURAL DISTRICT COUNCILS (URBAN POWERS) ORDER, 1931.

SIR,

1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to enclose copies of an Order, made by the Minister under section 25 of the Local Government Act, 1894 (a), providing that Rural District Councils shall have the powers, duties, and liabilities of urban authorities under the enactments which are mentioned in the schedule to the Order.

(a) See note (a) to the Order itself, post, p. 3267. A large part of this circular is spent, and is accordingly omitted here.

The Order gives effect, so far as is possible at the present time, to the recommendation in the Final Report of the Royal Commission on Local Government that the statutory powers, as distinct from duties, of Urban and Rural District Councils should be more closely assimilated.

The effect of the Order is set out more fully in the appendix to this circular letter.

2. It will still be necessary to obtain an Order of the Minister if it is desired that the expenses incurred under any enactment mentioned in the schedule to this Order shall be declared to be special expenses (a).

APPENDIX.

SUMMARY OF POWERS CONFERRED AND NOTES ON THEM.
PUBLIC HEALTH ACT, 1875.

* * * * * *

Incorporation of certain provisions of the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847 (b).

So much of section 160 as incorporates sections 69 and 70 of the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847, is put in force by this Order.

These sections give the Council certain powers with respect to any projection against or in front of any house or building which is an obstruction to the safe and convenient passage along any street.

Public walks or pleasure grounds.

In rural districts generally, Parish Councils (under the parallel power in the Local Government Act, 1894), rather than District Councils, have provided recreation grounds or pleasure grounds, but the powers now given will enable Rural District Councils to do so if they wish.

Section 164 enables the Council to provide public walks or pleasure grounds, and to do any necessary work of improvement or maintenance, to support or contribute to the support of public walks or pleasure grounds provided by other persons, and to make byelaws for the regulation of public walks and pleasure grounds.

Model byelaws have been issued, but byelaws should not be adopted unless found to be essential. They involve some restriction on the public enjoyment and some cost in administration, and it is doubtful whether grounds where many byelaws are in force are better managed, in practice, than those where reliance is placed upon the good feeling of the public.

(Attention is also drawn to sections 44 and 45 of the Public Health Acts Amendment Act, 1890, mentioned later in this memorandum.)

Public clocks.

Section 165 empowers the Council to provide and light public clocks.

By Article 3 of the Order the consent of the County Council must be obtained to the provision of any clock which will overhang a county road.

(Attention is also drawn to the further powers contained in section 46 of the Public Health Acts Amendment Act, 1890, mentioned later in this memorandum.)

Horses, ponies, mules, or asses, and pleasure boats and vessels.

Under the first paragraph of section 172 the Council may license the proprietors, drivers, and conductors of horses, ponies, mules, or asses standing for hire; and may also make byelaws.

(a) See now s. 190 of the Local Government Act, 1933, ante, p. 1016.
(b) See Vol. IV, post.

LOCAL GOVERN.

The second paragraph enables them to license the proprietors of pleasure boats and vessels and boatmen, and to regulate them by byelaw.

[illegible] both these subjects have been issued

GENERAL.

Attention is drawn to the right of appeal to Quarter Sessions contained in section 7 of the Public Health Acts Amendment Act, 1890, which is construed as one with the Act of 1875, by any person aggrieved by any order, judgment, determination, or requirement, of the Council, or by the withholding of any order, certificate, licence, consent, or approval.

THE RURAL DISTRICT COUNCILS (URBAN POWERS) ORDER, 1931, DATED JULY 13TH, 1931, MADE BY THE MINISTER OF HEALTH UNDER SECTION 25 OF THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT, 1894.

Whereas subsection (5) of section 25 of the Local Government Act, 1894 (a), provides that rural district councils shall have such powers duties and liabilities of urban sanitary authorities under the Public Health Acts or any other Act and that such provisions of any of those Acts relating to urban districts shall apply to rural districts as the Minister of Health may by general order direct and by subsection (6) of that section every order made by the Minister under the section is forthwith to be laid before Parliament:

Now therefore the Minister of Health in pursuance of his powers under subsection (5) of section 25 of the Local Government Act, 1894 (a), and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf hereby orders and directs as follows:—

3. Rural district councils shall have the powers duties and liabilities of urban authorities under such of the enactments of the Public Health Act, 1875 (b), as are mentioned in Part I of the schedule to this order and under such of the enactments of the Public Health Acts Amendment Act, 1890 (b), as are mentioned in Part II of the schedule to this order and all the enactments so mentioned shall apply to every rural district council and every rural district in like manner as they apply to urban district councils and urban districts:

Provided that—

(a) any power conferred by an enactment which by this order is extended to a rural district may be exercised by the rural district council in relation to the rural district at large or if so resolved by them in relation to one or more contributory places within the rural district;

S. R. & O., 1934, No. 972.

THE URBAN DISTRICTS (WARDS AND COUNCILLORS) (NOTICES) REGULATIONS, 1934, DATED AUGUST 31ST, 1934, MADE BY THE SECRETARY OF STATE UNDER SECTION 37 OF THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT, 1933.

In pursuance of the Local Government Act, 1933, I hereby make the following Regulations prescribing the notice to be given of a local inquiry held by a county council under section 37 of the said Act (a).

REGULATIONS.

1. At least ten days before the day fixed by the county council for the holding of a local inquiry under subsection (1) of section 37 of the Local Government Act, 1933, the county council shall give public notice of the day, time and place fixed for the inquiry and of the proposals for which they consider that a prima facie case exists, and that the desirability of giving effect to those proposals or any of them will be considered at the inquiry, and the notice shall be given—

(a) by advertisement in one or more local newspapers circulating in the urban district;

(b) by affixing printed copies of a notice containing the particulars aforesaid to the offices of the urban district council; and

(c) by posting printed copies of the notice in conspicuous places within the urban district and in such other manner, if any, as appears to the county council to be desirable for giving publicity to the notice.

2. At least ten days before the day on which the inquiry is to be held, printed copies of the notice containing the particulars aforesaid shall be sent by the county council, in addition to the Secretary of State and the Minister of Health, to the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries, the Registrar General, and the council of the Urban district concerned.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT, 1933.

Standing Orders.

SIR,

1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to state that after consulting the Associations of Local Authorities he has issued the model standing orders of which

(a) Ante, p. 771.

* The enclosure is not being sent to Parish Councils. A Parish Council wishing for a copy can obtain one from the Ministry on application.

a copy is enclosed for the guidance of Local Authorities in their proceedings and business. The many requests he has had for such a model series from Local Authorities desirous of making standing orders in pursuance of Part V of the Third Schedule to the Local Government Act, 1933, leave no doubt that one will be helpful.

Parish Councils, and some other Local Authorities whose business does not call for elaborate organisation, may find the full series unnecessary, while some Local Authorities may desire to expand it. The present series has, however, been drawn up after scrutiny of the standing orders adopted under earlier Acts of Parliament in districts of very different types, and it is believed that it will meet all ordinary needs. Where a Local Authority's existing standing orders are found satisfactory in practice and are not in conflict with the Local Government Act, 1933, the Minister is not to be taken as suggesting that they should be superseded by standing orders based on the model series, but the inquiries he has received from Local Authorities show that in many places standing orders have not been revised for many years, while the coming into operation of the Local Government Act, 1933, makes it desirable that every Local Authority shall at least consider whether its standing orders need to be brought up to date.

Extracts from statutes governing the conduct of business have been prefixed to the model series, and it is suggested that a Local Authority adopting standing orders will do well to reprint also the appropriate extracts from the Acts.

2. The opportunity may be taken to mention two points more closely related to the earlier series of model standing orders, namely those issued on the 28th March, 1934, with respect to contracts.

Firstly, the Minister has been consulted on the application of those standing orders to Joint Boards and Joint Committees, since section 266 of the Act does not by itself extend to them. A simple procedure is provided in section 293 of the Act for applying other sections of the Act to Joint Boards or Joint Committees constituted by Order. As regards Joint Committees constituted by agreement, power is given in section 96 of the Act, enabling standing orders to be made by the Local Authorities appointing them. It is plainly desirable that the contracts of Joint Boards or Joint Committees shall be subject to the same requirements as those of their constituent bodies, and the Minister suggests that advantage be taken of the procedure mentioned.

Secondly, it seems that the practice of Local Authorities has differed as to whether deposits paid by contractors on tenders for public works shall be in the custody of the person in charge of the works or of the Clerk of the Local Authority. The Minister thinks it better that tenders should be returnable to the Clerk of the Local Authority who should account for any deposit which is paid and for any security given for performance of the contract.

Further copies of this circular and of the model series of standing orders may be bought, directly or through any bookseller, from His Majesty's Stationery Office at any of the addresses shown below.

Your obedient Servant,
E. H. RHODES,
Assistant Secretary.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Order of business.

3.—(1) Except where the Council on the ground of urgency vary the order of business in accordance with part (2) of this standing order, the order of business at every meeting of the Council shall be—

(a) To choose a person to preside if the {Mayor / Chairman and Vice-Chairman} be absent.

*(b) Any business required by statute to be done before any other business.

(c) To read and approve as a correct record the minutes of the last meeting of the Council. Provided that, if a copy has been circulated to each member of the Council not later than the date of issue of the summons to attend the meeting, they shall be taken as read.

(d) shall be put to the vote without discussion.

* See the extracts from the Local Government Act, 1933, printed with these standing orders. [It is suggested that the starred note be printed with the standing orders. The relevant sections are 4 (1); 7 (1); 19 (1); 22 (1); 33 (2); and 49 (2).]

[1] Since the summons must specify the business to be transacted, the reports should where possible be circulated with or clearly referred to in the summons, and business can not be transacted under heading (m) unless the subject has been specified in the summons

[2] If a Finance Committee be appointed this will be unnecessary.

[3] Some Local Authorities may prefer this simplified form:

"(2) The Council may at any meeting vary the order of business so as to give precedence to any business which, in the opinion of the {Mayor / Chairman,} is of a special urgency, but such a variation shall not displace business falling under items (a) and (b) in part (1) of this standing order."

numbered in the order in which it is received, and entered in a book which shall be open to the inspection of every member of the Council.

The {Town Clerk / Clerk of the Council} shall insert in the summons for every meeting of the Council all notices of motion duly given in the order in which they have been received, unless the member giving such a notice has, when giving it, intimated in writing that he proposes to move it at some later meeting or has withdrawn it in writing.

If a motion, notice of which is thus specified in the summons, be not moved it shall, unless postponed by consent of the Council, be treated as abandoned and shall not be moved without fresh notice.

Motions for which notice has been duly given, the subject matter of which comes within the province of any Committee or Committees, shall upon being moved and seconded stand referred without discussion to such Committee or Committees, or to such other Committee or Committees as the Council may determine, for consideration and report. Provided that the {Mayor / Chairman} may, if he considers it convenient and conducive to the dispatch of business, allow such motion to be dealt with at the meeting at which it is brought forward.

(5) Where the reply to any question cannot conveniently be given orally, it shall be deemed a sufficient reply if the answer is circulated to members of the Council with the minutes of the meeting at which the question has been asked.

Minutes.

7. As soon as the minutes have been read, or if they are under standing order 3 taken as read, the {Mayor / Chairman} shall put the question that the minutes of the meeting of the Council held on the day of be signed as a true record.

No motion or discussion shall take place upon the minutes, except upon their accuracy, and any question of their accuracy shall be raised by motion. If no such question is raised, or if it is raised then as soon as it has been disposed of, the {Mayor / Chairman} shall sign the minutes.

Rules of debate.

8.—(1) A motion or amendment shall not be discussed unless it has been proposed and seconded, and unless notice has already been given in accordance with standing order 4 it shall, if required by the {Mayor, / Chairman,} be reduced to writing and handed to the {Mayor / Chairman} before it is further discussed or put to the meeting.

(2) A member when seconding a motion or amendment may, if he then declare his intention to do so, reserve his speech until a later period of the debate.

(3) A member shall stand when speaking, and shall address the {Mayor / Chairman}. If two or more members rise, the {Mayor / Chairman} shall call on one to speak.

(4) A member shall direct his speech to the question under discussion or to an explanation or to a question of order. No speech shall exceed[1] minutes except by consent of the Council.

(5) An amendment shall be either—

(a) to leave out words;

(b) to leave out words and insert or add others;

(c) to insert or add words;

but such omission or insertion of words shall not have the effect of introducing a new proposal into or of negativing the motion before the Council.

(6) If an amendment be rejected, other amendments may be moved on the original motion. If an amendment be carried, the motion as amended shall take the place of the original motion and shall become the motion upon which any further amendment may be moved.

(7) A further amendment shall not be moved until the Council shall have disposed of every amendment previously moved.

(8) A member shall not speak more than once on any motion except to move a further amendment or on any amendment, except in the exercise of the right of reply given by standing order 11, or in a point of order, or by way of personal explanation, or to move in so many words "That the question be now put."

(9) A member may at the conclusion of a speech of another member move without comment, "That the question be now put," "That the debate be now adjourned," "That the Council proceed to the next business," or "That the Council do now adjourn," on the seconding of which the { Mayor / Chairman } if in his opinion the question before the meeting has been sufficiently discussed shall, subject to the right of reply given by standing order 11, put that motion to the vote and if it is carried the question before the meeting shall be put to the vote or the subject of debate shall be deemed to be disposed of for that day or the meeting shall stand adjourned as the case may be.

(10) A member may rise to a point of order or in personal explanation, but a personal explanation shall be confined to some material part of a former speech by him at the same meeting which may have been misunderstood. A member so rising shall be entitled to be heard forthwith.

(11) The ruling of the { Mayor / Chairman } on a point of order or on the admissibility of a personal explanation shall not be open to discussion.

(12) Whenever the { Mayor / Chairman } rises during a debate a member then speaking or standing shall resume his seat and the Council shall be silent.

(13) A motion or amendment may be withdrawn by the proposer with the concurrence of the seconder and the consent of the Council, which shall be signified without discussion, and it shall not be competent for any member to speak upon it after the proposer has asked permission for its withdrawal, unless such permission shall have been refused.

(14) When a motion is under debate no other motion shall be moved except the following:—

(a) to amend the motion;
(b) to postpone consideration of the motion;
(c) to adjourn the meeting;
(d) to adjourn the debate;
(e) to proceed to the next business;
(f) that the question be now put;
(g) that a member be not further heard;
(h) that a member do leave the meeting;
(i) that the subject of debate be referred back to a Committee.

[1] Some Local Authorities have allowed longer time to the mover of a resolution than to others.

Disorderly Conduct.

9. If at a meeting any member of the Council, in the opinion of the { Mayor / Chairman } notified to the Council, misconduct himself by persistently disregarding the ruling of the Chair, or by behaving irregularly, improperly, or offensively, or by wilfully obstructing the business of the Council, it shall be competent for a member to move "That the member named be not further heard," or "That the member named do leave the meeting," and the motion if seconded shall be put and determined without discussion.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Suspension of sitting.

10. If after a motion under the foregoing standing order has been carried the misconduct or obstruction is continued, and in the opinion of the {Mayor / Chairman} renders the due and orderly dispatch of business impossible, the {Mayor / Chairman,} in addition to any other powers vested in him, may without question put adjourn or suspend the sitting of the Council for such period as he in his discretion shall consider expedient.

Right of reply.

11. The proposer of a motion shall have a right to reply at the close of the debate upon such motion, immediately before it is put to the vote, or before the motion, "That the debate be now adjourned," "That the Council proceed to the next business," or "That the Council do now adjourn," is put. If an amendment is proposed he shall be entitled to reply at the close of the debate upon the amendment. A member exercising a right of reply shall not introduce new matter. After every reply to which this standing order refers a decision shall be taken without further discussion.

Alteration of motion.

12. A member may with the consent of his seconder and of the Council, signified without discussion, alter a motion which he has proposed or of which notice has been given if the alteration is one which could have been moved as an amendment thereto.

Rescission of preceding resolution.

13. No motion to rescind any resolution passed within the preceding six months, and no motion or amendment to the same effect as one which has been negatived within the preceding six months, shall be proposed unless the notice thereof given in pursuance of standing order 4 bears the names of at least[1]
members of the Council. When any such motion has been disposed of by the Council, it shall not be open to any member to propose a similar motion within a further period of six months. This order shall not apply to motions moved in pursuance of the report or recommendation of a Committee.

[1] The figure inserted here should be a substantial proportion of the Council: in Boroughs and in other compact areas one-third of the members of the Council may be suitable.

[1]Voting.

14. Every question shall be determined by show of hands, and on the requisition of any member supported by other members who signify their support by rising in their places the voting on any question shall be recorded so as to show how each member present and voting gave his vote.

[1] For District and Parish Councils this is dealt with by the Third Schedule to the Local Government Act, 1933, and they should therefore omit this standing order.

Voting on appointments.

15. Where there are more than two persons nominated for any position to be filled by the Council, and of the votes given there is not a majority in favour of one person, the name of the person having the least number of votes shall be struck off the list and a fresh vote shall be taken, and so on until a majority of votes is given in favour of one person.

Power to resolve into Committee.

16. The Council may resolve itself into a Committee of the whole Council.

Motions affecting persons employed by the Council.

17. If any question arises at a meeting of the Council as to the appointment, promotion, dismissal, salary, or conditions of service, or as to the conduct, of any person employed by the Council, it shall be considered by the Council in Committee unless the Council otherwise resolve.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

[1]Motions on expenditure.

18. Any motion[2] [which is moved otherwise than in pursuance of a recommendation or report of the Finance Committee or of another Committee after the said recommendation or report has been approved by the Finance Committee, and] which if carried would materially increase the expenditure upon any service which is under the management of or reduce the revenue under the management of any Committee, or would involve capital expenditure shall when proposed and seconded stand adjourned without discussion to the next ordinary meeting of the Council, and any Committee affected by such motion shall consider whether it desires to report thereon. [The Finance Committee shall report on the financial aspect of the proposal.]

[1] This standing order is not appropriate to a County Council: see section 86 of the Local Government Act, 1933.

[2] The words in brackets in this standing order will have to be omitted if there is no Finance Committee.

[1]Admission of the public to meetings.

19. *The public shall be admitted to all meetings of the Council not being meetings of the Council in Committee so far as there is accommodation, but

(i) at any meeting the Council may temporarily exclude the public from such meeting or any part thereof while, owing to the special nature of the business being dealt with or about to be dealt with, they deem such exclusion advisable in the public interest;

(ii) if a member of the public interrupts the proceedings at any meeting the { Mayor / Chairman } may, after warning, order his removal from the Council Chamber or that the part of the Chamber open to the public shall be cleared.

[1] It may be desirable to print the following footnote with the standing orders.

* This standing order applies to the public the rule which the Local Authorities (Admission of the Press to Meetings) Act, 1908, applies to the press.

Interest of members in contracts and other matters.

20. If any member of the Council has any pecuniary interest direct or indirect within the meaning of section 76 of the Local Government Act, 1933, in any contract, proposed contract, or other matter, such member shall while such contract, proposed contract, or other matter, is under consideration by the Council withdraw from the meeting, unless

(i) the disability imposed upon him by that section has been removed by the Minister of Health under subsection (8) thereof; or

(ii) the Council invite him to remain; or

(iii) the contract, proposed contract, or other matter is under consideration by the Council as part of the report of a Committee and is not itself the subject of debate.

Interest of officers in contracts.

21. The { Town Clerk / Clerk of the Council } shall record in a book to be kept for the purpose particulars of any notice given by an officer of the Council under section 123 of the Local Government Act, 1933 of a pecuniary interest in a contract and the book shall be open during office hours to the inspection of any member of the Council.

Canvassing of and recommendations by members.

22.—(1) Canvassing of members of the Council or any Committee of the Council directly or indirectly for any appointment under the Council shall disqualify the candidate for such appointment. The purport of this paragraph of this standing order shall be included in every advertisement inviting applications for appointments or in the form of application.

(2) A member of the Council shall not solicit for any person any appointment under the Council, or recommend any person for such appointment or for promotion; but this paragraph of this standing order shall not preclude a member from giving a written testimonial of a candidate's ability, experience, or character, for submission to the Council with an application for appointment.

Relatives of members or officers.

23. Candidates for any appointment under the Council shall when making application disclose in writing to the {Town Clerk / Clerk of the Council} whether to their knowledge they are related to any member of or the holder of any senior office under the Council. A candidate who fails so to do shall be disqualified for such appointment and if appointed shall be liable to dismissal without notice. Every member and senior officer of the Council shall disclose to the Council any relationship known to him to exist between himself and a candidate for an appointment of which he is aware. It shall be the duty of the {Town Clerk / Clerk of the Council} to report to the Council or to the appropriate Committee any such disclosure made to him.

Where relationship to a member of the Council is disclosed the standing order headed "Interest of members in contracts and other matters" shall apply.

The purport of this standing order shall be stated either in the advertisement inviting applications for appointment or in any form of application supplied for use by candidates.

For the purpose of this standing order "senior office" and "senior officer" mean those designated as such by the [1]General Purposes Committee, and persons shall be deemed to be related if they are husband and wife or if either of them or the spouse of either of them is the son or daughter or grandson or granddaughter or brother or sister or nephew or niece of the other, or of the spouse of the other.

[1] Or other appropriate Committee: see the first note to standing order 24.

Filling of vacancies and new offices.

24.—(1) When a vacancy occurs in any existing [1]*senior office in the appointment of the Council, or the creation of a new [1]*senior office is proposed, the {Town Clerk / Clerk of the Council} shall inform the [2]General Purposes Committee who, in consultation with any other Committee primarily served, shall consider whether the office (not being an office which by statute the Council are required to fill) is necessary and what shall be the terms or conditions of the office and shall report thereon to the Council at their next meeting.

For the purposes of this standing order it shall be deemed that a Committee has been consulted if there has been consultation with their Chairman, Vice-Chairman if any, and one other member (or if there be no Vice-Chairman, two other members) designated by the Chairman of the Committee.

Where a [3]standing deputy has not been appointed the [2]General Purposes Committee may, if they think fit, appoint some person to carry on temporarily the duties of the office until a successor be appointed and may fix the remuneration to be paid to such person.

(2) All vacancies to be filled in offices in the appointment of the Council not being at a weekly wage, unless they are to be filled by promotion or transfer, shall be publicly advertised. Provided that where, within six months of the filling of a vacancy which has been publicly advertised, a similar vacancy occurs in an office in the appointment of the Council, the [1]General Purposes Committee may recommend the Council to appoint one of the former applicants. A vacancy to be filled in a [1]*senior office which is not to be filled by promotion or transfer shall be advertised in one or more newspapers or journals circulating primarily among persons who may be expected to possess the necessary qualifications for the office.

[1] The following note might be printed to save repetition:
* For the meaning of this expression see standing order 23.
[2] Or other appropriate Committee: see the Report of the Departmental Committee on Local Government Officers, 1934, as to the appointment of an Establishment Committee.
[3] See section 115 of the Local Government Act, 1933.

[1]Custody of seal.

25. The Common Seal of the Council shall be kept in some safe place and shall be secured by two different locks, the keys of which shall be kept respectively by the {Mayor / Chairman} and the {Town Clerk. / Clerk of the Council.} Provided that the {Mayor / Chairman} may entrust his key temporarily to another member of the Council with a written authority to such member to exercise his powers, and similarly the {Town Clerk / Clerk of the Council} may entrust his key temporarily to any standing deputy appointed by the Council.

[1] This standing order is not applicable to Parish Councils.

[1]Sealing of Documents.

26. The Common Seal of the Council shall not be affixed to any document unless the sealing has been authorised by a resolution of the Council or of a Committee to which the Council have delegated their powers in this behalf, but a resolution of the Council (or of a Committee where that Committee has the power) authorising the acceptance of any tender, the purchase, sale, letting, or taking of any property, the issue of any stock, the presentation of any petition, memorial, or address, the making of any rate or contract, or any other matter or thing, shall be a sufficient authority for sealing any document necessary to give effect to the resolution.

The seal shall be attested by one at least of the following persons present at the sealing, viz., the {Mayor or Deputy Mayor, / Chairman or Vice-Chairman of the Council,} the {Town Clerk or Deputy Town Clerk, / Clerk or Deputy Clerk of the Council,} and an entry of every sealing of a document shall be made and consecutively numbered in a book to be provided for the purpose and shall be signed by the person or by persons who shall have attested the seal.

[1] Parish Councils adopting this standing order should adopt the following simplified form:

"A document shall not be sealed on behalf of the Council unless its sealing has been authorised by a resolution of the Council."

[1]Signature of orders for payment.

27. All orders made by the Council for the payment of money shall be authorised by a resolution of the Council and signed by [three] members present at the meeting, of whom one shall be the Chairman, and shall be countersigned by the Clerk of the Council.

[1] This standing order is suitable for District Councils only. Other Local Authorities are governed by sections 184, 187, and 193 (8) of the Local Government Act, 1933.

Signature of documents.

28. Where any document will be a necessary step in legal proceedings on behalf of the Council it shall, unless any enactment otherwise requires or authorises or the Council shall have given the necessary authority to some other person for the purpose of such proceedings, be signed by the {Town Clerk. / Clerk of the Council.}

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

[1]Inspection of documents.

29. *A member of the Council may for purposes of his duty as such member but not otherwise inspect any document which has been considered by a Committee or by the Council, and if copies are available shall on request be supplied for the like purposes with a copy of such document. Provided that a member shall not knowingly inspect and shall not call for a copy of any document relating to a matter in which he is professionally interested or in which he has directly or indirectly any pecuniary interest within the meaning of section 76 of the Local Government Act, 1933, and that this standing order shall not preclude the {Town Clerk / Clerk of the Council} or the solicitor to the Council from declining to allow inspection of any document which is or in the event of legal proceedings would be protected by privilege arising from the relationship of solicitor and client.

All minutes kept by any Committee shall be open for the inspection of any member of the Council during office hours.

[1] It may be desirable to print the following footnote with the standing orders:

* This standing order does not affect the right of inspection given by section 283 of the Local Government Act, 1933, subsection (3) of which is among the extracts printed with these standing orders.

Inspection of lands, premises, etc.

30. A member of the Council, unless authorised to do so by the Council or a Committee, shall not inspect any lands or premises which the Council have the right or duty to inspect, or enter upon or issue any order respecting any works which are being carried out by or on behalf of the Council.

Appointment of Committees.

31. The Council shall at the Annual Meeting appoint such Statutory and Standing Committees, and may at any time appoint such other Committees as are necessary to carry out the work of the Council but, subject to any statutory provision in that behalf,

(i) shall not appoint any member of a Committee so as to hold office later than the next Annual Meeting of the Council.

(ii) may at any time dissolve or alter the membership of a Committee.

Proceedings in Committee to be confidential.

32. A member of a Committee (including the Council in Committee) shall not disclose a matter dealt with by or brought before the Committee without its permission until the Committee shall have reported to the Council or shall otherwise have concluded action on that matter.

[1]Approval of plans : delegation of powers.

33. The consideration of all plans which in virtue of section 158 of the Public Health Act, 1875, require approval or disapproval by the Council shall stand referred without motion or debate to the Committee, and it shall be the duty of that Committee to consider them accordingly and to meet so often as will ensure exercising the said power within the period prescribed by law.

[1] This standing order is not appropriate to a County Council or a Parish Council. The Council of a Borough, Urban District, or Rural District, should implement this standing order by a resolution under section 85 of the Local Government Act, 1933, formally delegating to the appropriate Committee the power of dealing with such plans.

List of Committees.

34. The following Committees shall be the Standing Committees of the Council and shall consist of the number of members (exclusive of the {Mayor / Chairman of the Council}) respectively set opposite such Committee :—[1]

[1] The Committees and number of members should be inserted. One of these would normally be the Finance Committee : see also the note to clause 1 in the model standing orders for contracts, as to a General Purposes Committee ; and the Report of the Departmental Committee on Local Government Officers as to an Establishment Committee.

Composition of Committees.

35. Except where otherwise provided by statute or a scheme made under statutory authority, the {Mayor / Chairman of the Council} shall be ex-officio a member of every Standing Committee appointed by the Council.

Election of Chairman of Committee.

36. Every Committee shall, at its first meeting, before proceeding to any other business, elect a Chairman and if it so desires may elect a Vice-Chairman for the year, in whose absence from a meeting a Chairman for the meeting may be appointed.

Special meetings of Committees.

37. The Chairman of a Committee or the {Mayor / Chairman of the Council} may summon a special meeting of the Committee at any time. A special meeting shall also be summoned on the requisition in writing of a quarter of the members of the Committee. The summons shall set out the business to be considered at the special meeting, and no other business than that set out shall be considered at that meeting.

Sub-Committees.

38. Every Committee appointed by the Council may appoint Sub-Committees for purposes to be specified by the Committee. Except where powers or duties are delegated to a Sub-Committee whose acts in pursuance of any statutory enactment need not be submitted to the Committee for approval, no act of a Sub-Committee shall have effect until approved by the Committee.

The Chairman and the Vice-Chairman, if any, of the Committee shall be ex-officio members of every Sub-Committee appointed by that Committee, unless they signify in writing to the {Town Clerk / Clerk of the Council} that they do not wish to service.

Quorum.

39. Except where authorised by statute or ordered by the Council, business shall not be transacted at a meeting of any Committee, and except as aforesaid or otherwise ordered by the Committee which has appointed a Sub-Committee, business shall not be transacted at a meeting of a Sub-Committee, unless at least one-quarter of the whole number of the Committee or Sub-Committee is present. Provided that in no case shall the quorum of a Committee be less than three members.

[1]Voting in Committee.

40. *All questions in Committee shall be determined by show of hands by a majority of the members of the Committee present and voting.

[1] It is suggested that the following footnote be printed with the standing orders:
* See section 96 (2) of the Local Government Act, 1933, as to the second or casting vote of the Chairman.

[1]Standing orders to apply to Committees.

41. The standing orders of the council as to rules of debate at Council meetings, and the standing order headed "Interest of members in contracts and other matters," shall mutatis mutandis apply to Committee and Sub-Committee meetings, except those parts of standing order 8 which relate to standing and to speaking more than once.

[1] Local Authorities adopting this standing order in principle may wish to consider other exceptions. The first fifteen words (and consequently the concluding exception) may not be found necessary by smaller Local Authorities.

Proposer of motion may attend.

42. A member of the Council who has proposed a motion which has been referred to any Committee shall have notice of the meeting of the Committee at which it is proposed to consider the motion, and if he attends shall have an opportunity of explaining it.

Accounts and claims.

43.—(1) Except as provided in part (2) of this standing order or where otherwise provided by [1]statute, all accounts for payment by and claims upon the Council shall before being laid before the Council be recommended for payment by the Committee if any having charge of the business to which they relate, or if there is no such Committee or the Council so order by the [2]Finance Committee, and such Committee shall before recommending payment satisfy itself that the accounts or claims have been duly examined and certified as correct by the appropriate officer or officers.

(2) Where it is necessary to make any payment which has not already been specifically laid before the Council under part (1) of this standing order, such payment shall be certified as to its correctness and as to its urgency by the appropriate officer or officers. Unless it has been otherwise authorised by the Council such payment shall, where practicable, be authorised by [3][the Committee if any having charge of the business to which it relates] or by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman of that Committee and by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman of the Finance Committee.

(3) All payments authorised under part (2) of this standing order or made without order of the Council under any statutory enactment shall be separately included in the next schedule of payments laid before the Council, for the information of the Council.

[1] See sections 184 and 187 of the Local Government Act, 1933, which lay it down that with specified exceptions payments shall not be made by the Councils of Counties and Boroughs except in pursuance of an order of the Council. Other Local Authorities adopting this standing order in principle may advantageously follow a similar practice, and then substitute the words " shall be laid before the Council, but before being so laid " for the words " shall before being laid before the Council " in the third and fourth lines.

[2] If there is no Finance Committee, some other appropriate Committee should be inserted in this standing order.

[3] The words in brackets may have to be adjusted to the established practice of the Local Authority: for example, " The Accounts Sub-Committee of the appropriate Committee " might be substituted and " Sub-Committee " for " Committee " where it next occurs.

Submission of estimates.

44. Every Committee having power to incur expenditure defrayed out of rates shall submit to the [1]Finance Committee not later than the week in an estimate, in a form approved by the Council, of the proposed expenditure to be recommended by such Committee for the ensuing year, and as soon as possible after the end of each quarter shall obtain from the chief financial officer of the Council and shall submit to the [1]Finance Committee statements of the revenue received and the expenditure incurred in that quarter. A Committee shall before incurring any expenditure not included in an approved estimate submit to the [1]Finance Committee a supplementary estimate accompanied by a detailed statement in support of the expenditure.

[2]or

44. Every Committee shall at each statutory meeting of the Council, or oftener if required to do so by the Council, submit a report of all things done under their control and also of the works and expenditure which they anticipate will be required during the ensuing quarter, and any proposal to incur expenditure which cannot lawfully be incurred except upon a resolution of the Council passed on an estimate submitted by the Finance Committee shall thereupon stand referred without motion or discussion to the Finance Committee.

[1] See the note to the preceding standing order.

[2] County Councils may like to consider the alternative standing order.

Variation and revocation of standing orders.

45. Any motion to vary or revoke these standing orders shall when proposed and seconded stand adjourned without discussion to the next ordinary meeting of the Council.

Suspension of standing orders.

46. Any of the preceding standing orders may be suspended so far as regards any business at the meeting where its suspension is moved, but except upon notice of motion duly given in pursuance of standing order 4 shall not be suspended unless there are present at least [1][one-half of the whole number of members of the Council] [seven members of the Council].

[1] The first alternative can be adopted by any Council other than the Council of an Urban or Rural District which consists of more than fourteen members. The second is the only provision which can be adopted by a Council of the latter class: see the proviso to rule 4 in Part III of the Third Schedule to the Local Government Act, 1933.

Standing orders to be given to members.

47. A printed copy of these standing orders, and of such parts of the Local Government Act, 1933, as govern the procedure at meetings of the Council, shall be given to each member of the Council by the {Town Clerk / Clerk of the Council} upon delivery to him of the member's declaration of acceptance of office.

"adjusting amount" means in relation to any separately rated area the amount which in any year in accordance with the provisions of subsection (1) of section 94 of the Act of 1929 falls for that year to be added to or but for the proviso to subparagraph (ii) of paragraph (c) of that subsection deducted from the capitation sum of the council of a county district in respect of that area;

"compensation" means any sum payable by the Minister to a rural district council under paragraph (a) of subsection (1) of section 92 of the Act of 1929 together with any minimum amount payable by the County Council under subparagraph (b) of that subsection as amended by section 5 of the Act of 1937;

"rateable value" means rateable value at the date of alteration according to the valuation lists then in force:

Provided that where all the councils affected by an alteration notify the Minister that they have agreed to that effect "rateable value" shall for the purpose of the adjustments upon that alteration be taken to mean rateable value at the date of the alteration as shown on that day in the valuation lists then in force.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply to the interpretation of these regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament.

3. Where an alteration affects the boundary of a county or county borough the following provisions shall have effect :—

(1) The losses on account of rates and grants of each county or county borough affected shall be increased or reduced by such amounts as the Minister may determine having regard to the losses on account of rates and grants respectively estimated by him to be attributable in respect of the standard year to the several areas added to or taken away from the counties or county boroughs affected so however that the aggregate amounts of such losses on account of rates and grants respectively for all the counties and county boroughs affected shall remain unaltered.

(2) The losses on account of rates and grants of each county and county borough affected as increased or reduced in accordance with paragraph (1) of this regulation shall (so far as calculations of grants are under the Act of 1929 to be based on losses on account of rates and grants) be used in the calculations of grants payable in any fixed grant period commencing on or after the date of alteration, and shall be in substitution for the losses on account of rates and grants of that county or county borough as at any time previously determined by the Minister.

(3) For the purpose of the calculation of any Additional Exchequer Grant payable in any fixed grant period commencing on or after the date of alteration in respect of an altered county or county borough the weighted population for the first fixed grant period of that county or county borough as altered shall be deemed to be a number which bears the same proportion to the weighted population as estimated by the Minister of that altered county or county borough for the fixed grant period current at the date of alteration as the weighted population for the first fixed grant period of that county or county borough as unaltered bears to what the Minister estimates would have been its weighted population in the fixed grant period current at the date of alteration if the alteration had not taken place.

(4) Subject as hereinafter provided in the case of any alteration taking effect on a date other than the first day of any fixed grant period the county or county borough apportionment of each county and county borough and the Additional Exchequer Grant (if any) of each county council and county borough council affected by the alteration shall until the termination of the fixed grant period current at the date of alteration only be increased or reduced by such amounts as the Minister may determine having regard to the undermentioned factors viz. :—

(a) The amounts calculated in accordance with paragraph (1) of this regulation which the Minister determines to be the losses on account of rates and grants of each of the counties or county boroughs affected ;

(b) The weighted population as estimated by the Minister for the fixed grant period in question of each of the altered counties or county boroughs ; and

(c) The weighted population for the first fixed grant period of each of the altered counties or county boroughs as estimated by the Minister in accordance with paragraph (3) of this regulation :

Provided that if the aggregate of the amounts of the following items viz. :—

(i) the county and county borough apportionments as so calculated solely by reference to these factors of the several counties and county boroughs concerned ; and

(ii) the Additional Exchequer Grants as so calculated of the councils of those counties and county boroughs exceeds or is less than the aggregate of the amounts of the following items viz. :—

(iii) the county and county borough apportionments previously determined for those counties and county boroughs ; and

(iv) the Additional Exchequer Grants that would have been payable to the councils of those counties and county boroughs if the alteration had not been effected ;

then each apportionment and grant included in the first-mentioned aggregate as so calculated shall if the first-mentioned aggregate exceeds the second-mentioned aggregate be reduced or if the first-mentioned aggregate is less than the second-mentioned aggregate be increased by a sum bearing the same proportion to such apportionment or grant as the difference between such aggregates bears to the first-mentioned aggregate :

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Provided also that where all the county councils and county borough councils affected by an alteration notify the Minister that they are in agreement that no adjustment under this paragraph is necessary the Minister may if he thinks fit dispense with any such adjustment.

4. Where an alteration affects a county district the following provisions shall as from the date of alteration have effect with regard to the sum to be set aside out of the county apportionment and with regard to the General Exchequer Grant payable to the council of the county district:—

(1) The capitation sum in respect of the district shall be recalculated (or in the case of a newly formed district calculated) as if the date of alteration were the first day of April in the last year of the preceding fixed grant period.

(2) For the purpose of this regulation each separately rated area transferred shall be deemed to be a separately rated area in the rating area to which it is transferred and where a separately rated area is divided so that part thereof is transferred and part thereof is not transferred or where part of a separately rated area is transferred to one rating area and another part to another rating area then each such part shall be deemed to be a separately rated area and an amount bearing the same proportion to the adjusting amount of the undivided separately rated area as the rateable value of such part bears to the rateable value of the undivided separately rated area shall be deemed to be the adjusting amount of such part:

Provided that where the adjusting amount of any separately rated area in a diminished district was in the rating period immediately preceding the date of alteration applied by the council of the district otherwise than wholly to that area the Minister may make the adjustment provided for in this regulation in such manner as shall take account of such application.

(3) The amount which would under paragraphs (b) and (c) of subsection (1) of section 94 of the Act of 1929 fall to be added to or (but for the proviso to sub-paragraph (ii) of paragraph (c) of that subsection) deducted from the capitation sum in respect of any altered district shall be an amount ascertained by taking into account the adjusting amounts of all the separately rated areas included in the altered district and the sum if any payable under the said proviso and the addition or deduction to be made under the said paragraphs after effect has been given to the said proviso shall be calculated accordingly.

(4) Any compensation payable in respect of a transferred area (or any part thereof) shall—

(i) in a case where the transferred area (or part) ceases to form part of a rural district cease to be payable as from the date of alteration; and

(ii) in any other case so far as payable in respect of the year in which the alteration takes effect and of any subsequent year within the then current fixed grant period on account of any area continuing to form part of a rural district be payable as from the date of alteration to the council of the rural district of which the transferred area form part and be applicable as compensation payable to the council of that rural district and the annual amount so applicable shall be taken into account in calculating the compensation payable to that rural district council in subsequent fixed grant periods:

Provided that in the case of a separately rated area which is not wholly transferred from a rural district any compensation payable in respect of that area shall be apportioned between the various parts of that area in proportion to the rateable values of those parts and the amount so apportioned to any part shall for the purposes of these regulations be deemed (in any case where that part continues to form part of a rural district) to be the compensation payable in respect of that part:

Provided also that where the compensation in respect of any separately rated area in a diminished rural district was in the rating period immediately preceding the date of alteration wholly or partially applied by the council of the district other than to that area the Minister may make the adjustment provided for in this regulation in such manner as shall take account of such application.

(5) Where the council of a county district affected by an alteration is a council carrying out services under section 204 of the Public Health Act, 1936, and the General Exchequer Grant of that council is increased in accordance with a scheme made under section 93 of the Act of 1929 the Minister after consultation with the councils of the county and of the county district may make such modifications of that scheme as he considers necessary.

5. Where the Minister under section 200 of the Public Health Act, 1936 (a), has provided from some date after the commencement of any fixed grant period for the transfer of services under section 204 of that Act (b), from a county council to the council of a county district the sum to be set aside out of the county apportionment in respect of such district shall from the date of such transfer to the end of that fixed grant period be increased by such amount as the Minister may determine, regard being had to the expenditure upon such services which will be defrayed by the council of the district:

Provided always that the effect of any such changes shall not be taken into account for the purpose of making any calculation or adjustment under section 94 of the Act of 1929.

6. These regulations shall not apply where an alteration affects the boundary of the county of London or of any area within that county or affects the London County Council the Common Council of the City of London or the council of any metropolitan borough or includes the constitution of a new county or county borough.

Given under the official seal of the Minister of Health this second day of September, nineteen hundred and thirty-eight.

Note.—A Circular and the Regulations issued by the Local Government Board in August, 1918, were reprinted at p. 3548 of the tenth edition, for convenience of reference, although the grants formerly payable under the Regulations were among those discontinued by Sched. The Circular included some paragraphs which despite changes in the law may still be valuable, but considerations of space have compelled the omission of the whole from this edition.

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL, S.W.1.
February 12th, 1930.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT, 1929.

SIR,—1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to refer to Section 59 of the Local Government Act, 1929 (a), and to enclose copies of the regulations made under that Section prescribing the qualifications of Medical Officers and Health Visitors appointed by Local Authorities under the Maternity and Child Welfare Act, 1918 (b), the Public Health (Tuberculosis) Act, 1921 (c), and the Public Health (Venereal Diseases) Regulations, 1916 (d). These Regulations will come into operation on April 1st next, and on and after that date it will not be necessary for Local Authorities to obtain the approval of the Minister to individual appointments of any officers appointed to carry out duties under the Acts of 1918 and 1921, or the Regulations of 1916.

2. The Minister has had under consideration the general question of the extent to which the statutory provisions now governing the administration by Local Authorities of the maternity and child welfare, tuberculosis, and venereal diseases services, will necessitate his approval being obtained after March 31st next to developments of these services. He is advised that these provisions generally require his approval or sanction to the arrangements made by Local Authorities for discharging the functions in question. The principle underlying the Local Government Act, 1929, is that Local Authorities should have as much freedom as possible in administering the health services. The Minister has caused the existing statutes and regulations to be examined from that standpoint, and instructs me to make the following observations as to each of the three specified services.

Maternity and Child Welfare.

3. Section 1 of the Maternity and Child Welfare Act, 1918, enables Local Authorities to make such arrangements as may be sanctioned by the Minister for attending to the health of expectant and nursing mothers, and of children under the age of 5 years who are not being educated in schools recognised by the Board of Education; and Section 2 of the Notification of Births (Extension) Act, 1915 (e), empowers Local Authorities, for the purpose of the care of expectant and nursing mothers, and young children, to exercise any powers which a Sanitary Authority have under the Public Health Acts, 1875 to 1907, or the Public Health (London) Act, 1891.

(a) 10 Halsbury's Statutes 922. Since repealed; see note (f) on s. 106 (1) of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 882, for the substituted provisions and the continuance of the regulations of 1930. The regulations are printed, post, p. 3296, as amended by regulations of 1933, as to which see Circular 1336, dated May 13th, 1933, post, p. 3317.
(b) 11 Halsbury's Statutes 742. Now repealed, see ante, p. 470.
(c) 13 Halsbury's Statutes 971. Now repealed, except s. 6, see P. H. A., 1936, ss. 171–175, ante, p. 438.
(d) Ante, p. 2472.
(e) 15 Halsbury's Statutes 767. Now repealed, see ante, p. 470.

MATERNITY, CHILD WELFARE, AND MIDWIVES

4. The Minister is advised that the latter Section enables Local Authorities to provide Infant Welfare Centres, Ante-natal Clinics, Hospitals for pregnant women, and for sick and ailing children, and Convalescent Homes for mothers and young children. It will, therefore, not be necessary for the Minister's sanction to be obtained in future to the provision or extension of any institutions of these kinds unless the Local Authority propose to raise a loan to defray any necessary capital expenditure. Similarly, any arrangements which the Local Authority propose to make with the managers of voluntary institutions of these kinds, which provide services of the standard required by the Local Authority, can be made without the sanction of the Minister.

5. The authority for other services commonly provided as part of the arrangements for Maternity and Child Welfare, such for instance as health visiting, a midwifery service, maternity nursing and nursing for expectant mothers and young children, home helps, day nurseries, and the supply of milk or meals, must be found in Section 1 of the Act of 1918, and the Minister is advised that his sanction will still be necessary to the provision of any of these services. But in all cases in which any one of these services has already been provided by a Local Authority with his approval, he hereby sanctions the extension of that service to such an extent, and in such a manner, as the Authority think desirable.

Treatment of Tuberculosis.

6. Under the Public Health (Tuberculosis) Act, 1921, County and County Borough Councils are required to carry out and continue in operation the schemes of institutional treatment approved by the Minister or his predecessors, and any modifications of those schemes need the Minister's approval. The institutions in which treatment is given, i.e., dispensaries, sanatoria and hospitals, have also to be approved by the Minister. Section 3 of the Public Health (Prevention and Treatment of Disease) Act, 1913 (a), enables Local Authorities to make such arrangements as may be sanctioned by the Minister for the treatment of tuberculosis.

7. The Minister is advised that it will be necessary for his approval to be obtained to any proposed modification of an approved scheme of institutional treatment which would result in smaller provision being made for treatment, but he hereby sanctions any extension of a scheme which the Council may think desirable, so long as the extension provides for treatment being given at institutions approved by the Minister.

8. The formal approval of institutions has been given by the Minister subject, in each case, to certain specified conditions (see Section 3 of the Act of 1921), and the Minister hereby varies those conditions in the case of institutions belonging to County and County Borough Councils, or Joint Committees of those Councils, so as to require only the following conditions to be observed :—

(1) That the institution and the records kept thereat will be open to inspection at any time by any officer of the Ministry.

(2) That such records will be kept and such returns will be made in connection with the institution as the Minister may from time to time require.

And, in the case of an institution in which children are treated, the following further condition :—

(3) That if the Board of Education make any requirements in regard to educational arrangements for the children, those requirements will be satisfactorily met.

It will not in future be necessary for the Minister's approval to be obtained to proposed extensions of these institutions unless the cost is to be defrayed by means of a loan.

9. Under Section 3 of the Act of 1913 arrangements have been sanctioned by which Local Authorities have been enabled to provide certain forms of non-institutional treatment for tuberculosis, such as nursing in the homes of patients and the supply of extra nourishment for patients who are living at home. The Minister is advised that it will be necessary for his sanction to be obtained in any case in which a Local Authority propose to initiate any such arrangements, but he hereby sanctions any extension which the Local Authority think desirable of arrangements already approved.

Venereal Diseases.

10. The Public Health (Venereal Diseases) Regulations, 1916, require County and County Borough Councils to make arrangements for the pathological examination of specimens, for the provision of treatment at hospitals or other institutions, and for the supply of arsenobenzene preparations to medical practitioners. These arrangements are subject to the approval of the Minister, and the Regulations also require his approval of the laboratories at which specimens are examined, and of the institutions at which treatment is given.

11. The Minister is advised that it will be necessary, under the Regulations, for his approval to be obtained to any proposed modifications of the arrangements already approved which would result in a curtailment of the existing facilities for diagnosis or treatment, but he hereby sanctions any extension of such arrangements which the Councils may think desirable, provided that the arrangements are made with approved laboratories or institutions. It will also be necessary to obtain his approval of the supply to medical practitioners of any arsenobenzene preparation which is not included in the lists of approved preparations issued from time to time by this Department.

12. The Minister's approval of laboratories and institutions has been given subject in each case to certain specified conditions, and he hereby varies the terms of these approvals so as to require only the following conditions to be observed :—

(1) That the laboratory or institution, and the records kept thereat, will be open to inspection at any time by any officer of the Ministry.

(2) That such records will be kept, and such returns will be made, of the work of the laboratory or institution, as the Minister may from time to time require.

(3) That the Wassermann tests at the laboratory will be performed under the personal supervision of the medical officer in charge of the laboratory, and that such tests will conform to the standards of technique approved by the Minister.

And, in the case of a laboratory or institution which is not provided by a Local Authority, the following further condition :—

(4) That the medical officer in charge of the laboratory or institution possesses the qualifications prescribed in the Regulations made by the Minister under section 59 of the Local Government Act, 1929, for a medical officer in charge of a laboratory or for a medical officer in clinical charge of a Treatment Centre, provided by a Local Authority, as the case may be.

General.

13. Although the formal approval of the Minister will not in future be required to the establishment or extension of institutions provided under these three services, unless it is proposed to raise a loan to defray the cost, the Department will, of course, be prepared at any time to advise on the planning, equipment or staffing of such institutions, or in regard to any proposed extensions. Considerable experience has now been accumulated in the planning of maternity homes, sanatoria and venereal disease clinics. It seems to the Minister essential that the fullest use should be made of this experience and the Ministry will hold itself in readiness to place it at the disposal of Local Authorities, and to give any other assistance or advice which may be desired.

14. The inspection by the Medical Officers of the Department of these services, and of the institutions and premises in which the services are carried on, will, in future, usually form part of the general inspection of public health services to be undertaken from time to time in each area. These inspections, both general and particular, will be required in order that the Minister may be satisfied that each Local Authority is maintaining a reasonable standard of efficiency and progress in the discharge of their functions relating to public health services, as defined in the

Local Government Act, 1929, regard being had to the standards maintained in other areas whose financial resources and other relevant circumstances are substantially similar.

15. A further communication will be addressed to Local Authorities in due course relative to the annual returns which the Minister will require in future under section 51 of the Act with respect, inter alia, to the three services to which this circular refers.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient Servant,
A. B. MACLACHLAN,
Assistant Secretary.

Joint Committee, or

BIRTH CONTROL.

NOTE.—This memorandum is substantially modified by circulars 1208 and 1408, post, pp. 3305, and 3318.

(b) The words in square brackets were added by the Local Government (Qualifications of Medical Officers and Health Visitors) (Amendment) Regulations, 1933, dated May 8th, S. The principal regulations printed as so amended may be cited as "The Local Government (Qualifications of Medical Officers and Health Visitors) Regulations."

MATERNITY, CHILD WELFARE, AND MIDWIVES

1. The Minister of Health is authorised to state that the Government have had under consideration the question of the use of institutions which are controlled by Local Authorities for the purpose of giving advice to women on contraceptive methods.

2. So far as Maternity and Child Welfare Centres (including Ante-Natal Centres) are concerned, these Centres can properly deal only with expectant mothers, nursing mothers and young children, and it is the view of the Government that it is not the function of the Centres to give advice in regard to birth control and that their use for such a purpose would be likely to damage the proper work of the Centres. At the same time the Government consider that, in cases where there are medical grounds for giving advice on contraceptive methods to married women in attendance at the Centres, it may be given but that such advice should be limited to cases where further pregnancy would be detrimental to health, and should be given at a separate session and under conditions such as will not disturb the normal and primary work of the Centre. The Minister will accordingly be unable to sanction any proposal for the use of these Centres for giving birth-control advice in other cases.

3. The Government are advised that Local Authorities have no general power to establish birth-control clinics as such, but that under the Notification of Births (Extension) Act, 1915 (a), which enables Local Authorities to exercise the powers of the Public Health Acts for the purpose of the care of expectant mothers and nursing mothers, it may properly he held that birth control clinics can be provided for these limited classes of women. Having regard to the acute division of public opinion on the subject of birth control, the Government have decided that no Departmental sanction which may be necessary to the establishment of such clincis for expectant and nursing mothers shall be given except on condition that contraceptive advice will be given only in cases where further pregnancy would be detrimental to health.

4. Under the Public Health Acts, Local Authorities have power to provide clinics at which medical advice and treatment would be available for women suffering from gynaecological conditions. But the enactments governing the provision of such clinics limit their availability to sick persons, and the Government have decided that any Departmental sanction which may be necessary to the establishment of such clincis shall be given only on the following conditions: (1) that the clinics will be available only for women who are in need of medical advice and treatment for gynaecological conditions, and (2) that advice on contraceptive methods will be given only to married women who attend the clinics for such medical advice or treatment, and in whose cases pregnancy would be detrimental to health.

WHITEHALL, S.W.1.

MATERNAL MORTALITY.

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to draw the attention of the Council to the Interim Report of the Departmental Committee on Maternal Mortality and Morbidity which has recently been published by H.M. Stationery Office.

The Government have considered the recommendations made by the Committee for removing the causes of preventable maternal death, and have decided to undertake the necessary negotiations with the various authorities concerned, with a view to formulating a scheme on a national basis for the care of maternity which would provide the services suggested by the Committee. But the Report makes it clear that two of the essential measures for securing a reduction in maternal mortality are (1) general and sustained efforts to enlighten the women of the country as to the importance of ante-natal supervision, and (2) the improvement and expension, where necessary, of the maternity services of Local Authorities, which must form an important part of any national scheme.

(a) 15 Halsbury's Statutes 767. Repealed; see now s. 204 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 475.

The Minister recognises that in many areas the Local Authorities and Voluntary Associations have already realised the importance of fully exercising their powers for the care of maternity, but there is still much to be done if the preventable maternal deaths are to be prevented. He desires to commend to the earnest attention of all Councils the suggestions in the accompanying Memorandum for improving and developing their maternity services, and for securing that the women most in need of these services are persuaded to make use of them (a).

The Minister feels sure that the Council will be anxious to do all that is reasonably possible in this matter. The additional expenditure involved in any area will be small in comparison with the advantages that would result from the provision of the necessary facilities, and their full use by those for whose benefit they are provided, and I am to remind the Council that the development of the maternity and child welfare services is one of the extensions of local services in consideration of which an additional amount of £5,000,000 was included in the General Exchequer Contribution for each year in the first fixed grant period under the Local Government Act, 1929.

I am also to point out that the Act provides that the amount of the General Exchequer Contribution shall be revised periodically, and that at each revision it shall, subject to the necessary provision by Parliament, be fixed by reference to the total amount of the rate and grant expenditure incurred by all local authorities in the last year for which particulars are available as compared with the amount of that expenditure in the year 1930–31.

The Minister will be glad to be informed as early as practicable of the action which the Council decide to take after consideration of this Circular and the enclosed Memorandum.

A further copy of the Circular and Memorandum are enclosed, which should be handed to the Financial Officer.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient Servant,

A. B. MACLACHLAN,
Assistant Secretary.

MATERNITY AND CHILD WELFARE.

I. ANTE-NATAL SERVICES.

1. The Department Committee on Maternal Mortality and Morbidity, which was appointed by the Minister of Health in June, 1928, have submitted an Interim Report which was published in July of the present year. This Report has furnished both the Government and the public with many new facts and conclusions in regard to the subject. As a result of their investigation into 2,000 deaths of women in childbirth during the two years, the Committee came to the conclusion that there were four primary avoidable causes in the train of events which led up to a fatal issue. First, there was absence of ante-natal care in 17 per cent. of the deaths; secondly, there were errors of judgment in practice or treatment by doctors or midwives in another 17 per cent.; thirdly, there was lack of reasonable facilities available for effective medical care in 5 per cent. of the cases; and fourthly, in 9 per cent. there was negligence of the patient, or her friends, to adopt or carry out medical advice offered to them. Thus not less than 48 per cent. of the total deaths from childbirth into which inquiry was made seemed to the Committee to have been avoidable. In the remaning 52 per cent. of the records of death examined no preventable factor actually emerged, but in some cases, owing to incompleteness of the records, it was not possible to come to a definite conclusion.

In summary, the Committee found that of the cases of death brought to their notice not less than one-half were directly preventable under suitable conditions. These findings not only confirm previous impressions that much mortality and morbidity associated with childbearing might be prevented, but indicate the kind of unsatisfactory conditions which must be removed or ameliorated if we are to secure, as we must, a reduction in the relatively high maternal mortality rate of the country, not only in those districts where the maternal mortality has been highest over a number of years, and in which little decline, if any, has occurred, but in the country as a whole.

Generally speaking, it is clear from cumulative experience of the work of the maternity services in their present form that the solution of this complex problem is most likely to be found in an all-round tightening up as well as strengthening of each link in the chain of obstetric supervision, and an increased watchfulness over all stages of pregnancy and labour rather than in any single arresting or comprehensive remedy. Much of this improved supervision will come about gradually if the education and training of the medical student and the midwife are designed to equip them to appreciate more closely the extreme importance of painstaking attention to detail, as well as to understand and apply the scientific methods of sound treatment. Moreover, the influence of a better informed public opinion, and the effective education of the mother herself, whether through direct instruction, or through the action of voluntary organisations, or the indirect effect of a readily available and adequate maternity service, should also prove beneficial in securing a higher and safer standard of practical midwifery.

"It is certain," the Committee say, "that an excessive maternal mortality can be prevented, for in some lying-in institutions, and in large groups of women in confinement at home, it is already being prevented by these very means. What is being done for some women can, and should, be done for all." Some examples of such successful midwifery may be mentioned. From the years 1924–1928 inclusive, the hospital and district cases of the British Hospital for Mothers and Babies at Woolwich numbered 4,221, and the maternal mortality rate was 0·71 per thousand births; at the East End Maternity Hospital (1921–1928) the hospital and district cases numbered 17,525, and the maternal mortality rate was 0·68; at the General Lying-in Hospital in Lambeth (1920–1929) the hospital and district cases numbered 25,906, and the maternal mortality rate was 1·31; in the year 1928 the Queen's Institute Nurses were responsible for 65,077 district midwifery cases, and the maternal mortality rate was 1·9; and the Plaistow Maternity Hospital (1910–1929) undertook 87,749 district cases and the maternal mortality rate was 0·77 per thousand. These figures compare very favourably with a total mortality rate for England and Wales in 1929 of 4·33 per thousand. The urgent, and indeed vital, importance of Local Authorities directing renewed attention to the matter is therefore obvious. Many Local Authorities have provided facilities for ante-natal supervision by the establishment of Ante-natal Clinics; but the Report shows that it is not sufficient to organise these Clinics and encourage doctors and midwives to use them. If a Clinic is to render the best possible service to the women for whom it is provided, it is desirable to associate the doctors and the midwives practising in the area much more directly with the Clinic and its staff.

2. The Ante-natal Clinic has a two-fold function:—

   (a) Medical and nursing, including the examination and routine supervision of such women as ask for it; assistance in the supervision of the patients of doctors and midwives referred by them for this purpose, and the examination of patients referred by doctors for the advice of an obstetric specialist.

   (b) Educational and social, including the practical teaching and advice given to the mother in regard to her own health and that of the infant, and the systematic following up of all women in attendance throughout their pregnancy.

MATERNITY, CHILD WELFARE, AND MIDWIVES

The Ante-natal Clinic should therefore be established and equipped as an Ante-natal Centre for all the maternity work of the area, to be in fact a place for advice and helpfulness for any expectant mothers who are in need of social and medical assistance from doctors, midwives or nurses. The staffing, equipment and management of the Ante-natal Centre are dealt with in the memorandum which was circulated to Local Authorities in July, 1929. Many of the existing Centres do not at present reach the standard described in the memorandum, and it is important that efforts should be made, not only to establish further Centres where they are needed, but to secure that the present Centres are fully efficient.

3. The Ante-natal Centre has, however, the obvious disadvantage that the doctor in charge of the Centre seldom, if ever, actually delivers the patient, or is the doctor called in by the midwife in an emergency. In some cases this disadvantage can be overcome to a certain extent by keeping the patient's doctor fully informed of the findings at the Centre, but in many cases the medical officer of the Centre is not aware of the name of the doctor who may attend the confinement. It is, therefore, clearly desirable to encourage closer co-operation between the Centre and the doctors practising in the area which it serves.

4. In the case of women who engage a doctor for the confinement the necessary ante-natal supervision will be undertaken by him, and in the case of women who are insured persons the insurance practitioner is responsible for medical attendance during pregnancy. For these women the Ante-natal Centre should be available for any additional care the doctor considers necessary. But many uninsured women who engage midwives for the confinement are unable also to pay the fee of a doctor for ante-natal supervision, and for such women the necessary provision should be made through the maternity and child welfare service.

5. This can be done at an Ante-natal Centre if it is reasonably accessible to the patients, and they are willing to attend there. But in sparsely populated areas it is impracticable to provide Centres within a reasonable distance of the homes of most of the women concerned, and in towns there are many women who cannot be persuaded to attend the Centres. In some rural areas the County Councils are making arrangements with private medical practitioners whereby the latter undertake the routine ante-natal examination of uninsured women who have engaged midwives for the confinement. Arrangements of this kind might well be made by Local Authorities, not only in rural areas, but also in towns to meet the needs of those uninsured women who are reluctant to visit a Centre for the purpose of ante-natal examination.

6. It is suggested that a list might be prepared by the Authority of those doctors practising in the area who are willing to undertake this service for uninsured women who engage midwives. The latter should be urged to explain to their patients the advantages of consulting a doctor during pregnancy, and, if they are unwilling to attend at the Centre, encourage them to select one of the doctors on the list, who should be the doctor to be called in by the midwife if any emergency should arise. The doctor would arrange to conduct the ante-natal examination either at the patient's home or at his surgery, and he should be offered the facilities of the Centre, including the services of the nurse or the health visitor, for the necessary following up of the case and subsequent supervision. In some cases arrangements might be made for the doctor to conduct the examination at the Centre with the patient's consent. The midwife engaged by the mother should be kept fully informed and encouraged to undertake as much of the ante-natal care as she is in a position to do. It is essential that the full co-operation of the midwives should be secured, and it should be made clear to them that these arrangements are designed in their interests as well as those of their patients.

7. Experience has shown that unless ante-natal supervision is adequately performed it may not only fail to benefit the patient, but may even involve additional risk by giving her a false sense of security. Under the Local Government (Qualifications of Medical Officers and Health Visitors) Regulations, 1930, the Medical Officer of an Ante-natal Centre is required to have had special experience of practical midwifery and ante-natal work, and it is suggested that there are definite advantages in securing for these posts the part-time services of private practitioners who possess the special qualifications prescribed by the Regulations. If possible, facilities should also be provided for other doctors to see their patients at the Centre if they so desire.

MATERNITY, CHILD WELFARE, AND MIDWIVES

8. It is considered that arrangements on the above lines, co-ordinating the work of the Ante-natal Centres with that of the doctors and midwives, should prove to be one of the most helpful ways of teaching women to accept ante-natal supervision as part of the normal preparation for a confinement, rather than an emergency measure implying some dangerous or unusual condition. Such arrangements should also do much to secure medical advice for women expecting their first confinement, with its exceptional risks.

II. Supply of Midwives.

1. It is now generally recognised that the services of a qualified midwife should be available for every confinement, whether she acts as a midwife in charge, or as a maternity nurse under the direction of a doctor. The employment of a midwife to carry out maternity nursing not only secures for both mother and child the advantages of skilled attention, but also obviates the risks associated with the employment of a handywoman or untrained "nurse."

2. In most rural areas both midwifery and maternity nursing can only be carried out satisfactorily by midwives employed by District Nursing Associations, and in many areas this is already done with financial assistance from the County Council. But there are still a number of rural parishes without midwives, and these are generally sparsely populated areas which cannot support a nurse-midwife without substantial assistance from the County Council. In such areas there is usually a special need for the services of a midwife if skilled attendance is to be available for the mothers, but there is often a difficulty in attracting a well-qualified and keen midwife owing to the paucity of both nursing and midwifery cases. This difficulty might be overcome with the assistance of the County Council by the formation of new District Nursing Associations covering a wide area, or by an extension of the areas served by existing Associations, if such facilities as a motor-car and a telephone service were provided for the midwife. In some cases it might be found possible to secure for a more limited area the services of a midwife who has already had considerable experience, and who would welcome the opportunity of lighter work and greater leisure. It is hoped that this matter will receive careful consideration by the Councils of those Counties in which there are any areas without a supply of midwives.

3. In many urban districts there is a need for a better distribution of midwives, and for a greater use of their services for maternity nursing. Some Local Authorities already employ either whole-time or part-time municipal midwives, and there would be advantage in an extension of these arrangements. It is of course necessary to avoid the displacement of competent independent midwives already in practice in the district by other midwives appointed by the Local Authority, and to maintain the right of the mother to employ the midwife she prefers; but by the judicious support of midwives already in practice, and by placing midwives in areas where they would be unable to make a living without assistance, the Local Authority can ensure ready access to a midwife by all women requiring her services, and can also do much to improve the conditions of practice for the midwives.

4. The employment of handywomen is still a common practice in some urban districts, and it is not unusual to find that the midwives in these districts are by no means fully occupied and have difficulty in earning a living. In many cases a woman who engages a doctor for her confinement is unable also to pay the fee of a midwife to act as maternity nurse, and it is suggested that Local Authorities should encourage the employment of midwives in these cases by contributing to the fee of the midwife. It will be essential to secure the co-operation of the doctors practising in the district in persuading their patients to accept the services of a trained midwife for the maternity nursing.

III. Consultants.

Many Local Authorities already provide the services of a consultant in cases of puerperal fever and, in some instances, for cases of difficult labour. It is desirable that in each area the Local Authority should satisfy themselves that a consultant is available for any doctor who needs assistance in difficulties or complications arising during pregnancy, or at or after confinement. It will generally no doubt be found desirable to engage for this purpose the consultant at the Maternity Hospital or Ante-natal Centre serving the area.

IV. HOSPITAL BEDS.

In some areas there is still a need for further provision of hospital accommodation (1) for cases needing institutional treatment, including not only complications of labour and the puerperium, but also patients suffering from abnormal ante-natal conditions and intercurrent diseases, and (2) for patients whose home conditions are unsuitable for a confinement. In Counties and County Boroughs, the Councils may be able to provide the necessary beds by the adaptation of accommodation in institutions transferred to them under the Local Government Act, 1929.

It is suggested that Local Authorities should consider, wherever practicable, the desirability of affording facilities to private practitioners to attend their own patients in maternity institutions.

V. PROVISION OF ANCILLARIES.

Some or all of the following services have already been provided in many areas, and it is suggested that Local Authorities should consider the desirability of making provision through the Centres for such of these services as are not already available in their districts.

(1) Sterilised maternity outfits for patients for whom either the doctor or the midwife considers that this provision is desirable.

(2) Home helps for domestic assistance during the lying-in period, and also during pregnancy in those cases in which there are abnormal conditions rendering it dangerous for the woman to continue her usual household work.

(3) Supply of milk for expectant and nursing mothers.

(4) Provision of laboratory facilities for the examination of pathological material submitted by doctors.

VI. EDUCATION.

Whatever provision is made for the care of maternity, it is clear that further efforts are necessary to persuade women to take advantage of the facilities provided. This is especially true of ante-natal supervision, and there is a need in every area for a campaign of enlightenment on this subject. Local Authorities are in the best position to organise such a campaign with the assistance of their Medical Officers and Health Visitors, but it will be essential to secure the co-operation of the doctors and midwives practising in their areas, and of suitable voluntary organisations concerned with the welfare of women. It is hoped that all Local Authorities will give special consideration to the importance of educating public opinion on this vital matter.

Officers of the Department will gladly confer with Authorities who are desirous of improving or extending their existing arrangements and do anything in their power to facilitate progress.

BIRTH CONTROL (a).

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to refer to Memorandum 153/M.C.W., which was issued in March last on the above subject. The Minister finds that certain misconceptions have arisen in regard to the views expressed in that Memorandum, and he desires to bring the following points to the notice of Local Authorities.

1. It is necessary to emphasise the statement in the Memorandum that the Government are advised that Local Authorities have no general power to establish birth control clinics as such. The Memorandum was issued solely for the purpose of explaining the views of the Government on the use of institutions controlled by Local Authorities for the purpose of giving advice to women on contraceptive methods, and it should be understood that the question of providing facilities for giving such advice within the limits laid down in the Memorandum is a matter entirely within the discretion of the Local Authority.

2. Under the Maternity and Child Welfare Act, 1918 (b), the powers of Local Authorities are limited, so far as women are concerned, to making arrangements for attending to the health of expectant mothers and nursing mothers. If an authority decides to provide facilities for giving birth control advice at a Maternity and Child Welfare Centre in accordance with paragraph 2 of the Memorandum, the use of these facilities must be strictly incidental to the purpose for which the centre is established, and they can be made available only for married women who are either expectant or nursing mothers already in attendance at the Centre and in whose cases further pregnancy would be detrimental to health.

3. If action is taken under the Public Health Acts to establish a clinic at which medical advice and treatment would be available for women suffering from gynaecological conditions, the use of any facilities provided at the clinic for giving advice on contraceptive methods must be strictly incidental to the purpose for which the clinic is established, viz., the treatment of sick persons. Only women who need medical advice and treatment for gynaecological conditions can properly be admitted to the clinic, and contraceptive advice can properly be given only to married women in attendance at the clinic in whose cases pregnancy would be detrimental to health. It is obviously desirable for a Local Authority to obtain the services of a medical officer specially experienced in the clinical advice and treatment needed at a gynaecological centre of this sort.

4. The Minister does not consider it desirable that a gynaecological clinic should be established at a Maternity and Child Welfare Centre, and if an Authority is satisfied that there is need for such a clinic it should be provided in separate premises or at a hospital. Expectant mothers and nursing mothers in attendance at Maternity and Child Welfare Centres who are found to need medical advice and treatment for gynaecological conditions could then be referred to the clinic.

5. The Minister considers it important that no existing officer of a Local Authority should be prejudiced in any way by a decision of the Authority to provide facilities for birth control advice within the limits laid down in the Memorandum. He is of opinion that this work should not be regarded as falling within the scope of the normal duties of the medical officers of a Local Authority, who should be free to undertake it or decline it.

Your obedient Servant,

MATERNAL MORTALITY.

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to inform you that in the Final Report of the Departmental Committee on Maternal Mortality, which has recently been issued, attention is directed to the great importance of continuing arrangements for a confidential investigation into maternal deaths similar to that which has been carried out during the last four years in accordance with the procedure outlined in the Minister's Circulars of April 23rd, 1928, and October 24th, 1928 (Nos. 888 and 934).

The Minister warmly appreciates the assistance which has been rendered by Medical Officers of Health and their staffs in making these investigations in the past, and he trusts that arrangements will be made to continue this work in all parts of the country. He is confident that the Local Authority will wish to facilitate investigations which aim at a progressive reduction in maternal mortality, and that he can rely on the co-operation of the Local Authority in making such arrangements as will enable the Medical Officer of Health to carry out this work.

A Memorandum is enclosed for the guidance of the Medical Officer of Health, indicating the lines on which it is suggested that these investigations should be continued.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient Servant,
J. C. WRIGLEY,
Assistant Secretary.

The Clerk to the Local Authority.

MATERNAL MORTALITY.

The Final Report of the Departmental Committee on Maternal Mortality and Morbidity was issued in August, 1932, and has been published by H.M. Stationery Office. The Report contains the results of an examination of 5,800 inquiries into maternal deaths, and the conclusions and recommendations of the Committee are based to a large extent on a careful consideration of this valuable, and indeed unique investigation. The inquiries were made in accordance with the procedure outlined in the Minister's Circulars of April 23rd, 1928, and October 24th, 1928 (Nos. 888 and 934).

The Committee were deeply impressed with the practical uses of the investigation and recommended that local inquiries into maternal deaths should not be allowed to lapse, but should be continued on similar though less detailed lines.

The opinion of Medical Officers of Health who have been responsible for these inquiries is generally favourable to a continued investigation. The Medical Officers appreciate the opportunity afforded of discussing these cases with general practitioners, and the experience gained in this way enables them to estimate the adequacy and elasticity of the local organisation for maternal welfare. The inquiries have also a direct educational value.

It is recognised that the detailed inquiries made for the Maternal Mortality Committee occupied a considerable amount of time. In order to save time and to facilitate the tabulation of findings, a new and simpler report form has been drafted which, it is hoped, will prove convenient to use. Copies of the form are enclosed with this Memorandum, and further copies of the form sufficient to meet the local requirements will be supplied on application to this Office (a).

Experience has shown that the most informative portions of these reports are usually contained in the history and description of the case. Space has therefore been provided in the revised form for an account of ante-natal care and for a brief description of the labour and puerperium. Neither of these can be dealt with satisfactorily by means of question and answer, but certain points to which attention should be paid have been noted on the form for the convenience of the investigator. These are not exhaustive, but are matters of special practical importance. Many other points of interest have been omitted for the sake of brevity and clearness, but it is hoped that comments will be made on any subjects which have a bearing on the case, such as the previous record of the woman, the domestic circumstances, the dietary, the effect of employment during pregnancy, overcrowding, the suitability of the lying-in room, the employment of a handywoman or home help, etc. The remainder of the form consists mainly of questions which it is hoped will all be answered definitely whenever possible, as this materially facilitates the tabulation of results.

Among the cases investigated it is desirable to include deaths following abortion, as available knowledge of the causation of abortion is limited; and also death primarily due to intercurrent disease, such as nephritis, tuberculosis, heart disease and so forth.

The investigations should be continued on the lines which have already proved successful and which may be recapitulated briefly. The Medical Officer responsible for the inquiry should be the Medical Officer of Health either of the Local Supervising Authority or of the Maternity and Child Welfare Authority of the area in which the woman resided. He should not be engaged in private practice. He may be assisted by members of his staff or by an obstetric specialist. Domestic inquiries should be made by the Health Visitor or Inspector of Midwives in the course of her ordinary duties. Care should be taken to safeguard the susceptibilities of relatives. As the inquiry is solely for scientific and public health purposes, the information obtained should be regarded as strictly confidential. The name of the deceased woman need not be given and the report should not be utilised for any inquiry which might be called for locally in regard to a particular case. The report should be sent direct to the Chief Medical Officer at the Ministry of Health, and no copy should be retained.

MATERNITY AND CHILD WELFARE.

INFANT LIFE PROTECTION.

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to draw the attention of the Council to the Children and Young Persons Act, 1932, and to state that under subsection (3) of Section 90 of that Act (a) the Secretary of State has appointed January 1st, 1933, as the date upon which the provisions of the Act relating to Infant Life Protection are to come into operation. The provisions in question comprise Part V of the Act and the provisions in the Second and Fourth Schedules to the Act which relate to Part I of the Children Act, 1908 (b), and their effect is set out in the enclosed Memorandum (Memo. 165/M.C.W.).

It is important that all persons who undertake, or propose to undertake, the reception of children for reward should be informed of their duties under the new Act, as well as reminded of the provisions of Part I of the Act of 1908 which are still applicable (c) and it is suggested that the Council should issue advertisements, warning foster parents that the intended reception for reward of children under the age of nine years must now be notified before reception, and inviting them to apply to the Council for further particulars. A form of advertisement will be found at the end of the Memorandum, together with the draft of a leaflet of advice to foster parents, comprising a brief statement of the provisions which it is necessary for foster parents to know and observe.

It is also necessary for Infant Protection Visitors to be familiar with the whole of the law of Infant Life Protection, as it is now to be found in Part I of the Act of 1908 (b) as amended by the Act of 1932 (a), and a second Memorandum (Memo. 165A/M.C.W.) containing a summary of the statutory provisions is enclosed herewith.

The Minister hopes that these Memoranda will receive the careful attention of the Council and of the officers who are concerned with the administration of the law relating to Infant Life Protection. The Memoranda have been placed on sale, and additional copies may be obtained from the Stationery Office at any of the addresses shown below.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient Servant,
A. B. MACLACHLAN,
Assistant Secretary.

Memo. 165/M.C.W.

(Enclosure to Circular 1291.)

INFANT LIFE PROTECTION.

CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS ACT, 1932.

In a memorandum (L.G.A. 28) dated November 26th, 1929, Maternity and Child Welfare Authorities were advised of the powers and duties in relation to the protection of infant life contained in Part I of the Children Act, 1908, which were transferred to them by section 2 (a) of the Local Government Act, 1929. Reports which have since been made to the Minister suggest that certain Maternity and Child Welfare Authorities and their staffs are not yet wholly conversant either with the memorandum or with the provisions of Part I of the Act of 1908 (d).

In particular the Minister understands that it is not generally recognised that it is the duty of Authorities under section 2 (1) of the Children Act (e) to make inquiry from time to time whether there are any persons residing in their districts who undertake the nursing and maintenance of infants notifiable under the Act, and the suggestion made in paragraph 12 of the memorandum, that the requirements of Part I should be advertised from time to time has not been adopted by all Authorities. In drawing the attention of Authorities to the amendments to Part I of the Act which are included in the Children and Young Persons Act, 1932 (a) it is suggested that the previous memorandum, which was issued at a time when the attention of Authorities may have been diverted to other matters of more general importance, should be carefully reconsidered. Copies of the memorandum may be obtained from the Stationery Office (price 1*d*.).

The provisions of the Children and Young Persons Act, 1932, which relate to Infant Life Protection are contained in sections 65 to 69 and the Second and Fourth Schedules to the Act (b) and the Secretary of State has, under section 90 (3) of the Act, appointed January 1st, 1933, as the date upon which those provisions are to come into operation. The main provisions of the new Act so far as they relate to Infant Life Protection are summarised in the following paragraphs, and as they contain substantial alterations of the existing law Authorities should take immediate steps to make them known throughout their districts.

1. Extension of Age of Notifiable Children.

The age under which the reception of children for reward must be notified is raised by section 65 (1) from seven to nine years (b). Authorities should accordingly not only retain on their Registers and continue to supervise children who attain the age of seven after January 1st next, but also replace on the Register and resume the supervision of any notifiable children who before that date have attained the age of seven but have not attained the age of nine, and ascertain whether any children who on January 1st next are between the ages of seven and nine are being received for reward in their districts. These classes of children must, by section 65 (3), be notified within one month after the appointed date (i.e., before February 1st, 1933) unless they have already been notified.

2. Period of Notification.

Notification of the reception of a child, instead of being given within 48 hours after reception, must by section 65 (1) be given—

(a) in the case of the first child proposed to be received, not less than seven days before its reception ;

(b) in the case of any other child, not less than 48 hours before reception ; and

(c) in the case of a child already received without reward within 48 hours after the undertaking to receive for reward.

Where, however, a child is received in an emergency, proof that notice was given within 12 hours thereafter constitutes a valid defence.

Notification of change of residence, instead of being within 48 hours must, under the Second Schedule, be given at least seven days prior to the change, except in an emergency, when notice may be given at any time within 48 hours after the change of residence.

Notification of the death or transference of a child, instead of being given within 48 hours, must by that Schedule be given within 24 hours.

3. Additional Notification.

Notification of the death or transference of a child must by section 65 (2) be given not only to the Local Authority but also to the person from whom the infant was received.

4. Manner of Notification.

[The Second Schedule to the Act of 1932, hereunder set out in the memorandum, was repealed by the P. H. A., 1936. As to notices under that Act, see note (b) to s. 206 of that Act, ante, p. 476.]

* * * * * *

Local Authorities should when advertising this change indicate what, if any, officer other than the clerk is duly authorised to receive notices.

(a) See the general note, ante, p. 470.

(b) See now notes to ss. 205–207 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, pp. 476–478.

MATERNITY, CHILD WELFARE, AND MIDWIVES

5. Definition of "Reward."

An undertaking is by section 65 (1) (a) to be deemed to be an undertaking for reward if there is any payment or gift of money or money's worth, or any promise to pay or give money or money's worth, irrespective of whether there is any intention of making a profit.

6. Time Limit for Prosecutions for Failure to Notify.

Difficulty has been experienced in the past in bringing cases before Courts of Summary Jurisdiction within the six months' limit prescribed for such proceedings, since the six months was held to date from the beginning of the period of failure to notify, and the failure might not be discovered until after the six months had expired. By the Second Schedule such failure is made a continuing offence, so that the six months may run from the end of the period.

7. Women Infant Protection Visitors.

The Second Schedule also provides that at least one of the Infant Protection Visitors of each Authority, or of the persons authorised to act as such, must be a woman. Authorities should take immediate steps to conform to this requirement if they have not already done so. It is assumed that in most cases the Health Visitors of the Authority have already been appointed to these posts.

8. Scope of Visits.

A further effect of the Second Schedule is to amend the wording of section 2 of the 1908 Act (b) so as to make it clear that the scrutiny, advice and direction of the Visitor should extend not only to the nursing but also to the general health and well-being of the child. The work of Infant Protection is thus more closely assimilated to the Authority's child welfare services.

9. Prevention of Overcrowding.

By section 66 (c), the power of the Authority to limit the number of children in a foster-home has been extended to enable them to impose conditions to be complied with so long as the total number of children kept in the dwelling exceeds a specified number. Power to enforce a limitation by legal action is similarly extended to enforce conditions so imposed.

10. Unsuitability of Premises, Foster-parents or Environment.

By section 67 (d), the powers of the Authority to secure the removal of children kept on unsuitable premises or by unsuitable persons are extended to prevent their reception in such premises or by such persons. The class of persons described as unfit to have care of such children is also extended to cover unfitness by reason of old age, infirmity or ill-health; and detrimental environment, as well as unsuitable premises or foster-parents, is recognised as a ground for action both before and after reception. By the Second Schedule, persons who have been convicted under the Prevention of Cruelty to Children Act, 1904, are required to obtain the written sanction of the Authority to keep a foster-child only if they have been convicted of an offence of cruelty under that Act.

11. Legal Action.

The Authority, in place of the Visitor, will by section 67 (d) in future be directly responsible for applying to a Court of Summary Jurisdiction for an order for the removal of a child to a place of safety, and the Authority's power to issue an order on the application of a Visitor is rescinded. It is, however, provided that upon proof that there is imminent danger to the health or well-being of the child concerned, a single Justice may make an order on the application of a Visitor or other appointed or authorised person and, if need be, may exercise that power ex parte.

12. Prohibition of Anonymous Advertisements for Children.

Section 68 (a) makes it an offence to publish any advertisement, whether of a person or a society, for children within the scope of the Acts which does not state truly the name and the residence or office of the person or society respectively. The Authority should make arrangements for the scrutiny of local newspapers and for investigating relevant advertisements in order to enforce this section.

13. Exemptions.

Section 69 limits the exemption (b) of hospitals, convalescent homes and institutions specified in section 11 (1) of the 1908 Act to such establishments as are :—

(a) maintained by a Government Department, Local Authority or any other Authority or Body constituted by special Act of Parliament or Royal Charter ; or

(b) exempted by a certificate from the Authority ; or

(c) voluntary homes supervised by the Home Office ; or

(d) institutions, houses or homes certified or approved by the Board of Control under the Mental Deficiency Acts, 1913 to 1927, and in which there are no children or young persons who are not mental defectives.

Mental defectives who are, with the consent of the Board of Control, under care elsewhere than in an institution, a certified home or an approved home, are also exempted.

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
November, 1932.

Memo. 165A/M.C.W.

SUMMARY OF THE LAW RELATING TO INFANT LIFE PROTECTION FOR THE GUIDANCE OF INFANT PROTECTION VISITORS (a).

The law relating to Infant Life Protection, which, since the passing of the Local Government Act, 1929, has been administered by the Maternity and Child Welfare Authorities, is now contained in Part I of the Children Act, 1908, as amended by Part V of the Children and Young Persons Act, 1932, and the Second and Fourth Schedules to that Act (b).

The Minister's Memorandum L.G.A. 28 set out the main provisions of Part I of the Act of 1908 (c). The present Memorandum summarises those provisions together with the alterations effected by the new Act.

(a) It is understood that this Summary is still on sale in this form, despite the changes in the law (chiefly in arrangement) indicated in the footnotes to circular 1291, ante, p. 3308, and memorandum 165/M.C.W., ante, p. 3308. An attempt has accordingly been made for purposes of the present publication to indicate those changes. Local authorities who buy the Summary for issue to the staff engaged on this work will no doubt arrange for copies to be altered with the aid of the following notes.

(b) For the present position, see the general note, ante, p. 470.

(c) Repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 732, but see last note.

MATERNITY, CHILD WELFARE, AND MIDWIVES

Notification of Children.

1. Under the Act of 1908 all children under the age of seven kept for reward, apart from their parents or having no parents, for more than 48 hours had to be notified to the Authority within 48 hours of reception.

By Section 65 (1) and consequential amendments in the new Act (a), the age has been raised to nine years, the minimum period of 48 hours had disappeared, and a notice, giving the name and sex of the child, the date and place of its birth, the name of the person undertaking its maintenance, the dwelling where it is to be kept, and the name of the person from whom it is received, must be given :—

(a) in the case of the first child received, not less than seven days before its reception ;

(b) in the case of any other child, not less than 48 hours before its reception ;

(c) in the case of a child already received without reward, within 48 hours after the undertaking to receive for reward.

Where, however, a child is received in an emergency, proof that notice was given within 12 hours after reception constitutes a valid defence.

The new Act defines an undertaking to be an undertaking for reward if there is any payment or gift of money or money's worth, or any promise to pay or give money or money's worth, irrespective of whether there is any intention of making profit.

Section 65 (1)–(3) of the Act (b) ensures that all the provisions of the Act of 1908 relating to Infant Life Protection apply to children who will be under the age of nine years on January 1st, 1933, and provides for the notification of any who have not already been notified not later than February 1st, 1933.

2. Under Section 1 (4) of the Act of 1908, change of residence must be notified to the Authority, and if it involves removal to the area of another Authority, notice must be given to that Authority as on the first reception of a child. Amendments in the Second Schedule of the new Act provide that these notices must be given at least seven days before removal, or, in case of emergency, within 48 hours after (c).

3. Under Section 1 (5) of the Act of 1908, the death of a child, or its removal from the care of the foster-parent, must be notified to the Authority. Amendments in the Second Schedule to the new Act provide that this notice must be given within 24 hours after the death or removal (instead of within 48 hours), and that a similar notice must also be sent within the same time to the person from whom the child was received (c).

4. Under Section 1 (7) of the Act of 1908 a person who fails to give notice before the latest time specified is guilty of an offence under that part of the Act, and where the consideration for the nursing of the child is, in whole or in part, a lump sum, this sum, or a part of it, is liable to be forfeited in addition to any other penalty, such sums to be applied for the child's benefit as directed by the Court. Amendments in the Second Schedule to the new Act now ensure that an offence under this subsection shall be deemed to continue so long as the child remains in the care of the offender without notice being given, so that failure to notify is punishable summarily until six months thereafter (c).

Duties of Local Authorities and Visitors (d).

Under Section 2 of the Act of 1908, every Maternity and Child Welfare Authority must provide for the administration of the Act in their area, and, whenever children are being kept for reward, they must appoint one or more persons as Infant Protection Visitors. They may also, in addition to, or in lieu of these Visitors, authorise one or more persons to exercise the same powers. Amendments in the Second Schedule to the new Act provide that where one person only is so appointed or authorised, that person shall be a woman, and if two or more persons are so appointed or authorised, one of them shall be a woman.

The Visitors are to satisfy themselves as to the health and well-being of the children and to give any necessary advice or directions as to the care of their health and their nursing and maintenance. The wider terms "health and well-being" in the Second Schedule to the new Act replace the narrower words of Section 2 of the Act of 1908, "nursing and maintenance." The rest of Section 2 remains unchanged and gives the Authority power to exempt from being visited any premises which appear to them to be so conducted that it is unnecessary that they should be visited. Moreover, if a Visitor or other authorised person is refused admittance to premises where children are being kept for reward, or suspects that such children are being kept, she may apply to a Justice of the Peace, who, if satisfied that there is reason to believe that an offence under the Acts has been committed, may grant a warrant authorising an entry.

Persons Prohibited from Receiving Children (a).

Section 3 of the Act of 1908 provides that children may not be received for reward without the Authority's written sanction in certain circumstances, namely:—

(a) by persons from whose care children have been removed under the Acts relating to Infant Life Protection;

(b) in premises from which children have been removed under those Acts, by reason of their being dangerous or insanitary or so unfit as to endanger the children's health;

(c) by persons convicted of offences under Part II of the Children Act, 1908, or the Prevention of Cruelty to Children Act, 1904.

Amendments in the Second Schedule to the new Act now limit class (c) to those persons only who have been convicted of an offence of cruelty under the Acts mentioned.

Numbers of Children Kept (b).

Section 4 of the Act of 1908 gave to the Authority the power to limit the number of children under the age of seven who might be kept in one house. Section 66 of the new Act substitutes for this the power to fix the maximum number of children under the age of nine who may be kept in any dwelling in which there is a child who is to be notified, and in addition power is given to the Authority to impose conditions to be complied with so long as the number of children kept in a dwelling exceeds a specified number. A person who exceeds such a maximum or fails to comply with conditions so laid down is guilty of an offence under the Acts.

Removal of Children (c).

Section 5 of the Act of 1908 laid down the circumstances in which an Order could be obtained either from a Justice or from a Local Authority for the removal of a child to a place of safety if it was kept by unfit persons or in unfit premises. This has now been replaced by Section 67 of the new Act which provides that, normally, such an order is to be obtained from a Court of Summary Jurisdiction, on the complaint of the Local Authority; although, upon proof that there is imminent danger to the health or well-being of the child concerned, a Visitor or other authorised person may apply to a single Justice for a like order, which may be issued ex parte. Section 67 further provides that such an order can be obtained to prevent the reception of a child as well as to remove it when it has been received, and the circumstances in which an order can be applied for are laid down as follows:—

(a) in any premises which are overcrowded, insanitary, or dangerous; or

(b) by any person who, by reason of old age, infirmity, ill-health, ignorance, negligence, inebriety, immorality, or criminal conduct, or for any other reason, is unfit to have care of it; or

(a) See now s. 210 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 480.
(b) See now s. 211 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 481.
(c) See now s. 212 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 482.

(c) in any premises or by any person in contravention of any of the provisions of Part I of the Act of 1908; or (d) in any environment which is detrimental to the infant.

The words " old age, infirmity, ill-health " in (b) and the condition (d) have been added by the new Act.

Notices to the Coroner.

Section 6 of the Act of 1908 remains unaltered (a). It provides that, on the death of a child, the person who has had care of it must give notice to the Coroner of the district within which the body lies within 24 hours after the death. The Coroner is required to hold an inquest unless a satisfactory certificate of a duly qualified medical practitioner is produced and he is satisfied that there is no ground for holding an inquest.

Insurance.

Section 7 of the Act of 1908 remains unaltered (b). It provides that no person keeping children who require to be notified may have an insurable interest in the life of such a child, and that any insurance or attempt at insurance of a child's life is an offence on the part of the person insuring and of the company or agents issuing the policy.

Provision as to Notices (c).

By Section 8 of the Act of 1908 any person who knowingly or wilfully makes or causes to be made any false statement in any notice required to be given is guilty of an offence under the Acts. Amendments in the Second Schedule to the new Act provide that the notices required to be given to a Local Authority may be sent by post in a registered letter addressed to them, or their clerk at their offices, or to some other officer duly authorised in that behalf. Notices required to be given to a Coroner may similarly be sent by registered letter addressed to him at his office or at his place of residence. Notices required to be given to any other person may be sent by registered letter addressed to the last known place of residence or permanent address.

Prohibition of Anonymous Advertisements (d).

Section 68 of the new Act creates a new offence under Part I of the Act of 1908, namely, the publication of any advertisement indicating that a person or society will undertake or will arrange for the nursing and maintenance of a child under the age of nine, unless the name and address of the person or society are truly stated in the advertisement.

Prosecution of Offences.

Section 9 of the Act of 1908 remains unaltered (e) and applies to all offences whether under the original provisions of the Act of 1908 or under the new provisions. By that Section persons guilty of offences against these provisions are liable, on summary conviction, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or to a fine not exceeding £25.

Exemptions (f).

The provisions of the Acts do not apply to relatives or legal guardians who take children for reward, and relatives are defined in Section 11 (1) of the Act of 1908 as " grand-parents, brothers, sisters, uncles and aunts," including, in the case of illegitimate children, the persons who would be so related if the children were legitimate. Nor do they apply to persons taking infants for reward under any Poor Law provisions.

(a) Now repealed and replaced by s. 213 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 482.
(b) Now repealed and replaced by s. 214 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 483.
(c) See para. 4 of memo. 165, ante, p. 3309.
(d) See now s. 215 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 483.

(f) See now s. 219 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 484.

The other exemptions contained in the Act of 1908 have been altered by Section 69 of the new Act and are now limited to hospitals, convalescent homes and institutions, which are :—

(a) maintained by a Government Department, Local Authority or any other Authority or Body constituted by a special Act of Parliament or Royal Charter ; or

(b) exempted by a certificate of the Authority ; or

(c) voluntary homes supervised by the Home Office ; or

(d) institutions, houses or homes certified or approved by the Board of Control under the Mental Deficiency Acts, 1913 to 1927, and in which there are no children or no persons who are not mental defectives.

Section 69 of the new Act also exempts mental defectives who are, with the consent of the Board of Control, under care elsewhere than in an institution, a certified house or an approved home.

APPOINTMENT OF HEALTH VISITORS.

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to refer to Circular 1072 of February 12th, 1930 (a), with which were enclosed copies of the Local Government (Qualifications of Medical Officers and Health Visitors) Regulations, 1930, made by him under Section 59 of the Local Government Act, 1929.

I am to state that arrangements have now been made for the examinations for Health Visitors trained in Scotland to be conducted by the Royal Sanitary Association of Scotland, and for Health Visitors' Certificates to be issued by that Association, under conditions approved by the Department of Health for Scotland. These conditions have been designed with a view to ensuring a uniform standard of training and certification in this country and in Scotland, and the arrangements require that Certificates issued by the Association to candidates who are eligible for appointment as whole-time Health Visitors in England and Wales shall be endorsed to that effect.

Regulations, of which a copy is enclosed, have accordingly been made by the Minister, amending Article 8 of the Regulations of 1930 referred to above, and attention is directed to Article 2 of the amending Regulations (b).

Copies of this Circular and of the Regulations have been sent to the Medical Officer of Health, and further copies may be obtained at any of the addresses shown below.

BIRTH CONTROL.

SIR,—1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to refer to Memorandu 153/M.C.W. dated March, 1931 (a), and Circular 1208 of July 14th, 1931 (b), an more particularly to paragraph 4 of the Memorandum and paragraph 3 of the Circula which deal with the provision under the Public Health Acts of clinics for wome suffering from gynæcological conditions. It was stated in paragraph 4 of th Memorandum that the Government had decided that any Departmental sanctio which might be necessary to the establishment of such clinics should be given onl on condition :—

(1) that the clinics will be available only for women who are in need of medic advice and treatment for gynæcological conditions, and (2) that advice on contra ceptive methods will be given only to married women who attend the clinics for suc medical advice or treatment, and in whose cases pregnancy would be detrimental t health.

2. The Authority will be aware that the Departmental Committee on Matern Mortality and Morbidity, in their Final Report published in 1932, called speci attention to the importance of the avoidance of pregnancy by women suffering fro organic disease such as tuberculosis, heart disease, diabetes, chronic nephritis, et in which childbearing is likely seriously to endanger life. The Committee considere that advice and instruction in contraceptive methods should be readily available f such women.

3. It was pointed out in the Memorandum and Circular of 1931 that the powe which the Public Health Acts confer upon Local Authorities for the provision clinics limit their availability to sick persons, but the Minister is advised that the is nothing to prevent the Local Authority from rendering such a clinic availab for women suffering from forms of sickness other than gynæcological condition After careful consideration of the recommendation made by the Departmenta Committee, the Minister is of opinion that where a Local Authority has provided clinic at which medical advice and treatment are available for married wome suffering from gynæcological conditions, and at which contraceptive advice is afforde to married women so suffering in whose cases pregnancy would be detrimental t health, it would be proper also for married women who are suffering from oth forms of sickness, physical or mental, such as those mentioned in the Report of th Departmental Committee, which are detrimental to them as mothers, to be afforde contraceptive advice at the clinic if it is found medically that pregnancy would b detrimental to health. What is, or is not, medically detrimental to health must b decided by the professional judgment of the registered medical practitioner in charg of the clinic.

MATERNAL MORTALITY.

SIR,—1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to refer to Circular 1167 of December 11th, 1930, and the accompanying Memorandum 156/M.C.W. on the subject of Maternal Mortality (a). The Memorandum contained various suggestions for improving and developing the maternity services of Local Authorities, and the Circular urged the importance of each Authority doing all that is reasonably possible to provide a satisfactory service for their area.

2. The Minister has recently reviewed the action which has been taken throughout the country to give effect to the suggestions in the Memorandum and he recognises that on the whole there has been a widespread response. In the important matter of ante-natal supervision, the number of ante-natal clinics has increased from 1,048 at December, 1930, to 1,340 at the end of 1933, while 16 County Councils and 14 other Authorities have made arrangements for the ante-natal examination of uninsured women by private medical practitioners. The proportion of expectant mothers who avail themselves of the ante-natal service is also steadily increasing, having risen from 27·3 per cent. of the total notified births in 1930 to 42·2 per cent. in 1933.

3. There has also been some increase in the amount of maternity accommodation provided or subsidised by Local Authorities, the total number of beds available for this purpose being 7,245 at the end of 1933 as compared with 7,070 in December, 1930. A satisfactory feature of this service has been the tendency in some areas to concentrate the maternity work at the institutions transferred to County and County Borough Councils under the Local Government Act, 1929, by modernising the maternity wards and their equipment and by strengthening the medical and nursing staff employed for this work. It will be remembered that the Departmental Committee on Maternal Mortality and Morbidity, in their Final Report, recommended that new maternity accommodation should, where practicable, be associated with general hospitals. This recommendation was made on grounds of efficiency, as well as to facilitate specialist treatment of non-obstetric conditions associated with pregnancy and childbirth, and the Minister is advised that recent experience has shown that it is in general undersirable to provide small maternity homes as separate units.

The Minister would remind Local Authorities of the power which they possess of assisting expectant and nursing mothers by the supply of milk. This power is used in varying degrees and it appears to the Minister that greater use might well be made of it in appropriate cases.

4. In spite of what has been done during the past three years to improve and develop the maternity services, the maternal mortality rate has not yet begun to fall. The Minister recognises that it could not be expected that the full effect of the measures which have been taken would so soon be reflected in the mortality statistics. At the same time, he finds that there are still many areas in which the maternity service is neither complete not satisfactory, and there are few, if any, in which there is not scope for further improvement. In all areas there is probably need for more intensive efforts to educate women as to the importance of ante-natal supervision and to persuade them to make use of the facilities provided for this purpose.

5. The Minister trusts therefore that each Local Authority will forthwith review the position in their area by reference to the suggestions made in Memorandum 156/M.C.W. (a), and will take such steps as are necessary to complete the local organisation, and ensure its effective working. In particular, he wishes to urge the Authorities of those areas in which, as he regrets to observe, the maternal mortality rate is persistently high to give consideration to further efforts to reduce the avoidable risks of child-bearing.

(a) Ante, p. 3300.

6. It appears to the Minister that it would be desirable in all such areas for the Local Authority to call for a special report on this subject from their Medical Officer of Health showing to what extent effect has already been given to the suggestions made in the Memorandum, and in the Recommendations of the Maternal Mortality Committee in their Final Report in 1932, for (1) improving the ante-natal service (2) ensuring that the services of a trained midwife are available for all confinements (3) securing the provision of maternity beds for complicated cases and for patients with unsuitable home conditions, such beds to be associated where practicable with general hospitals, preferably in small units readily supervised, and for which prompt specialist services for serious cases may be made available; (4) providing facilities for the adequate isolation and separate nursing of cases of puerperal sepsis; and (5) obtaining the services of a consultant for doctors needing assistance in difficult or complicated cases.

7. The Minister desires me to add that, in order to assist in a more intensive study of the problem in such areas, he proposes to instruct suitable medical officers to make special visits to them in the near future. These visits could most appropriately be made when the special local reports above mentioned are available and the Minister accordingly trusts that the Authorities concerned will call for these reports forthwith and inform him when they are available. Arrangements will be made for the official visits to be then undertaken and the Minister confidently hopes that a plan of action will be jointly devised which will be of great value to the Local Authority in the effective carrying out of their duty and will result in a material reduction of the avoidable maternal mortality.

8. The Minister has on more than one occasion expressed the view that there is a clear case for development of the maternity service on urgent grounds of public health and he considers that it would be true economy for each Authority to do what is needed to provide a service for their area which is both effective and comprehensive. If there are any questions relating to this service on which it is thought that the advice or assistance of officers of the Department would be useful, the Minister will be glad to arrange for a discussion of these questions with representatives of the Authority either at this office or locally, and he requests that he may be informed as soon as possible of the action which the Authority decide to take in order to render their maternity service fully effective.

1. LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT, 1929.
2. MATERNITY AND CHILD WELFARE.
3. VOLUNTARY ASSOCIATIONS.

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to refer to the memorandum L.G.A.5 issued on April 18th, 1929, and to remind you that in accordance with the provisions of Section 101 of the Local Government Act (a), 1929, it will be necessary for the Council, six months at least before the beginning of the next fixed grant period, that is by September 30th next at latest, to prepare and submit to the Minister for his approval a further scheme for securing the payment by the Council of annual contributions towards the expenses of voluntary associations, if any, providing maternity and child welfare services in or for the benefit of the Council's area. The scheme will come into operation on April 1st, 1937, and continue in force until March 31st, 1942.

Copies of model schemes for use by County Councils and County Borough Councils, respectively, are enclosed herewith (b), and it is suggested that the Council might take the existing scheme as approved with or without any modification by the Minister, and any amending scheme subsequently made and approved, as the basis for their new scheme.

The scheme should be prepared after consultation with the voluntary associations named in the existing scheme, and when the scheme is submitted it should be accompanied by a full statement of the reasons for any omission of a voluntary association included in the existing scheme, or any proposed variation of the amount of an annual contribution specified in that scheme.

There is no provision in the Act enabling the Minister to extend the time for the submission of these schemes, and if in any case the scheme is not ready for adoption by a Council at their meeting before the summer vacation it will be necessary to hold a meeting of the Council in August or September for the purpose of adopting the scheme.

The Minister appreciates that, in the event of the Midwives Bill now before Parliament becoming law, it may be necessary for certain Councils to reconsider the amounts of the annual contributions which they propose to pay to voluntary associations in respect of domiciliary midwifery services. As, however, these schemes have to be submitted by September 30th next, any variations in the amounts of these contributions consequent on the passing of the Midwives Bill must, if necessary, be dealt with by subsequent modification or alteration of the schemes. It is desirable that contributions for domiciliary midwifery services should be specified separately in the Schedules to the schemes, and an additional column (2) has been included in the *Schedule to the enclosed model scheme in order that in the case of each Association the particular service or services (e.g., domiciliary midwifery, health visiting, etc.) in respect of which a contribution is to be made under the scheme may be stated, and the amount of the contribution in respect of each such service entered separately in column (3).

The Minister desires to be furnished with three copies of every scheme submitted under Section 101 of the Act, of which at least two should be sealed, signed and dated in the usual way as evidence that the scheme has been adopted by the Council.

Your obedient Servant,

Maternity and Child Welfare Authorities.

WHITEHALL, S.W.1.
29th May, 1936.

CHILDREN UNDER SCHOOL AGE.

SIR,—1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to say that he has had under consideration the arrangements made by Local Authorities for the supervision of the health of children not in attendance at school. He is convinced that in general these arrangements are satisfactory in so far as they apply to children up to the age of 18 months or 2 years, and the striking fall in the infant mortality rate, which last year was the lowest on record, namely 57 per 1,000 births, testifies to the value of the work performed under Maternity and Child Welfare schemes for the benefit of children in the first year of life.

2. The Minister is, however, concerned to find that in many areas insufficient attention is being given to the health of young children between the ages of 18 months and 5 years. He understands that more than 16 per cent. of the children entering school are found to require treatment for some disease or defect, and it is clear that in many cases these conditions could have been prevented from developing, or could have been quickly cured, if adequate supervision of the health of the children had been exercised throughout the pre-school years.

3. The policy of the Government in regard to the provision of Nursery Schools, and the admission of children under 5 years of age to the infants' departments of Elementary Schools, was explained in the Board of Education's Circular 1444 which was issued on January 6th last (a). It is, however, clear that whatever provision is made on the lines there suggested, very considerable numbers of children under the age of 5 will remain at home, and in the interests of their health it is essential that in all areas there should be systematic periodical health visiting of those young children who are not in attendance at school.

4. It should be the duty of the Health Visitor to see these children at regular intervals, to make inquiries as to their state of health and to be on the look-out for any signs or symptoms which suggest a departure from normal health. In all cases where there is ground for suspecting disease or defect, the mother should be advised to consult the family doctor, or to take the child to the appropriate clinic for medical examination, without any delay.

5. In some areas special arrangements have been made for the holding of "toddlers' clinics" at the Infant Welfare Centres, and there is much to be said for these arrangements if the mothers can be persuaded to bring the toddlers periodically to the clinic for examination by the doctor. But the success of these clinics will depend to a great extent on the regular visiting of the homes by the Health Visitor and on the relations which she is able to establish with the mothers.

6. In many areas the School Clinic is available for the treatment of minor ailments and of special defects in young children, and it is desirable that such arrangements should be more generally made. It is also clearly desirable, wherever possible, that the Medical Officer who will supervise the health of these children after they enter school should be responsible for this supervision during the pre-school years. In those areas in which the Maternity and Child Welfare Authority is not also the Local Education Authority it may be possible to secure this desirable arrangement by agreement between the two Authorities, but it can most readily be effected if the Maternity and Child Welfare service is in the hands of the Local Authority responsible for the School Medical Service. There is in fact no doubt that, in general, the adequate supervision of the health of the pre-school child will be best secured if the responsibility for attending to the health of children, from birth up to school-leaving age, is concentrated in the hands of one and the same Authority. It will of course be necessary to apportion the expenditure between the Education service and the Maternity and Child Welfare service.

(a) Not here reproduced.

7. In those districts in which this responsibility is still divided between two Authorities, there is provision in Section 60 of the Local Government Act, 1929, whereby representations may be made to the Minister by the Council which is the Local Education Authority that it is desirable that the Maternity and Child Welfare services should be transferred to them. In a number of cases this transfer has already been made by order of the Minister under that Section, but in each case the Minister, before issuing an order, has to be satisfied that the transfer will conduce to the more efficient administration in the district of the functions relating to public health and education.

8. It is clear that the success of any efforts to secure adequate supervision of the health of young children will depend to a large extent on the efficiency of the health visiting staff, and that in many areas it may be necessary to increase that staff. The Minister regrets to find that in some areas the salaries offered for these posts are inadequate. It appears to him that Local Authorities cannot expect to secure or retain the services of women properly qualified to discharge the important duties attached to the post of Health Visitor unless they offer salaries commensurate with the long and specialised training these women have to undergo in order to fit them for this work.

9. In certain areas Day Nurseries have been provided for the care of young children whose mothers go out to work, or whose home conditions are such that their health would benefit by the daily supervision which can be secured in this way. Children can be admitted to these Nurseries at an earlier age than that at which they are eligible for admission to Nursery Schools, and they are usually kept for longer hours each day than is possible in the case of children attending Nursery Schools. If therefore there are in the area of the Council any considerable number of mothers who are regularly employed away from home, it would be well for the Council to consider the desirability of establishing a Day Nursery.

10. The Minister will be glad if the Council will review their arrangements for supervising the health of young children, and inform him as soon as possible of the result of their consideration of this Circular.

11. A copy of this Circular should be handed to the Financial Officer of the Authority.

CIRCULAR 1569.

Local Supervising Authorities under the Midwives Acts.

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL, S.W.1.
18th September, 1936.

MIDWIVES ACT, 1936.

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to draw the attention of the Council to the provisions of the Midwives Act, 1936 (a), which came into operation on July 31st, 1936.

(a) Ante, p. 1556.

MATERNITY, CHILD WELFARE, AND MIDWIVES

1. The principal object of the Act is to secure the organisation throughout th country of a domiciliary service of salaried midwives under the control of local supervising authorities as an important step in the improvement of the maternity service and in the campaign for reducing maternal mortality. At the same time, th whole status of the midwifery profession will be raised by providing adequat salaries and secure prospects for those midwives who enter the new service, and by compensating those who retire within a specified period and so reducing the present overcrowding in the ranks of the profession.

The Act provides for the establishment by local supervising authorities of a salaried midwives' service ; the payment by those authorities of compensation to midwives who voluntarily retire from practice and to those who are required to retire owing to old age or infirmity ; the payment by the Exchequer of grants towards the cost of the new service and towards the amounts expended in compensation ; the prohibition of maternity nursing by unqualified persons in any area by order of the Minister as soon as he is satisfied that the new service in that area is adequate ; and the periodical attendance at post-certificate courses of all practising midwives.

The opportunity has also been taken to make a number of amendments of the existing law relating to midwives.

2. The Minister desires to urge local supervising authorities at once to take steps to formulate their proposals for establishing a service of salaried midwives so that, as required by the Act, they may be submitted to the Minister not later than January 30th, 1937, and be brought into operation not later than July 30th, 1937. Whilst the Minister is empowered to extend these periods, he does not consider that any extension should be necessary in the case of the great majority of local authorities, but he will be prepared to grant an extension if he is satisfied that, owing to exceptional circumstances, it is not practicable for the necessary action to be taken within the prescribed periods.

3. As the authority are no doubt aware, where domiciliary midwifery services are provided on a properly organised basis by the salaried midwives of voluntary hospitals and Nursing Associations the maternal mortality rate is well below the national rate, and the establishment in all areas of a service of salaried midwives, working under close and sympathetic supervision, should do much to secure a reduction in that rate. Under the Act local supervising authorities are required, before submitting their proposals to the Minister, to consult voluntary organisations which employ, or are willing to employ, salaried midwives in their areas, and to furnish the organisations with copies of their proposals when or before they are submitted to the Minister. Any voluntary organisation which already employs salaried midwives for domiciliary work may make representations to the Minister if the authority does not propose to make arrangements with them or if they are dissatisfied with the authority's proposals.

4. As already stated, one of the main objects of the Act is to improve the status of the midwifery profession. Accordingly the Minister regards it as of the utmost importance that the midwives employed in the new service should be adequately remunerated. The work to be carried out by them is in his view at least as important as the work carried out by health visitors, and he feels confident that local authorities will in respect of the midwives appointed by them adopt scales of salaries which are comparable with those applicable to health visitors employed in the same district, together with appropriate allowances for travelling expenses, and that their contributions to voluntary organisations will be sufficient to enable those organisations to pay adequate salaries to all the midwives they employ.

5. In the case of the midwives first employed by local supervising authorities under the Act, those authorities which have superannuation schemes will be empowered, when any of these midwives retire in accordance with the provisions of the schemes, to add years up to 10 for the purpose either of determining whether a pension is payable to the midwife or of calculating the amount of the pension. This special provision has been included in the Act because it is anticipated that many of the midwives first employed by local authorities will at the date of their appointment be approaching middle age or be even older. The Minister trusts therefore that local authorities will be prepared freely to exercise this power where the occasion arises.

MATERNITY, CHILD WELFARE, AND MIDWIVES

6. The Minister feels sure that the local supervising authorities will appreciate the importance of the full use by them of the power conferred on them by the Act to direct midwives practising in their areas to surrender their certificates if they are incapable, owing to age or infirmity of mind or body, of efficiently performing their duties as midwives. This power must be exercised within three years of the coming into operation of the Act.

7. It is, of course, important that as many as possible of the independent midwives at present in practice should be absorbed into the new service, and local authorities, when making their first appointments of salaried midwives, will naturally desire to give preference to the most efficient of the independent midwives practising in their areas. The Minister is aware that some local authorities have adopted rules which require their female officers to retire on marriage, but there is nothing in the Act to prevent the employment of married midwives, and the Minister trusts that any authority whose rules would prevent their employment will so revise the rules as to enable the authority, when first selecting midwives for salaried posts, to have regard only to their efficiency as midwives subject, of course, to their ability to undertake whole-time employment. The Minister has been in consultation on this matter with the Association of Municipal Corporations and the County Councils Association, and he is glad to be able to state that those Associations share his view that local authorities should make no sort of discrimination against married women in inaugurating the new service.

8. The appended Memorandum explains the general scope of the Act, and of the financial arrangements made by it.

A copy of this Circular is being forwarded to the Medical Officer of Health and an additional copy is enclosed for the use of the Financial Officer of the Authority. Memo. 200/M.C.W.

MIDWIVES ACT, 1936.

This memorandum is divided into three parts :—

Part I (paragraphs 1 to 7) contains a brief summary of the provisions in the Act under certain main headings.

Part II (paragraphs 8 to 12) explains the financial arrangements of the Act.

Part III (paragraphs 13 to 20) describes the administrative procedure which will be necessary.

PART I.

1. The New Service.—Section 1 of the Act requires each local supervising authority under the Midwives Acts to secure the whole-time employment of a sufficient number of midwives for attendance on women in their own homes, not only as midwives, but also as maternity nurses during childbirth and from time to time thereafter during a period not less than the "lying-in period," as defined in the rules for the time being made by the Central Midwives Board under Section 3 of the Midwives Act, 1902. The period is at present defined to be not less than ten days, but the Minister understands that the Board will shortly submit for his approval amended rules which will extend this period to a minimum of 14 days. A midwife acts as such when she has been engaged to deliver a woman, and as a maternity nurse when she is employed to assist a medical practitioner who has been so engaged.

Local supervising authorities may either themselves employ salaried midwives or secure their employment by Welfare Councils, i.e., Councils which, not being local supervising authorities, have established Maternity and Child Welfare Committees under the Maternity and Child Welfare Act, 1918, or by voluntary organisations, i.e., organisations which are substantially supported by voluntary subscriptions.

Before submitting their proposals to the Minister, local supervising authorities are required to consult with all voluntary organisations which to their knowledge employ or are willing to employ salaried midwives in the authority's area, and with such local organisations, if any, of registered medical practitioners and midwives, respectively, as appear to the authority effectively to represent the opinions of practitioners and midwives practising in the authority's area on the questions relating to the proposals. In Counties where a County Nursing Association has been set up to co-ordinate the services provided by the District Nursing Associations in the County, the County Council may consult the County Association instead of consulting each of the District Associations separately. In the case of the London County Council, the Council must also consult with any Association or Committee which appear to them to represent the Metropolitan Borough Councils, whilst other County Councils must consult every District Council within the County which is a Welfare Council.

The detailed proposals of the local supervising authorities must be submitted to the Minister and must include particulars (a) of the arrangements proposed to be made with welfare councils and voluntary organisations, and (b) the number of midwives to be employed by, and the parts of the authority's area to be served, whether exclusively or jointly, by the authority, welfare councils and voluntary organisations, respectively. The proposals do not require the Minister's approval, but each local supervising authority must send a copy of its proposals to every welfare council, organisation or other body which it has consulted in accordance with the requirements of the Act, and to every voluntary organisation which employs salaried midwives for service in the area of the authority, whether or not it has been consulted. Any welfare council or voluntary organisation which employs salaried midwives in the area of the authority may, if the authority does not propose to make arrangements with them or if they are dissatisfied with the authority's proposals, make representations to the Minister within two months after the authority's proposals have been submitted to him. The Minister, after considering any such representations and consulting the authority, is empowered to direct it to enter into such arrangements with a welfare council or a voluntary organisation as he thinks fit, or to vary the arrangements proposed to be made and to alter its proposals accordingly.

Unless the Minister allows longer periods, the proposals of the local supervising authorities must be submitted to him within six months, and the new service must be brought into operation within twelve months, from the commencement of the Act.

Under Section 2 of the Act local supervising authorities are required before first engaging midwives under the Act to give notice, both in the Press and individually to each midwife who, on or after January 1st next but one before the date on which the notice was given, has given notice of her intention to practice in the area.

The Act requires that midwives employed in the new service, whether by local supervising authorities, welfare councils or voluntary organisations, shall be the whole-time servants of these bodies, but it does not require that they shall devote the whole of their time to midwifery and maternity nursing.

Section 2 enables those local supervising authorities which have superannuation schemes to add years up to ten for the purpose (i) of calculating the amount of the pension of a midwife who is first employed by them under the Act within three years from its commencement and is not already in the local government service; and (ii) if the case requires it, of ascertaining whether a pension is payable. The section also provides that any expenditure incurred following the exercise of this power shall be met in the case of a County Council out of the County fund, in the case of the London County Council as expenses for general County purposes, and in other cases out of the general rate fund.

2. Fees.—Section 3 requires every local supervising authority employing midwives under the Act to fix scales of fees payable for their attendance as midwives and maternity nurses, respectively, and to recover the fee from the woman attended or from the husband or other person liable to maintain her, but the authority is empowered to remit the whole or part of the fee in cases where it is satisfied that the patient or the person liable to maintain her cannot pay any part, or can pay only a part, of the fee, as the case may be.

3. Financial Assistance.—The financial arrangements of the Act, which are contained in Section 4 and in subsection (6) of Section 5 of the Act, are explained in detail in Part II of this Memorandum. Briefly, the Act provides for the payment to local supervising authorities by the Exchequer of one-half of their actual expenditure on the payment of compensation to midwives, and for an ad hoc Exchequer grant towards the estimated additional cost, as compared with the financial year 1935–6, of the new service during each year of the third fixed grant period (1937–42) under the Local Government Act, 1929. Subsequently the grant will be merged in the General Exchequer Contribution payable under that Act which will be increased by reason of the additional expenditure by such amount as may be determined by Parliament. The ad hoc grant payable to a local supervising authority during each year of the third fixed grant period will be one-half of the net amount of the authority's estimated additional expenditure on the new service, scaled up or down in proportion to the extent to which the relative needs of the area, as measured by the grant formula for weighted population at present used for the calculation of grants under the Local Government Act, 1929, are respectively greater or less than the average needs of all Counties and County Boroughs in England and Wales as determined by that formula. In order to minimize detailed control and examination, and to simplify the grant arrangements in respect of local authorities' direct expenditure, the grant in respect of the cost of the employment of midwives by local supervising authorities themselves will be calculated on a "unit" basis, this unit representing the estimated average annual cost for the country as a whole of the salary and expenses of a municipal midwife, less the estimated average annual receipts from fees.

As regards midwives employed by voluntary organisations, the additional expenditure to be taken into account for the purposes of grant will be the excess of the amount of the annual contributions made by each authority to such organisations for domiciliary midwifery and maternity nursing over the contributions which were made to them by the authority or by welfare councils during the financial year 1935–6 in respect of those services in the area of the authority.

4. Compensation.—Section 5 of the Act provides that every midwife who, between the first day of January, 1935, and March 18th, 1936, has given notice to an authority of her intention to practise, and who, within a period of three years from the comment of the Act, surrenders her certificate to the local supervising authority in whose area she is practising at the time of the surrender, shall be entitled to be paid compensation by that authority. The Section also provides that within the same period a local supervising authority may require any midwife who, on or after January 1st, 1936, has given notice to that authority of her intention to practise, to surrender her certificate if she is incapable, by reason of age or infirmity, of efficiently performing her duties. Each surrendered certificate must be forwarded by the authority to the Central Midwives Board who will cancel the certificate by endorsing it and return it to the midwife and remove her name from the Roll of Midwives. Restoration to the Roll of the name of a midwife who has received compensation is prohibited, and it is made a penal offence for a midwife whose name has been so removed to receive remuneration for attending as a nurse on a woman in childbirth or at any time during the ten days immediately after childbirth.

The compensation to be paid to midwives who surrender their certificates under the Act will be equivalent, in the case of voluntary retirement, to three times and, in the case of compulsory retirement, to five times the average net annual emoluments derived by the midwife from her practice as midwife or maternity nurse during the preceding three years of the period of her practice, whichever is the shorter. Any midwife who is aggrieved by the refusal of an authority to pay her compensation, by the amount of the compensation paid, or by a direction to her to retire, may appeal to the Minister whose decision will be final. In the case of a midwife who is directed to surrender her certificate, the appeal to the Minister must be made one month from the date of the direction. Section 5 also empowers a local authority, where it decides that it is in the interests of the midwife to do so, to lay out either the whole or part of the compensation in the purchase of an annuity terminable on the midwife's attaining the age of 70 or dying before attaining that age, but a midwife who is aggrieved by a decision of the authority to purchase an annuity for her may appeal to the Minister. In the case of a midwife who at the time of the surrender of her certificate is practising in the area of more than one authority, the compensation is payable by the authority to whom the certificate is surrendered. That authority may recover from the other authorities concerned their share of the compensation in the manner indicated in the Second Schedule to the Act, the provisions of which are explained in greater detail in Part III of this Memorandum.

5. Prohibition of Unqualified Persons.—Under Section 6 of the Act the Minister may, by Order, apply the Section to the area of any local supervising authority or to any county district contained therein when he is satisfied that that authority has secured the provision of an adequate service of salaried midwives under the Act in its area, or in the county district, as the case may be. After the date of such an Order, it will be a penal offence for a male person or any person who is neither certified under the Midwives Act, 1902, nor registered in the general part of the Register of Nurses required to be kept under the Nurses Registration Act, 1919, to receive any remuneration for attending in the area or district to which the Order applies as a nurse on a woman in childbirth or at any time during the ten days immediately after childbirth. Exceptions are, however, made as regards (a) persons who are undergoing training as part of a midwifery course recognised by the General Medical Council or by the Central Midwives Board with a view to becoming duly qualified general practitioners or certified midwives; (b) any person who attends on a woman in a Nursing Home registered, or exempt from registration, under the Nursing Homes Registration Act, 1927, or in Hospitals or Institutions excepted from the definition of Nursing Home in that Act; and (c) women who before January 1st, 1937, have been certified by the authorities of a hospital or other institution to which the Minister has, by Order, applied the proviso to subsection (1) of the Section, to have been trained in obstetric nursing, provided that such women give notice in writing to the authority of the area that they have been so certified.

6. Post-Certificate Courses.—Section 7 of the Act confers on the Central Midwives Board the power to frame rules requiring midwives to attend periodically courses of instruction approved by the Board, and local supervising authorities are required to provide, or arrange for the provision of, the necessary courses for midwives practising in their areas.

7. Attention should also be drawn to the provisions of Section 9 which empower (a) the Minister—

(i) to fix by regulations the scale of fees payable to registered medical practitioners under subsection (1) of Section 14 of the Midwives Act, 1918 (a), and to prescribe in such regulations the conditions subject to which the fees are to be payable;

(ii) to make regulations prescribing the qualifications of persons appointed by a local supervising authority under Section 8 of the Act of 1902 (b) to exercise supervision over midwives practising within its area, and

(b) the Central Midwives Board to frame rules—

(i) regulating the grant by the Board of diplomas in the teaching of midwifery;

(ii) applying to the proceedings before the Board for the removal of the name of a midwife from the Roll of Midwives, the provisions of the Arbitration Act, 1889, relating to the summoning, attendance and examination of witnesses, etc.

PART II.

FINANCE.

8. Exchequer Grants.—The Act makes Exchequer grants available in respect of (a) expenditure incurred by local supervising authorities in the payment of compensation to midwives who retire, and (b) additional expenditure incurred by them either in the employment of midwives direct or by way of contributions made to welfare councils and voluntary organisations who employ midwives by arrangement with the local authority.

Expenditure in respect of compensation is purely temporary, as compensation is payable only to midwives who surrender their certificates within a period of three years from the commencement of the Act, and Section 5 (6) provides for the payment from the Exchequer of fifty per cent. of the aggregate payments made by each local authority.

The expenditure to be incurred by local authorities in employing or securing the employment of salaried midwives under Section 1 of the Act is in respect of a permanent obligation. Section 4 (subsections (1) and (3)) makes it clear that for the fourth and every subsequent grant period under the Local Government Act, 1929, i.e., from April 1st, 1942, Exchequer assistance will be given by way of an addition to the General Exchequer Contribution from which are derived the General Exchequer grants payable to local authorities under that Act.

To meet the views expressed by Associations of Local Authorities, namely that during the stage in which the service is being set up the Exchequer assistance to each authority should be related to the expenditure of that authority, provision should be related to the expenditure of that authority, provision is made (subsection (2) of section 4 and the First Schedule) for a temporary grant for the five years of the third grant period, namely 1937–42. This grant will be directly related to the expenditure of each authority, and at the same time to its relative capacity to meet that expenditure. It will be calculated in a manner designed to minimise detailed control and examination of expenditure.

(b) Ante, p. 1543.

MATERNITY, CHILD WELFARE, AND MIDWIVES

9. Calculation of Exchequer Grants.—The expenditure of local supervising authorities may be of two kinds :—

(a) salaries and expenses of salaried midwives employed on domiciliary midwifery by the authority less the fees collected, and

(b) contributions payable under arrangements made with welfare councils or voluntary organisations for the employment by them of salaried midwives.

Expenditure under both of these heads will rank for grant in so far as it is additional to expenditure incurred in the year 1935–6 in respect of domiciliary midwifery and maternity nursing services.

As regards (a) the Act provides that for the purpose of calculating the Exchequer grant the expenditure on midwives directly employed by the local supervising authority shall be estimated on a unit basis (in accordance with directions given by the Minister after consultation with the Associations of Local Authorities) in respect of each midwife so employed, representing the average annual cost for the country as a whole of the salary and expenses of a municipal midwife, less the average annual receipts from fees. From the total so obtained will be deducted the expenditure, if any, incurred by the authority and by welfare councils in employing domiciliary midwives in the year 1935–6. The amount so calculated will be taken as the additional expenditure in respect of the employment of midwives by the authority.

The Minister proposes to discuss with local authorities the amount which should be fixed as a unit for this purpose, and its application to midwives employed by local authorities who perform other duties besides domiciliary midwifery and maternity nursing.

As regards (b), the salaried midwives employed by voluntary organisations will, in many cases, act also as district nurses or in some other capacity, and the expenditure of the authorities will be represented by annual contributions to the voluntary organisations or to welfare councils in respect of their domiciliary midwifery and maternity nursing work, the amount of which will be a matter of negotiation and will no doubt vary according to the circumstance of the particular case. The additional expenditure on the new service will be represented by the excess of the annual contributions to be made by authorites to those organisations or councils for domiciliary midwifery and maternity nursing over those paid in the year 1935–6 by the authority and by welfare councils in the area of the authority.

The amount represented by the total of the additional expenditure under (a) and (b) calculated above will be halved, and the result in each case will be scaled up or down in proportion to the extent to which the relative needs of the area—as measured by the formula for weighted population used in the calculation of the General Exchequer grants under the Local Government Act, 1929—are respectively greater or less than the average needs of all counties and County Boroughs in England and Wales as determined by the aggregate of the weighted populations for all Counties and County Boroughs. In those cases in which the councils of county districts are local supervising authorities, the factor for the county as a whole will be taken both for the calculation for the county council and for that of the district council.

This method can more conveniently be illustrated by the following specimen case :

The aggregate of the weighted populations for all Counties and County Boroughs in England and Wales, as calculated for the second grant period under the Local Government Act, is equivalent to the ordinary population multiplied by 2·7. If it is assumed that the additional expenditure calculated as above is £1,000 per annum, for each of three Authorities "A," "B" and "C," and that for those Authorities the weighted population is equivalent to the ordinary population multiplied respectively by 3·6, 2·5 and 1·8, the grants payable in each case (which are to be calculated to the nearest pound) will be as follows:

"A" . . . $\frac{1,000}{2} \times \frac{3·6}{2·7}$ or £667

"B" . . . $\frac{1,000}{2} \times \frac{2·5}{2·7}$ or £463

"C" . . . $\frac{1,000}{2} \times \frac{1·8}{2·7}$ or £333

10. Conditions of grant approved by the Treasury.—The Act provides that the Exchequer grants towards the expenses incurred by local authorities under the Act shall be subject to such conditions as to records, certificates, audit or otherwise as the Minister, with the approval of the Treasury, may determine. The formal conditions as approved by the Treasury will be communicated to local authorities at a later date.

11. Payment of Exchequer Grants.—With the approval of the Treasury, payments on account of Exchequer grants due may be made to local authorities on application each half-year. Ordinarily, these advances will be about 90 per cent. of the amount estimated to be due and the balance will be paid after audit.

Forms will be supplied to local authorities for the purpose of claiming grants.

12. Default of Local Authority.—By subsection (7) of Section 4 of the Act the grants payable under the Section are for the purposes of Section 104 of the Local Government Act, 1929, to be deemed to be made under Part VI of that Act, and the functions of an authority under the new Act to be functions relating to public health services within the meaning of that Section. Section 104 of the Local Government Act, 1929, will therefore empower the Minister to reduce the grant payable to an authority under Part VI of the Act of 1929 or under the new Act if the authority fail to show reasonable efficiency and progress in the establishment and maintenance of an adequate service of salaried midwives or otherwise in giving effect to the provisions of the Act.

PART III.

PROCEDURE.

13. The regulations to be made by the Minister under subsections (1) and (2) of Section 9 of the Act are under consideration, and it is understood that the Central Midwives Board are proceeding with the preparation of rules under the powers conferred on them by Sections 7 (1) and 9 (4). Further communications on these matters will be addressed to local authorities in due course.

14. Time-table.—The proposals of local supervising authorities should, unless in view of exceptional circumstances the Minister approves of a longer period, be submitted to him not later than January 30th, 1937. It is essential that the proposals of local authorities should be submitted promptly if they are to be brought into operation by July 30th, 1937, as under Section 1 (5) of the Act two months are allowed in which voluntary organisations or welfare councils which employ salaried midwives may make representations to the Minister, and under Section 2 of the Act it is necessary for authorities to give one month's notice of their intention first to engage midwives in the new service.

15. Formulation of proposals.—The first step is for each local supervising authority to estimate by reference to existing statistics the number of domiciliary confinements which are likely to be attended in their area each year (a) by midwives, and (b) by medical practitioners, and the number which will take place in institutions. The local authority will not, of course, be concerned for the purposes of the new service with the last-mentioned type of case, but in arriving at their estimates under (a) and (b) they will, no doubt, consider whether the establishment of the new service may not result in a diminution in the number of cases confined in hospital. As it is no part of the local authority's obligation to provide maternity nurses for residence in the homes of patients, it may also be necessary to make some reduction for those women who, besides engaging a medical practitioner, normally employ also a resident maternity nurse.

The number of cases per annum likely to be dealt with under the new service having been ascertained, it will be necessary for the authority to calculate the number of whole-time midwives who will be required for attendance on such cases either as midwives, or as maternity nurses during a period of at least 14 days. The report of the Joint Council of Midwifery suggests that each whole-time midwife might reasonably be expected to attend 80 cases per annum, while the Departmental Committee on Midwives suggested a figure of 100 cases a year. The Minister is advised that for the purposes of their calculations local authorities might assume that in populous districts each midwife should usually be capable of attendance on 70 cases as a midwife and 30 cases as a maternity nurse during the year. The figures for sparsely populated areas where considerable time will be spent in travelling will, of course, be lower.

It will be necessary for the authority, in considering the number of midwives who must be employed, to allow for annual and sick leave, and for emergencies, such as the suspension of a midwife in order to prevent the spread of infection.

Wherever possible, the authority should frame their proposals in such a way as to allow a choice of midwife to the women who avail themselves of the new service.

The next step will be to consult with the bodies specified in Section 1 (2) of the Act and to decide the extent to which the number of midwives considered to be necessary shall be employed by the local supervising authority or by welfare councils or voluntary organisations and the areas for which they should be responsible. Where arrangements are proposed to be made with a voluntary hospital which has an extern midwifery practice, the authority should consider whether it is desirable that midwives employed by the authority should also be made available for attendance in the same district in order that mothers in that district may be able to choose whether they will be attended by a midwife employed by the hospital or by one directly in the service of the authority.

In making arrangements with voluntary institutions which employ salaried midwives for extern practice it is important to remember that these midwives may be engaged in the practical teaching of medical students and pupil midwives, and the arrangements made should, if possible, be such as to secure that the districts served by the salaried midwives of the institutions are sufficiently extensive to provide the necessary cases for teaching. If in certain cases this is not practicable, arrangements might be made between the authorities and the institutions whereby certain of the salaried midwives employed by the authorities, if approved for the purpose, are used as teachers.

County Councils will no doubt appreciate the importance, if undue expenditure is to be avoided, of arranging if possible for Nursing Associations to provide a service to cover the whole of the rural parts of the Counties. This will in a number of cases involve an extension of the activities of the Associations to areas not previously served by them, and as the midwives employed by the Associations normally devote a substantial part of their time to district nursing, and as the contributions made by local authorities under the Act will relate only to midwifery and maternity nursing, the Nursing Associations will require additional funds in order to pay that part of the salaries of the additional midwives appointed by them which relates to other than midwifery and maternity nursing work. It may be necessary, therefore, for a County Council to consider the question of a fuller exercise of the power conferred upon them by Section 67 of the Poor Law Act, 1930 (a), to subscribe, with the consent of the Minister, towards the funds of Nursing Associations. Such subscriptions would not, of course, rank for grant under the Midwives Act. In those cases in which the midwives appointed by the Nursing Associations undertake health visiting or school nursing duties by arrangement with the County Council, the latter will of course make additional contributions to the Nursing Associations in respect of that work.

If it is not possible to arrange in this way for the necessary service in certain rural areas, a County Council may be able to arrange for midwives employed by them in urban areas to work also in adjacent rural areas. In the last resort, a County Council may have to employ their own midwives in certain rural areas, but in such cases it will be desirable to engage midwives who are qualified also to undertake health visiting, school nursing and other public health work in those areas.

Model forms of agreement are appended for the assistance of local supervising authorities when entering into arrangements with Nursing Associations and other voluntary organisations. It will be seen that the agreements provide, amongst other matters, for the fixing of the salaries and other emoluments paid to the midwives employed and of the fees charged for their services. It is thought that a County Council will prefer to make one agreement with the County Nursing Association instead of separate agreements with each of the affiliated District Nursing Associations. The model agreement "A" has been drafted accordingly, but when this form of agreement is used it will be necessary for the County Council to satisfy themselves that each of the District Associations has, by formal resolution or otherwise, authorised the County Association to make arrangements on its behalf with the Council. Model agreement "B" will be suitable for use when arrangements are made with a voluntary hospital, or where arrangements are made directly with a District Nursing Association.

Where a welfare council is already employing salaried midwives the County Council will no doubt consider whether it should arrange for the employment by that council of the necessary number of midwives for service in its district, or for the transfer of the midwives employed by the welfare council, with the consent of that council, to the service of the County Council. In the former event the authority would no doubt enter into an agreement with the welfare council whereby an annual lump sum payment would be made to that council.

16. Submission of proposals.—The Act requires that the proposals submitted by the authority shall include particulars of any arrangements proposed to be made with welfare councils and voluntary organisations, and of the number of midwives to be employed in the parts of the area of the authority to be served, whether exclusively or jointly, by the authority, welfare councils and voluntary organisations, respectively. The proposals should be accompanied by drafts of any agreements proposed to be entered into with voluntary organisations, and, where the local authority itself proposes to employ midwives, by particulars of the proposed scale of salaries, and of the scale of fees proposed to be fixed by the authority under Section 3 of the Act.

A copy of the local supervising authority's proposals should be forwarded, not later than the date on which they are submitted to the Minister, to every council, organisation or other body which it has consulted under subsection (2) of Section 1, and to every voluntary organisation which employs, or is willing to employ, domiciliary midwives, whether or not that organisation has been consulted.

Whilst the Minister's formal approval of the proposals is not required, he would propose in view of the provisions of Section 4 (7) and Section 6 of the Act to suggest to local authorities any modifications which appear to him to be desirable. Where representations are made to him under Section 1 (5) by a voluntary organisation or a welfare council which employs salaried midwives, the Minister will of course consult the local authority and then decide in the light of that consultation whether he should direct it to alter its proposals.

17. Notice of employment.—Notice of the local supervising authority's intention first to appoint midwives under the Act must be given in the Press and sent individually to each midwife who has given notice of intention to practise in the authority's area on or after the specified date. The notice must state that applications for employment in the new service are about to be considered and must give information as to the salary and other conditions of service. Local supervising authorities will be aware from their records of the midwives to whom individual notice must be sent.

18. Fees.—Separate scales of fees must be fixed by the local supervising authority in the case of midwives employed by the authority under the Act in respect of their services as midwives, and their services as maternity nurses, respectively. These fees will no doubt be fixed by reference to the fees normally charged by midwives practising in the area, and it should be borne in mind (i) that the great majority of the patients who will employ the services of the authority's midwives will be in receipt of Maternity Benefit, and (ii) that where a midwife is engaged to act as maternity nurse the patient has also to pay the doctor's fee. It is assumed that when fixing the fees authorities will also adopt a scale of income for their guidance in determining the cases in which remissions or rebates should be made, and the extent of such rebates, under the proviso to subsection (1) of Section 3 of the Act.

19. Compensation.

(a) Voluntary surrender.—In the case of the voluntary surrender of a certificate the first step must be taken by the midwife. A midwife eligible for compensation on the voluntary surrender of her certificate must have given notice on or after January 1st, 1935, and before March 18th, 1936, of her intention to practise, she must surrender her certificate before the expiration of three years from the commencement of the Act, i.e., by July 30th, 1939, and she must be practising in the area of the authority at the time of surrender. Whilst the amount of compensation payable will be determined by reference to the average net emoluments of the midwife during the preceding three years or during the period of her practice, whichever is the shorter, only the authority or authorities in whose area or areas she is practising at the time of surrender will be concerned in the payment of compensation. Where the midwife is practising in the area of more than one authority, the whole of the compensation to which she is entitled will be payable by the authority to whom she surrenders her certificate, but that authority will be entitled to recover from the other authorities their share of the compensation on the following basis: As half of the compensation is reimbursed to the paying authority by the Exchequer, the contributions payable by the other authorities will be their shares of half of the compensation so paid. The share of each authority will be determined by the relation of the amount of the average annual net emoluments of the midwife in its area (calculated on the period of three years or the period of practice in that area, whichever is the shorter) to the total of her average annual net emoluments in all the areas in which she is practising at the time of surrender.

In the event of disagreement, any authority concerned may refer the question to the Minister whose decision will be final.

The following is an example of the apportionment of compensation in a case in which the midwife is practising in the area of more than one authority.

A midwife at the date of the surrender of her certificate is practising in the areas of three Authorities "A," "B" and "C." Details of her practice are as follows:

Authority.	Net Emoluments.				Average net annual Emolument for each Authority.
	3rd year before	2nd year surrender of	Last year certificate.	Total 3 years.
1.	2.	3.	4.	5.	6.
	£	£	£	£	£
A. . .	70	80	60	210	70
B. . .	—	(6 mths.) 20	40	60	40
C. . .	—	—	(6 mths.) 10	10	20
Total .	70	100	110	280	130

Average net annual emoluments of midwife . . . . . £$\frac{280}{3}$

Compensation payable to midwife £280

Amount recoverable by Authority "A"

from Authority "B" (Col. 6) . . . . $\frac{40}{130} \times £140 = £43.$

from Authority "C" . . . . . $\frac{20}{130} \times £140 = £21\ 10s.$

leaving the sum of £75 10*s.*, i.e., . . . $\frac{(70}{130}$ £140)

to be borne by the rates of Authority "A."

The general effect of this arrangement is that while the compensation for a midwife practising in more than one area is the same as that for a midwife earning the same total income in one area during the three years, the apportionment of liability between the Authorities is based on the compensation which would have been payable by each Authority if a different midwife had practised in each area.

(b) Compulsory surrender.—In the case of compulsory surrender the initiative must be taken by the local supervising authority who may, within a period of three years from the commencement of the Act, direct any midwife who, after January 1st, 1936, has given notice of her intention to practise in the authority's area, to surrender her certificate if in their view she is incapable by reason of age or infirmity of mind or body of efficiently performing her duties as a midwife. As action by the local authority is limited to a period of three years it is important that they should take steps to secure at the earliest possible date the retirement of all midwives to whom Section 5 (2) of the Act applies. In the first place the local authority will no doubt instruct their Medical Officer of Health to obtain from the Inspectors of Midwives reports on all midwives practising in the area in whose cases there is any doubt as to their capacity to perform their duties efficiently. These reports will be considered by the Medical Officer of Health and the authority will then be in a position, in the light of the recommendations made by him, to decide in which cases they should give directions for the surrender of certificates.

Where the midwife is practising in the area of more than one authority the whole of the compensation must be paid by the authority to whom she is directed to surrender her certificate. The financial liability in connection with such payment only extends to those authorities which join in giving the direction. Under the Act it is left to the local authorities concerned to agree among themselves as to the proportion in which the compensation shall be borne by each of them. If they are unable to agree, the matter will be determined by the Minister.

(c) Annuities.—Whether the certificate is surrendered voluntarily or compulsorily, the local authority is empowered, if it considers that such a course is in the interests of the midwife, to lay out the whole or part of the compensation in the form of an annuity terminable at the age of 70, when the non-contributory old age pension is payable subject to the conditions of the Old Age Pensions Acts, or on the death of a midwife if she dies before that age. Local authorities should, therefore, in each case in which compensation is payable, consider whether or not they should in the midwife's own interest purchase an annuity.

(d) Appeals.—All appeals by aggrieved midwives are to the Minister, whose decision is final. Appeals may be made by midwives who are aggrieved by—

(i) the authority's refusal to pay compensation;

(ii) the amount of the compensation;

(iii) the authority's direction to surrender a certificate; or

(iv) the authority's decision to purchase an annuity.

(i), (ii) and (iv) relate to voluntary as well as to compulsory retirement, while (iii) deals only with compulsory retirement. The Minister will of course consult the local authority concerned in any appeal, and if necessary he will instruct one of his officers to make inquiries locally.

With regard to (ii), the Minister thinks it will be of assistance to local authorities if he informs them of the general considerations which it appears to him should be borne in mind in determining the net annual emoluments of a midwife.

As regards receipts, it appears to the Minister that outstanding fees in respect of which there is a reasonable prospect of payment might properly be taken into account. There may be some cases in which the midwife has not kept any complete record of her earnings, and it may therefore be necessary to assess her income by reference to the number of cases attended and her average receipts per case.

As regards the expenses of a midwife incidental to her practice, it seems to the Minister that where midwives have themselves done the necessary laundry work in connection with their uniforms, this item need not be taken into account, whilst in many cases the travelling expenses of the midwife will have been merely nominal. On the other hand there may be some cases in which the amount of travelling involved has been considerable, and a few cases in which a motor car will have been maintained by the midwife. The expenditure of a midwife on the equipment required for her practice is of the nature of capital expenditure, and the cost of replacement of such equipment might properly be ignored in the calculation of her compensation. The expenses of a midwife on the provision of necessary disinfectants or drugs will have to be taken into account, but a midwife is under no obligation to provide dressings for her patients, and if in certain cases a midwife has in fact made such provision the cost should not be included in the necessary expenses of her practice.

Cases of difficulty will be those in which a midwife has combined domiciliary practice with attending to a few cases in her own home for a charge which includes board, lodging and attendance. It will be necessary in such cases to apportion the charge so that compensation is based only on that part of it which represents the midwife's fee for her services as a midwife or maternity nurse.

(e) Surrendered certificates.—These should be forwarded by the authority to the Central Midwives Board, whose duty it is under the Act to cancel them by endorsement, to return them to the midwives, and to remove the midwives' names from the Roll. The Board will inform the appropriate local authority or authorities when this action has been taken.

20. Prohibition.—The provisions of Section 6 with regard to the prohibition of the attendance of unqualified persons on maternity patients do not become operative until an Order has been made by the Minister applying the provisions of the Section to the area of a particular authority or a county district. The Minister is not empowered to make the necessary Order until he is satisfied that an adequate service has been established. One of the main objects of the Act is to prevent at the earliest possible date the attendance on women in childbirth of unqualified persons, and it is therefore of vital importance that an adequate service should be established in the area of every local authority at the earliest possible date.

It will be necessary for the Order in respect of any particular area to be given the widest possible publicity throughout that area, and provision for this will be made in the Order.

As regards paragraph (c) of the proviso to subsection (1) of Section 6, the Minister will inform all local supervising authorities from time to time of the institutions to which he has by Order applied the proviso, and of the steps which should be taken to ensure that the provisions of the Order receive the necessary publicity to enable the persons concerned to be aware of their position.

CIRCULAR 1519.

Maternity and Child Welfare Authorities.
(England).

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL, S.W.1.
1*st April,* 1937.

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to refer to the recently issued First Report of the Advisory Committee on Nutrition and, in particular, to the emphasis laid in Part VI of the Report on the nutritional value of milk, and to request your Council to take an early opportunity of reviewing its arrangements under the Maternity and Child Welfare Act, 1918 (a), in the light of this Report. In this connection reference should be made to Circular 1290 of October 27th, 1932, in which attention was drawn to the importance of (i) securing that the diet of pregnant and nursing mothers and young children contains a sufficient supply of calcium, phosphates and Vitamin D; and (ii) increasing the consumption of milk, especially by growing children. It was pointed out in the Circular that all possible steps should be taken to ensure that expectant and nursing mothers and young children receive a sufficient supply of food containing Vitamin D, and that the principal foods containing this Vitamin are fat fish, fish livers, egg yolk, milk and butter. It was also mentioned that Vitamin D may be provided by the regular administration of cod liver oil.

The Minister is aware that practically all Maternity and Child Welfare Authorities have already made arrangements for the supply of milk to expectant and nursing mothers and children under school age, while many also supply other foods or cod liver oil at their Centres, and some have made arrangements for serving meals at places set apart for that purpose. He is, however, anxious that each Authority should review its arrangements for this purpose in order to ensure that this important matter is adequately dealt with throughout the country (b).

It has been represented to the Minister that some Authorities have made it a rule to supply milk to expectant mothers only during the last two or three months of pregnancy, while others have limited the supply in every case to one pint per day. It has also been found that certain Authorities supply milk for children only up to the age of 18 months or two years.

In Circular 1072 of February 12th, 1930 (paragraph 5), the Minister expressly sanctioned the extension of the supply of milk or meals under the Maternity and Child Welfare Act to such an extent, and in such a manner, as each Local Authority thought desirable, and he would urge that in the interests of the health of the mothers and children it is not desirable to adopt any such limitations as are mentioned above. On the contrary, the Minister considers that the arrangements made by each Authority should enable sufficient milk or other food to be provided whenever this provision is necessary for the maintenance of the health of the mother or young child.

With regard to the question of payment for milk or other food supplied, while it is not suggested that there should be any departure from the principle that such part of the cost as the recipient can reasonably afford to pay should be recovered, it is of great importance that the scale of income adopted by the Authority for this purpose should be so framed as not to render it difficult for any mothers to take advantage of the Authority's arrangements, and, in some cases, Authorities may find it advisable to reconsider their existing scales from this point of view.

(a) 11 Halsbury's Statutes 472. For the relation of that Act, so far as unrepealed, to the P.H.A., 1936, see ante, p. 470.
(b) See also Circular 1840, dated August 2nd, 1939, post, p. 3357.

MATERNITY, CHILD WELFARE, AND MIDWIVES

In those cases in which liquid milk is supplied, the Minister considers that wherever possible the Authority should provide a supply of efficiently pasteurised milk, and that where this is not practicable, the Medical Officer of Health should approve the source and quality of the milk supplied.

It is understood that in some districts arrangements formerly made for serving meals have been abandoned because it proved difficult to secure the attendance of sufficient mothers or young children. On the other hand, he is aware that in certain large towns a properly organised system of meals, provided at a sufficient number of centres conveniently situated for the mothers, has proved highly successful, and he suggests that the Authorities of other areas should consider afresh the question of organising arrangements of this kind.

The Minister recognises that in some areas Local Authorities have hesitated on grounds of financial stringency to develop their Maternity and Child Welfare Services as fully as in other circumstances they would have desired to do. In areas of this character the additional financial assistance afforded by the recently passed Local Government (Financial Provisions) Act, 1937, provides a further reason for an early review by the Authorities of the existing arrangements.

The Minister trusts that this Circular will receive the early attention of the Authority, and that they will inform him as soon as possible of the result of their consideration of the Circular. He will be glad to arrange for his officers to discuss with representatives or officers of the Authority any question arising out of the suggestions made above on which they may desire further information or advice.

A copy of this circular has been sent to the Medical Officer of Health.

Your obedient Servant,

Assistant Secretary.

CIRCULAR 1620.

Local Supervising Authorities under the Midwives Acts (England).

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL, S.W.1.
7th May, 1937.

SUPERVISION OF MIDWIVES.

SIR,—1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to enclose for the information of the Council copies of the Regulations which he has made under Section 9 (2) of the Midwives Act, 1936 (a), prescribing the qualifications of persons appointed by Local Supervising Authorities under Section 8 of the Midwives Act, 1902, to exercise supervision over the midwives practising in their areas. The Regulations, which have been made after consultation with the Central Midwives Board and the Associations of Local Authorities concerned, will come into operation on June 1st next.

2. It will be observed that the Regulations apply only to persons appointed as Supervisors of Midwives on or after that date, but in view of the importance of entrusting this work to persons with the necessary qualifications and experience, the Minister suggests that each Authority should review their arrangements for the supervision of midwives and should take the earliest opportunity of effecting any changes which may be desirable having regard to the qualifications prescribed by the Regulations. This is of particular importance at the present time when the new service of salaried midwives under the Act of 1936 is about to be established throughout the country.

3. The Departmental Committee on Midwives, which reported in 1929, pointed out that the inspection of midwives by a person without adequate experience of practical midwifery has a bad psychological effect upon the midwife, and reacts unfavourably on her methods of practice, as she is deprived of the opportunity for guidance on professional matters affecting the well-being of her patients which she would receive from a properly qualified inspector. In particular, the Committee strongly deprecated the employment as inspectors of midwives of Health Visitors with little or no practical experience of midwifery. The Minister endorses these views, and it will be seen that the Regulations require that persons appointed in future to supervise midwives shall have had adequate experience in the practice of midwifery.

4. The Departmental Committee also drew attention to the fact that an inspector of midwives should be regarded as the counsellor and friend of the midwives, rather than a relentless critic, and should be one who is ready to instruct the midwives in the various points of difficulty which arise from time to time in connection with their work and make them feel that there is always someone to whom they can look for sympathetic understanding of the laborious nature of their profession. The Minister feels that it is scarcely necessary for him to emphasise the importance of appointing persons who not only possess the necessary professional qualifications, but who also have the essential qualities of sympathy and tact, and he thinks it desirable that the title of " Inspector of Midwives " should be superseded by that of " Supervisor of Midwives " which is that used in the Regulations.

5. The Regulations prescribe qualifications for a Medical Supervisor, and a non-Medical Supervisor, respectively, and it is within the discretion of each Authority to appoint either one or the other, or both. But in large areas it appears to the Minister that the most desirable arrangement would generally be to appoint a Medical Supervisor, acting under the direction of the Medical Officer of Health, to exercise general supervision over the midwives practising in the area, and non-Medical Supervisors to work under the instructions of the Medical Supervisor and perform the routine duties of supervision.

6. The Minister appreciates that at the outset it may be difficult in some cases to secure Medical Supervisors who possess all the qualifications prescribed in Article 3 of the Regulations, and if necessary he will be prepared to consider the question of using the dispensing power which is contained in Article 5. He thinks it desirable, however, to point out that the words " some branch of obstetric work " in Article 3 have a wide range, and include the conduct of ante-natal clinics, the duties of administrative officers in a maternity department, the investigation or treatment of puerperal fever, obstetric research, etc.

7. In conclusion, the Minister wishes to emphasise the fact that the duties of a Supervisor of Midwives extend to all the midwives practising in the area of the Authority, and that a distinction should be drawn between an officer holding this post and one who is appointed as a Superintendent or Senior Midwife to control the work of the salaried midwives appointed by the Authority. The Minister is advised that it is not desirable for a Supervisor of Midwives to be engaged in the actual practice of midwifery.

8. A copy of this circular has been sent to the Medical Officer of Health.

Your obedient Servant,

A. B. MACLACHLAN,
Assistant Secretary.

MATERNITY, CHILD WELFARE, AND MIDWIVES

S. R. & O., 1937, No. 398.

THE MIDWIVES (QUALIFICATIONS OF SUPERVISORS) REGULATIONS, 1937, DATED APRIL 29TH, 1937, MADE BY THE MINISTER OF HEALTH UNDER SECTION 9 (2) OF THE MIDWIVES ACT, 1936.

The Minister of Health, in pursuance of his powers under Section 9 (2) of the Midwives Act, 1936 (a), and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, hereby makes the following regulations, that is to say:

Interpretation and Commencement.

1.—(1) These regulations may be cited as the Midwives (Qualifications of Supervisors) Regulations, 1937, and shall come into operation on the 1st day of June, 1937.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies to the interpretation of these regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament.

2. In these regulations, unless the context otherwise requires—

"Authority" means a Local Supervising Authority for the purposes of the Midwives Acts, 1902 to 1936.

"Supervisor" means a person appointed by an authority under Section 8 of the Midwives Act, 1902 (b), to exercise supervision over midwives practising within its area.

"Medical supervisor" means a supervisor who is a registered medical practitioner.

"Non-medical supervisor" means a supervisor who is not a registered medical practitioner.

"Maternity department" means a maternity hospital or maternity home, or a maternity unit in a general hospital or in a public assistance institution.

Medical Supervisors.

3. Any person appointed by an authority on or after the date upon which these regulations come into operation to be a medical supervisor shall be a registered medical practitioner who has had at least three years' experience in the practice of his profession, and who (1) is registered in the Medical Register as the holder of a diploma in sanitary science, public health or state medicine, (2) has held the appointment of resident Medical Officer in a maternity department for a period of not less than six months, and (3) within a period of two years before his first appointment as a medical supervisor under the provisions of these regulations had had not less than one year's continuous experience in some branch of obstetric work.

Non-Medical Supervisor.

4. Any person appointed by an authority on or after the date upon which these regulations come into operation to be a non-medical supervisor shall be a certified midwife whose name is included in the Roll of Midwives required to be kept under the Midwives Acts, 1902 to 1936, and who (1) is registered in the general part of the Register of Nurses required to be kept under the Nurses Registration Act, 1919 (c), and (2) has been in active practice as a midwife for at least three years subsequent to becoming a certified midwife: Provided that—(a) at least one year of the said period of three years shall have occurred within a period of two years prior to her first appointment as a non-medical supervisor under the provisions of these regulations and (b) that for at least one year during such period of three years she shall have been attending patients in their own homes.

General.

5. The Minister may dispense with any of the requirements of these regulations in any case in which it appears to him desirable so to do, on such terms and conditions

(a) Ante, p. 1565.
(b) Ante, p. 1543.
(c) 11 Halsbury's Statutes 748.

as he thinks fit, and such dispensation may be given at any time provided that the Minister is satisfied that the interests of any person will not be prejudiced thereby.

Given under the official seal of the Minister of Health this twenty-ninth day of April nineteen hundred and thirty-seven.

Assistant Secretary,

CIRCULAR 1622.

Maternity and Child Welfare Authorities (England).

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL, S.W.1.
7th May, 1937.

MATERNAL MORTALITY.

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to draw the attention of the Authority to the Report (Cmd. 5422) on Maternal Mortality which he has recently presented to Parliament and of which copies may be obtained (price 5*s.* 6*d.*) from H.M. Stationery Office.

This Report is the outcome of the special investigations into Maternal Mortality which were announced in Circular 1433 of October 10th, 1934 (a). In recent years much attention has been devoted to the question of deaths in childbirth, and the Minister thinks it is important that the subject should be regarded in its proper perspective.

The number of women who die in childbirth in this country is relatively small, and it can be said that motherhood here has reached a comparatively high level of safety. The young married woman can be told with confidence that if she is in normal health and will take the ordinary and sensible precautions which her doctor or the medical staff at the Ante-natal Clinic advise, the risk she will run in childbirth need be no matter of anxiety. The disturbing circumstance in which the special investigations had their genesis is not that the number of maternal deaths is in itself high, but that it is known that many of the deaths are preventable, that the mortality rate is higher than it should be, and that all efforts have so far failed to reduce it appreciably.

The special investigations were made in 45 areas in which the maternal mortality rate over a period of years has been in excess of the average rate for the whole country and, also, for purposes of comparison, included 24 areas in which the average rate is below the national rate. A comprehensive survey was made of the maternity services in each of the areas visited, and the Minister was continuously informed throughout the investigations of any circumstances calling for his attention. Subsequently, an official letter was addressed to each Authority in which any necessary suggestions were made for improvement or extension of their maternity services. The response has, upon the whole, been most satisfactory, and there is every reason to believe that substantial improvement in the scope and efficiency of these services in many of the areas has either already been secured or is in process of being effected. This procedure, involving frequent consultation both locally and at the Ministry in relation to the action advised, has naturally protracted the length of the investigations, but this has been amply compensated for by the avoidance of delay in securing a number of immediate measures of reform.

The Minister wishes to commend the Report to the careful attention of all Maternity and Child Welfare Authorities, and in particular he would urge them to study Section IX of the Report which sets out the essential elements of an efficient maternity service, and the recommendations in Section X. A copy of those recommendations is appended to this Circular (a).

(a) Ante, p. 3319.

MATERNITY, CHILD WELFARE, AND MIDWIVES

The following paragraphs deal with the more important of the recommendations.

1. The Importance of Team Work.

In the Report it is pointed out that, in the past, circumstances have tended to direct attention, perhaps unduly, to maternity organisation as represented by the activities of Local Authorities, and that if the best results are to be secured the maternity services of an area must be regarded as embracing all the agencies in that area which provide facilities for maternal care. It is not therefore surprising that in the forefront of the recommendations stress is laid on the importance of team work.

The Local Authority is in the best position to secure that combined effort and close co-operation between health visitors, midwives, general practitioners, medical officers of clinics, medical staffs of hospitals and consultant obstetricians, without which it will not be possible to obtain full value from the services provided. The Report gives particulars of certain areas in which the practical possibility of this close co-operation has already been demonstrated, and the Minister trusts that each Authority will do all in its power to promote the necessary team work within its area.

The full co-operation of general practitioners can, probably, best be assured by holding periodical meetings between representatives and officers of the Local Authority and the local organisation of medical practitioners, or by arranging for the adequate representation of those practitioners on the Maternity and Child Welfare Committee of the Authority. The importance of arranging informal meetings between the consultant obstetricians of the area and the general practitioners should also be borne in mind.

With the institution of a salaried midwives' service under the Midwives Act, 1936 (b), it is now practicable to secure the closer co-operation of the midwives practising in the area with the other maternity services, whether the salaried midwives are employed by the Maternity and Child Welfare Authority itself, or by the Local Supervising Authority or some voluntary organisation working under agreement with the latter Authority.

2. Consultant Services.

The Report states that inexperienced or inexpert midwifery is a major cause of maternal mortality, and expresses the view that every maternity scheme should include provision for the services of one or more obstetric consultants. The Minister concurs in this view, and considers it desirable that every Authority should now take the necessary steps to provide an adequate consultant service. He appreciates that this may be difficult in the case of the smaller Authorities and in sparsely populated areas, but he has no doubt that the difficulties can be overcome by the appropriate Authorities taking joint action for the appointment of a consultant. The Minister desires to draw attention to what is said on page 225 in Section IX of the Report as to the desirable qualifications for a consultant obstetrician.

The Report also shows that, in some of the areas in which a consultant has already been appointed, little use is at present made of his services, and this fact indicates the importance of securing personal contact between the consultant or consultants appointed and the general practitioners of the area, as suggested above.

3. Emergency Units.

The Report shows that lives are lost through women being sent to hospital because the necessary expert services are not available in their homes, and emphasises the necessity for arranging in certain types of cases for the services of skilled hospital staff to be brought to the patient instead of subjecting her to the risk of transport to the hospital. In some areas these arrangements have already been made by establishing an " emergency unit " consisting of a consultant obstetrician and a nurse who are available, with all the necessary equipment for dealing with emergencies, for attendance at short notice, when summoned by a doctor, at any home within a certain radius. The "emergency unit" can best be operated from a Maternity Hospital or the maternity department of a General Hospital, but it should be available, not only in the district in which the Hospital is situated, but within a wide area surrounding the Hospital. It is clearly desirable that a service of this kind should be provided for all areas, and the Minister trusts that Local Authorities, acting where necessary in combination, will take all possible steps to secure its establishment.

(b) Ante, p. 1556.

4. Maternity Accommodation.

In some areas adequate provision has already been made for in-patient accommodation for maternity patients, but there is still a need for further accommodation in certain areas and in many there is a lack of suitable accommodation for women who need treatment during pregnancy. The Report shows that necessity in every maternity department for a sufficient number of beds which are allocated to, and reserved for, ante-natal patients. Apart from this need, maternity beds should be provided for all forms of obstetric complications, including such as may arise during labour and the puerperium, and for patients whose home conditions are unsuitable for a confinement, while for every area there should be satisfactory arrangements for the treatment of puerperal sepsis and for cases of abortion.

The Minister considers that it is necessary that each Authority should review the position in its area with special regard to the need for ante-natal wards, and should bear in mind the desirability of arranging, where practicable, for maternity accommodation to be provided in association with a general hospital where facilities for diagnosis and treatment are readily available.

5. Ante-natal Services.

In recent years there has been a great increase in the number of ante-natal clinics, and some Authorities have also made arrangements for ante-natal supervision by general practitioners in sparsely populated areas where the provision of a clinic would not be justified. The importance of adequate and efficient ante-natal supervision is emphasised in the Report, and the Minister suggests that each Authority should carefully consider whether its arrangements for this purpose are satisfactory and sufficient for the needs of the area, or in what respects they need to be extended or improved. In particular, he wishes to draw attention to the importance of establishing for each area a consultative ante-natal clinic, preferably at a maternity hospital or maternity unit, which should be conducted by an obstetric specialist, and to which should be referred all cases of doubt or difficulty discovered at the routine ante-natal clinics or by general practitioners. The Minister also desires to call attention to the recommendation on page 225 of the Report as to the qualifications which should be held by medical officers appointed to take charge of ante-natal clinics.

6. Post-natal Services.

The development of post-natal clinics has not kept pace with the expansion of the system of ante-natal clinics, but the Report shows that it is a matter of urgent necessity to provide adequate post-natal services if maternal mortality and morbidity are to be reduced. Arrangements should be made for holding post-natal sessions at every ante-natal clinic, and no effort should be spared to persuade the women who attend at the ante-natal clinic to return after confinement for medical examination.

It is also important to ensure that there are adequate arrangements for the treatment of disabilities or diseases which are discovered at the post-natal clinic. It may be possible to arrange for the treatment of minor ailments at the post-natal clinic, and for giving contraceptive advice to women attending the clinic in whose cases further pregnancy would, in the opinion of the medical officer, be detrimental to their health. But experience of the work of a post-natal clinic will probably demonstrate the necessity for its being associated with some institution at which facilities are available for the treatment of gynæcological conditions in general. The Minister is advised that a gynæcological clinic can most suitably be established at a women's hospital or a general hospital. Such a clinic would not only serve the needs of those who are eligible for attendance at a post-natal clinic. It would be available for the treatment of all women suffering from gynæcological conditions and for giving them contraceptive advice in the circumstances above-mentioned.

MATERNITY, CHILD WELFARE, AND MIDWIVES

7. Ancillary Services.

(i) The Minister has recently addressed a Circular to Maternity and Child Welfare Authorities (Circular 1519) (a) in which attention is drawn to the importance of each Authority making arrangements to secure an adequate supply of milk or other suitable food for women throughout pregnancy and for nursing mothers. He desires to take this opportunity of again commending this important means of promoting maternal health to those responsible for the Maternity and Child Welfare services in each area.

(ii) A service of Home Helps for women who are incapacitated during pregnancy, and for those who need assistance in the home during the lying-in period, has proved of great value in those areas in which it is suitably administered, and the Minister trusts that each Authority will consider the need for such a service in its area.

(iii) Arrangements should be made by each Authority for the provision of dental treatment, including the provision of dentures, for expectant and nursing mothers.

8. Records.

The Report emphasises the importance of keeping accurate records in connection with every branch of a maternity service, and in particular the careful recording of all departures from the normal; and of free interchange of information between all who are professionally concerned with a maternity patient. The Minister considers that it would be well for each Authority to review its present system of record-keeping, and to take any necessary steps to ensure that the records made by its own officers, whether medical officers or midwives, are placed at the disposal of any medical practitioner who may be responsible for the treatment of the patient. Such records are of importance not only in regard to the individual patient. The information they contain may be utilised for the promotion of obstetrical science and skill, with consequent benefit to maternity patients generally.

9. Education.

The Report shows the need for greater enlightenment on the importance of ante-natal and post-natal supervision, and for further efforts to persuade women to take advantage of the facilities provided. Local Authorities, with the assistance of the doctors practising in their areas and of local voluntary associations concerned with the welfare of women, are in a strong position to organise general educational teaching on this important subject. The Minister hopes that every opportunity will be taken immediately to promote instruction of this character, e.g. by personal advice to mothers from doctors, midwives, and health visitors, and by informal talks and lectures at Maternity Centres explaining in popular language the salient points and the reasons for the advice given. The educational campaign concerning the health services which is to be undertaken in the autumn of this year by the Ministry and the Board of Education in conjunction with the Central Council for Health Education will come as a valuable reinforcement to the educational work now to be begun in connection with the Maternity Services, since one of the main divisions of the campaign will deal with the mother and the infant.

It is necessary in all these educational efforts to be mindful of what is said in the Report concerning the danger of producing fear of childbirth in the mind of women; to advise rather than to warn, and, above all, to give reassurance about what is in the vast majority of cases a natural and physiological process. Some reference has already been made in the earlier part of this Circular to this need for reassurance about maternity.

It is of special importance that every opportunity should be taken to emphasise the grave risks attending interference with the course of pregnancy. The Report points out that artificially-induced abortion is a frequent cause of maternal mortality, that its risks and penalties are insufficiently realised, and that there is urgent need to instruct women as to the damage to health and the danger to life which result from attempts to terminate pregnancy artifically. Many women appear still to be unaware that any interference with the product of conception with intent to procure a miscarriage is a criminal offence.

10. General.

(i) Recommendation (2) in the Report contemplates that each local supervising authority under the Midwives Acts should, in consultation with the local medical profession, be empowered to take steps to ensure that the best local obstetric skill is made available in all cases in which midwives are required to call in a doctor. An alteration in the Rules of the Central Midwives Board would be required before effect could be given to this recommendation, and the Minister has asked the Board to consider the recommendation. He is also inviting the views of the Associations of Local Authorities concerned, and of the British Medical Association, on this recommendation.

(ii) The Report includes a statement of three subjects which are recommended for further study, and the Minister is in communication with the Medical Research Council on the suggestions that further research should be undertaken (a) with a view to the discovery of a reliable prophylactic treatment for puerperal sepsis, and (b) into the possible influence of the dietary upon child-bearing. With regard to the third subject recommended for further inquiry, that of abortion, the Secretary of State for the Home Department and the Minister are appointing a Committee to inquire into the prevalence of abortion and to consider the steps necessary to secure the reduction of maternal mortality and morbidity arising from this cause.

The Minister will be glad if each Authority will give early consideration to the Report and to the suggestions made in this Circular, and inform him of the action they propose to take. He will also be glad to arrange for his officers to confer with representatives of the Authority on any question on which it is thought that their advice or assistance would be useful.

Recommendations in Section X of the Report on Maternal Mortality (Cmd. 5422).

In the section of this report on Maternity Services the essentials of an efficient maternity scheme of a Local Authority are set out which, suitably adapted to meet local circumstances, ought to be put into operation individually or jointly, by every Maternity and Child Welfare Authority in co-operation with all the other local agencies providing maternity services. It must be emphasised, however, that the provision of comprehensive services will be of little avail unless they are fully utilised by the women of the district and all the workers act together as a team. The health visitors, midwives, general practitioners, medical officers of the clinics, medical staffs of the hospitals, the consultant obstetrician and the Medical Officer of Health have each a part to play. Only by combined effort and close co-operation can the best results be attained.

The most important recommendations are those designed to improve the standard of obstetrics. They are (1), (2) and (3) below:

(1) The establishment, under the direction of the Medical Officer of Health, of an adequate service of obstetric consultants:

(a) to assist medical practitioners, who undertake domiciliary midwifery, in cases of doubt or difficulty in the ante-natal period, at the time of confinement and during the puerperium;

(b) to conduct consultative ante-natal and post-natal clinics, to which patients may be referred, by general practitioners or from the routine ante-natal and post-natal clinics;

(c) to exercise clinical supervision over the in-patient treatment of the maternity patients for whom the Local Authority assumes responsibility;

MATERNITY, CHILD WELFARE, AND MIDWIVES

(d) to supervise the treatment of patients suffering from puerperal sepsis;

(e) to be responsible for the emergency domiciliary service for cases of grave obstetric abnormality in which removal to hospital is contra-indicated (e.g., certain cases of shock, eclampsia or hæmorrhage);

(f) to assist the Medical Officer of Health in the confidential investigation of the circumstances associated with each maternal death occurring in the area.

(2) The Local Supervising Authority, in consultation with the local medical profession, should, in future, be empowered to take steps to ensure that the best local obstetric skill is made available in all cases in which midwives are required, under the rules of the Central Midwives Board, to call in a doctor.

(3) Emergency units ("flying squads") should be provided whereby members of the staffs of maternity departments will be available for the domiciliary treatment of maternity patients whose condition is too grave to justify their removal to hospital.

(4) Properly constructed, adequately equipped and suitably staffed maternity accommodation (including a sufficient number of beds allocated to and reserved for ante-natal patients) should be provided to meet the needs of every area. Wherever practicable the accommodation should be provided in association with general hospitals.

(5) Arrangements should be made for:

(a) Adequate domiciliary visiting by health visitors of expectant mothers with a view to encouraging them to engage an attendant for the confinement and place themselves under ante-natal supervision, at an early stage of pregnancy;

(b) the provision of ante-natal clinics in every district in which the number of expectant mothers justifies it. In sparsely populated areas other arrangements should be made for efficient medical domiciliary ante-natal supervision; and

(c) the establishment of consultative ante-natal clinics to serve every area.

(6) Satisfactory arrangements for the accommodation and treatment of patients suffering from puerperal sepsis, and from abortion, are essential.

(7) The development of post-natal services, including the establishment of clinics and arrangements for in-patient treatment is a matter of urgent necessity.

(8) The education of the woman herself and of the general public should constantly be borne in mind by all concerned with maternal welfare, as the whole-hearted co-operation of mothers is essential to the success of any measure designed to reduce maternal mortality.

(9) A service of home helps should, wherever practicable, be provided.

(10) Adequate records should be kept in connection with every branch of a maternity service. Free interchange of such records between all professionally concerned is essential in order to secure continuity of supervision and treatment.

(11) Arrangements should be made in every district to ensure that no expectant or nursing mother requiring extra nourishment on health grounds fails to receive it for such period as may be necessary.

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to enclose a copy of an Order (a) which he has made applying proviso (c) to Section 6 (1) of the Midwives Act, 1936 (b), to the hospitals and other institutions named in the Schedule to the Order.

The effect of the Order is that, after the Minister has made an Order applying Section 6 of the Act to the area of a local supervising authority, or to any county district contained therein, the prohibition contained in Section 6 (1) will not apply to a woman who, before January 1st, 1937, was certified by the authorities of any of the hospitals or other institutions to which the present Order applies to have been trained in obstetric nursing, if she has given notice in writing to the local supervising authority that she has been so certified.

No Orders have yet been made by the Minister in pursuance of Section 6 (2) of the Act, but the Minister will be glad if the Council will bring the present Order to the notice of any maternity nurses practising in their area who may be concerned. MEMO. 211/M.C.W.

MEMORANDUM AS TO THE CONDITIONS UPON WHICH GRANTS WILL BE MADE BY THE MINISTER OF HEALTH IN AID OF MIDWIFERY TRAINING.

I.—INTRODUCTION.

1. The Central Midwives Board have recently revised their rules relating to the training of midwives and have decided to extend the training and divide it into two parts (i) a first period of six months in the case of pupils who are trained nurses and of 18 months in all other cases and (ii) a second period extending over six months in all cases. An examination will be held after the first period of training, but only candidates successful at the examination held after the second period of training will be admitted to the Roll of Midwives. The revised rules have been approved by the Minister. No pupils will be admitted under the old rules later than May 1st, 1938, if they are not fully trained nurses, or September 1st, 1938, if they are fully trained nurses.

Provision is made under the grant conditions in Part II below for an increase in the Exchequer grant commensurate with the extended periods of training now required under the rules of the Central Midwives Board. The opportunity has also been taken to make provision for the payment of grant in respect of the midwifery training required to be undertaken by intending Health Visitors. Otherwise the conditions of grant remain substantially as before.

2. The Exchequer grant is given in order to maintain a full service of practising midwives and to assist students who intend to practise midwifery. As in the past the authorities of the recognised training institutions must take all practicable steps to satisfy themselves that grant-aided pupils carry out their intention to practise.

3. It will be observed that the conditions of grant require the scale of fees adopted by a recognised institution to be approved by the Minister.

The fee charged for the course to pupils in respect of whom grant is payable must be reduced by the amount of the grant.

4. The Central Midwives Board have also made rules under Section 7 of the Midwives Act, 1936, requiring all practising midwives to attend a resident course of instruction of not less than four consecutive weeks at least once in every seven years, and grant will be payable in respect of attendance at such courses as set out below.

II.—CONDITIONS UPON WHICH GRANTS WILL BE MADE.

General.

1. Grants will be made only to an institution which is recognised by the Central Midwives Board (hereinafter called a " recognised institution ").

2. The scale of fees adopted by a recognised institution must be approved by the Minister.

3. The recognised institution must keep such records and furnish such returns as may from time to time be required by the Minister.

Courses for intending Midwives.

4.—(a) Grants will be payable in respect of courses approved by the Minister for intending midwives at a recognised institution for the first or second period of training.

(b) Courses in district nursing and other subjects may be included in the curriculum of the institution but such courses will not be approved for the payment of grant.

Courses for intending Health Visitors.

5. Grants will be payable in respect of midwifery courses approved by the Minister for intending Health Visitors at a recognised institution for the first period of training.

Courses for practising midwives.

6. Grants will be payable in respect of courses approved by the Minister for practising midwives at recognised institutions. These courses must be either—

(a) whole-time courses intended for practising midwives desiring to qualify for senior positions, e.g. teachers of midwifery, and lasting for a period of not less than four months and not more than six months; or

(b) whole-time resident courses lasting not less than four consecutive weeks.

Grants.

7. The grants will be payable to recognised institutions on the following basis:

(a) For each intending midwife who completes a first period of instruction of six months' duration and a second period of six months' duration approved under paragraph 4 (a) of these conditions and in or after December, 1939, enters for the second examination—£20 per period of six months.

(b) For each intending midwife who completes a first period of instruction of 18 months' duration and a second period of six months' duration approved under paragraph 4 (a) of these conditions and in or after December, 1940, enters for the second examination—£52 10*s*. per period of 18 months and £20 per period of six months.

(c) For each intending Health Visitor who completes a first period of training of six months' duration approved under paragraph 5 of these conditions and in or after May, 1939, enters for the first examination—£20.

(d) For each intending Health Visitor who completes a first period of training of 18 months' duration approved under paragraph 5 of these conditions and in or after May, 1940, enters for the first examination—£52 10*s*.

(e) For each practising midwife who completes a course approved under paragraph 6 (a) of these conditions—not exceeding £20.

(f) For each practising midwife who, after January 1st, 1939, completes a course approved under paragraph 6 (b) of these conditions—£1 a week.

8. Each grant will be payable after the pupil to whom it relates has completed her course of training and has (a) in respect of the first period, entered for the first examination and declared her intention of completing the training or of becoming a Health Visitor and (b) in respect of the second period has entered for the examination of the Central Midwives Board. An instalment of such amount as the Minister thinks fit may be paid at the commencement of each course.

9. Grant will not be payable in respect of a pupil unless she has declared in writing her intention of practising as a midwife or of completing a course of training approved by the Minister of Health for the training of Health Visitors.

10. Where a pupil, owing to illness or other unavoidable cause, is prevented from completing a course of training approved under these conditions, the Minister will, if he thinks fit, pay a proportionate grant.

11. The grants payable under these conditions may be reduced, withheld or recovered, as the case may be, if the Minister is not satisfied as to the suitability of the provision made, or as to the proportion of pupils who subsequently fulfil the terms of their declaration.

MATERNAL MORTALITY.

MEDICAL PRACTITIONERS CALLED IN BY MIDWIVES.

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to refer to the recommendation made in the Report (Cmd. 5422) on Maternal Mortality that Local Supervising Authorities should, in consultation with the local medical profession, be empowered to take steps to ensure that the best local obstetric skill is made available in all cases in which midwives are required under the rules of the Central Midwives Board to call in a doctor, and to state that, in conjunction with the Associations of Local Authorities concerned, the London County Council, the British Medical Association and the Central Midwives Board, he has had under consideration the methods by which effect can best be given to this recommendation.

The Minister is well aware of the constructive efforts made in many directions by Local Authorities to improve the maternity services available to mothers before, during, and after childbirth. He is anxious, however, that no practicable step should be omitted which can be taken to improve obstetric practice and to accelerate the downward trend which the maternal mortality rate is happily showing. In his opinion the object aimed at in the recommendation of the Report would be furthered by the establishment, for each area of a Local Supervising Authority, of a panel of registered medical practitioners who will be available in all cases in which a midwife is required under the rules of the Central Midwives Board to call in a registered medical practitioner in accordance with the provisions of Section 14 of the Midwives Act, 1918. The means by which effect should be given to this arrangement are, of course, a matter for consideration by the Authorities themselves, but the Minister suggests that, in the circumstances of most areas, the most satisfactory procedure would be on the following lines:

(1) The Local Supervising Authority would, in consultation with such local organisations of registered medical practitioners as appear to them effectively to represent the opinions of practitioners in their area, draw up a list of practitioners who notify themselves as willing to be called in by midwives in an emergency. It would be convenient to distinguish on the list between those practitioners available for any emergency and those available only for attendance in an emergency arising with regard to their own patients. The list would indicate those practitioners who wish to be available for a limited district only. Practitioners could also be requested to nominate from among those included on the list a deputy to act for them if necesary and provision would be made for revision of the list at frequent intervals to enable it to be kept up to date.

(2) The Authority would set up an Advisory Committee for their area consisting of the Medical Officer of Health (as Chairman) and two general practitioners and two obstetric consultants or practitioners with special obstetric experience nominated by the Authority after consultation with the representative organisations of local practitioners. The duty of the Committee would be to scrutinise the list and to make any such recommendations to the Authority as are in the judgment of the Committee desirable for the purpose of securing and maintaining a high standard of obstetric practice on the part of the practitioners included on the list, e.g., recommendations that a practitioner should be required to undertake a specified period of post-graduate training as a condition of the continued inclusion of his name on the list, or, where required in the public interest, that the name of a practitioner should be removed from the list.

(3) A copy of the list of registered medical practitioners as revised from time to time would be supplied to every midwife employed under arrangements made in accordance with Section 1 of the Midwives Act, 1936, and every such midwife would be instructed that, save in exceptional circumstances, the practitioner to be summoned in an emergency should be one whose name is included in the list.

When a midwife is first booked she would request the patient or the responsible representative of the family to select a practitioner from the list to be called in if an emergency arises.

The Central Midwives Board have, with the approval of the Minister, rescinded the rule which requires a midwife, whenever possible, to call in the doctor desired by the patient or, if the patient cannot be consulted, by the responsible representative of the family. This will facilitate the procedure suggested above but it will be understood, of course, that in the exceptional case in which no doctor on the list is acceptable to the expectant mother, the midwife should call in the doctor of the patient's choice.

The Minister trusts that every Authority will give early consideration to the above suggestions and inform him as soon as possible of the action they propose to take. He will be glad to arrange for his officers to confer with representatives of the Authority on any matters on which it is thought that their assistance would be useful.

A copy of this circular has been sent to the Medical Officer of Health. Additional copies of this circular may be purchased directly from His Majesty's Stationery Office at any of the addresses shown below, or through any bookseller.

CIRCULAR 1777.

Local Supervising Authorities under the Midwives Acts (England).

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL, S.W.1.
24th February, 1939.

MIDWIVES ACT, 1936.

SIR,—(1) I am directed by the Minister of Health to refer to Section 4 of the Midwives Act, 1936 (a).

(a) Ante, p. 1560.

MATERNITY, CHILD WELFARE, AND DWIVES

(2) Exchequer grants payable to Local Authorities during the Third Grant Period under the terms of this section are to be related to the additional expenditure imposed by Section 1 of the Act. Expenditure is to be deemed to be additional if and to the extent that it is estimated to exceed the expenditure incurred on domiciliary midwifery in the year ended on March 31st, 1936. The estimate which is required for this purpose is to be made to the satisfaction of the Minister, in accordance with directions to be given by him after consultation with such Local Authorities or Associations of Local Authorities as appear to him to be concerned and the directions are to require that the expenditure imposed on an Authority by reason of its employment of midwives shall be estimated by reference to the estimated average net annual cost to be incurred by Authorities in employing a midwife in pursuance of the Act.

(3) The Minister has consulted the Associations of Local Authorities and the London County Council. In view of the representations made by the Associations he has decided that the directions to be given by him shall, in the first instance, relate to the year ended on March 31st, 1938, and that further directions shall be given at a later stage in respect of the remaining years of the Third Grant Period.

(4) The Minister accordingly hereby directs as follows :

(a) The estimated average net annual cost incurred by a Local Supervising Authority shall for the purpose of determining the Exchequer grant payable under Section 4 of the Midwives Act, 1936, in respect of midwives directly employed by a Local Supervising Authority for the year ended March 31st, 1938, be calculated at the rate of £16 per calendar month and accordingly the sum of £16 shall be multiplied by the numbers representing the aggregate of the certified midwives employed by an authority as whole-time servants for the purpose of domiciliary midwifery throughout each calendar month in the year ended March 31st, 1938. To the total of the sums so calculated there shall be added in respect of each certified midwife so employed otherwise than throughout a complete calendar month the sum of 10*s.* for each day of such employment within that month.

(b) The payments made by the Local Supervising Authority to Voluntary Associations and Welfare Councils in respect of arrangements made under Section 1 of the Act for the employment by those Associations and Councils of certified midwives as whole-time servants for the purpose of domiciliary midwifery shall, after deduction of sums, if any, received and retained by the Authority in respect of fees paid by patients attended by such midwives, be aggregated.

(c) From the total of the sums arrived at under (a) and (b) above there shall be deducted the expenditure estimated to have been incurred by the Local Supervising Authority and any Welfare Council in the area of that Authority in employing or providing for the employment of domiciliary midwives in the area of the Authority in the financial year ended on the 31st day of March, 1936.

(5) I am also to refer to subsection (5) of Section 4 of the Act. His Majesty's Treasury have directed that payments on account of Exchequer grants shall be made periodically to Local Supervising Authorities and that the balances for each year shall be paid after the receipt by the Minister of the statement of the authority duly audited by the District Auditor or by the auditor appointed to audit the accounts of the authority under the Midwives Acts.

The Minister also, with the approval of the Treasury, hereby imposes the following conditions as to records certificates audit or otherwise :

(a) Each Local Supervising Authority shall keep records of the following particulars in respect of the midwives employed by them for the purpose of domiciliary midwifery—

(1) Number of midwives.

(2) Period of employment of each midwife.

(3) Number of cases (in total) attended by those midwives distinguishing cases attended as midwife and maternity nurse respectively.

(4) The aggregate of the amount of the fees paid by the patients in respect of cases attended by those midwives.

(b) As soon as may be after the conclusion of each financial year each Local Supervising Authority shall complete and forward to the Minister of Health a statement certified by the Chief Financial Officer of the Local Authority and by the District Auditor or the auditor responsible for the audit of the accounts of the authority under the Midwives Acts, showing in a form to be provided by the Minister such particulars as he may require for the determination of the Exchequer grants payable to the authority for the year.

(c) The authority shall produce to the appropriate Auditor such accounts and records as he may require for the purpose of certifying the afore-mentioned statement.

(6) Forms for the purpose of making a claim for final payment in respect of the year 1937–38 are in course of preparation and will be issued to all Local Supervising Authorities at the earliest possible date.

(7) A copy of this Circular is enclosed for the use of the Financial Officer of the Authority. Further copies may be purchased through any bookseller or directly from His Majesty's Stationery Office at any of the addresses given overleaf.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient Servant,
S. H. G. HUGHES,
Assistant Secretary.

The Clerk of the Council
or
The Town Clerk.

CIRCULAR 1840.

Welfare Authorities (England).

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL, S.W.1.
2nd August, 1939.

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to refer to the intention of the Government to bring forward proposals in co-operation with the milk industry for securing a reduction in the price of liquid milk to Local Authorities for the purpose of their maternity and child welfare arrangements, and to state that a scheme giving effect to this intention has now been prepared by the Milk Marketing Board under Section 11 of the Milk Act, 1934 (a), as amended by Section 2 of the Milk (Extension and Amendment) Act, 1938 (b), and has been approved by the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries. A copy of the scheme is enclosed with this Circular (c), and an explanatory memorandum and model forms for use in connection with the scheme are appended. As will be seen from the memorandum, the effect of the Scheme is to make liquid milk available to local authorities for the purposes mentioned above at the price of 1*s.* 4*d.* a gallon (2*d.* a pint).

Your Council are no doubt aware of the success which has attended the scheme for the provision of cheap milk for school children, and of the large increase in consumption of liquid milk in schools which has resulted. The primary object of the present scheme is to secure a similar increase among expectant and nursing mothers and children under school age. The Minister appreciates fully the extent to which Authorities have almost without exception already made increased provision under the conditions at present obtaining for the supply of milk in accordance with the recommendations of Circular 1519 of April 1st, 1937. It appears to him, however, that in some areas restrictions may have been retained on financial grounds which prevent the development of this part of the maternity and child welfare service to the extent desirable from the point of view of health and nutrition. Furthermore, the Minister is confident that Authorities will share his view that the substantial reduction in the price of liquid milk which has been made possible under the scheme by the co-operation of the Milk Marketing Board will enable them to make a much wider provision than has hitherto been the case. It will of course be for the Authority to determine in the light of the circumstances of each applicant the price to be paid (not exceeding 2*d.* a pint), but the Minister is of opinion that the object of each Authority should be to provide one pint of milk a day free or cheap to every expectant and nursing mother and child under school age coming within the scope of the income scales adopted in connection with their maternity and child welfare arrangements. He trusts that Authorities will take every practicable step to bring to the notice of possible applicants in their area the opportunities afforded by the scheme, whether through the Health Visitors or by other means.

The Minister understands that in some areas supply of milk is made dependent in each case on a medical certificate of need. In view of the recommendations of the Advisory Committee on Nutrition, to which attention was drawn in Circular 1519, he does not consider that the application of a general medical test should be treated as a necessary preliminary to the normal supply under the scheme of one pint per head per day. It is not, however, contemplated that a supply in excess of this quantity should be provided except in cases in which it is specially desirable on medical grounds.

It will be observed that the scheme comes into operation on July 31st, 1939 (clause 11), and that the Milk Marketing Board will give effect to it in each area as soon as the proposals of the appropriate Authority have received the approval of the Minister (clause 2). As the next contract period for the milk industry begins on October 1st, it is particularly desirable wherever possible that the arrangements of each Authority should be completed by that date. The Minister accordingly trusts that this Circular will receive the early attention of your Council, and that they will submit as soon as possible for his approval their proposals framed in the light of the observations made above. In considering such proposals the Minister will have regard to the extent to which they are calculated to result in an increase in consumption of liquid milk by mothers and children. The proposals should include a statement (a) of the methods to be adopted to ensure that the scheme is brought to the notice of all possible applicants; (b) of the steps to be taken by applicants to obtain a supply of milk; and (c) of the scales of income to be adopted by the Council for the purpose of their arrangements for the supply of milk, both free and at a reduced price. It appears to the Minister that it would be of advantage if the income scales submitted were calculated on a basis exclusive of rent and rates, and graded according to the number of persons in the family. It would be convenient if two copies of the Council's proposals could be supplied when application is made for approval.

The Minister will be glad to arrange for his officers to discuss with representatives or officers of the Council any question on which further information or advice may be sought, and the Regional Officers of the Milk Marketing Board will be prepared to advise the Council on any question arising with regard to the working of the scheme. A list of the names and addresses of these Officers is appended.

Copies of this Circular and enclosures have been sent to the Medical Officer of Health and Financial Officer of the Council. Further copies may be purchased through any bookseller or directly from His Majesty's Stationery Office at any of the addresses given below.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient Servant,
J. M. K. HAWTON,
Assistant Secretary.

The Clerk of the Council, or
The Town Clerk.

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM.

MATERNITY, CHILD WELFARE, AND MIDWIVES

1. The purpose of the Scheme is to make available to Welfare Authorities at a price of 1*s.* 4*d.* a gallon (less any payment made by the recipients) the liquid milk needed for supply under their maternity and child welfare arrangements (clauses 1, 8, and 9). The intention is that milk supplied under the scheme shall be delivered at the home by approved milk vendors (clauses 1, 4, and 5), the normal amount supplied being one pint per head per day (clause 6), either free or at a price not exceeding 2*d.* a pint according to need (clause 7). It is contemplated that any payment made by recipients will be collected and retained by the milk vendor supplying the milk.

2. It will be necessary for Authorities to submit to the Minister their proposals (on the lines indicated in the Circular) for taking advantage of the scheme. The Milk Marketing Board will not be prepared to pay the appropriate rebate under the scheme to any Authority until its proposals have received the approval of the Minister (clause 2).

3. The financial arrangements under the scheme are as follows:

In the first instance the Authority will pay to the dairyman for each gallon of milk supplied under the scheme not more than the price indicated in clause 9 of the scheme less any payments made by recipients to the dairyman. On receipt of the appropriate claims the Board will then repay to the Authority the difference between the determined price and 1*s.* 4*d.* a gallon (clause 8). Until further notice, the Milk Marketing Board have determined that the price each month under clause 8 of the scheme shall be 8*d.* per gallon more than the "regional price" (the normal wholesale price of milk for liquid consumption) for that month. As it is understood that some Authorities at present secure the supply of milk at a lower price than this, clause 9 of the scheme enables such authorities to continue to pay this lower price. The monthly regional prices for the period up to September, 1939,* are as follows:

August and September: 1*s.* 4*d.* per gallon.

Thus on milk supplied free in September, 1939, the Authority would pay the milk vendor a sum not exceeding 2*s.* per gallon. On milk supplied to the recipient at a cost of 1*d.* or 2*d.* a pint, the payments by the Authority to the milk vendor would be at rates not exceeding 1*s.* 4*d.* per gallon and 8*d.* per gallon, respectively. On all this milk the Milk Marketing Board would repay the Authority 8*d.* per gallon.

It will be noted that the claims of the Authority on the Board must be submitted within 21 days after the end of each month, and that the Authority's records must be open to the Board's inspection (clause 8).

4. In some areas, especially when satisfactory supplies of pasteurised milk are not available, Authorities may wish to supply milk of Tuberculin Tested standard. It will be open to them to pay an extra premium to the supplier to obtain milk of this standard, but the amount of any such premium would be a matter for negotiation between the Authority and the supplier and would not be taken into account by the Milk Marketing Board in the calculation of payments due to the Authority. The Minister does not consider that it should be necessary in any case to pay a premium of more than 2*d.* per gallon in order to obtain milk of Tuberculin Tested standard.

5. Model forms suitable for use by Authorities in the operation of the scheme are attached. The forms may of course be expanded to meet such particular requirements as the Authority may think desirable in the light of their previous experience. It will be observed that the models have been drafted on the assumption that the Authority will desire to arrange for supply at 2*d.* and 1*d.* a pint as well as free, and modification will be necessary if supply is to be made at other prices.

Form 1.—It will be necessary for each Authority to approach milk vendors in their area and invite them to supply milk under the scheme. This form is accordingly designed for completion by milk vendors who desire to participate and to obtain the approval of the Council to the source and quality of supply. A list of "Approved Milk Vendors" should be compiled for the information of consumers. It will be seen that the model form contemplates that milk should be supplied in one pint bottles or other approved containers only. It is realised that in certain rural areas where there are no facilities for the bottling of milk it may not be practicable to insist on this condition, and the form would then need to be modified accordingly.

* The corresponding prices for the contract period October, 1939—September, 1940, are not yet available.

MATERNITY, CHILD WELFARE, AND MIDWIVES

Form 2.—Application for a supply of milk should be made on behalf of mothers or children eligible under the scheme on a form of this kind. It is suggested that applications should normally be renewed at the beginning of each calendar month (in view of possible changes in family circumstances, and of the fact that milk prices are calculated according to the calendar month), and that authorisations should be given to the end of each calendar month. Where the first application is made towards the end of a calendar month, Authorities may prefer to give a first authorisation to the end of the next calendar month. No doubt Authorities will make these forms available at welfare centres, etc., and through the Health Visitors. The services of the latter would no doubt be used where it is necessary for the information given to be confirmed at the house of the applicants.

Attention is particularly drawn to the information to be supplied under heading 4 of Form 2. It is essential for statistical purposes in connection with the central administration of the scheme that this information should be obtained and recorded accurately, and each Authority is accordingly requested to take every possible step to secure a complete and careful return. A form of return for the submission of this information to the Minister will be forwarded to each Authority in due course.

Form 3.—This is the authorisation card to be presented by approved applicants to the milk vendor selected by them from the Authority's list of "Approved Milk Vendors." The card should show the amount to be supplied and the price (if any) to be paid. The amount actually delivered will be filled in by the milk vendor and countersigned by the recipient, and the completed card returned to the Authority by the milk vendor with his claim for payment. As stated above, it is suggested that authorisation cards should be given to the end of each calendar month.

It may be found convenient to supply cards of different colours for free supply and for each price to be charged instead of one form of card suitably completed as shown in the model.

Form 4.—This is the claim for completion and return monthly by each milk vendor supplying milk under the scheme, and is a summary of the amounts of milk supplied in accordance with the authorisation cards (Form 3). Here again it is suggested that it may be found most convenient to have forms of a different colour for free supply and for each price, corresponding with the different colours of the authorisation cards, instead of a form combining the returns of milk supplied at all prices, as shown in the model.

Form 5.—This form is intended as a convenient summary, to be made by the Authority in respect of each vendor, of the claims returned each month (Form 4). In the lower half of the form the total sum owing to the vendor can be calculated, consisting for every gallon of milk supplied of the amount of the rebate payable by the Milk Marketing Board to the Council, together with a sum of 8*d.* for every gallon of milk supplied to consumers at 1*d.* a pint, and 1*s.* 4*d.* for every gallon supplied free.

Forms 6 and 7.—These are the returns to be submitted by the Authority when making a claim for rebate on the Milk Marketing Board, and supplies of the returns may be obtained on request from the Milk Marketing Board, Thames House, Millbank, London, S.W.1.

MATERNITY, CHILD WELFARE, AND MIDWIVES

MILK MARKETING BOARD FOR ENGLAND AND WALES.

SCHEME FOR INCREASING THE DEMAND FOR MILK IN ENGLAND AND WALES BY ITS SUPPLY AT REDUCED PRICES TO NURSING AND EXPECTANT MOTHERS AND CHILDREN UNDER FIVE YEARS OF AGE.

(1) This is a scheme for the supply in England and Wales of liquid milk in the home at reduced rates to nursing and expectant mothers and to children under the age of five who are not attending schools recognised for grant by the Board of Education.

(2) The supply of milk under this scheme to any family must be authorised by the Welfare Authority and the proposals to be made by any such Authority for the supply of such milk must have previously been submitted by the Welfare Authority to the Minister of Health and approved by that Minister after consultation with the Milk Marketing Board.

(3) The head of any household to whom milk is supplied under this scheme must undertake that the whole of the milk will be consumed by the particular members of the family who are eligible in accordance with paragraph (1) above.

(4) The source and quality of milk supplied under this scheme must be approved by the Medical Officer of Health of the Welfare Authority.

(5) The milk shall be delivered to the household in one pint bottles or other approved containers of similar capacity wherever possible.

(6) The normal quantity of milk to be supplied to persons eligible under paragraph (1) above is one pint per head per day. A greater quantity not exceeding two pints per head per day may be supplied by the Welfare Authority on the recommendation of the Medical Officer of Health.

(7) The milk will be supplied to the recipient free or at such price, not exceeding 2*d.* a pint, as the Welfare Authority may determine.

(8) In respect of each gallon of milk supplied in accordance with this scheme the Milk Marketing Board shall pay the Welfare Authority the difference between the regional price, together with such additional sum not exceeding the sum which the Board may from time to time determine as the allowance for distribution, and 1*s.* 4*d.* per gallon.

Claims must be submitted by the Welfare Authority to the Milk Marketing Board within 21 days of the end of the month in which the milk was consumed. The forms of claim will be provided by the Board and the Board reserve the right if necessary to examine the books and vouchers of the Welfare Authority in order that they can be satisfied that the milk which is represented by any claim has been consumed in accordance with this scheme. If with regard to any claim the Board are not satisfied that the milk in respect of which payment is claimed has been consumed in accordance with this scheme, they will be entitled to withhold payment for any further claim after due notice has been given to the Welfare Authority.

(9) The Welfare Authority shall pay to the supplier such sum in respect of each gallon of milk as is necessary to bring the total return to the supplier (after allowing for any payment by the recipient under paragraph (7) above) up to the regional price together with such amount, not exceeding the amount determined by the Milk Marketing Board which is mentioned in paragraph (8) above, as may be agreed between the Welfare Authority and the supplier.

(10) It shall, however, be competent for the Welfare Authority to agree to pay the supplier of the milk a sum additional to that determined under paragraph (9) above in order to obtain milk of T.T. standard.

(11) These arrangements shall come into operation on July 31st, 1939, and shall remain in force until such time as the Milk Marketing Board otherwise determine.

If there is attached to the tin or other receptacle a label bearing the name, trade mark, or design representing the brand of the dried milk, the prescribed declaration shall be printed as part of such label.

(a) This paragraph was substituted by the Amending Regulations, S. R. & O., 1927, No. 1093, post, p. 3391 ; and see Reg. 2 thereof, ibid.

(b) In the case of imported dried milk, the provisions of section 16 of the Merchandise Marks Act, 1887 ; 19 Halsbury's Statutes 839, must also be complied with if the label bears the name or trade mark of a dealer or merchant in the United Kingdom.

5. There shall not be placed on any tin or other receptacle containing dried milk—

(a) any comment on, explanation of, or reference to either the statement of equivalence contained in the prescribed declaration or the words "partly skimmed," "machine-skimmed," "skimmed," or "unfit for babies" or

(b) any instructions as to dilution, unless either—

(i) the fluid produced in accordance with such instructions would contain not less milk fat and not less milk solids than milk, partly skimmed milk, or skimmed milk as defined in Rule 1 of this schedule, as the case may require; or

(ii) such instructions clearly specify that the fluid so produced is not of equivalent composition to milk, partly skimmed milk, or skimmed milk, as the case may be.

6. Wherever the word "Milk" appears on the label of a tin or other receptacle of dried partly skimmed or skimmed milk as the description or part of the description of the contents, it shall be immediately preceded or followed by the words "Partly skimmed," "Machine-skimmed," or "Skimmed," as the case may require.

THE MILK AND DAIRIES ORDER, 1926, DATED 6TH JULY, 1926, MADE UNDER THE MILK AND DAIRIES (CONSOLIDATION) ACT, 1915 (a).

The Minister of Health, in pursuance of his powers under the Milk and Dairies (Consolidation) Act, 1915, and with the concurrence of the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries, hereby orders as follows:—

PART I.—Short Title, Operation, Interpretation, etc.

1. This Order may be cited as the Milk and Dairies Order, 1926, and shall come into operation on the 1st day of October, 1926:—

Provided that—

(i) Articles 12 (1), 13 (1) and 25 shall not apply to any building in use as a cowshed or dairy on the 1st October, 1926, until a period of eighteen months has elapsed after the service of a notice by the sanitary authority drawing the attention of the occupier thereto, and in the case of Article 25 no such notice shall be given before the 1st day of April, 1928:

(ii) Article 24 shall not come into operation until the 1st day of April, 1927; and

(iii) Articles 27 and 19, shall not come into operation until the 1st October, 1928.

2.—(1) In this Order, unless the contrary intention appears:—

"Infectious disease" means dysentery and any infectious disease to which the Infectious Disease (Notification) Act, 1889, applies;

"The Act" means the Milk and Dairies (Consolidation) Act, 1915;

"Cowkeeper" means any person who keeps one or more cows for the purpose of the supply of milk (b);

"Milk" means milk intended for sale for human consumption or for use in the manufacture of products for sale for human consumption, and includes cream, skimmed milk and separated milk;

"Dairy" includes any farm, cowshed, milk store, milk shop or other place from which milk is supplied on or for sale, or in which milk is kept or used for purposes of sale or manufacture into butter, cheese, dried milk or condensed

(a) See a circular letter of the Ministry of Health dated 20th January, 1927, post, p. 3388, as to the construction and administration of this Order. The Act of 1915 is repealed by the Food and Drugs Act, 1938, but this Order is kept alive by s. 101 (3) of that Act, ante, p. 1451.

(b) See the definition of "milk." A farmer who keeps cows but sells no milk is not a cowkeeper within this definition. Cf. Umfreville v. L.C.C. (1896), 61 J. P. 84; 38 Digest 208, 433.

MILK AND DAIRIES: AND TUBERCULOUS COWS

milk for sale, and, in the case of a purveyor of milk (a) who does not occupy any premises for the sale of milk, includes the place where he keeps the vessels used by him for the sale of milk, but does not include a shop from which milk is not supplied otherwise than in properly closed and unopened receptacles in which it was delivered to the shop or a shop or other place in which milk is sold for consumption on the premises only.

"Registered premises" means any building or other premises required to be registered under the provisions of this Order.

(2) The Intepretation Act. 1889, applies to the interpretation of this Order or in relation to the revocation of any Order or Regulation by this Order, as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament.

3. Part IV. of this Order shall be enforced and executed by the council of the county or county borough and the remainder of the Order by the sanitary authority:

Provided that, where the Minister of Health has made an Order under subsection (4) of section 3 of the Act with repect to a non-county borough, Part IV. of this Order shall be enforced and executed by the council of such borough as if the borough were a county borough.

4. Every cowkeeper and dairyman shall take all practicable steps to make the provisions of this Order known to every person in or about any registered premises in his occupation so far as such provisions impose any duties or restrictions on such person and so far as they relate to the processes carried out by such person.

PART II.—Revocation of Orders and Regulations.

5. The Dairies, Cowsheds and Milk-shops Order of 1885, the Dairies, Cowsheds and Milk-shops Amending Order of 1886, and the Dairies, Cowsheds and Milk-shops Order of 1899, so far as they relate to England and Wales, and any regulations made by local authorities in England and Wales under the said Orders are hereby revoked.

PART III.—Registration and Notices.

6 (b).—(1) Every sanitary authority shall keep registers of all persons carrying on in their district the trade of cowkeeper or dairyman and of all farms and other premises within their district which are used as dairies.

(2) Subject to the provisions of section 2 of the Milk and Dairies (Amendment) Act, 1922, or of any other statutory enactment, the sanitary authority, on the application of any person proposing to carry on in their district the trade of cowkeeper or dairyman or to use any farm or other premises in the district as a dairy, shall register such person or such premises.

(3) Subject as aforesaid, no person shall carry on the trade of cowkeeper or dairyman or use any premises as a dairy unless he and any such premises are registered in pursuance of this article.

(4) The sanitary authority shall immediately after the commencement of this Order inform the county council of the particulars of registration then in force of cowkeepers and their premises, and they shall as soon as may be inform the county council of all alterations made in the registers.

7. Before commencing to use as a cowshed or as a place for the keeping of milk a building not previously used for that purpose the occupier shall give one month's notice in writing to the sanitary authority of his intention so to do.

(a) Keepers of a railway refreshment room sold glasses of milk occasionally (3 or 4 glasses a week) to any one asking for it; it was held that they did not carry on the trade of "purveyors of milk" (Spiers and Pond, Ltd. v. Green, [1912] 3 K. B. 576; 77 J. P. 11; 25 Digest 126, 475). It was held, in a Scotch case, that an ice cream manufacturer, though he used milk in the manufacture of his ice creams, was not a purveyor of milk (Lang v. Pianta (1894), 21 Ct. of Sess. Cas. (4th ser.) J. C. 20; 25 Digest 126, d).

(b) Registration is necessary in every district where the trade is carried on (Easington R.D.C. v. Gilson (1929), 94 J. P. 56; 28 L. G. R. 49); Digest Supp.; though a single isolated sale would not, it seems, constitute a carrying on of the trade (Emerton v. Hall (1910), 74 J. P. 301; 25 Digest 126, 476).

PART IV.—Health and Inspection of Cattle.

8. Every county council and county borough council shall cause to be made such inspections of cattle as may be necessary and proper for the purposes of the Act and of this Order.

9. Where a veterinary inspector gives notice to a cowkeeper of his intention to make an inspection of cattle for the purposes of the Act or of this Order the cowkeeper shall not allow any cow to be removed from the registered premises without the consent of the inspector until the inspection has been made or a period of forty-eight hours has elapsed from the receipt of the notice.

10. A veterinary inspector making the inspection of cattle in pursuance of the Act or of this Order may require any cow to be milked in his presence and may take samples of the milk and may require that the milk from any particular teat shall be kept separate, and he may take separate samples thereof.

11. The following diseases affecting cows, in addition to the diseases specified in section 5 of the Act, shall be diseases for the purposes of that section, namely :—

Any comatose condition ;
Any septic condition of the uterus ;
Any infection of the udder or teats, which is likely to convey disease ;

Provided that, where an officer of a local authority gives a notice under the section with regard to any of the diseases set out in this Article :—

(1) The notice shall forthwith be withdrawn as soon as the officer or the authority is satisfied that the cow is no longer in an infective condition ; and it shall in any case cease to operate at the expiration of such period not exceeding five days as may be specified therein, but without prejudice to the right of the officer to give a further notice or notices with a like limitation of duration ; and

(2) The local authority shall, if required so to do by the person receiving such notice, afford him an opportunity to appear before them for the purpose of applying for the withdrawal of the notice and shall consider any written representations made by him for the same purpose.

PART V.—General Provisions for Securing the Cleanliness of Dairies, etc., and for Protecting Milk against Infection and Contamination.

12.—(1) Every cowshed and every building used for keeping milk, other than a cold store, shall be provided with a sufficient number of windows or other openings suitably placed and communicating directly with the external air. The windows or permanent openings shall be such as to secure that the building is sufficiently lighted during the hours of daylight and the openings provided for ventilation shall be kept in proper order and so used as to secure that the air in the building is kept in a fresh and wholesome condition.

(2) Every such building in which milking or any other process is carried on during the hours of darkness shall also be provided with such lamps or other means of artificial lighting as will enable any such process to be conducted in a good and proper light.

13.—(1) All registered premises shall be provided with a supply of water suitable and sufficient for the requirements of this Order.

(2) Every receptacle used for the storage or conveyance of water shall be emptied and cleansed from time to time as often as may be necessary to prevent the pollution of the water and to maintain it in a suitable condition for the purpose for which it is required.

(3) The water supply used for the watering of cows shall, as far as reasonably possible, be protected against contamination caused by the drainage of foul water.

14. The following provisions shall apply for the purpose of preventing contamination or infection of milk :—

MILK AND DAIRIES: AND TUBERCULOUS COWS

(1) Milk shall not be deposited or kept in any place where it is liable to become contaminated or infected. In particular it shall not be deposited or kept—

(a) any water-closet, earth-closet, privy, cesspool or receptacle for ashes or other refuse; or

(b) any room which is used as a sleeping-room or any room which is occupied by a person suffering from an infectious disease, or which, having been so occupied, has not been subsequently properly disinfected; or

(iii) in any room or part of a building in which there is any direct inlet to a drain which is not efficiently trapped:

Provided that the foregoing provisions shall not be deemed to prohibit the deposit or keeping of milk intended for use in the manufacture of butter, cream or cheese in a room used as a kitchen.

(2) Vessels containing milk shall be properly covered or the milk shall be otherwise effectively protected from dust, dirt, flies or other sources of contamination;

(3) No foul or noxious matter or soiled bed or body clothing shall be conveyed through any part of a building used for the keeping or storage of milk.

15. Every person engaged in the milking of cows or the distribution or measuring of milk or otherwise having access to the milk or to the churns or other milk receptacles shall keep his clothing and person in a cleanly condition.

16. A person shall not carry out any process of cooling, bottling, sterilising or pasteurising milk or any other process connected with milk, or keep any appliances connected with any such process, in a cowshed or in any place where the milk or appliances would be liable to contamination arising from any cowshed, stable or manure-heap, or otherwise.

17 (a).—(1) Every person having access to the milk or to the churns or other milk receptacles in or about any registered premises, as soon as he becomes aware that any member of his household is suffering from any infectious disease, shall immediately notify the occupier of such premises of the fact and the occupier shall immediately notify the medical officer of health of the district in which the premises are situate unless notification has already been given to that officer.

(2) Where the medical officer of health of any sanitary district becomes aware that any such person is suffering from an infectious disease or has recently been in contact with a person so suffering he shall forthwith notify the occupier of such premises of the fact, and where the council of such sanitary district are not the registering authority for the locality in which the premises are situate he shall also notify the medical officer of health of the registering authority.

18.—(1) Where the medical officer of health of a sanitary district is in possession of evidence that any person is suffering from infectious disease caused by the consumption of milk supplied within the district from any registered premises or that the milk at any registered premises within the district has been infected with such disease, he may by a notice in writing to the occupier of such premises specifying such evidence require, if the premises are within the district, that no milk from such premises (or, if the notice so provides, no milk received at such premises from any specified source) shall be sold for human consumption or used in the manufacture of products for human consumption, or, if the premises are without the district, that no such milk shall be sold for human consumption within the district.

(2) Any such notice shall operate for such period not exceeding twenty-four hours as may be specified therein from the time of the receipt of the notice but may be renewed for a further period or periods of twenty-four hours. The notice shall forthwith be withdrawn as soon as the medical officer of health is satisfied that the milk is no longer likely to cause infectious disease.

(a) See also the P. H. (Prevention of Tuberculosis) Regulations, 1925, Arts. 4 & 5, ante [illegible]

MILK AND DAIRIES: AND TUBERCULOUS COWS

(3) Where the medical officer of health serves such a notice he shall forthwith report the matter to the sanitary authority, and if the premises are within the district he shall forthwith endeavour to ascertain the causes of the infectious condition of the milk.

(4) Where the milk in respect of which a notice is given under this Article is obtained from any registered premises without the district, the medical officer of health shall forthwith send a copy of the notice to the medical officer of health of the sanitary district from which the milk is obtained.

(5) No person shall sell milk for human consumption or use milk or sell milk for use in the manufacture of products for human consumption contrary to the terms of a notice given by the medical officer of health under this Article.

(6) Where any person sustains any damage or loss by reason of a notice issued under this Article he shall be entitled to full compensation from the sanitary authority in case it shall appear that no infectious disease was in fact caused by the consumption of milk from the premises to whose occupier the notice was addressed or as the case may be that no milk at such premises had been infected with such disease. Any dispute as to the right to or the amount of such compensation shall be settled by arbitration in the same manner as provided by the Public Health Act, 1875, and any sum awarded as compensation shall be recoverable as a civil debt: Provided that if the compensation claimed does not exceed twenty pounds it may at the option of either party instead of being settled as hereinbefore provided be settled by and recoverable before a Court of Summary Jurisdiction.

(2) Where from the result of any such examination or otherwise the medical officer of health is of opinion that the employment of any such person is likely to lead to the spread of infectious disease, the medical officer of health may give notice in writing to that effect to the occupier of the registered premises and to the person concerned requiring that, during a period to be specified in such notice, the person to whom the notice relates shall not milk cows or handle vessels used for containing milk or in any way take part in the production, distribution or storage of milk.

(3) A person to whom any such notice relates and any other person who is suffering from an infectious disease or has recently been in contact with a person so suffering shall not milk cows or handle vessels used for containing milk or in any way take part in the production, distribution or storage of milk until the expiry of the period mentioned in the notice or, as the case may be, until all danger of the communication of infectious disease by means of the milk has ceased.

MILK AND DAIRIES : AND TUBERCULOUS COWS

brought into contact with milk, to be kept at all times in a state of thorough cleanliness.

For this purpose—

(i) Every such vessel, lid and appliance shall be thoroughly washed as soon as may be after use, and shall be cleansed and scalded with boiling water or steam before it is used again.

(ii) No oxidising or preservative agent shall be used in the cleansing of any such vessel or appliance.

(iii) Every such vessel, lid and appliance, when not in use shall be stored in a clean place and shall be protected from dust and dirt.

(iv) No such vessel or appliance shall be used for containing, measuring or applying any process or treatment to any article other than milk or milk products :

(vi) No dry bedding or other dusty matter shall be moved in the cowshed during the milking or within half an hour before the milking commences, except so far as may be necessary for the removal of dung.

24.—(1) Every cowkeeper shall, without any delay other than that caused by any process of straining or centrifugalisation to which it may be subjected, cause the milk to be cooled to a temperature not more than five degrees Fahrenheit higher than the temperature of the water supply available for cooling: Provided that this requirement shall not apply—

(i) where the milk is delivered by road without delay to a collecting station provided with adequate facilities for cooling milk to a temperature not exceeding fifty-five degrees Fahrenheit; or

(ii) where the milk is used for the manufacture of butter, cream, cheese or other milk products at the premises where it is produced or is supplied to some other person for this purpose; or

(iii) where the cowkeeper sells the milk to the consumer and either delivers it at the premises where it is produced or despatches it at least twice a day on the day of production; or

(iv) where the cowkeeper sells the milk to some other purveyor at the premises where it is produced for delivery to the consumer immediately after milking.

25. Every cowkeeper shall cause the floor of every cowshed in his occupation to be constructed of such material and in such manner as to render it procticable to remove all liquid matter which may fall thereon, and he shall cause such cowshed to be provided with channels of rendered concrete or other durable and impervious material so constructed as to prevent as far as reasonably practicable the soiling of the cows and so as to receive all such liquid matter and to convey it to a suitable drain or other place of disposal outside such cowshed.

PART VII.—Special Provisions Applicable to Buildings used for the Sale, etc., of Milk.

26. The following provisions shall apply to any building or part of a building which is used for the sale of milk or in which milk is kept or used for the purpose of sale or manufacture into butter, cheese, dried milk or condensed milk for sale:—

(1) The occupier shall cause the interior and the furniture and fittings therein to be thoroughly cleansed from time to time as often as may be necessary to secure the maintenance of reasonable cleanliness, and in particular the floors shall be thoroughly cleansed with water at least once in every day.

(2) Except in the case of a building or part of a building which is used for the sale of milk by retail the occupier shall cause the floor to be constructed of rendered concrete or other durable and impervious material and to be so sloped as to ensure the removal of all liquid matter which may fall thereon, and to be provided with channels so constructed, sloped and placed as to receive all such liquid matter and to convey it to a suitable drain or other place of disposal outside the building.

PART VIII.—Conveyance and Distribution of Milk, Churns, etc.

27. A person shall not use, or cause to be used, for the reception, measurement, storage or delivery of milk any churn, vessel or other receptacle, the interior surface of which is incapable of being readily cleansed.

28. Every person who purchases milk for the purposes of his trade or business, and empties and returns the churns or other receptacles in which the milk is delivered to him, shall cause all such churns and receptacles, other than bottles, to be thoroughly cleansed and securely closed before they leave his custody or control.

bottles, in which he despatches milk by rail or road to comply with the following requirements, viz.:—

(1) The name and address of the owner shall be permanently marked on the churn, vessel or other receptacle or on a plate or plates of metal properly soldered or otherwise securely affixed thereto.

(2) The churn, vessel or other receptacle shall be provided with a lid without openings, which shall be so constructed and fitted as effectively to prevent the access to the milk of dirt, dust or rain water or the return to the interior of the receptacle of any milk which may have been splashed above the lid.

30. Every person shall cause every churn, vessel or other receptacle used by him for the conveyance of skimmed or separated milk or for containing such milk at any time when it is exposed for sale to be marked with the words "Skimmed Milk" or "Separated Milk," as the case may require, in large and legible type.

31.—(1) Except in pursuance of any statutory authority in that behalf, no person shall open any churn, vessel or other receptacle containing milk or transfer milk from one receptacle to another in any railway van or on any railway station:

Provided that this Article shall not be deemed to prohibit the purchaser or his agent when taking delivery of the milk from opening a churn, vessel or other receptacle containing milk or transferring the milk to another receptacle so far as such opening or transfer may be necessary for the purpose of checking and sampling the milk.

(2) Where a person delivers milk in bottles he shall cause every such bottle to be filled and closed on registered premises: and no person shall remove or tamper with the disc or other device used for closing the bottle at any time after he has left such premises and before it is delivered to the consumer.

32. Every person engaged in the conveyance or distribution of milk shall use all practicable precautions for preventing the milk from being unnecessarily exposed to heat and from being contaminated by dirt, dust, rain water or otherwise.

33. The interior of every vehicle used for the conveyance of milk shall be at all times kept clean. No live animal or any article likely to contaminate the milk shall be conveyed in the vehicle at the same time as milk and no vehicle which has been used for the conveyance of offensive matter shall be used for the conveyance of milk until the vehicle has been thoroughly cleansed and purified.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies to the interpretation of these Regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament.

3.—(1) Every sanitary authority shall enforce and execute these Regulations and shall keep a register of persons to whom milk imported into their district may be consigned.

(2) Any officer of the sanitary authority duly authorised in that behalf, may take a sample of any milk imported into the district.

4. No person shall receive any milk consigned to him from any place outside the British Islands unless he is registered under these Regulations by the sanitary authority into whose district the milk is imported.

5. All imported milk shall be in such condition that, on a sample being taken within the district of a sanitary authority, the milk shall be found to contain not more than 100,000 bacteria per cubic centimetre and to be free from tubercle bacilli.

6.—(1) If the sanitary authority are satisfied that any milk imported into their district does not comply with the provisions of these Regulations, they may serve upon the person to whom the milk was consigned a notice to appear before them not less than seven days after the date of the notice, to show cause why they should not, for reasons to be specified in the notice, remove him from the register, either absolutely or in respect of any specified source of supply, and if he fails to show cause to their satisfaction accordingly they may remove him from the register.

(3) The sanitary authority, or such person as aforesaid, may appeal from the decision of the court of summary jurisdiction to the next practicable court of quarter sessions, and that court may confirm, vary or reverse the Order of the court of summary jurisdiction.

(4) The decision of a sanitary authority to remove any person from the register shall not have effect until the expiration of the time for appeal to a court of summary jurisdiction, nor if any such appeal is brought until the expiration of seven days after the determination thereof, nor if notice of appeal to Quarter Sessions is given within such seven days until such appeal is finally determined unless such appeal ceases to be prosecuted.

(a) See now ss. 8 and 101 (3) of the Food and Drugs Act, 1938, ante, pp. 1316 and 1451.

MILK AND DAIRIES: AND TUBERCULOUS COWS

(5) Where, in pursuance of the foregoing provisions of this Article, a person is removed from the register of a sanitary authority, the sanitary authority shall report the facts to the Minister, and if the Minister on consideration of such facts is of opinion that that person should be removed from the register of any other sanitary authority or should not be included in such register either absolutely or in respect of any specified source of supply he may direct such sanitary authority so to remove such person from their register or to refuse so to register him as the case may be and such sanitary authority shall forthwith comply with the Minister's direction.

7. A person shall, if so required, give to any officer of a sanitary authority acting in the execution of these Regulations all reasonable assistance in his power and shall in relation to anything within his knowledge furnish any such officer with all information he may reasonably require for the purposes of these Regulations.

County Councils and Sanitary Authorities (England and Wales).

MINISTRY OF HEALTH, WHITEHALL, S.W.1.
20th January, 1927.

THE MILK AND DAIRIES ORDER, 1926.

SIR,—1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to say that he has received a number of inquiries as to the construction and administration of the Milk and Dairies Order, 1926, especially in relation to farmers who sell only a small quantity of milk, mainly to their employees and their neighbours. He thinks it desirable, therefore, to indicate his views on these questions for the guidance of local authorities.

Registration under the Order.

2. A number of the questions which have been raised relate in terms to the liability of the farmer himself to registration. The provisions of the Order in this respect differ somewhat from those of the Dairies, Cowsheds and Milkshops Order of 1885. The exemptions contained in the earlier Order for persons who carry on the trade of cowkeeper or dairyman for the purpose only of making and selling butter or cheese and for persons who sell milk of their own cows in small quantities to their workmen or neighbours for their accommodation, have been omitted, and the new Order, following the terms of s. 1 (1) (a) of the Milk and Dairies (Consolidation) Act, 1915, provides for the registration of all persons carrying on the trade of cowkeeper or dairyman. Provision is also made for the registration of all dairies. Under the Act a "dairy" includes, inter alia, all farms from which milk is supplied on or for sale, whether or not the extent of such sale amounts to the carrying on of a trade.

3. The sale of milk which renders the dairy premises subject to registration would not necessarily constitute the carrying on of a trade involving the registration of the dairyman, and the question whether any particular person is carrying on a trade is one of fact which can only be settled on a consideration of the circumstances. In reply, however, to a request from a local authority for some general ruling, the Minister, while pointing out that he has no jurisdiction which would enable him to give a decision, has suggested that in ordinary cases, where a person keeps a number of cows, not exceeding the number required for the purposes of his own household and sells any milk, butter, etc., which may from time to time be produced surplus to those requirements, he might properly be regarded as not carrying on the trade of dairyman and, therefore, as not being subject to registration under the Order.

4. A somewhat wider interpretation than they were intended to bear appears to have been placed in some quarters upon the terms of the Minister's letter. The relevant consideration appears to the Minister to be whether the farmer in fact keeps more cows than would normally be required for the needs of his household. If so, there appears to be primâ facie ground for assuming that he is "carrying on the trade of a dairyman."

Application of the Order.

5. The question of the registration of the farmer is, however, in itself a matter of minor importance, since the Order, following the terms of section 1 (1) (b) of the Act of 1915, requires also the registration of all dairies, including all farms from which milk is supplied on or for sale. Further, the general requirements of the Order which impose obligations on cowkeepers and prescribe the conditions of cowsheds and other registered premises, apply to all places at which milk is produced for sale whether in large or in small quantities.

Administration.

6. The general object of the Order is the protection of the community by the application of the principles of sanitation and cleanliness which it incorporates. In many respects the standard to be attained in these matters is not, and could not with advantage be, precisely defined in the Order, but is left to a large extent to the discretion of the local authority, subject, in any case of dispute, to the ruling of the Courts. The Minister has no doubt that local authorities will use their discretion reasonably in administering the Order, both in relation to farms on which milk is being produced on a commercial scale and in other cases, regard being had particularly to the importance of the use of cleanly methods. For example, the terms of Article 13 should not in the Minister's view be construed as involving the laying of a piped supply of water from any public source where this is not readily available and should ordinarily be satisfied by arrangements of the same character as would be made in the particular case for domestic purposes.

7. In cases where a few cows only are kept primarily to meet the needs of the household, but a small quantity of the milk produced is sold to employees and neighbours, the general principles of sanitation and cleanliness of method which the Order incorporates must be observed if the consumers are to enjoy the same measure of protection as the Order affords to other sections of the community. But it will no doubt often be found in such cases that the objects of the Act and Order can in practice be secured and that the general requirements of the Order as to condition of premises can be satisfied by inexpensive arrangements of a simpler character than might be regarded as reasonably necessary in the case of larger establishments. In any case of doubt as to the adequacy of premises the hygenic quality of the milk produced as disclosed by the examination of samples should give some guidance as to the action necessary.

8. In many areas the sanitary authority may find that the task of administering the Order will be sensibly lightened by co-operation with the agricultural education authority for the county, whose educational work, so far as it deals with the production of clean milk, is designed to secure substantially the same objects as the Order. Although the responsibility for the administration of the Order must rest entirely with the sanitary authority, it would be to the general advantage that the officers of the two authorities should work in consultation with each other.

9. The Minister is informed that notices have been served by some local authorities requiring alterations to cowsheds to be made forthwith. I am, therefore, to call the attention of the council to Article 1 of the Order, which provides that eighteen months' notice must be given of any alterations required for the purposes of Articles 12 (1), 13 (1) and 25, and that in the case of Article 25 no such notice shall be given before the 1st April, 1928.

Clean Milk Courses for Sanitary Inspectors.

10. Course of instruction in the essentials of clean milk production are held from time to time at agricultural colleges and other centres under the auspices of the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries. The duration of a course is usually about four or five days, but sometimes a course is arranged for one day or half a day each week for a number of weeks. The fee for a course is usually from one to two guineas.

MILK AND DAIRIES: AND TUBERCULOUS COWS

11. In view of the progress which has been made during the past few years in the knowledge of the conditions governing the production and handling of clean milk, the Minister thinks that courses of this character may often be useful in enabling sanitary inspectors to appreciate the relative importance of the various provisions of the Order, and he is of opinion that a sanitary authority may legally incur the reasonable expenditure involved by the attendance of an inspector at such a course.

12. The arrangement of these courses at any particular centre is dependent on the requirements of the surrounding area. If a sanitary inspector desires to attend such a course, and there is apparently none readily available to him, he should communicate with the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries, who will endeavour to make suitable arrangements.

MILK PASTEURISING PLANTS.

SIR,—1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to state, for the information of the Council, that he has recently published a Report by one of the Medical Officers of the Ministry on the Supervision of Milk Pasteurising Plants.*

2. The value of efficient pasteurisation in making milk safe for human consumption has become increasingly recognised during recent years, and was referred to with approval in the report of the Committee of the Economic Advisory Council on Cattle Diseases (Cmd. 4591); but if pasteurisation is to be effective in destroying the tubercle bacillus and other pathogenic organisms which may be present in milk, it is necessary that the process should be efficiently carried out.

3. At the present time, as the Council are aware, all milk sold under the designation "Pasteurised" is required to have been treated in the manner prescribed in Part IV of the Third Schedule to the Milk (Special Designations) Order, 1923, i.e., it must be retained at a temperature of not less than 145 degrees and not more than 150 degrees Fahrenheit for at least half-an-hour, and be immediately cooled to a temperature of not more than 55 degrees Fahrenheit. These requirements can be met with certainty only by what is known as "positive holding" (or the "holder method") by which the whole of the milk is retained or "held" at the required pasteurising temperature for the specified time.

4. There is evidence that some pasteurising plants at present in operation are imperfect in design or construction, or are not properly operated and controlled, with the result that efficient pasteurisation of the milk is not secured. The purpose of the present Report, as stated in the prefatory note, is to supply information on the subject of pasteurising plants, to explain the considerations involved in their construction, operation and cleaning, and to give some account of the appliances and methods employed in the subsidiary processes of bottle-washing and bottle-filling.

5. I am to remind the Council that one of the conditions subject to which licences for selling milk as "Pasteurised" may be granted is that the type of apparatus used for pasteurising and the methods employed shall be such as are satisfactory to the licensing authority. It is hoped that the Report will be of material assistance to officers of local authorities in reporting on applications for licences in respect of establishments at which the process of pasteurisation is proposed to be carried on, and in enabling those officers to exercise adequate supervision of pasteurising plants in respect of which a licence has been granted. With this end in view it is important that the Council should supply each of these officers with a copy of the Report.

6. A copy of this Circular is being sent to the Medical Officer of Health, and a copy of the Report is being sent to the Medical Officers of Health of those Authorities who are known to have issued licences in respect of pasteurising establishments. Further copies of the Circular and Report may be purchased through any bookseller or directly from His Majesty's Stationery Office, at the addresses shown below.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient Servant,

A. B. MACLACHLAN,
Assistant Secretary.

The Clerk to the Council.

MILK AND DAIRIES: AND TUBERCULOUS COWS

CIRCULAR 1533.

County Councils and Sanitary Authorities (England and Wales).

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL,
LONDON, S.W.1.
24th April, 1936.

MILK (SPECIAL DESIGNATIONS) ORDER, 1936.

SIR,—1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to transmit for the information of the Council a copy of the Milk (Special Designations) Order, 1936. An explanatory memorandum (Memo. 197/Foods) on the new system of milk grading set up by the Order is being prepared and will be sent as soon as it is ready.

2. The new Order, which will come into operation on June 1st, 1936, revokes the Milk (Special Designations) Orders of 1923 and 1934 and prescribes the following special designations for milk, viz.:

"Tuberculin Tested."—The conditions for this grade are substantially the same as those at present prescribed for Grade A (Tuberculin Tested) milk. It is milk from cows which have passed a veterinary examination and a tuberculin test, and it may be bottled on the farm or elsewhere.

If raw, the milk must, until December 31st, 1936, be so produced that a sample taken at any time before delivery to the consumer shall not contain more than 200,000 bacteria per millilitre; after that date it must satisfy a prescribed methylene blue reduction test for cleanliness. At all dates it must contain no coliform bacillus in one-hundredth of a millilitre. If pasteurised, it must be described as "Tuberculin Tested Milk (Pasteurised)" and must not contain more than 30,000 bacteria per millilitre. If it is bottled on the farm the word "(Certified)" may be added to its description.

"Accredited."—The conditions for this grade are similar to those prescribed in the Order of 1923 for Grade A milk. It is raw milk from cows which have passed a veterinary examination; it may be bottled on the farm or elsewhere. It must satisfy the same bacteriological tests as are prescribed for raw Tuberculin Tested milk.

"Pasteurised."—This designation is applicable both where "Accredited" milk and where ungraded milk is pasteurised in accordance with the requirements of the Order. The conditions are substantially the same as in the Order of 1923, except that further conditions are imposed with regard to thermometers and temperature records.

3. The existing designations "Certified," "Grade A (Tuberculin Tested)" and "Grade A" are abolished, and the use of any such designation by a person not holding a licence is prohibited under Section 3 (2) (b) of the Milk and Dairies (Amendment) Act, 1922, as enacted in Section 10 of the Milk Act, 1934. The use of any of these designations by a person holding a licence will be precluded by paragraph 3 of the Second Schedule to the new Order, which makes it a condition of the licence that the holder shall not refer to the milk to which the licence applies by any designation (other than the designation authorised by the licence) which may suggest that the milk is tested, approved or graded by any competent person. Provision is, however, made by Article 11 (2) of the Order whereby compliance with the conditions in the Orders of 1923 and 1934 as to the wording to be placed on caps, bottles and other vessels containing milk will, until December 31st, 1936, be regarded as satisfying the corresponding provisions in the new Order.

4. Licences in force which have been granted before June 1st, 1936, under the Orders of 1923 and 1934, will continue in operation; a licence to sell milk as "Certified" or "Grade A (Tuberculin Tested)" being deemed to be a licence to use the designation "Tuberculin Tested," and a licence to sell milk as "Grade A" being deemed a licence to use the designation "Accredited."

5. It is suggested that licensing authorities should communicate as soon as possible with persons at present holding licences granted by them, whether producers' licences relating to Grade A milk or dealers' licences relating to Certified, Grade A (Tuberculin Tested), Grade A or Grade A (Pasteurised) milks, informing them of the change of designations, and pointing out that after June 1st, 1936, the abolished designations must not be used, except that, in order that present stocks may be utilised, caps and labels complying with the Orders of 1923 and 1934 may be used until December 31st, 1936. The Minister will address a similar communication to producers of Certified and Grade A (Tuberculin Tested) milks.

MILK AND DAIRIES: AND TUBERCULOUS COWS

6. It should be observed that "Tuberculin Tested Milk (Pasteurised)" is not a special designation in respect of which a separate licence can be granted. A dealer selling milk under this description must possess the appropriate licences in respect of both the designations "Tuberculin Tested" and "Pasteurised."

Fees.

7. The new Order prescribes maximum fees for the various classes of licences, and the licensing authority may, at their discretion, charge a lower scale of fees than those set out in the Fourth Schedule or may dispense altogether with the payment of fees.

Producers of Tuberculin Tested Milk.

8. As provided in Article 4 of the Order, licences operating from June 1st, 1936, and subsequently, authorising the use of the designation "Tuberculin Tested" by producers, will be granted by the Councils of Counties and County Boroughs (and in London by the Common Council of the City and the Metropolitan Borough Councils). Corresponding licences (i.e., licences authorising producers to sell milk as "Certified" or "Grade A (Tuberculin Tested)") granted by the Minister before that date, will continue under the supervision of the Ministry until the expiry of the licences on December 31st, 1936. The Minister will, before that date, send to each of the licensing authorities concerned a list of such licensees in their area with particulars as to the period of the licence, etc. He will also inform every licensee of the address to which his application for a new licence should be sent.

Applications for Producers' Licences for Tuberculin Tested and Accredited Milks.

9. It appears to the Minister to be desirable that the licensing authority in dealing with applications for producers' licences, other than renewals of existing licences, should require the applicant to have one or more samples of his milk submitted to bacteriological examination and should satisfy themselves that the results of the examination are such as to make it reasonably probable that the milk will regularly comply with the prescribed tests at all stages and at all times of the year. The licensing authority should also arrange for an inspection of the farm with special reference to the methods of milking and the sterilisation of utensils, as the result of an examination of a single sample or of a few samples of milk cannot necessarily be relied upon as sufficient evidence that the conditions of production are such that the milk will regularly comply with the prescribed tests.

10. The Minister considers it desirable that County Councils should co-operate closely with the appropriate District Councils in order to obtain the benefit of information possessed by the latter as the Authorities charged with the administration of the Milk and Dairies Order, 1926 (other than Part IV). It appears to the Minister that in considering whether the general conditions laid down in the Second Schedule to the new Order will be satisfied, a licensing authority may properly take the requirements of the Order of 1926 as a minimum, and it is for them to exercise their discretion in deciding whether further requirements may be necessary in order reasonably to ensure that the conditions of the licence will be regularly complied with. The Minister is advised that it is necessary for this purpose that there should be steam sterilisation of utensils and containers.

11. It has been represented to the Minister that in connection with the Milk (Special Designations) Order, 1923, there has been considerable divergence between the requirements made in these matters by different licensing authorities. In view of the great variety of individual circumstances it is not practicable to lay down any rigid and detailed code of requirements, and the governing consideration must be whether, taken as a whole, the conditions at the farm are such that it may reasonably be expected that the milk can be produced and delivered to the consumer at all times of the year in accordance with the prescribed standards.

12. The Order provides a right of appeal to the Minister against a decision to refuse or to suspend or revoke a licence, but so far as is consistent with the exercise of his jurisdiction in this behalf, the Minister will be prepared to give Local Authorities all assistance in his power with regard to the principles to be adopted in granting and reviewing licences. For this purpose he will be pleased to arrange for consultation between his Milk Inspectors and the officers of the Authority.

Tuberculin Tests and Clinical Veterinary Examinations.

13. It will be observed that where a herd is on the Register of Attested Herds kept by the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries, the conditions relating to the Attested Herds scheme apply instead of the conditions relating to tuberculin tests set out in the first paragraph of Part I A (1) (a) of the Third Schedule to the Order. The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries will inform the licensing authority of the results of the tuberculin tests of Attested Herds which are also licensed for the production of "Tuberculin Tested" milk.

14. . . . (a).

15. The tuberculin tests are to be made at intervals of not less than two or more than six months, at the discretion of the producer. This modification has been made in order to facilitate the eradication of bovine tuberculosis from herds, on the lines recommended in the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries' Advisory Leaflet No. 223.

16. With regard to the addition of animals to herds licensed for the production of "Tuberculin Tested" milk, it will be noted that any animal not taken from an Attested Herd or from another herd licensed for the production of such milk, must, in addition to having been tested, be segregated from the rest of the herd for two months and then subjected to a further tuberculin test before it is brought into contact with the other animals in the herd. In the case of an Attested Herd all movements to and from the herd are subject to the Rules contained in the Attested Herds scheme.

17. The alternative arrangements referred to above relating to Attested Herds and herds which are not Attested are to be regarded as temporary, and the Minister proposes to keep the position under review with the object of considering whether at a later stage registration under the Attested Herds scheme should be made an essential condition for the grant of a "Tuberculin Tested" milk licence.

18. . . . (a).

19. The licensing authority will appreciate the importance of seeing that reports are not allowed to become overdue, and of checking carefully all reports of tuberculin tests and clinical examinations in order to see that all animals in a herd are accounted for, and that any reactor or other animal certified as diseased is removed or otherwise dealt with as required by the Order.

Bacteriological Tests.

20. The new Order prescribes "plate count" bacteriological tests for raw "Tuberculin Tested" and "Accredited" milks until December 31st, 1936, and a methylene blue reduction test for these milks on and after January 1st, 1937. In addition, a coliform test is prescribed for these milks. "Plate count" tests are prescribed for "Tuberculin Tested Milk (Pasteurised)" and for "Pasteurised" milk. The method of carrying out these tests is dealt with in paragraph 33 below.

21. Where two tests are prescribed, the milk is required to comply with both tests and is to be regarded as unsatisfactory if it fails to pass either test. It is not necessary that every sample should be submitted to both tests, and Authorities which require

(a) Paragraphs 14 and 18 are out of date.

ILK AND AIRIES : AND TUBER- CULOUS COWS to have frequent tests made of samples of producers' milk may find it convenient to have most of the samples examined by the methylene blue test alone, reserving the coliform test for occasional use.

22. It should be observed that, although the intention is that the milk should habitually comply with the prescribed conditions even in the summer months, there may be occasional lapses and a licence should not be revoked until the evidence of a number of samples shows that the conditions are not habitually observed. The licensee should be informed as soon as possible of the result of every examination of a sample of his milk.

23. Since there are possibilities of contamination until the milk has been bottled and sealed, it is desirable that, in addition to such sampling as may be carried out before it reaches the bottling stage, the Authority which grants the bottling licence (whether at the farm or at some other establishment) should make arrangements for the sampling and testing of the milk. This can most conveniently be done by arranging for the taking of samples of milk when it is on sale by retail, the samples usually being taken by an officer of the Authority which has granted the retailer's licence.

24. It may be of interest to record that the Ministry (acting as the licensing authority for producers) have on this principle arranged for the sampling of "Certified" milk and of "Grade A (Tuberculin Tested)" milk bottled on the farm, and for this purpose it has been their practice to draw up at the beginning of each year a scheme of sampling, asking the Sanitary Authorities of the places where the milk was sold to take samples during specified months and have them examined at the cost of the Ministry. The scheme has been so drawn as to involve the taking of about twelve samples a year of the milk from each producer, the sampling being more frequent in the summer than in the winter months. In addition, extra sampling has been arranged during a period of a few weeks when a producer has been warned that samples had been found to be unsatisfactory and that an improvement in his methods was called for.

Pasteurised Milk.

25. It will be observed that while the definition of the pasteurising process and the other conditions are substantially the same as in the Order of 1923, further conditions are imposed as to the provision of indicating and recording thermometers and the making and retention of temperature records.

26. I am to draw the attention of Sanitary Authorities to Circular 1473 and to Report on the Supervision of Milk Pasteurising Plants (Reports on Public Health and Medical Subjects No. 77), and to suggest that every such Authority should forthwith cause a survey to be made of all the licensed pasteurising establishments in their area with a view to ascertaining that the requirements of the new Order both as to apparatus and as to methods are fully complied with, and that they should cause frequent inspections to be made in future in order to ensure that the methods adopted are continuously satisfactory.

27. The Minister is advised that there is evidence that milk subjected to the pasteurising process may in fact be improperly pasteurised on account of the pasteurising plant being imperfect in design and construction, or improperly and inefficiently operated and controlled. It has also been asserted that in cold weather milk which has not been through the pasteuriser at all may be sold as "Pasteurised." Improperly pasteurised milk has not the advantage, which pasteurisation is designed to secure, of the destruction of pathogenic bacteria, and the Minister is therefore pleased to learn that a test for pasteurised milk (the phosphatase test) has recently been devised.

28. A detailed description of this test and its method of operation is given in the Journal of Dairy Research (Vol. VI, No. 2, p. 191, 1935). Present experience of the test shows that a positive result, i.e., the demonstration of the presence of phosphatase in the milk, is conclusive evidence that the milk has not been properly pasteurised or that milk which has not been pasteurised has been added to it. A negative result, i.e., failure to demonstrate the presence of phosphatase, does not necessarily indicate that the milk has been properly pasteurised, as it may not be possible to demonstrate indubitably the presence of phosphatase in milk which has been heated to slightly below the pasteurising temperature or for a slightly less period than 30 minutes, or to which a small proportion of raw milk has gained access. Nevertheless, it is claimed that even relatively small errors in pasteurisation technique, e.g., heating at 143° F. instead of 145°, or heating for 20 instead of 30 minutes at 145°, or the addition of 0·3 per cent. (or even less) of raw milk to the pasteurised bulk may be detected by this test.

29. The test accordingly gives promise of being of great value in so far as a positive result indicates that the milk has not been properly pasteurised, and its application will no doubt enable Local Authorities to deal with cases in which it is suspected that raw milk is being sold as "Pasteurised" and may also facilitate the detection of defects in the pasteurising apparatus or in its working.

Dealers' Licences.

30. In connection with the granting by Sanitary Authorities of dealiers' licences for using any of the special designations, the licensing authority should, where necessary, verify by enquiry from the other authority concerned that the person from whom the milk is to be obtained has a licence in operation. Further, in any case where the milk sold by the dealer under a dealer's licence is found to be defective, the authority granting the dealer's licence should, apart from any other action they may deem necessary, consider whether the facts should be brought to the notice of the licensing authority of the establishment from which the milk was obtained.

31. Licensing authorities should also make frequent use of their powers under paragraph 4 (b) of the Second Schedule to the Order to inspect the various processes carried out in the dealers' establishments and to inspect the records of milk purchased and sold. The latter inspection is important in order to preclude any possibility of milk being sold under a designation which cannot lawfully be applied to it.

Closing and Labelling of Bottles.

32. It will be observed that the requirements as to the closing of bottles, and the labelling of "Tuberculin Tested" and "Accredited" milk, have been drawn up in wider terms than is provided in relation to the corresponding grades by the Order of 1923. It is not now required that bottles shall bear both disc and cap, though this will probably still be found in general the most suitable method. A tightly fitting and overlapping cap, however, without a disc, may be used, or other suitable fastening, provided that it is secure and tightly fitting and is approved by the licensing authority. The object of this alteration is to remove objection to the closing of bottles with suitable metal caps such as are already in some cases in use, or to suitable containers of the "carton" type. Licensing authorities should only approve methods which ensure that bottles cannot readily be opened and re-closed by roundsmen or other unauthorised persons.

Matters reserved for direction by the Minister.

33. In several places in the Order details in regard to which experience may show the desirability of modification from time to time are left to be directed by the Minister. In pursuance of his powers in that behalf the Minister hereby directs as follows:

(a) The manner of carrying out the clinical examination of animals and the form of certificate certifying the result thereof shall be as set out in Appendix I to Memo. 197/Foods (a).

(b) The manner of carrying out the tuberculin test of animals shall be in accordance with the double intradermal method, as described in the Memorandum by the Tuberculin Committee of the Medical Research Council entitled "Memorandum on the Method of carrying out the Double Intradermal Test in Cattle" (published by His Majesty's Stationery Office), and the form of Certificate for the tuberculin test shall be as set out in Appendix I to Memo. 197/Foods.

(a) Memorandum 139/Foods and Memorandum 197/Foods are largely technical. They can be bought from H.M. Stationery Office directly, or through any bookseller.

MILK AND DAIRIES: AND TUBERCULOUS COWS

The tuberculin used for the test shall be tuberculin of adequate potency, and from the date on which any Order made by the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries under Section 12 of the Diseases of Animals Act, 1935, with respect to veterinary tuberculin comes into operation, it shall be tuberculin manufactured or imported under a licence issued in pursuance either of that Order or of the Therapeutic Substances Regulations, 1931, or any corresponding regulations for the time being in force.

(c) The manner of carrying out the tests for the number of bacteria per millilitre and for coliform bacillus in a sample of milk shall be as set out in the Ministry's Memorandum 139/Foods (a).

34. These directions will continue in operation until revoked or modified. It is intended in the course of the present year to issue a revised edition of Memo. 139/Foods, including instructions for carrying out the methylene blue reduction test on samples taken on or after January 1st, 1937.

General.

35. The Minister understands that it is at present the general practice of Local Authorities to grant licences only on the advice of, or after consultation with, the Medical Officer of Health. The Minister agrees that this is desirable and he suggests that all licensing authorities should make arrangements accordingly.

36. The Minister proposes to ask Local Authorities each year for a statement showing the number of licences of each kind which have been granted by them and are in force on March 31st, of that year.

37. No special form is prescribed for applications for licences, but forms suggested as suitable for ordinary use are contained in Appendix II to Memo. 197/Foods.

38. Additional copies of this Circular and of the Order are enclosed for the use of the Financial Officer of the Authority, and copies are also being sent to the Medical Officer of Health. Further copies may be obtained through any bookseller or directly from His Majesty's Stationery Office, at the addresses shown below.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient Servant,
J. N. BECKETT,
Assistant Secretary.

The Town Clerk,
or
The Clerk to the Council.

Councils, and all other licences under this Order by the Councils of County Boroughs, Boroughs, Urban Districts and Rural Districts: Provided that any licence granted to a local authority shall be granted by the Minister.

(2) A licence (other than a licence granted by the Minister) shall authorise the use of a special designation only in relation to milk sold at or from the establishment mentioned in the licence and (except in the case of milk sold by wholesale) only within the area of the licensing authority.

Provided that a licence (other than a supplementary licence) in relation to milk sold at or from a pasteurising establishment shall apply also in relation to milk pasteurised at that establishment and sold by the holder of the licence at or from any other establishment in the same area.

(3) Where the holder of a licence authorising him to use a special designation in relation to milk sold by him at or from an establishment in one area proposes to sell the milk by retail in another area the licensing authority of the second area may grant him a supplementary licence authorising him during the period of operation of the first mentioned licence to use the special designation in relation to milk so sold in their area, but in that event nothing in this Order shall authorise that authority either before the grant or during the period of operation of the supplementary licence to exercise any powers under this Order outside their area.

5.—(1) Every licence granted under this Order shall be in the form contained in the First Schedule hereto with such modifications, if any, as the circumstances may require.

(2) Subject to the provisions of this Order, every licence shall be for a period of one year or a part of a year ending on the 31st day of December in the year in respect of which it is granted.

6.—(1) Application for a licence shall be made in writing to the licensing authority.

(2) Where a person applies for a licence (otherwise than in renewal of an existing licence) in respect of an establishment other than that at which the milk is produced or in the case of a licence to use the special designation "Pasteurised" that at which the milk is pasteurised he shall state the name and address of the licensed dealer from whom he proposes to obtain the milk.

[(3) Where a producer applies for a licence (otherwise than in renewal of an existing licence) to use the special designation "Tuberculin Tested" he shall either satisfy the licensing authority that the herd in respect of which the licence is applied for is an attested herd or that every animal in the herd at the date of the application has, not more than one month before the date of such application, been the subject of a tuberculin test made by an inspector or furnish the authority with a certificate of a tuberculin test of every animal in the herd at the date of the application made not more than one month before the date of such application.

8. The fees payable to the licensing authority for licences granted under this Order shall not exceed the amounts set out in the Fourth Schedule to this Order:

Provided that the licensing authority may dispense with the payment of fees for all licences or for any class of licences, and where a licence is granted for a period of less than a year they may reduce the fee payable therefor to such sum as they may think fit having regard to the length of the period.

Provided that a producer's licence shall not be suspended or revoked by reason only of his milk being found not to comply with the conditions of the licence after it has left his custody and control if he shows to the satisfaction of the licensing authority that such non-compliance was not due to any act or default of himself or of his servants or agents.

(2) Where a licensing authority decide to refuse or to suspend or revoke a licence they shall serve notice of the decision on the applicant or the holder of the licence as the case may be and, except where the licensing authority is the Minister, that person may within seven days after receipt of the notice appeal to the Minister, whose decision shall be final, and the licensing authority shall comply with the decision of the Minister. In any appeal any reference in this Order to anything being done to the satisfaction of the licensing authority shall be treated as if the reference were to the satisfaction of the Minister.

(3) A decision to suspend or revoke a licence shall not have effect until seven days have elapsed since the receipt of notice thereof, and in case of an appeal against the decision the licence shall remain in force until the end of the year in respect of which it was granted or until the determination of the appeal whichever is the earlier.

(4) Where during the period of operation of a licence, other than a licence in respect of which a notice of suspension or revocation has been given and has not been appealed against, the holder applies for a new licence in renewal thereof and tenders the prescribed fee, and the licensing authority refuse to grant such new licence the existing licence shall remain in force for seven days after notice of such refusal is given and, if an appeal is made against such refusal, until the determination of the appeal: Provided that an appeal against the decision to suspend or revoke a licence shall be deemed for the purposes of this Article to include an appeal against any refusal of the licensing authority to renew such licence if the renewal is refused before the determination of the appeal.

(a) Paragraph (4) was substituted by the Amending Regulations, S. R. & O., 1938, No. 218, post, p. 3419.

(b) Paragraph (3) was added by the Amending Regulations, S. R. & O., 1938, No. 218, post, p. 3419.

10.—(1) A licence authorising a person to use the special designation "Tuberculin Tested" shall entitle him to use the special designation "Accredited" in relation to the milk to which that licence applies.

(2) Where milk is brought from Scotland into England or Wales a licence granted in pursuance of an Order made by the Department of Health for Scotland and authorising the use of a special designation prescribed by this Order in relation to that milk shall have effect as if it had been granted under this Order and so far as any conditions prescribed in this Order for a licence authorising the use of that designation would relate to anything to be done before the milk enters England or Wales they shall be deemed to be satisfied if the corresponding conditions of the Scottish Order are complied with.

11.—(1) Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this Order licences granted under the Orders revoked hereby and in force at the date of commencement of this Order shall continue in operation and shall be deemed to have been granted under and subject to the provisions of this Order and for this purpose a licence to sell milk as "Certified" or as "Grade A (Tuberculin Tested)" shall be deemed to be a licence authorising the use of the special designation "Tuberculin Tested" and a licence to sell milk as "Grade A" shall be deemed to be a licence authorising the use of the special designation "Accredited."

(2) Until the 31st day of December, 1936, the provisions of this Order as to the wording to be used on bottles and other vessels containing milk to which any such licence as aforesaid applies and on the caps and labels attached thereto shall be deemed to be satisfied if the corresponding provisions of the revoked Orders are complied with.

GENERAL CONDITIONS SUBJECT TO WHICH LICENCES MAY BE GRANTED.

1. The arrangements and processes under and by which the milk is produced, stored, treated and distributed, as the case may be, shall be such as to satisfy the licensing authority that the requirements of all Acts and Orders relating to Milk and Dairies and the conditions of this Order, subject to which the licence is granted, are being and will be complied with.

2. Adequate measures shall be taken to the satisfaction of the licensing authority to ensure that the milk to which the licence applies is kept apart from all other milk at all times except when it is in sealed containers. In particular any vessel or apparatus which has at any time been used for any other milk shall be thoroughly cleansed and sterilised on each occasion before it is used for the milk to which the licence applies and no room or compartment of a dairy shall be used at the same time for the milk to which the licence applies and any other milk unless either the former or the latter is in sealed containers.

3. Subject to the provisions of this Order the holder of the licence shall not for the purpose of the sale or advertisement of the milk to which the licence applies refer to it by any such designation (other than the special designation authorised by the licence) as is calculated to suggest that it is tested, approved or graded by any competent person.

4. The holder of the licence shall—

(a) keep accurate records of the quantities of the milk produced, purchased and sold, as the case may be, and of the names and addresses of the persons from whom the milk was purchased and to whom it was sold otherwise than by retail;

(b) permit any person duly authorised by the licensing authority—

(i) to inspect the processes of production, storage and treatment,

(ii) to take samples of the milk free of charge, and

THIRD SCHEDULE.

PART I.—(TUBERCULIN TESTED).

A.—The following conditions apply to producers only :

1.—(a) Every animal of the herd shall be submitted to a tuberculin test at an interval of not less than two and not more than six months after the last preceding test of such animal, and an animal born and bred in the herd shall be submitted to such a test before it attains the age of twelve months. [An inspector may make a special tuberculin test of any animal of the herd at an interval of not less than two months after the last preceding test of such animal, or, if the animal has not previously been submitted to a tuberculin test at any time (a).] No animal shall be added to the herd unless it has passed a tuberculin test within fourteen days before it is so added or, in the case of an animal taken directly from an attested herd or a herd in respect of which a licence authorising the use of the special designation "Tuberculin Tested" is an operation, on the occasion of the last test in that herd. Where an animal other than an animal taken from any such herd as aforesaid is added it shall be segregated from the rest of the herd for a period of two months from the date of its addition and submitted to a further tuberculin test on the expiration of that period :

Provided that in the case of an attested herd in lieu of the above conditions the conditions prescribed in the arrangements made in that behalf by the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries shall be complied with.

(b) The certificates of every tuberculin test [made by a private veterinary surgeon (a)] shall be sent to the licensing authority within seven days after the completion of the test (or in the case of an animal added to the herd, within seven days after such addition).

(a) The words in square brackets in sub-paragraph (a) were substituted, and those in sub-paragraph (b) added by the Amending Regulations, S. R. & O., 1938, No. 218, post, p. 3419.

(c) No animal in the herd shall be injected with tuberculin except on the occasion of the prescribed tuberculin tests. No such animal shall be inoculated or vaccinated against tuberculosis or with live Brucella abortus.

(d) Where any animal is certified as reacting to a tuberculin test it shall forthwith be removed from the herd.

(e) All animals in the herd shall be suitably marked for purposes of identification and a complete register of such animals shall be kept.

[2. Every animal of the herd shall be submitted to an examination at intervals of not more than six months, and in the case of an examination made by a private veterinary surgeon the veterinary surgeon's certificate thereof shall be sent to the licensing authority within seven days after the date of such examination (a).]

3. Where an animal is certified as showing evidence of any disease which is likely to affect the milk injuriously it shall be segregated from the rest of the herd or removed from the herd as the case may require and the special designation shall not be used in relation to its milk.

4. A record shall be kept of all animals segregated from the rest of the herd or removed from the herd in pursuance of any of the foregoing conditions showing the reasons for the segregation or removal, and in the case of removal, the manner in which the animal has been disposed of.

5. The herd shall be completely isolated from all other cattle.

6. The milk in relation to which the special designation is used, unless it is bottled by the producer in accordance with the procedure for bottling hereinafter specified, shall be consigned from the dairy where it is produced in unventilated sealed containers which shall be labelled or marked in a suitable manner with the address of the dairy, the day of production (with the word "morning" or "evening" added according to the time of milking) and the words "Tuberculin Tested Milk."

B.—The following conditions apply to dealers (whether producers or not) by whom the milk is delivered to consumers:

1. The milk in relation to which the special designation is used, unless it is delivered to the consumer in the containers in which it is received, the seals being unbroken, shall be delivered either in bottles or in other suitable containers of not less capacity than two gallons. For this purpose the term "bottle" includes any container of a capacity not exceeding one quart and of a type approved by the licensing authority granting the licence for the establishment at which the milk is bottled.

2. Every bottle containing the milk shall be tightly closed and shall be securely fastened either with a cap overlapping the lip of the bottle, or in some other suitable manner approved by the aforesaid licensing authority. The cap shall bear the address of the bottling establishment and the words "Tuberculin Tested Milk" and it may also bear (a) the day of production, with or without the word "morning" or "evening" according to the time of production, (b) the name of the dealer by whom the milk was bottled, (c) the words "Produced from cows which have passed the tuberculin test" and (d) if the milk has been bottled at the place of production, the word "(Certified)." Except with the consent of the aforesaid licensing authority the cap shall bear no other words.

If there is no cap on which the wording can suitably be placed, it shall be placed within a surrounding line in a prominent position elsewhere upon the container, and the foregoing provisions shall apply to the words within the surrounding line in the same way as they apply to the words on a cap.

3. Where containers other than bottles are used, every container shall be closed with a tightly fitting cover and shall be suitably sealed and labelled.

C.—The following conditions apply to all dealers (whether producers or not):

1. The milk in relation to which the special designation is used shall not at any stage be treated by heat or in any other manner likely to affect its nature or qualities, save that where a licence authorising the use of the designation "Pasteurised" in relation to such milk has been granted the milk may be treated in accordance with the conditions of such licence, and where it is so treated the word "(Pasteurised)" shall be added after the words "Tuberculin Tested Milk" wherever such words are used in connection with the sale or advertisement of the milk or the labelling or marking of receptacles containing the milk. In the labelling or marking of receptacles the word "Pasteurised" shall be printed in block letters which shall not be smaller than the letters used for the words "Tuberculin Tested Milk."

(a) This paragraph was substituted by the Amending Regulations, S. R. & O., 1938, No. 218, post, p. 3419.

MILK AND DAIRIES: AND TUBERCULOUS COWS

2. Until the 31st day of December, 1936, the milk if not pasteurised shall be produced and treated under such conditions that on a sample being taken at any time before delivery to the consumer the milk shall be found to contain not more than 200,000 bacteria per millilitre and no coliform bacillus in one-hundredth of a millilitre. The tests shall be carried out in such manner as the Minister may direct.

3.—(a) On and after the 1st day of January, 1937, the milk if not pasteurised shall be produced and treated under such conditions that

(i) any sample of milk in relation to which the special designation is used; and

(ii) any sample of milk from the herd in respect of which a licence authorising the use of the special designation is in force (whether the designation is used in relation to that milk or not), if the sample is taken before the milk has been placed in bottles or other containers for delivery to the consumer and either while it is in the possession of the producer or before the containers in which it is consigned to another dealer are opened by that dealer shall satisfy a methylene blue reduction test and shall be found to contain no coliform bacillus in one-hundredth of a millilitre. The tests shall be carried out in such manner as the Minister may direct:

Provided that before either test is begun and sample to which paragraph (ii) applies shall be kept at atmospheric temperature until 6 p.m. on the day of production if it is from a morning milking and until 10 a.m. on the next day if it is from an afternoon milking and any other sample may be kept at atmospheric temperature for a period not exceeding two hours. If the test is not then immediately begun the milk shall be cooled and kept at a temperature from 32° to 40° Fahrenheit for a further period not exceeding 18 hours and the test shall be begun at the end of that period.

(b) A sample taken at any date from May 1st to October 31st shall be regarded as satisfying the methylene blue reduction test if it fails to decolourise the methylene blue in 4½ hours and a sample taken at any date from November 1st to April 30th shall be regarded as satisfying the test if it fails to decolourise the methylene blue in 5½ hours.

4. The milk if pasteurised shall be found on a sample being taken after pasteurisation and before delivery to the consumer to contain not more than 30,000 bacteria per millilitre. The test shall be carried out in such manner as the Minister may direct.

PART II.—(ACCREDITED).

A.—The following conditions apply to producers only:

[1. Every milch cow belonging to the herd shall be submitted to an examination once in every three months and in the case of an examination made by a private veterinary surgeon the veterinary surgeon's certificate thereof shall be sent to the licensing authority within seven days after the date of such examination (a).]

2. Where an animal is certified as showing evidence of any disease which is likely to affect the milk injuriously it shall be segregated from the rest of the herd or removed from the herd as the case may require and the special designation shall not be used in relation to its milk. A record shall be kept of all animals so segregated or removed showing the reasons for the segregation or removal, and in the case of removal, the manner in which the animal has been disposed of.

3. The herd shall not at any time contain any animal which to the knowledge of the producer had before its introduction into the herd been tested with tuberculin and had reacted to the test.

4. All milch cows belonging to the herd shall be suitably marked for purposes of identification and a complete register of such cows shall be kept.

5. The cows in milk belonging to the herd shall be kept separate from all other cows in milk.

6. The milk in relation to which the special designation is used unless it is bottled by the producer in accordance with the procedure for bottling hereinafter specified, shall be consigned from the dairy where it is produced in an unventilated sealed container which shall be labelled or marked in a suitable manner with the address of the dairy, the day of production (with the word "morning" or "evening" added according to the time of milking), and the words "Accredited Milk."

B.—The following conditions apply to dealers (whether producers or not) by whom the milk is delivered to consumers:

1. The milk in relation to which the special designation is used, unless it is delivered to the consumer in the containers in which it is received, the seals being unbroken, shall be delivered either in bottles or in other suitable containers of not less capacity than two gallons. For this purpose the term "bottle" includes any container of a capacity not exceeding one quart and of a type approved by the licensing authority granting the licence for the establishment at which the milk is bottled.

2. Every bottle containing the milk shall be tightly closed and shall be securely fastened either with a cap overlapping the lip of the bottle, or in some other suitable manner approved by the aforesaid licensing authority. The cap shall bear the address of the bottling establishment and the words "Accredited Milk" and it may also bear (a) the day of production, with or without the word "morning" or "evening" according to the time of production, (b) the name of the dealer by whom the milk was bottled, and (c) if the milk has been bottled at the place of production, the words "Farm bottled." Except with the consent of the aforesaid licensing authority the cap shall bear no other words.

If there is no cap on which the wording can suitably be placed, it shall be placed within a surrounding line in a prominent position elsewhere upon the container, and the foregoing provisions shall apply to the words within the surrounding line in the same way as they apply to the words on a cap.

3. Where containers other than bottles are used, every container shall be closed with a tightly fitting cover and shall be suitably sealed and labelled.

C.—The following conditions apply to all dealers (whether producers or not):

1. The milk in relation to which the special designation is used shall not at any stage be treated by heat or in any other manner likely to affect its nature or qualities.

2. Until the 31st day of December, 1936, the milk shall be produced and treated under such conditions that on a sample being taken at any time before delivery to the consumer the milk shall be found to contain not more than 200,000 bacteria per millilitre and no coliform bacillus in one-hundredth of a millilitre. The tests shall be carried out in such manner as the Minister may direct.

3.—(a) On and after the 1st day of January, 1937, the milk shall be produced and treated under such conditions that

(i) any sample of milk in relation to which the special designation is used; and

(ii) any sample of milk from the herd in respect of which a licence authorising the use of the special designation is in force (whether the designation is used in relation to that milk or not), if the sample is taken before the milk has been placed in bottles or other containers for delivery to the consumer and either while it is in the possession of the producer or before the containers in which it is consigned to another dealer are opened by that dealer

shall satisfy a methylene blue reduction test and shall be found to contain no coliform bacillus in one-hundredth of a millilitre. The tests shall be carried out in such manner as the Minister may direct:

Provided that before the test is begun any sample to which paragraph (ii) applies shall be kept at atmospheric temperature until 6 p.m. on the day of production if it is from a morning milking and until 10 a.m. on the next day if it is from an afternoon milking and any other sample may be kept at atmospheric temperature for a period not exceeding two hours. If the test is not then immediately begun the milk shall be cooled and kept at a temperature from 32° to 40° Fahrenheit for a further period not exceeding 18 hours and the test shall be begun at the end of that period.

(b) A sample taken at any date from May 1st to October 31st shall be regarded as satisfying the methylene blue reduction test if it fails to decolourise the methylene blue in 4½ hours and a sample taken at any date from November 1st to April 30th shall be regarded as satisfying the test if it fails to decolourise the methylene blue in 5½ hours.

PART III.—(PASTEURISED).

1. The milk in relation to which the special designation is used shall be pasteurised, that is to say, retained at a temperature of not less than 145° and not more than 150° Fahrenheit for at least thirty minutes, and be immediately cooled to a temperature of not more than 55° Fahrenheit.

2. The milk shall not be so heated more than once and shall not be otherwise treated by heat.

3. [Such indicating thermometers and recording thermometers as the licensing authority shall consider requisite (a)] shall be inserted in suitable places in the apparatus used for pasteurising during the whole of the pasteurising process. The type of apparatus and thermometers used and the methods employed shall be such as are satisfactory to the licensing authority.

4. Temperature records shall be made and all such records shall be preserved for a period of not less than one month.

5. After the milk has left the receptacles in which the pasteurising process is carried out it shall not be placed in any apparatus or storage vessels which are at any time used for milk which has not been pasteurised.

6. Every vessel in which the milk is transported or is exposed or offered for sale shall bear a suitable label with the words "Pasteurised Milk."

7. On a sample of the milk being taken after pasteurisation and before delivery to the consumer, the milk shall be found to contain not more than 100,000 bacteria per millilitre. The test shall be carried out in such manner as the Minister may direct.

AGRICULTURE ACT, 1937, PART IV.
MILK AND DAIRIES ACTS AND ORDERS.
TUBERCULOSIS ORDER, 1938.

SIR,—1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to refer to the provisions contained in Section 19 (1) of the Agriculture Act, 1937 (b), relating to the transfer of the functions of veterinary inspectors of local authorities to veterinary inspectors appointed by the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries, and to say that the transfer, which will take effect on April 1st next, has made certain amendments necessary in the Milk (Special Designations) Order, 1936 (c) and the Milk and Dairies Order, 1926 (d). I am to enclose for the information of the Council copies of the Milk (Special Designations) Amendment Order, 1938, and of the Milk and Dairies Amendment Order, 1938, which have been made by the Minister of Health accordingly and will come into operation on April 1st.

Arrangements for the Transfer of Veterinary Functions.

2. I am to point out that, as stated in paragraph 10 of the circular letter issued by the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries on February 8th, 1938, to County and County Borough Councils in connection with the application of Part IV of the Agriculture Act, 1937, the veterinary inspectors of that Ministry will carry out the clinical veterinary examinations and tuberculin tests of herds in respect of which licences are in operation, under the Milk (Special Designations) Order, 1936, authorising the use of the designations Tuberculin Tested and Accredited Milk, including, where required by the Order, the tuberculin testing (after the prescribed period of segregation) of animals added to a licensed herd. Examinations and tests made before the granting of a licence will be the responsibility of the applicant for the licence and should be carried out by private veterinary surgeons subject to the requirements of the Order, but if within the prescribed period before an application for a licence is made, an examination or a test of the herd has been made on behalf of the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries by a veterinary inspector, a certificate of such examination or test will be supplied by the veterinary inspector to the licensing authority for the purpose of the application.

3. I am also to point out that the veterinary inspectors of the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries will not collect or examine samples of milk in connection with the bacteriological tests prescribed by the Order, or undertake the marking of animals on behalf of owners. Where, therefore, these duties have been performed by veterinary inspectors of licensing authorities it will be necessary for other arrangements to be made.

4. With regard to the inspection of farm buildings for the purposes of the Milk (Special Designations) Order, 1936 (a), if a licensing authority which has hitherto utilised the services of its veterinary inspectors for that purpose so desire, the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries, as explained in paragraph 13 of the Circular letter of February 8th, 1938, referred to above, is prepared to arrange that the inspection of such buildings shall be included by their veterinary inspectors in the routine inspections of dairy cattle. This arrangement is, however, solely for the purpose of securing continuity in the areas concerned and the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries is not prepared to extend it to the areas of local authorities which have other arrangements in operation.

Milk (Special Designations) Amendment Order.

5. The purpose of the Milk (Special Designations) Amendment Order, 1938, is more particularly to distinguish between cases in which clinical examinations and tuberculin tests are made and certificates thereof given by veterinary inspectors of the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries and by private veterinary surgeons respectively.

6. An addition has been made to Article 7 to provide that the examinations and tests required by the Third Schedule to the Order of 1936 (a) for animals of a licensed herd will be carried out by the veterinary inspectors of the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries, unless the licensing authority agree to the examinations and tests being carried out by a private veterinary surgeon. In the latter case, and in the case of examinations and tests so far as made by private veterinary surgeons, under Article 6 (3) and (4) of the Order of 1936 as amended, before the granting of a licence, the licensee or applicant, as the case may be, will be required by the Order of 1936, as amended, to furnish such certificates to the licensing authority. A similar requirement will apply in the case of an animal added to a licensed Tuberculin Tested herd, as regards the tuberculin test which is required in certain cases to be carried out within 14 days before the animal is added to the herd. Where examinations and tests are carried out by veterinary inspectors of the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries, arrangements will be made by that Department for the licensing authority to be informed of the results.

7. The opportunity has been taken to make certain further amendments in the Order which experience has shown to be desirable.

The definition of " dealer " in Article 2 (1) of the Order of 1936 has been amended so as to include a person who uses milk for manufacturing purposes.

The conditions for a licence authorising the use of the designation " Pasteurised " contained in Part III of the Third Schedule of the Order of 1936 have been amended so as to include in paragraph 3, in place of the words " an indicating thermometer and a recording thermometer " the words " such indicating thermometers and recording thermometers as the licensing authority shall consider requisite." Where a licence in respect of a pasteurising establishment is in operation at the date of the amending Order, this amendment, by virtue of the proviso to Article 2 of the amending Order, will not come into force until the expiration of one month after the licensing authority have served a notice on the holder of a licence setting out what they consider requisite. In dealing with new applications for licences in respect of pasteurising establishments the licensing authority should secure compliance with their requirements before granting the licence.

(a) Ante, p. 3398.

MILK AND DAIRIES: AND TUBERCULOUS COWS

Tuberculosis Order, 1938 (a).

8. The transfer of veterinary functions has also made necessary a revision of the Tuberculosis Order of 1925. The Tuberculosis Order of 1938, made by the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries which will come into operation on April 1st next, revokes the Order of 1925 and its amending Orders and provides for the slaughter of affected cattle and for the payment of compensation therefor by the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries instead of by local authorities as heretofore.

9. Under the Tuberculosis Order of 1925 (No. 2), as explained in circular letter No. 616 from this Department dated August, 1925, where it is proposed to slaughter an animal under the Order of 1925 and to dispose of its carcase or any part thereof for human consumption, notice of intention to slaughter the animal together with a statement of the address of the premises on which and the time at which the animal is intended to be slaughtered, is given by the local authority under the Diseases of Animals Acts to the officer of the local authority to whom notices of intention to slaughter are required to be sent under the Public Health (Meat) Regulations, 1924 (b). Under the new arrangements the corresponding notice and information will be sent to the officer of the latter local authority by the veterinary inspector of the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries. Veterinary inspectors will also have instructions that in such cases the carcase of an animal, or any part of it, shall not be removed for human consumption from the premises on which the slaughter takes place, except with the permission in writing of the Medical Officer of Health or other competent officer of the local authority responsible for the enforcement of the Public Health (Meat) Regulations, 1924. Sufficient notice will be given in order to enable the appropriate officer of the local authority to be present at the post-mortem examination.

General.

10. Apart from the special arrangements referred to above in connection with the examination of licensed herds, arrangements will be made by the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries for the routine veterinary examination of all dairy herds to the extent explained in the Circular of February 8th, 1938, referred to above, and the Milk and Dairies Amendment Order, 1938 (c), therefore revokes Articles 8, 9 and 10 of the Milk and Dairies Order, 1926, relating to the inspection of cattle. Where a veterinary inspector of that Department finds in the course of his routine inspection an animal in a pathological condition liable to infect or contaminate the milk, he will hand to the owner a copy of his report describing the animal and the condition found and a copy of the report will also be sent to the Council of the County or County Borough concerned.

11. Where, under Section 4 of the Milk and Dairies (Consolidation) Act, 1915 (d), a Medical Officer of Health, who has reason to suspect that tuberculosis is caused, or is likely to be caused by the consumption of certain milk, and on ascertaining the source or sources of supply has given notice to the Medical Officer of Health of the county or county borough in which the cows from which the milk is obtained are kept, the last-named Medical Officer of Health should communicate the information received by him to the Divisional Inspector of the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries. The Divisional Inspector will arrange for the veterinary inspection of the cattle concerned and proceed as if he had received notice of suspected disease under the Tuberculosis Order, informing the Medical Officer of Health from whom the information was received by him of the result of the inquiry in due course.

(b) Ante, p. 2812.
(c) S.R. & O., 1938, No. 217. Since the only operative provision is to the effect stated, the Order is not here reproduced.
(d) The Act is repealed by the Food and Drugs Act, 1938, ante, p. 1456. This section is not replaced by any provision of that Act, but the result is secured by administrative arrangements: see paragraph 9 of Circular 1755, dated December 15th, 1938, post, p. 4092.

.K AND IRIES : AND JBER- JLOUS COWS

12. Where, also, in connection with illness of human beings suspicion attaches to milk and the Medical Officer of Health concerned desires the co-operation of a veterinary inspector in regard to the veterinary examination of cattle in the dairy supplying the milk, the Divisional Inspector of the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries will, on request from the Medical Officer of Health, arrange any necessary veterinary examination. It is contemplated that in such cases the Medical Officer of Health would normally accompany the veterinary inspector at the inspection.

13. The Council will appreciate the importance of ensuring the fullest co-operation with the officers of the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries in the above-mentioned matters. The responsibility will of course remain with Local Authorities, upon receipt of the results of examinations made by the veterinary inspectors of the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries to take such action, if any, as may be required under the relevant Acts and Orders.

14. A copy of this circular and copies of the enclosures are being sent to the Medical Officer of Health. Further copies may be obtained through any bookseller or directly from H.M. Stationery Office, at the addresses shown below.

S. R. & O., 1938, No. 165.

THE TUBERCULOSIS ORDER OF 1938. DATED MARCH 1ST, 1938.

The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries, by virtue and in exercise of the powers vested in him under the Diseases of Animals Acts, 1894 to 1937 (a), the Agriculture Act, 1937 (b), and of every other power enabling him in this behalf, hereby orders as follows :

Notice of Disease.

1.—(1) Every person having in his possession or under his charge—

(i) any cow which is, or appears to be affected with tuberculosis of the udder, indurated udder or other chronic disease of the udder ; or

(ii) any bovine animal which is, or appears to be, affected with tuberculosis emaciation ; or

(iii) any bovine animal which is affected with a chronic cough and showing definite clinical signs of tuberculosis shall with all practicable speed give notice of the fact to a constable of the police force for the area wherein the animal is or to a Veterinary Inspector.

(2) The person in possession or having charge of the animal shall forthwith detain it on the premises where it then is and isolate it as far as practicable from other bovine animals, and shall adopt the precautions with respect to milk set forth in Article 2 of this Order as if a Notice (in the Form A set forth in the First Schedule to this Order or to the like effect) had already been served upon him under that Article.

(3) A veterinary surgeon who in this private practice is employed to examine any bovine animal, and is of opinion or suspects that the animal is an affected animal for the purpose of this Order, shall with all practicable speed give notice of the fact to a constable of the police force for the area wherein the animal is or to a Veterinary Inspector.

(4) The constable receiving any notice under this Article shall forthwith give

(a) 1 Halsbury's Statutes 389 ; 30 Halsbury's Statutes 60.
(b) 30 Halsbury's Statutes 52.

information of the receipt of such notice to the Veterinary Inspector appointed for the time being by the Minister to receive such information within the area where the animal is and to an Inspector of the Local Authority.

(5) A veterinary surgeon who under and in accordance with this Article gives notice of the existence or suspected existence of disease shall be entitled to receive from the Minister a fee of two shillings and sixpence for each such notification. Where two or more animals are examined by a veterinary surgeon on the same premises and at the same time, one fee only shall be payable to him under this Article in respect of the notification of the existence or suspected existence of the disease in such animals.

Detention and Isolation of Animals and Precautions to be Adopted with respect to Milk.

2.—(1) An Inspector of the Local Authority on receiving information in any manner whatsoever that there is on any premises a bovine animal which is or is suspected to be an affected animal shall proceed with all practicable speed to the place where such animal is, and shall forthwith serve a Notice (in the Form A set forth in the First Schedule to this Order or to the like effect) on the owner or person in charge of the animal. The Inspector shall with all practicable speed send a copy of the Notice to the Veterinary Inspector appointed for the time being by the Minister to receive such Notices within the area where the animal is and to the Local Authority.

(2) A Veterinary Inspector may serve a Notice (in the said Form A or to the like effect) on the owner or person in charge of any bovine animal examined by him which in his opinion is an affected animal. A copy of any such Notice served by a Veterinary Inspector shall with all practicable speed be sent by him to the Local Authority.

(3) A notice served under paragraphs (1) or (2) of this Article shall require the owner or person in charge of the animal to detain the animal on the premises specified in the Notice and to keep the animal isolated as far as practicable from other bovine animals. The Notice shall also require that in the case of a cow the milk produced by the cow shall not be mixed with other milk until the cow has been examined by a Veterinary Inspector in accordance with the provisions of this Order and until a Notice (in the Form B set forth in the First Schedule to this Order or to the like effect) has been served on the owner or person in charge of the cow by a Veterinary Inspector; and shall require that all milk affected by the Notice (Form A) shall forthwith be boiled or otherwise sterilised, and that any utensil in which such milk is placed before being so treated shall be thoroughly cleansed and scalded with steam or boiling water before any other milk is placed therein.

(4) A Notice (Form A) served under this Article shall remain in force until the animal to which it relates has died or has been slaughtered in accordance with the provisions of this Order or until the Notice is withdrawn by a further Notice in writing (in the Form B set forth in the First Schedule to this Order or to the like effect) signed by a Veterinary Inspector.

Examination of Animals, etc.

3.—(1) Where, by reason of information received under the preceding Articles or otherwise, there is reasonable ground for supposing that on any premises there is an affected animal, a Veterinary Inspector shall examine the animal and any other bovine animal on such premises which the Veterinary Inspector considers it is desirable to examine to ascertain whether any such other animal is an affected animal.

(2) For the purposes of this Article the Veterinary Inspector may at all reasonable hours enter on any part of the premises, and the occupier of the premises and the persons in his employment shall render such reasonable assistance to the Inspector as may be required for all or any of the purposes of this Article.

(3) If the report of the Veterinary Inspector as to any animal does not show that it is an affected animal, a Notice (Form B) shall forthwith be given by a Veterinary Inspector to the owner or person in charge of the animal withdrawing the restrictions imposed in respect of the animal by any notice (Form A) served upon him in accordance with the provisions of Article 2 of this Order. The Veterinary Inspector shall with all practicable speed send a copy of the Notice to the Local Authority.

MILK AND DAIRIES: AND TUBERCULOUS COWS

Slaughter of Diseased Animals.

4.—(1) Where the report of the Veterinary Inspector under the preceding Article shows that there is an affected animal on any premises a Veterinary Inspector shall after giving notice in writing (in the Form C set forth in the First Schedule hereto or to the like effect) to the owner or person in charge of the animal and, subject as hereinafter provided, cause the animal to be slaughtered; provided that if, before the slaughter is carried out, the owner of the animal, or any person authorised to act on his behalf, gives notice in writing to the Minister or to the Veterinary Inspector that the owner objects to the animal being slaughtered under the provisions of this Order, the Veterinary Inspector shall not cause the animal to be slaughtered unless and until further special authority under the Official Seal of the Minister has been obtained.

(2) If the value of an animal proposed to be slaughtered, as agreed or certified under this Order, exceeds fifty pounds, the Veterinary Inspector shall not proceed with its slaughter unless and until he has so reported to the Minister and has received further special authority under the Official Seal of the Minister to proceed with the slaughter of the animal.

Post-Mortem Examination of Slaughtered Animals.

5.—(1) In the case of every animal slaughtered under the provisions of Article 4 of this Order, the carcase at the time of slaughter or as soon as practicable thereafter, shall be examined by a Veterinary Inspector, and the owner of the animal shall be entitled to be present at the examination in person or by a representative who, if the owner thinks fit, may be a veterinary surgeon. The Veterinary Inspector may for the purposes of the examination submit specimens of the lesions to a pathological institute approved by the Minister.

(2) The Veterinary Inspector shall at the conclusion of his examination give to the owner or person in charge of the animal a certificate of the result of the examination in the Form D set forth in the First Schedule or to the like effect.

Compensation.

6.—(1) The scale of compensation for animals slaughtered under the provisions of Article 4 of this Order shall be as follows:

(a) where the certificate of the result of the examination required by the preceding Article does not show that the animal was affected with tuberculosis, a sum equal to the market value of the animal, and a further sum of twenty shillings;

(b) where the certificate of the result of the examination shows that the animal was affected with tuberculosis (not being advanced tuberculosis), a sum equal to three-fourths of the market value of the animal, or the sum of thirty shillings, whichever sum is the greater, after deducting from such sum one-half of the reasonable costs of any valuation of the animal by a valuer nominated by the President of the Auctioneers' and Estate Agents' Institute of the United Kingdom or by the President of the Institute of Auctioneers and Appraisers in Scotland as the case may be;

(c) where the certificate of the result of the examination shows that the animal was affected with advanced tuberculosis, a sum equal to one-fourth of the market value of the animal, or the sum of thirty shillings, whichever sum is the greater, after deducting from such sum one-half of the costs of valuation as in the preceding case.

(2) For the purposes of this Order an animal slaughtered under this Order shall be deemed to have been affected with advanced tuberculosis:

(a) when there is miliary tuberculosis of both lungs; or

(b) when diffuse tuberculous lesions are present on the pleura and peritoneum; or

(c) where the infection of lymphatic glands is sufficient to indicate that disease is widespread; or

(d) where, in addition to the presence of tuberculous lesions in the respiratory and digestive tracts, there are also lesions present in the substance or membranes of any two of the following: spleen, kidney, udder, any part of the productive system and any part of the central nervous system.

Valuation for Compensation.

7.—(1) Notwithstanding the provisions of Articles 13 and 14 of the Animals (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order of 1927, the market value of an animal shall before slaughter be determined for the purposes of this Order by agreement between the Minister and the owner of the animal, or if they shall fail so to agree, by a valuer appointed by the Minister and the owner and paid by the Minister, or failing such appointment by a valuer nominated by the President of the Auctioneers' and Estate Agents' Institute of the United Kingdom in the case of a valuation in England and Wales or by a valuer nominated by the President of the Institute of Auctioneers and Appraisers in Scotland in the case of a valuation in Scotland and paid by the Minister, and such valuer shall give to the Minister and to the owner a certificate in writing of the said value.

Preservation of Local Records.

A question which has periodically arisen for many years is what should be done with books and documents belonging to Local Authorities which are no longer in current use. This question has lately been put again, in connection with the Rating and Valuation Act, 1925, by many of the new and of the old Rating Authorities (a). Detailed suggestions have been made in answer to the particular question put, but it may be of interest to mention here an important general principle which is involved, namely, that not merely current documents, and documents likely to be wanted for audit or in legal proceedings, should be preserved, but also records possessing, or likely to possess, historical interest. The value of rate-books, valuation lists, and similar documents is being increasingly recognised by the historian, and in any case of doubt the presumption should be against destroying documents, at least without reference to some competent authority. In this connection it may be worth recalling that section 17 of the Local Government Act, 1894 (a), provides for periodical inquiry and directions by County Councils as to the preservation of documents under the control of Parish Councils and Parish Meetings.

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL, S.W.1.

Nursing Homes Registration Act, 1927 (a).

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Health to state that he has received representations that the steps taken by local supervising authorities in their administration of the above-mentioned Act are not invariably sufficient to enable them to ascertain at an early stage the existence of Nursing Homes which have not been registered under the Act.

The Minister feels sure that the authorities will appreciate the need for ascertaining promptly the existence of any unregistered Homes, and for taking action to prevent the carrying on of such Homes, and he suggests that each authority should take steps to secure the co-operation in this matter of the medical practitioners practising in their area. The authority might circulate to such practitioners from time to time a list of Nursing Homes registered under the Act, and ask them to notify the authority as soon as they become aware of the existence of an unregistered Home. The Minister has been in consultation in the matter with the British Medical Association and understands that the Association fully concur in this suggestion. The Minister will accordingly be glad if each local supervising authority will arrange to confer with the medical practitioners practising in their area, with a view to the adoption of the procedure outlined above.

I am also to suggest that the authorities should make full use of the services of their appropriate officers, such as health visitors and sanitary inspectors, in order to bring to light the existence of unregistered Homes, and that with the same object in view arrangements should be made for a regular examination by the appropriate staff of the authority of advertisements from Nursing Homes for patients or staff which appear in the Press.

At the same time, I am to remind the authority of the importance of adequate supervision of all Nursing Homes registered under the Act, and to request them to take steps to satisfy themselves that their arrangements for the periodical inspection of registered Homes are sufficient to ensure that the requirements of the Act are in all cases fully observed.

If a county council have delegated their powers and duties under the Act to the councils of any county districts within the county, the Minister requests that he may be informed of the names of those councils in order that he may supply them with copies of this Circular.

MINISTRY OF TRANSPORT, Roads Department,

SURVEYORS' SALARIES AND TRAVELLING EXPENSES.

GRANTS FROM THE ROAD FUND TO COUNTY COUNCILS AND RURAL DISTRICT COUNCILS UNDER SECTION 17 (2) OF THE MINISTRY OF TRANSPORT ACT, 1919.

SIR,—I am directed by the Minister of Transport to acquaint you that he has had under review the question of the grants made from the Road Fund, under section 17 (2) of the Ministry of Transport Act, 1919, towards the salaries and travelling expenses of highway surveyors to county councils and rural district councils having regard to the changes in highway administration which will become effective on the 1st April, 1930, under the provisions of the Local Government Act, 1929.

2. By section 30 of that Act rural district councils will cease to be highway authorities, and the responsibility for the maintenance of roads in a rural district will pass to the county council. The Minister is advised that under the terms of section 17 (2) of the Ministry of Transport Act, 1919, it will no longer be open to him to make grants towards the salary of an officer of a rural district council, even though the functions of the county council with respect to the maintenance, repair and improvement of certain roads in the district may have been delegated to the rural district council by the county council in pursuance of section 35 of the Local Government Act, 1929.

3. The Minister accordingly proposes that from 1st April, 1930, the following basis shall be adopted for any agreements that shall be entered into by him under section

(a) Supplemented by Circulars 388 dated Nov. 13, 1933, and 459 dated Aug. 19, 1936, post, pp. 3706 and 3716.

17 (2) of the Ministry of Transport Act, 1919, to defray half the approved salary and establishment charges of the highway surveyor to a county council:— OFFICERS

(1) As soon as may be after the commencement of each financial year the county council will forward a statement showing the personnel, the organisation and the salaries of the county highway supervisory staff.

The salaries of this staff in so far as they are attributable to the discharge of highway functions, will, if approved by the Minister, be accepted for a grant under the agreement. Where an officer is not wholly employed upon highway duties, a proper apportionment should be made showing the amount of salary attributable to those duties.

Supplementary statements can be submitted if additions are made to the highway supervisory staff later in the year.

(2) The statement referred to in paragraph (1) should be confined to the county surveyor himself, his deputy, assistant or divisional surveyors or engineers and also any engineers engaged for particular works, and surveyors employed on building line and improvement line surveys, etc. Where, however, an agreement has been entered into by a county council and a rural district council under the proviso to section 120 of the Local Government Act, 1929, for the joint user by both councils of the services of a surveyor or engineer, the portion of the salary of such officer which is paid by the county council as representing his highway duties, will also be accepted for grant.

(3) The reasonable travelling expenses incurred on highway duties by the county surveyor himself will be accepted for grant, subject to the conditions at present in force, but not the travelling expenses of any member of his staff.

If any member of the staff is paid an inclusive salary to cover travelling expenses, an allocation must be made in the statement referred to in paragraph (1) above of the portion of the salary attributable to travelling expenses and this will be deducted in arriving at the portion of the salary to be accepted for grant.

4. The grants indicated above will, save in very special circumstances, constitute the only direct assistance from the Road Fund after 31st March, 1930, towards expenditure incurred by county councils on engineering or surveying staff and establishment charges. Expenditure under these headings under normal conditions will no longer be admitted for grant in connexion with particular works or surveys.

5. The agreements heretofore entered into with Highway authorities under section 17 (2) of the Ministry of Transport Act, 1919, in respect of contributions from the Road Fund towards the surveyor's or engineer's salary and travelling expenses contain a provision requiring the Minister to give six months' notice of his intention to discontinue the contributions. The Minister, therefore, hereby gives formal notice of his intention to discontinue on the 31st March, 1930, all contributions under existing agreements with county councils and rural district councils with a view to entering into fresh agreements with county councils as from 1st April, 1930, on the lines indicated in this Circular Letter.

6. Two further copies of this Circular Letter are enclosed for transmission to the highway surveyor and the accounting officer of your Council.

Your obedient servant,
H. H. PIGGOTT,
Assistant Secretary.

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,

SANITARY OFFICERS (OUTSIDE LONDON) REGULATIONS, 1935. (a)

SIR,—1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to transmit to the Authority the accompanying copies of the Sanitary Officers (Outside London) Regulations, 1935, which relate to County Medical Officers of Health and to Medical Officers of Health and Sanitary Inspectors appointed by the Councils of Boroughs and Urban and Rural Districts and by Port Sanitary Authorities. The Regulations do not apply to London. They come into force on January 1st, 1936, and replace the Sanitary Officers Order, 1926 (except in so far as it applies to London), with certain alterations which experience has shown to be desirable.

At the same time it has been considered desirable to make the Regulations comprehensive by applying certain of their provisions to Port Sanitary Authorities, and paragraphs 3 to 7 of this Circular should be read as applying, with the necessary modifications, to the Medical Officers of Health and Sanitary Inspectors of those Authorities.

(a) For the sections of the Local Government Act, 1933, mentioned in this circular, see Vol. I of this work; the notes there appended to the sections are necessary to understanding some parts of the circular.

OFFICERS

2. Section 103 (4) of the Local Government Act, 1933, provides that a County Medical Officer of Health shall perform such duties as may be prescribed by the Minister and such other duties as may be assigned to him by the County Council. The duties prescribed by the Minister are set out in Part II of the Regulations. It has been thought desirable to include in paragraph (1) of Article 6 of specific requirement to visit county districts as occasion may require, a provision which is similar to that contained in paragraph (1) of the County Medical Officers of Health (Duties) Order, 1910.

3. Parts III and IV contain the Regulations made in pursuance of Section 108 (1) of the Local Government Act, 1933.

The Regulations prescribing the qualifications to be held and the duties to be performed by the Medical Officers of Health of Boroughs (including County Boroughs), and of Union and Rural Districts, apply in every case and are obligatory (Articles 8 and 17). Compliance with the Regulations regarding the mode of appointment and terms as to salary and tenure of office of Medical Officers of Health and Sanitary Inspectors of Boroughs and Urban and Rural Districts, and the qualifications and duties of such Sanitary Inspectors (Articles 9 to 16, and 20 to 28), is a condition of the right of the Council of any County District to receive from the County Council under Section 109 of the Act of payment of one-half of the salary. Any resolution appointing such officers should state whether the appointment is subject to the provisions of the Regulations.

The tenure of office of existing officers is not affected by these Regulations, but the duties now prescribed apply to all Medical Officers of Health and to those Sanitary Inspectors whose appointment has been approved by the Minister.

4. In the Sanitary Officers Order, 1926, it was provided that, as an alternative to the possession of a registered diploma in sanitary science, public health or state medicine, a Medical Officer of Health should have had not less than three years' experience of the duties of a Medical Officer of Health. This alternative is not included in Article 8 of the new Regulations in which the qualifications of Medical Officers of Health are prescribed. It has been represented to the Minister that some Medical Officers of Health now in office do not hold a diploma in sanitary science, public health or state medicine. In the event of the expiration of the existing appointment of any such officer, and if his re-appointment becomes necessary, the Minister has power under Article 29 of the Regulations to dispense with the requirements of Article 8 with respect to qualifications.

In the case of Districts having a population of 50,000 or more, the possession of a diploma as above is a statutory requirement by virtue of Section 108 (3) (b) of the Act of 1933.

5. The requirements of Article 11 (2) with respect to the advertisement of proposed appointments, which apply both to Medical Officers of Health and to Sanitary Inspectors (see Article 21), will be satisfied if the appointment is advertised, in the case of a Medical Officer of Health, in the medical journals or, in the case of a Sanitary Inspector, in the appropriate technical journals. Such advertisements will, as a rule, attract a wider selection of candidates than advertisements in the non-technical press.

6. Article 12 provides that future appointments of Medical Officers of Health who are not by the terms of their appointments restricted from engaging in private practice shall be for a limited term only. This will apply where the County Council has not yet formulated arrangements under Section 111 (1) of the Local Government Act, 1933 (which re-enacts Section 58 (1) of the Local Government Act, 1929), for securing that Medical Officers of Health for County Districts shall be restricted by the terms of their employment from engaging in private practice, or where, although such arrangements have been formulated, the Minister in a particular case decides to exercise his power of dispensation under Subsection (4) of Section 111.

Under the Sanitary Officers Order, 1926, a Medical Officer of Health who was not restricted from private practice had to be appointed for a specified term expiring on the 31st day of March next following the date of his appointment, after which he continued to hold office from year to year without further appointment by the Local Authority or approval by the Minister, subject to the right of the Local Authority to determine the appointment by giving three months' notice to expire on March 31st in any year. In recent years, however, it has been the practice of the Minister, having regard to the provisions of Section 58 of the Local Government Act, 1929, and Section 111 of the Act of 1933, and with a view to facilitating the early appointment of officers restricted from private practice, to give his approval to the appointment of a Medical Officer of Health not restricted from private practice for a limited period only, and/or to require that the officer shall give an undertaking to resign his appointment at any time on being called upon to do so either by the Local Authority or the Minister in order that an officer restricted from engaging in private practice may be appointed. Having regard to these considerations, no provision has been made in the new Regulations for the automatic continuance of the appointment of a Medical Officer of Health not restricted from private practice beyond the 31st day of March next following the date of his appointment, and it will be necessary for the approval of the Minister to be obtained if a further appointment of the officer is found necessary.

Under Section 110 of the Act certain Medical Officers of Health and Sanitary Inspectors of Boroughs, Urban Districts and Rural Districts outside London who, in the case of Medical Officers of Health, are restricted by the terms of their appointments from engaging in private practice, or, in the case of certain Sanitary Inspectors, are required by the terms of their appointments to devote the whole of their time to public duties, may not be appointed for a limited time and may not be dismissed except by the Minister or with his consent. The provisions of this Section do not apply to every County Borough and for the sake of convenience a list is given in the Schedule to this Circular of the County Boroughs and the Sanitary Officers thereof to whom these provisions do apply.

7. Article 17 prescribes briefly the duties of a Medical Officer of Health of a Borough or Urban or Rural District.

By Section 11 of the Housing Act, 1935 (a), the Minister is required to include in the Regulations prescribing the duties of these officers provisions for imposing on them a duty of furnishing annually to the Minister certain particulars in relation to overcrowding in their districts. These provisions are included in paragraph (4) of Article 17 of these Regulations.

8. Reference is made in Article 18 to the union of two or more Districts for the appointment of a Medical Officer of Health. Provision for such union is made in Section 112 of the Local Government Act, 1933. It is not, however, essential that the Districts of Councils who contemplate the appointment of the same officer as Medical Officer of Health should be formally united in this manner.

9. Sections 115 and 116 of the Act provide for the appointment of standing or temporary deputies to act in place of a Medical Officer of Health or Sanitary Inspector whenever the office is vacant or the holder thereof is for any reason unable to act. The present Regulations do not apply in terms to such officers, but the Act provides that they shall have all the functions of the holder of the office and it will therefore fall to them to carry out the duties prescribed for a Medical Officer of Health or Sanitary Inspector, as the case may be, in the appropriate Articles in the Regulations.

10. It may be convenient to draw attention to the following changes which were made by the Local Government Act, 1933, in the law affecting Medical Officers of Health and Sanitary Inspectors of Boroughs and Urban and Rural Districts:

(a) A vacancy in these offices must be filled within six months, or such longer period as the Minister may permit, after its occurrence (Sections 106 (4) and 107 (3)).

(b) Where in a county district a deputy appointed as in paragraph 9 above acts during a vacancy in the substantive office, his salary for the period when he so acts ranks for the payment of one-half by the County Council if such a payment is made towards the salary of the holder of the substantive office (Section 117).
